Office of Register of Deeds.

BY THE LIEUT. GOVERNOR OF BENGAL.

July 8.—The following rules will be observed in future, in making appointments to the office of Register of Deeds.

When a permanent vacancy occurs in one of these offices, it will be the duty of the judge of the district to give immediate notice of the vacancy to Government.

On the occurrence of a temporary vacancy, and during any period intervening between the permanent vacating of the office by a previous incumbent and the appointment of a successor by Government, the judge of the district will appoint some qualified person to officiate, in the manner provided for by Sections 3 and 4 Regulation IV. of 1824, or by Section 6 Act XXX. of 1838, as the case may be.

In no case will any person be deemed eligible for the office of Register of Deeds until he has proved himself qualified for the performance of the duties of the office, by passing an examination in the vernacular language of the district, equal in strictness to that by which junior officers in the service are required to pass in that language by the first standard.

Any person desiring to qualify for the office of Register of Deeds may offer himself for examination in the language of the district, at any ordinary examination of assistants and others held half-yearly in each division.

A. R. YOUNG,
Sec. to the Govt. of Bengal.

The Civil Service.—Education.

Fort William, July 12.

The following extract, paragraph 41, from a despatch, No. 4, dated April 7, from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, is published for general information:—

"41. After a full consideration of the grounds on which the Court of Directors formerly gave their sanction, as a temporary arrangement, to the employment of Covenanted Civil Servants in the Department of Education, H.M.'s Government are, on the whole, of opinion that, as a general rule, all appointments in the Department of Education should be filled by individuals unconnected with the Service of Government, either Civil or Military. It is not their wish that officers now in the department should be disturbed for the sole purpose of carrying out this rule, and they are aware that difficulty might at present be experienced in finding well-qualified persons unconnected with the regular services, to fill vacant offices in the department. But it is their desire that the rule now prescribed be kept steadily in view, and that every encouragement be given to persons of education to enter the educational service, even in the lower grades, by making it known that in the nominations to the higher offices in the department, a preference will hereafter be given to those who may so enter it, if competent to discharge the duties."

Lieut. Henchy at Chichumba.

No. 709 of 1859.—With reference to G.G.O., No. 317, of the 11th March, 1859, H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council has much satisfaction in publishing the following letter from the Resident at Hyderabad, No. 32, dated 30th March, 1859, with its inclosure.

No. 32.

From Lieut. col. C. Davidson, Resident at Hyderabad, to Maj. gen. Birch, c.b., Sec. to the Govt. of India, in the Mily. depart., Fort William.

Hyderabad Residency, March 30, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to forward for submission to H.E. the Viceroy and Gov. gen. of India in Council, the accompanying copy of a letter from Brigdr. Hill, comdg. Hyderabad contingent, of the 20th inst., bringing to notice the omission of the name of Lieut. Henchy, comdnt. 4th comp. art. Hyderabad contingent, in his despatch of the 19th Jan. last, No. 13, reporting the affair with Rohillas at Chichumba.

C. DAVIDSON, Lieut. col.

No. 90.

From Brigdr. W. Hill, comdg. Hyderabad contingent, to the Mily. Sec. to the Resident, Hyderabad.

Hd. Qrs., Hyderabad contingent,

Dated Bolarum, March 28, 1859.

Sir,—I regret to find in my despatch of the action at Chichumba, which was published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 11th inst., that I had inadvertently omitted to mention the name of Lieut. Robert Henchy, of the 4th comp. of art., who was my orderly officer on that day.

Lieut. Henchy was with me during the whole of the time I was in the village, under a very heavy fire, and rendered me every assistance I required on the occasion, to the conclusion of the attack, and gave me every satisfaction.

At the time I wrote my despatch I was in pursuit of the enemy, and my not mentioning Lieut. Henchy was purely an oversight.

I have the honour to request that the Resident will do me the favour to submit this letter to the rt. hon. the Gov. gen. of India; and I trust that it may meet with his lordship's approval to allow this letter to be published in the Gazette.

Brigadier Horsford at Nanpara.

No. 823 of 1859.—H. E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following letter from the Officiating Adj. gen. of the army, No. 486, of the 25th ult., with inclosures, from Brigdr. Horsford, c.b., describing a successful expedition made by a force under his orders from Nanpara.

H.E. in Council entirely concurs in the approbation expressed by the rt. hon. the C. in C. of the services rendered on this occasion by Brigdr. Horsford and the troops under his command.

From the Officiating Adj. gen. of the army, to the Sec. to Govt. of India, Mily. Depart.

Sir,—I have the honour, by direction of the C. in C., to transmit for the information of H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council copies of two letters, dated 27th and 28th ult., from Brigdr. A. H. Horsford, c.b., describing a successful expedition made by a force under his orders from Nanpara.

Lord Clyde desires me to express his approbation of the services rendered on this occasion by the brigdr. and the troops under his command.

Offictg. Adj. gen. of the army.

Hd. Qrs. Simla, 28th May, 1859.

From Brigdr. A. H. Horsford, c.b., comdg. Trans Gogra, to the Depy. Asst. adj. gen. Oude Force.

Dated Camp Bhurtapore, 27th April, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to report for the information of Maj. gen. Sir Hope Grant, k.c.b., comdg. Oude div., that having received intelligence of the movement of a body of rebels of between 2,000 and 3,000 in number to the westward, with a view to cross the Kowreealla river and enter the Khyryghur jungles, I assembled the force named in the margin* at Nanpara, and proceeded to endeavour to prevent the enemy from carrying out his intentions.

I had previously ascertained that all the boats on the Kowreealla had been withdrawn by the police on the right bank of that river, and was therefore aware, that from its depth and width, if time was not given the rebels to construct rafts, they could not cross.

My object being to prevent the enemy from breaking to the southward, I marched to the Gurwa river (between which and the Kowreealla river the rebels were reported to be) in a north-westwardly direction, leaving Pudnaha on my right; this led me through a tract of dense forest, and over very difficult ground, but with the assistance of billdars to prepare the way for the guns, all obstacles were overcome, and I succeeded in reaching the left bank of the Gurwa river on the 25th inst., at 8 A.M., having left my last encampment at 3 A.M.

I here ascertained that the enemy, in perfect ignorance of our approach, were assembled between the Gurwa and Kowreealla rivers, and as my object, as I have previously stated, was to prevent them from breaking to the southward, I detached a body of cav. to the only ford in that direction by which they could cross, and I passed the Gurwa with my force, and so disposed it as to cover as much ground as possible, with the purpose of driving the enemy into the apex of the triangle formed by the two rivers.

The main body of the cav. were moved considerably to the right to endeavour to close the only line of retreat open to the enemy due north, but unfortunately the denseness of the jungle prevented the cav. from acting quite as I intended. They however succeeded in cutting up many stragglers.

My advance with the inf. and guns was a perfect surprise to the enemy, who offered but little resistance, but here again the jungle favoured their retreat; however, upwards of 200 were killed during the day.

* 3rd trp. 1st brig. Ben. H.A., 42. Wing 1st Punj. cav., 236. Detach. 1st Sikh irreg. cav., 126. 3 comps. 2nd batt. rifle brig., 241; 2 ditto 5th Punj. rifles, 128; 2 ditto Kemaon batt., 101: 470.

The greater part of the rebels fled to the northward, but a small force of cav. and inf. were driven into the jungle near the junction of the two rivers.

As soon as the troops had somewhat rested after a severe day's work, and the great heat of the day had passed, I proceeded to clear this jungle; in the meantime, however, a body of about forty sowars dashed across the open from this jungle as their only means of escape, but of these only three got away.

The inf. went through the jungle and destroyed a few of the enemy, but from arms of all descriptions picked up, it was conjectured that the rebels must have swam across into the jungles on the opposite banks of the river.

It is now stated that Oomrow Sing has but very few followers with him, his force having dispersed and gone towards the hills.

During these operations the troops have made long and fatiguing marches through a country covered with forest and traversed by several rivers; on the 25th they were under arms from 2 A.M. until 8 P.M., but both their health and spirits have been excellent. I have received every aid from Col. Hill, c.b., 2nd batt. rifle brigade, comdg. the inf.; from Maj. Moir, c.b., Ben. H.A., and Hughes, 1st Punjab cav., the former comdg. the art., the latter the cav.

I beg to thank the following officers, who efficiently commanded their respective detach.:—Lieut. Danvers, 1st Punj. cav.; Lieut. Godby, 1st Sikh cav.; Capt. Grant, Kumaoon batt.; Lieut. Lane, 2nd batt. rifle brig.; and Lieut. Forlong, 5th Punjab rifles.

I have also to thank Major Dillon, 2nd batt. rifle brig., my Major of brig.; Capt. Hoste, 5th Punj. rifles, brig. qr. mr.; Lieut. Sadlier, 61st regt., comdg. district police; and Lieut. Campbell, 79th highlanders, my orderly officer.

Capt. Steel, depy. commissnr., who has accompanied the force, has rendered very important services.

Comdg. Trans Gogra.

From Brigdr. A. H. Horsford, c.b., comdg. Trans Gogra, to the Depy. Asst. adj. gen., Gonda.

Dated Camp Bunder Burrhea, 28th April, 1859.

Sir,—In my report of yesterday I omitted to state that a body of fifty sowars of 5th police cav., and 250 Jezailchees, whom I had requested Lieut. Sadlier, 61st regt., divisional commandant, to direct to watch a ford north of that by which I crossed the Gurwa to attack the rebels, did good service by repulsing parties of the enemy who attempted to pass the river to the eastward after their defeat.

Action near Oodeypoor.

From Maj. Gen. G. C. Whitlock, comdg. Saugor F.D., to Maj. gen. Sir W. R. Mansfield, k.c.b., chief of the staff, army H.Q., camp near Nagode, April 7th, 1859.

Sir,—I have much satisfaction in forwarding the accompanying report from Brigdr. Wheler, of a successful attack on the rebels in the neighbourhood of Oodeypoor.

I beg permission to bring Brigdr. Wheler's name to the special notice of the rt. hon. Lord Clyde. This officer has on several occasions merited my warmest thanks for the alacrity and intelligence displayed in making his arrangements for defeating and dispersing the rebels, and in the present affair his plans have been rewarded with praiseworthy success.

The Brigdr. speaks highly of the conduct of the troops, and mentions the names of Capt. Clifton, comdg. detach. 12th lancers; Capt. Mayne, comdg. detach. 3rd irr. cav.; Maj. Synge, comdg. detach. H.M.'s 43rd; Capt. Disbrowe, H.M.'s 43rd regt.; Capt. Gully, Maj. of Brig.; and Lieut. Hatchell, H.M.'s 43rd regt., orderly officer. May I beg to respectfully recommend these officers to Lord Clyde.

G. C. WHITLOCK, Maj. Gen.,
Comdg. Saugor F.D.

From Brigdr. F. Wheler, comdg. Saugor district, to the Assist. Adj. Gen., Saugor F.D.

Camp, Oodeypoor, March 27th, 1859.

Sir,—For the information of the Maj. Gen. comdg. Saugor div., I have the honour to report a successful attack I made yesterday on Adil Mahomed, the Bhopal rebel, in the jungles near this place.

Having reliable information of this rebel's position, I left Basoda at 11 P.M. on the 25th inst., and reached the village of Basoda Soojabad a little after daylight next morning.

So complete was the surprise, that on our arrival at the village not a soul was stirring, and at first I thought the rebels must have heard of my approach, and decamped. Very few minutes, however, elapsed before I saw many rebels come to the edge of the jungles to see what we were.

The advance of the four companies of the 43rd L.I. was ordered, and in one minute they dashed into the jungles in admirable style. For a moment I thought the rebels would stand, but it was only for a moment, when they turned and fled, and were pursued through a very thick and thorny jungle for fully three miles, to the end of the valley, when further pursuit became useless.

There was but little opportunity of using the cavalry, and the only attempt I made to employ that arm was by sending a party round to the right, to try and interrupt the flying rebels.

I had no means of ascertaining whether the estimated number of rebels, namely, 2,000, was correct. I found that they were bivouacked in detached parties, in convenient spots all over the valley, which was shown by their fires. Neither can I estimate the enemy's loss; many were killed, certainly. The expenditure of ammunition was 800 rounds, and the 43rd L.I. do not throw away their fire—but the ground was difficult, and it was all sharpshooting.

The rebels dropped some of their cattle, arms, and plunder: but they had no money to speak of about their persons—and I saw no sepoy or sowars in uniform.

The force I took with me is as per margin,* and I beg leave to report that they all did their duty. But I am indebted to comdg. officers of corps; to Capt. Gully, maj. of brig., and Lieut. Hatchell, 43rd L.I., my orderly officer, for their exertions to keep the men together in this difficult ground, and thus systematically search it. Capt. Disbrowe's company, 43rd, followed one portion of the rebels over a gorge in the hills to the right, with good effect.

The position in which I attacked these rebels is almost impossible to describe, and I am afraid cannot be understood without it were mapped.

It may generally be described as a rather elevated valley, surrounded by low hills, except to the north-east; that it is about four miles long, three wide at the end we entered, and not more than half a mile at the other, where there is a small fort called Dowlutpoor, overlooking the valley, which is there a cul-de-sac. I was led to believe that there were only two roads and three footpaths into this valley; but I found that the hills were not very steep, and that the rebels could escape almost everywhere.

The force had, after a march of nineteen miles, and a trot through jungles for at least three, to return eight or nine miles to camp at this place. The sun was very powerful, and the men were under arms for thirteen hours, but they have not suffered, and I have no casualty to report during this operation.

This Nawab Adil Mahomed will not, I think, again trust himself within reach of British troops.

Operations in the Trans-Gogra District.

H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following letter from the officiating Adj. gen. of the army, No. 283 of the 11th May, 1859, with its enclosed reports of successful actions that have recently taken place with rebels in the Trans Gogra Districts of Oude.

2. H.E. in Council concurs in the satisfaction expressed by the rt. hon. the C. in C. at the manner in which these operations were directed, and offers his thanks to the whole of the officers and men engaged in these actions.

From Capt. R. Renny, comdg. Moveable col., to the Asst. adj. gen. Maj. gen. Sir J. Hope Grant's Force, Gonda, Oude.

Camp Kusbah, April 28, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to report for the information of Maj. gen. Sir J. Hope Grant, K.C.B., comdg. in Oude, that having ascertained that the rebels (Nuseerabad Brigade), under Daveedeen, instead of proceeding westward as reported in my letter of the 24th inst., had doubled back to their old ground in the dense jungle south of the Koance river, I determined to fall back, and, if possible, get in rear of them, so as to carry out the Maj. gen.'s instructions to drive them westward.

Hearing that Maj. Murray, comdg. a moveable col., was at Bhowaniegunge, some ten miles from my camp, I rode over to consult with him, which resulted in his moving down the east side of the jungle whilst I moved westward; we thus had the enemy between our two columns.

Yesterday morning when on the line of march, I received intimation from Maj. Murray that he had attacked and defeated the enemy on the previous day, and that they were supposed to have gone in the direction of Doomdah Ghat on the river Biswah, I marched at once for this Ghat, crossed the river, and encamped at the village of Bhawanie, two miles to the south of it.

About twelve o'clock at noon I was informed by my spies that the rebels, 1,200 strong, were cooking their food in the jungle on the north bank of the river, about two miles west of Doomdah Ghat. I at once made arrangements to attack them, leaving the camp standing under charge of Lieut. Smith, R.A., with the two guns of the field batt., one comp. of H.M.'s 34th regt., and one comp. 3rd Sikh inf. I marched with the rest of the force as per margin,* and after posting the cav. so as to prevent the rebels moving along the jungle to the east, I advanced with the inf. to the position they were supposed to occupy, and fortunately succeeded in getting within 300 yards of them before they were aware of our approach. They were soon on the alert, and after firing a few shots they broke and fled westwards, throwing away many of their arms and accoutrements, their food, clothes, and cooking utensils, with which the ground was strewn for miles. I followed them in skirmishing order for upwards of five miles, killing a great number; twenty-nine dead bodies were counted on the field, and I am given to understand from spies and villagers that the wounded are very numerous, and the rebels say they can remain no longer in these jungles, and that they now intend proceeding to Bhinga Ghat, north of the Raptée.

I would beg to bring to the notice of the Maj. gen. the admirable conduct of the troops European and native; the pursuit was carried on under a scorching sun, without a check of any kind, for upwards of five miles.

My thanks are due to all the officers engaged for the energy displayed in leading their men, but more particularly to Capt. Puget, comdg. detach. of H.M.'s 34th regt., for the able manner in which he commanded the skirmishers throughout the day.

R. RENNY, Capt.,
Comdg. Moveable col.

From Capt. H. B. Vaughan, 25th regt., to the Dep. asst. gr. mr. gen., Oude Div.
Munkapore, April 28, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to report, that yesterday, whilst encamped on the Bishowee Nuddy, I heard that 300 rebels were crossing the plain southward and plundering the villages in their way. I immediately started in pursuit with the force named in the margin,* but finding that I was too late to prevent their entering the jungle, I sent the guns back to camp, and attacked them on the banks of the river, taking with me the twenty-five men of the 20th regt., and sending the cav. to my left. They fled at once. We succeeded in killing seventeen, took an elephant, about forty stand of arms, some baggage, and a few horses and ponies. I hear that the remainder of the rebels have gone in the direction of the Chitounnee jungle, I marched here this morning in compliance with order.

H. B. VAUGHAN, Capt., 25th regt.

From Lieut. col. B. Walker to the Dep. asst. adj. gen. Oude Force, Gondah.

Dated Secora, April 29, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to report for the information of the Maj. gen. comdg. the Oude Force, that, in accordance with your memorandum received at 7.15 A.M. of the 27th inst., I at once marched from hence with a force to join Maj. Buck, 53rd regt., at the Bungoon jungle.

2. I found the force under his command posted as directed by your memorandum, but bearing in mind the Maj. gen.'s wish that I should force the rebel party from the direction of the road to Fyzabad, I made arrangements to attack the fort and jungle at Bungoon, held by the rebels under Gudjudur Sing, in the following manner.

3. I recalled the main body of the 53rd regt. posted at the northern angle of the jungle, and replaced them with three troops of the 2nd drag. gds., under Maj. Stapylton, with orders to watch the northern and western sides. I ordered the Sikh horse, under Capt. Jones, to remain as posted on the eastward, and watched the south western corner with the detach. of the 3rd Hodson's horse.

4. I drew back the two guns under Lieut. Pickering, R.A., to a position on the right bank of the Tehree Nuddy, from whence he obtained a good cross-fire on the fort with the guns under Maj. Soady, R.A., who came into action at 600 yards from the fort, in advance of the village of Bungoon.

5. Maj. Buck, 53rd regt., was directed to send two comps. through the jungles and attack the fort from the west. Lieut. Prince, 53rd regt., was to move at the same time from the bridge marked B on my former plan.

6. Three troops of the 2nd drag. gds., under Maj. Hutchinson, were on the plain near Lieut. Pickering's guns, and the remaining troop was in support of Maj. Soady.

7. Having made these dispositions, I opened fire, directions having been given to the two detach. of the 53rd regt. that they were to carry the fort five minutes after the guns ceased firing.

8. So resolute was the advance of the 53rd, that I was obliged to cease firing to allow them to enter the fort, which was taken in twelve minutes by the main body of that regt., led in the most gallant manner by Capt. Dalzell, who was the first man on the top of the bank.

9. Maj. Buck then pushed this position of the force through the jungle to the northward, and I caused Lieut. Prince, with the party from B causeway, to re-enter the jungle in the same direction.

10. The cav., under Maj. Hutchinson, and Lieut. Pickering's guns were at once ordered to join me at the causeway B, and I posted the cav. as follows.

11. Near the causeway I left the 2nd drag. gds. and two guns; beyond them I posted a troop of Wale's horse; further on the remainder of that corps; then the detach. of 3rd Hodson's horse, and I found Maj. Stapylton where I had posted him in the morning.

* 180 3rd regt. Hodson's horse; 3 guns B. H. art.; 25 men 20th regt., mounted on elephants.

12. All turned out as I expected. The 53rd killed a considerable number of rebels in the jungle, among them their leader, Gudjudur Sing, "the one-armed captain." The main body were forced out to the northward, where they were at once met by parties of the 2nd drag. gds., 53rd regt., Hodson's horse, under Capt. Jones, who at once charged them with great gallantry and promptitude. They fought fiercely, but were driven across the plain into some jungly ground to the northward, and were cut up and shot down till only a remnant of between forty and sixty men succeeding in escaping across a nuddy, which could only be crossed by swimming.

13. At 4 P.M. I withdrew the troops, the 2nd drag. gds. and Maj. Soady's guns to Rajgunge, Capt. Jones and Lieut. Pickering to the high ground near causeway B, and the 53rd regt. to the position opposite the fort.

14. On the morning of the 28th I revisited the fort and identified the body of the rebel leader, Gudjudur Sing.

15. The fort, which is a double square joining at the angles, is surrounded by a most difficult jungle, and is provided with a good brick-work well.

16. I cannot refrain from calling attention to the good service of all concerned.

17. To Lieut. col. Seymour, 2nd drag. gds., and to Majs. Hutchinson and Stapylton, I am much indebted.

18. Lieut. col. Seymour was indefatigable in superintending the positions of the cav., and afforded me most valuable advice.

19. The practice of the art., under Maj. Soady and Lieut. Pickering, was accurate and most effective.

20. I cannot say too much of the 53rd, under Maj. Buck, to his ready appreciation of the plan of attack, and to their determined advance and steady conduct our success is mainly to be attributed.

21. Capt. Jones, at the head of his corps of Sikh cav., made a most gallant and effective charge at the close of the day, and I received ready support from Ressaldar Futteh Sing and his troop of the 3rd regt. Hodson's horse.

22. The officer to whom I am most indebted throughout is Capt. Tyler, R.A., who acted as my staff officer at Nawabgunge, and subsequently. He is active and intelligent in no common degree, and I beg to recommend him most strongly to the favourable notice of the Maj. gen.

23. The men killed were chiefly sepoys of the old 1st, 22nd, 38th, 53rd, and 56th regts. of Native Infantry. As I heard of the escape of no parties in any direction but that which I have already mentioned, I believe the break-up to have been complete.

BEAUCHAMP WALKER, Lieut. col.

Dated Camp Bungoon, April 28, 1859.

Sir,—As requested, I have the honour to report the part the detach. hd. qrs. 1st Sikh irreg. cav. under my command, took in the operations yesterday at the taking of Bungoon, and defeat of the rebels under Gudjudur Sing Talookdar. I received instructions to cover the S.E. spur of the jungle, and post myself near the village of Ramahpoor, and thus prevent the rebels' escape in this direction. My videttes were on the lookout, and I moved a troop under Lieut. Sandeman to my right flank. On receiving intimation that the rebels were moving north, I advanced in the same direction to prevent their leaving the jungle. I was immediately afterwards personally ordered by Col. Walker to move to the N.E. side with a squad, leaving Lieut. Sandeman and his troop in my position. This move was a most successful one, for immediately afterwards the enemy, having been pressed by skirmishers, H.M.'s 53rd regt., came out of the jungle in a body of about 150, all sepoys, armed with musket and sword. I allowed them to clear the jungle well, and then charged. Numbers were cut up, sepoys of the 1st, 22nd, 53rd, and 59th N.I.

* 2nd regt. Hodson's horse.—2 native officers; 60 non-commissioned officers and sowars. 3rd Sikh inf.—1 Eur. medical officer; 6 native officers; 140 non-commissioned officers and privates. H.M.'s 34th regt.—5 officers; 9 sergeants; 3 doctors; 321 r. and f.

A few got into broken ground and into a deep nullah. A small body of skirmishers of H.M.'s 53rd came up and did great execution with the Enfield, and I imagine that of this party about 30 or 40 escaped, certainly not more.

I regret to say my loss for so small a body of men engaged was so large. The nature of the wounds, mostly tulwar and bayonet, will show that there must have been a number of hand-to-hand encounters, in which Lieut. Dick, adjt., and Duffadar Chunda Sing showed themselves good soldiers. The latter on the 13th distinguished himself, and I am sorry to say yesterday lost his arm.

My thanks are due to Lieut. Sandeman for the manner he supported me with his troop, and kept the rebels in check with so small a number of sowars.

Fight at Kurwania Sota.

Fort William, June 14, 1859.—No. 846 of 1859.—H.E. the Gov. Gen. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following report of operations against the rebels in the Kurwania Sota by the force under the command of Lieut. Millet, comdg. 2nd Jezailchee, on the 19th ult.

2. H.E. in Council entirely agrees with the C. in C. in considering this affair to reflect credit upon Lieut. Millet and the troops employed on this occasion:—

From Lieut. A. H. Millet, comdg. 2nd Jezailchees, to Maj. J. L. Vaughan, comdg. Field Col., Sidhonia Ghaut.

Camp, Sidhonia, Ghaut, banks of the Raptee, Oude, May 14, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to forward the subjoined report of the operations carried out yesterday against the rebels in the Kurwania Sota by the force under my command.

Agreeably with your orders, based upon information brought to you during the night, I proceeded early yesterday morning to Khulkulla (twelve miles), and thence moved, with the detachments marginally noted,* to Khoodawah (distance six miles) on the left bank of the Raptee.

As I reached Khoodawah from the westward, Lieut. Stewart, adjt. of 5th Punjab inf., with a force as per margin,† joined me by the direct road from this camp.

The junction having been thus happily effected at 7.30 A.M., and it being probable that the rebel force was still in the place where the spy had seen it on the 12th inst., I determined upon advancing at once to the attack.

The enemy were reported to consist of fifty cav. and from four to five hundred Sepoys, all under the command of Collector Khooda Buksh Khan, and were said to be encamped in the bed of the Kurwania Sota, immediately under the hills which separate the Sonar Valley from the plains of the Raptee.

The distance from Khoodawah to the Kurwania Sota is six miles, the path leading the entire way through dense jungle.

We advanced in the order given in the margin,‡ having a small advanced guard and flanking parties from the 5th Punjab inf.

After advancing half a mile through the jungle we met twelve rebel Sowars, who at once turned and fled towards the Kurwania Sota. The advanced guard fired, but without killing any of the rebels.

It being evident that the Sowars whom we had just seen would give the alarm to the enemy, and it being most necessary that I should obtain early information as to the movements of the rebels, I ordered up half the cav. from the rear, and sent them ahead under Native Commandant Meer Jaffir Khan, of the 2nd Jezailchees, with orders, however, to the latter not to commit himself in any unequal fight with the enemy.

When we had arrived within two miles of the Kurwania Sota, one of our Sowars brought back a report from Meer Jaffir Khan, urging the rapid advance of the inf., and stating that the enemy had fallen in to the sound of the bugle, and appeared inclined to show fight.

Continuing our advance as rapidly as possible, we soon reached our advanced cav., and looking over an intervening rise in the ground, I perceived a body of rebels collected in a flat basin of the Sota, to the number of fully four hundred men.

Allowing a few moments for the inf. to collect under cover of the rising ground, I detached twenty men of the 9th cav., 5th Punjab inf. to the right, and as many to the left, to crown the hills on either side of our advance, so as to prevent any small bodies of the enemy from getting round our flanks.

The 8th co. 5th Punjab inf. and No. 10 co. 2nd Jezailchees were ordered to move steadily forward in reserve, whilst I attacked with No. 9 co. 5th Punjab inf. and No. 9 co. of the Jezailchees.

These preliminary arrangements were speedily effected, and we at once moved over the brow of the rise to the attack.

The enemy gave us a heavy volley of musketry as we showed ourselves over the intervening rise; and then, not liking the confident rush nor the wild joyous shouts of our men, they commenced a rapid retreat, but at first in good order, towards Sonar.

The pursuit was at once pressed with all speed, and many of the rebels soon sought protection in the intricate nullahs to the right and left. They were, however, everywhere followed up by parties of our inf. and destroyed in all directions. In one small ravine on the right no less than twenty-one rebels were killed. At the same time the central pursuit was carried on with unremitting vigour, all ranks vying with each other to overtake the flying enemy. On this central path alone I counted forty-four dead rebels, and the slaughter was also heavy on our left.

After continuing the pursuit for three miles over most difficult ground, I found that the enemy was utterly dispersed; and, as the heat and their exertions were telling on our men, and we were going farther and farther from water, I stopped the pursuit. You will be glad to know that our loss consisted of but one man killed and two wounded, whilst I can safely put down the enemy's loss at certainly over eighty, and the general impression is that 100 would be nearer the mark.

After giving the men a short rest in the Kurwania Sota, I marched back to Khoodawah, where the men ate their dinners.

From Khoodawah we proceeded to Bhajpoor (three and a-half miles), where the column separated, the police cav. and the jezailchees returning to Kulla, and the Punjab cav. and inf. coming to this camp, which they reached at 9 P.M.

The gallantry and exertions of all under my command merit my warmest thanks, and I am especially indebted to Lieut. Stewart for the great assistance which he rendered to me throughout the day.

All behaved admirably, and I cannot, without injustice to the rest, particularise the forward gallantry of individuals.

During the day the troops from Khulkulla marched thirty-five miles, and those from this camp forty-eight miles, and much of this under a more than usually hot sun.

I may here mention that the rebels killed were all either officers or sepoy, and that they were all armed (i.e., the sepoy) with percussion muskets.

Amongst the slain are two Subadars, one Jemadar, and two "Captain Sahebs."

I have this morning heard that those rebels who escaped from yesterday's fight have fled beyond Sonar into Dang, and I conceive that they are not likely to give us any more trouble in this direction.

Comdg. 2nd Jezailchees.

Affair at Murruree.

From Maj. gen. G. C. Whitlock, comdg. Saugor fd. div., to Maj. gen. Sir W. Mansfield, K.C.B., chief of the staff.

Army hd. qrs., Camp near Nagode,
April 1, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to forward for submission to the Rt. Hon. the C. in C., reports from Capt. Venables, H.M.'s 97th regt., and Capt. Rishton, of the 1st Madras N.I., of the operations of the detachment under their command against the rebels.

The pursuit of the enemy by Capt. Venables, comdg. the party, and the result are very creditable to that officer and those under his command.

Lieut. Ireland, of the Rewah contingent, has been noticed for his useful services on the occasion, and Asst. apothecaries Masters and Cripps, who have also been mentioned, I know to be deserving and intelligent public servants.

G. C. WHITLOCK, maj. gen.,
Comdg. Saugor F.D.

From Capt. Thomas Venables, comdg. 97th regt. Nowgong, detached F.F., to the Adj. gen., Saugor F.F., &c., &c., &c.

Camp Rajgurbh, 25th March, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to communicate for the information of Brigdr. gen. Whitlock, that in accordance with instructions received from Brevt. maj. Kinkaid, comdg. at Nowgong, I proceeded in command of the detachments detailed in the margin* to Rajgurbh, at which town I arrived by forced marches on the 22nd inst. On the morning of the 23rd inst. I received an application for assistance from Capt. Rishton, comdg. Madras N.I., for the purpose of co-operating against a force of rebels who had that morning attacked the baggage of the force under his command, and killed three of the guards. I immediately detailed the cavalry of the Rewah Contingent under Lieut. Ireland, together with a company of H.M.'s 97th foot, and advanced to the village of Murruree, on the right bank of the Kane river. Having at this place obtained information as to the position of the rebels and the services of a guide, I united with the force under the command of Capt. Rishton and pushed forward rapidly in pursuit of the rebels who were following the course of the river towards Saleia. After a march of about fifteen miles through dense jungle, I overtook the rebels in their encampment at nightfall. I instantly deployed and charged, clearing their entire camp and capturing their camels, horses, arms, cooking utensils and bedding. The rebels retreated rapidly across the river closely followed to the banks by the troops, darkness and the difficulties of the jungle rendering any further pursuit hopeless. I, however, reformed and halted on the ground for upwards of four hours, awaiting the rising of the moon, after which, finding no further traces of the rebels, I returned to the camp, after a march of upwards of thirty miles.

I have great satisfaction in stating that the entire dispersion of the rebels was effected with but little loss; the casualties amounting to but three men, Madras N.I., one of whom only is severely wounded. The loss of the rebels I was unable to ascertain with accuracy, owing to the darkness. Among the captured stores were sabres, carbines, and uniforms of the 1st By. Lt. Cav., together with uniform of the 12th By. N.I. and By. Artillery. From the different sources of information it would appear that the rebel force was about 500 strong, well supplied with baggage, animals and other transports.

From the detailed accounts of the operations of the force under the command of Capt. Rishton, Madras N.I., prior to my uniting with him at Murruree, I beg to enclose that officer's report.

I have the honour to bring to the notice of the Brigdr. Gen. the great assistance I derived from Lieut. Ireland, Rewah Cavalry Contingent, not only for the services rendered by him in his military capacity, but for the information which his acquaintance with the language enabled him to afford me, and without which I should have been totally unable to have pursued the rebels in their retreat through the jungle. In the absence of a medical officer attached to the force I have also to thank Mr. Apothecary Masters and Mr. Apothecary Thomas Cripps, Madras army, for the energy they displayed and the assistance rendered by them to the wounded.

THOMAS VENABLES, Capt.,
Comdg. 97th Regt. Nowgong
Detached F.F. Division.

From Captain A. L. Rishton, 1st regt. M.N.I.,
comdg. field detach., to Captain Venables,
H.M.'s 97th regt. comdg. field detach. at Rajghur.

March 24, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to report that I arrived at this place on the evening of the 22nd inst. My baggage waggons having broken down at the foot of the Punnah Ghaut, I, at five o'clock on the following morning, sent a strong party under two Native officers of the Madras rifles, and a light company 1st regiment Madras N.I., with a sufficient number of camels and other ndqlic cattle to convey to camp the men's kits, which of necessity were left at the foot of the ghaut.

On the return of the advance portion of this buanto the village of Murruree the enemy came vdy nly upon them, killing three sepoys out of five, and capturing the baggage under their escort; the remaining two escaped and rejoined their own party. One of my camp followers, who had weweped the attack, escaped through the enemy and gave us the information. I immediately ordered the rest of my detachment to fall in, leaving a guard in a strong position on a temple, in which was placed the ammunition and camp equipage. I then marched on the village above named, having sent Lieut. Cox to the detach. under your command at Rajghur, to procure the assistance of some cavalry, if possible. After his departure I ordered Lieut. Tyndale to request you to have a party in readiness to co-operate with me, should the information procured be such as to warrant pursuit of the enemy. These two officers conducted this duty to my satisfaction, and shortly overtook me near the village of Murruree with a party of Rewah contingent cavalry, which you despatched to me under the command of Lieut. Ireland, whom I desired to advance on the village, in which I found the bodies of our sepoys very much mutilated, and stripped of their accoutrements.

Stragglers were here overtaken and charged by the advance party under Lieuts. Ireland and Tyndale; a few of the enemy were killed, others took to the hills, and were pursued by a company of Madras rifles, under Lieut. Cox and the light company, 1st regt. Madras N.I., under Subadar Perwesh Khan. Officers and men behaved well.

The enemy I ascertained to be in force, having with them cavalry and camel sowars. I desired Lieut. Ireland to write a letter and despatch it by a sowar to you for the reinforcement promised, writing at the same time myself to Maj. Ellis at Punnah.

Lieut. Ireland (a very intelligent officer) by my order questioned an hurkaru, who volunteered to show us where the enemy had gone. Upon the report received I was enabled to forward correct information to you. It is stated that the enemy numbered five hundred men.

Mr. Asst. apothecary Thomas Cripps conducted his duties to my entire satisfaction, and showed great attention to the wounded.

It is worthy of notice that the guard of Punnah sepoys, the village authorities, and people of Murruree did not give intimation of what had taken place, although the village was situated two miles from my camp. They must have been aware of the vicinity of the enemy, and have seen my men killed.

Action at the Jerwah Pass.

No. 239.

From Maj. gen. J. Hope Grant, comdg. Oude division, to the Adj. gen. of the army.

Camp Rutenpore, 24th May, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to report for the information of H.E. the C. in C., that Col. Pinckney's move into Nepal having had the desired effect of driving the rebels under the Nana Bala Rao and Mummoo Khan into the jungles in the north-east of Oude, I broke up my camp at Burgudwa at midnight on the 20th and 21st inst., and arrived soon after sun rise at the jungle covering the entrance to the Jerwah Pass, with Lieut. col. Walker's f.f., as detailed below:—2 squads. 2nd drag. gds., Maj. Hutchinson comdg.; 2 guns, 14 field batt. R.A., Lieut. Smith comdg.; the 7th Punj. inf., Capt. Stafford comdg.; wing of Ferozepore regt., Lieut. col. Brasyer comdg.—Staff:—Lieut. R. Biddulph, dep. asst. adjt. gen.; Maj. Wolseley, dep. asst. qr. mr. gen.; Maj. Wilmot, dep. judge ad. gen.; Cornet Torrens, act. a.-d.-c. Capt. Haig, sub-asst. comry. gen.

I there received information that the Nana and Bala Rao with two guns and 2,000 men were at the mouth of the pass; and Mummoo Khan with 500 followers a little to the west, on the same ground where I met Bala Rao's force on the 4th of Jan. last.

I therefore ordered the cav. and art. to encamp, and sent Col. Brasyer with the wing of the regt. of Ferozepore against Mummoo Khan's party, whilst I myself moved on the Jerwah Pass with the 7th Punj. inf. The rebel inf. I found occupying the spurs of the mountain stretching into the jungle on either side of the mouth of the pass, whilst their two guns, which were thus completely protected, opened fire from the gorge of the pass.

I therefore sent a comp. of the Sikhs, under Lieuts. Gordon and Lewes, to climb up the hills to the left, and drive away their inf. from their right flank. This detach. advanced accordingly, driving back the rebels until they reached the summit of the ridge.

The remainder of the regt., under Capt. Stafford, cleared the right, but owing to the extreme heat, and the troops having marched about twenty miles, we were unable to inflict any great loss on the rebels. We killed about fifty of them, and took their two guns and thirty-two prisoners.

Lieut. col. Brasyer in his advance met with no opposition, the party under Mummoo Khan dispersing in the hills and jungle on his approach. The regt. of Ferozepore were too tired to pursue, having made a forced march of nearly thirty miles to join me, which they did in a few hours before we left Burgudwa.

I received every assistance from Lieut. col. Walker, 2nd drag. gds., and the officers comd. the corps engaged, as before mentioned; also from the officers of my staff, one of whom, Cornet Torrens, act. A.D.C., was slightly wounded.

Maj. Bruce, C.B., chief of police, who has accompanied me since I left Lucknow, has kept me accurately informed of the movements of the rebels.

I yesterday proceeded to Ghurubeer, at the top of the first range of hills. The pass is of a most difficult nature, and the last mile and a-half is up a steep precipice. I found that I could not cross even my small force of inf. under six days, and I therefore abandoned the idea of crossing the hills.

We found several rebels in the pass in a dying state, unable to cross over from wounds or starvation; also camels and bullocks abandoned, and an elephant and several camels dead, showing the difficulties the rebels must have had in crossing even in their disorganised state, without baggage or supplies.

Seven camels were brought back by the force, and an elephant was captured on the 21st.

From intelligence since received, the rebels have not yet ceased their flight, and they are now said to be crossing the second range, so that I consider there is no probability of their attempting to re-enter Oude this season.

J. HOPE GRANT, maj. gen. comg. Oude div.

Affair at Doomureeagunge.

No. 849 of 1859.—H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following letter from Brigdr. Rowcroft, C.B., com. the troops in the Goruckpore district, forwarding a report from Maj. Murray, of a gallant and successful action with a party of rebels near Doomureeagunge on the 29th April, 1859:—

From Brigdr. F. Rowcroft, comdg. Goruckpore district, to Maj. H. W. Norman, offic. adjt. genl. of the army.

Army Hd. Qrs., Goruckpore, May 14, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to transmit, for submission to H.E. the C. in C., the accompanying report, dated Camp Doomureeagunge, the 3rd inst., from Maj. J. J. Murray, comdg. the troops at that post, relating a gallant and successful skirmish with a party of rebels, by Subadar Narain Singh, and fifty men of the 2nd military Sikh police batt., and four sowars of the regiment of Jat horse, on the 20th April, near Doomureeagunge.

2. I beg respectfully to bring to the particular notice of H.E. Lord Clyde the strong recommendation of Maj. Murray, of the zealous and gallant conduct of Subadar Narain Singh, 2nd police batt., and Sowar Kullian Singh, of the Jat horse, and also of Havildar Nadan Singh, 2nd military police batt., for such reward and favour as H.E. may consider should be conferred on them.

F. ROWCROFT, brigdr. comdg.
Goruckpore district.

From Maj. J. J. Murray, Comdg. Jat Horse Yeo regt., and troops at Doomureeagunge, to Maj. Morgan, Maj. of Brig., Goruckpore.

Camp Doomureeagunge, May 3, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to report, for the information of Brigdr. Rowcroft, C.B., that, on the 20th ult., when my force was encamped at Bhowanee-gunge, Subadar Narain Singh, comdg. the military police at this place, received information that a party of rebels were crossing the Raptée at Gowra Ghat, six miles east of this. He at once started with fifty milly. police inf. (Sikhs), and four sowars of my regt., and pushing on ahead with the sowars caught up the rebels, thirty-two in number, mostly armed with muskets, making for the Sunkurpore jungle. The Subadar followed, and, in a measure, kept them in check with the sowars, when, fortunately, the inf. came up, and a skirmish ensued, which resulted in the death of ten rebels. The rest managed to escape into the jungle.

A sikh had his arm fractured with a musket shot, and a sowar, Kulliam Singh by name, of the 4th trp. of my regt., who was on vidette duty near the jungle, on seeing the rebels approach charged them single-handed, and I regret to say was shot in the head, his horse being also wounded. He is in a very precarious state, but having lived so long may possibly recover. I feel it my duty to bring him to the brigdr.'s notice, as such an act of bravery appears to me deserving of the Order of Merit. The subadar also reports favourably of Nadan Singh Naick, who killed two men. The subadar deserves much praise, and I believe this is not the first occasion of his having distinguished himself since he came here. He frequently called upon the rebels to throw down their arms and be pardoned, but they replied that "they would sooner die."

They had come from the neighbourhood of Towleewa, intending to join the Nusseerabad brigade.

J. J. MURRAY, maj.,
Comdg. Jat Horse Yeo regt. and troops at Doomureeagunge.

THE NAWAB OF MOORSHEDABAD is said to be preparing a memorial to Lord Canning, praying for his exemption from the jurisdiction of the supreme court in all cases, which he enjoyed previous to 1854. He had recently to visit Calcutta to give his depositions before commissioners of the court appointed to settle a suit, and felt that this greatly degraded him in the estimation of his brother princes in India.

THE SCINDE FORESTS.

THE annual report of the Acting Forest Ranger for the year 1858-59 is unusually interesting. It appears from this valuable paper that the receipts are Rs. 64,812 to cover an expenditure of Rs. 39,584. The surplus, it is stated, would have been still greater but for various incidental causes, such as the construction of roads for the conveyance of timber, and the new arrangements necessitated by the increased demand for fuel on the part of the river steamers. The wood chiefly used for that purpose is that of the tamarisk, which has the advantage of giving out an intense heat, though it burns more rapidly than is altogether desirable. There is also another point in its favour, and that is the facility with which it is cut down and prepared for use. Besides, in four years after a tamarisk jungle has been felled a second crop is ready for the woodsman, and it will grow on soil impregnated with salt and saltpetre on which it would be impossible to plant the babool. This last is the staple tree in Lower Scinde, and actually supplies better fuel than the tamarisk, though it is more expensive to convey to the coaling stations on the river. In Upper Scinde the tree most frequently met with is the Euphrates poplar, which is described as resembling the willow both in the quality of its timber and in the manner of its growth.

In all there are seventy-four forests under the surveillance of the Ranger, covering an area of 1,300,000 acres. Now, it is calculated that the Indus Flotilla, the Railway Company, and the Oriental Steam Navigation Company, consume annually about 950,000 maunds or 31,600 tons of fuel. At present this can be supplied at the different stations at the rate of nine shillings per ton, but as one ton of coals is equal to two tons of firewood the actual cost is as if coal were obtainable for eighteen shillings per ton. With proper management there is no doubt that these forests may be made to produce an abundant supply for almost any length of time, but the great want is that of steam saw-mills, as sufficient manual labour is not easily procurable in such a thinly-peopled country. The local Government will scarcely fail to sanction the erection of such mills, while the general management of the forests cannot be entrusted to better hands than those of Mr. Dalzell, the present Ranger.

THE INDIAN LOAN.

THERE is evidently no scarcity of money in this country at least, nor any want of confidence in the future destinies of the British empire. On Tuesday last the Financial Committee of the Council of India proceeded to adjudicate on the various tenders for the new Loan of £5,000,000 at five per cent., after giving due notice that the reserved price was 97. The effect of the moral certainty that prevails that the Imperial guarantee must eventually be extended to India Stock, was seen in the eagerness of capitalists to engage in the present investment. Not less than £7,550,000 was offered, of which £4,485,350 was above the minimum price, and £1,339,400 exactly at that rate. In one instance £500 were tendered at par, and nearly £200,000 at prices ranging from 98 to 98½. The complete list of tenders is given by the Daily News as follows:—

At	Per cent.

Although it is highly satisfactory to know that the necessities of the Indian Government will be thus promptly relieved, it may be feared that this apparent facility of raising money may militate against the adoption of that rigid economy which alone can restore the balance between income and expenditure. With the exception of Sir James Outram, who is too chivalrous and noble-minded to be liable to jealousy, it may be questioned if any member of the Calcutta Council will co-operate cordially with Mr. Wilson. They are so wedded to routine, so enamoured of the old system, and at the same time so ignorant of the elemental principles of finance, that they will neither be capable of entering into his views, nor disposed to admit the necessity for reform. There is also one other point to which we may briefly allude. Had the imperial guarantee been nominally as well as virtually extended to the new loan, the Indian exchequer would have been spared an outlay of £100,000 per annum—in itself no insignificant saving.

REPORT OF THE COLONIZATION COMMITTEE.

WE publish elsewhere a summary of the Report of the Committee appointed to inquire into the Colonization of India. It will be observed that the Committee abstain from offering any practical suggestions, and confine themselves to a mere echo of the evidence given before them. This reticence is probably owing to the circumstance that a second Committee will be appointed next Session, to resume the inquiry on a broader basis. But while Committees are asking questions and secretaries are reporting, the empire of India is slipping from our grasp. At this moment chaos reigns supreme. At home the most trifling questions are referred to the Indian Government. In India the most important and the most insignificant matters are first submitted to the home authorities. The one answer, at home and abroad, to all inquiries is that the subject is being taken into consideration. There is nothing but references and counter-references. All letters and applications have to meander through half-a-dozen channels before they reach their destination, and even then they have advanced but one step out of twenty. The Genius of red-tape and circumlocution revels in an excess of indulgence, and abandons even the Horse Guards for a more genial home in the Indian department. Nowhere, however, do we detect any traces of action, except where action is injurious. What has yet been done with regard to the principality of Dhar, so unjustly annexed by Lord Canning—that munificent patron of disaffected natives? What has been done with respect to compensation, beyond disgusting the sufferers by dilatory and inquisitorial investigations of the most palpable claims? What has been done for the European non-combatants who so gallantly threw themselves into the desperate struggle, beyond permitting the Calcutta Volunteers to retain their breeches? What has been done to allay the universal feeling of irritation that pervades the European community, and to efface the recollection of unnumbered but not unforgotten slights, beyond reducing the salaries of official servants and subjecting all to a heavy taxation? We scarcely venture to ask what has become of all the prize-money, for it is evident the Government has applied it to other purposes, and is now unable to make good its breach of trust. But the consequences of further delay are likely to be serious, even if not fraught with extreme peril. It was the prospect of plundering Delhi that, more than anything else, rallied the Sikhs round the British colours, and induced them to make common cause with the Feringhees. And when Delhi fell, how deep was their indignation at Lord Canning's promise of six months' batta! It is true, it was not competent for the Governor-general to decide on his own responsibility as to what should be done with the prize-money, but it was quite competent for him to state that the question, as a matter of form, must be referred to the Home Government, in whose well-known liberality the troops would readily and patiently have confided. It is this want of tact of which we chiefly complain in Lord Canning and his advisers,—if he ever listens to any counsel save his own. His intentions, we are convinced, are excellent and irreproachable, but in action he is a thorough pedant. He cannot realise anything beyond the government of the pen. He would have made an unexceptionable clerk, but as a Governor-general he has been conspicuous only for his failures. No doubt he meant well when he contented himself with disbanding the 19th N.I.,—but what was the consequence? Why, the revolt of the entire Bengal army, and an expenditure of life and treasure that can never be replaced. No doubt, too, he meant well when he refused to comply with the illegal though not unreasonable claims of the local European troops; and what was the result? Why, the loss of 10,000 trained soldiers, and the necessity of supplying their place with raw recruits. No doubt he meant well when he showed so much favour to the natives, and was so sternly impartial towards the Europeans, whether in the Government service or otherwise; but what has ensued? Why, that officials and non-officials are equally anxious to escape from the country, because the insolence of the natives has become intolerable. Neither do we question the goodness of his motives when he sanctioned the levying of native battalions all over the country; but what is the effect? Why, the existence of an army numerically more powerful, and in other respects more dangerous, than the one that has been annihilated. In truth, something more than good intentions are necessary to govern a vast empire on the very verge of bankruptcy, and threatened from within by its own soldiery, who can neither be maintained nor dismissed without an almost equal danger and inconvenience. The Sikhs are already presuming on their numbers, their courage, and above all on the weakness of the Government. They have witnessed the success that attended the disaffection of their European comrades, but they will not be contented with a mere discharge. However, Parliament will meet again for the despatch of public business some time next February, and before the Easter vacation a committee can be appointed, if necessary, to inquire into the general state of India. Their report will be published in August or September, so that before twelve months have quite expired we may hope to announce that the committee can come to no decision, though the evidence adduced before them has been highly interesting and intelligent, and that consequently it is advisable to recommence the inquiry at a more convenient season. In the meantime, perhaps, it may be our duty to chronicle a third mutiny and a second rebellion; but at least we shall have the consolation of knowing that its causes will be carefully investigated by the Parliament of Great Britain, and will form the subject of a voluminous correspondence between the Secretary of State for India in Council and the most puissant lord the Governor-general of India also in Council.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A HINT TO THE MILITARY AUTHORITIES.

TO THE EDITOR OF ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

SIR,—Allow me through your columns to bring to the notice of the Secretary of State for India a rule regarding promotion in the India army, which, from altered circumstances, might well now become obsolete, particularly as it entails a senseless hardship. I allude to the regulation which compels an officer, who happens to be promoted to a superior grade after he has been a year in England, to return to India to take up his new rank, that is, to derive any benefit from it. For instance, should a Major, who has come to England on furlough or sick certificate, obtain his Lieutenant colonelcy after a twelvemonth from his arrival in England, and who may wish to retire from the service on the pension of his new rank, he is unable to do so, without being put to the expense of first returning to India; because in olden days when the commission of an Indian officer was non-effective to the westward of the Cape of Good Hope such a rule was of necessity instituted; but since the commission of an Indian officer has been acknowledged as of effect everywhere, and now that India has passed under the immediate jurisdiction of the Crown, such a regulation can be designated as nothing better than ridiculous and vexatious, and requires merely to be brought to the notice of the proper authority to ensure its being at once cancelled, and so allowing an officer the benefit of his rank, even though he should be promoted while in England. —I remain, sir, your obedient servant, August, 1859. M. F. O.

THE COLONIZATION AND SETTLEMENT OF INDIA.

The Report of the Select Committee on this subject is before the public. It was issued on the 24th inst., and the report proper fills a space of fifteen pages. This amounts to little more than a resumé of the opinions of the witnesses examined. These generally state, that "wherever Europeans have settled a marked improvement in the country has followed," and the various products of the land have been developed. Another good effect of settlement is its tendency to promote the maintenance of order. A large extension of the number of settlers over India would be a considerable guarantee against any future insurrection, and tend to lessen the necessity for maintaining an expensive army. The dangerous effects of the climate of India have been (it is said) greatly exaggerated. The planters from Bengal are a "healthy and hardy race of men." Such as appeared before the committee looked like bluff British farmers rather than transmarine cultivators in quasi-tropical latitudes. The hill districts of India appear peculiarly fitted for the reception of English settlers.

So far as the committee have inquired, climates favourable to European health may be found at a due elevation on the Himalayas, on the Neilgherries, and on other hill ranges yet incompletely explored, especially in the south of India. At about 4,000 feet above the sea level the Himalayas offer an European climate. On the eastward portion, indeed, of the extensive range the prevalence of rain may be frequently a serious objection, though not so formidable as is generally supposed. Further to the westward the rain-fall sensibly diminishes. It has been suggested that asylums, like those originated by the lamented Sir Henry Lawrence, might be advantageously formed on the hills, where, in a climate like that of our own country, the children of soldiers and of other persons might be trained with a special view to the practical improvement of India and to the acquisition of a knowledge of the people and the country. Mechanics and practical agriculturists are greatly wanted in India. The planters state that young men acquainted with the native languages are much required for their establishments. Thus educated, they might also be employed, as commercial travellers are in this country, for extending the commerce and manufactures of Great Britain and of Europe in the East. Few objects of contemplation can be more interesting than the formation and progress of these establishments on the hills. The rapid rise of the settlement at Darjeeling, in Sikkim, about three hundred miles north of Calcutta, is described in the interesting evidence of Dr. Hooker. It appears that the population (4,000 or 5,000 in 1848) doubled itself in the course of two years. The natives of Bhotan, Thibet, and Nepal flocked to be employed by the Europeans. Other favourable evidence is not wanting. The coffee grown on the slopes of the Neilgherries is stated by Colonel Onslow to be among the best in the London market, and the resources of Mysore are not generally known. "Of all countries," says Colonel Onslow, "it is the most favourable for settlement." Another favourable position for settlers exists in or near the tea growing countries of Assam and Cachar, where the climate is a "delightful and beautiful one" (on the Cossya hills, 5,000 feet in height).

One want in the hill regions is that of good roads, and it would seem to be important that settlers, zemindars, and natives should be led to interest themselves in the state of these communications from place to place. The committee regret to find transit duties retained in some of the native States. Works of irrigation so necessary should be combined with navigable canals, water being in India the most suitable medium of traffic. As regards the produce of the soil, it is shown that there are great openings to settlers in the cultivation of cotton, wheat, tea, hemp, flax, coal and iron. Wheat may be grown more cheaply in India than in America, according to Dr. Moore and Gen. Tremenhare, and the Punjab is often "one vast expanse of corn." The same may, perhaps, be the case hereafter with respect to cotton. There is reason to hope that the tea of the Himalayas will beat the Chinese out of the markets of Central Asia. The witnesses think that the English in India may drive a good trade with Central Asia. It is gratifying to find that the Messrs. Schlagintweit (recent travellers in Central Asia) confirm the remark of Moorcroft, that "it is at our option whether Central Asia shall be supplied with goods from Russia or from England." Mr. Atkinson considers that our cottons and our hardware would claim a preference over those of other countries. Our broadcloths appear to have been once a successful article of trade, and to be still highly valued in Thibet. For such a climate our woollens would seem to be particularly suitable. But from Thibet we are excluded by the Chinese. It were to be desired that this and other parts of Central Asia where Chinese authority prevails should be opened by a commercial treaty. The articles of interchange with these Trans-Himalayan countries are mentioned in the evidence of Dr. Hooker. "Immense quantities of wool," says Sir J. Lawrence, "come from the continuous countries, Afghanistan and Beeloochistan, into the Punjab, and I suppose it is tenfold what it used to be." It appears that there is a great abundance of gold in Thibet. All these central Asiatic nations are now supplied with tea, which they most extensively use, well known under the name of "brick tea," from China. Their distance from that country is immense. As the cultivation of the tea plant extends along the line of the Himalayas, we may justly entertain the hope that it may at some future time successfully compete with the tea of China in the markets of Central Asia.

Kurrachee, Umritsir, and Shikarpore (especially the first), offer great inducements to British capital and enterprise. The committee report that a well-conducted and efficient body of police is much wanted in Bengal. They urge the necessity of introducing uniformity in the administration of justice by framing a code to embrace the civil rights of men of all races and creeds under the same rules, with due reservation of their customs and respect to their religions. A legal title to land should also be attainable by a scheme of registration. An uniform law of contract is deemed very desirable for the protection of settlers. The present settlers entertain a strong opinion in favour of the use of the English language in courts of law; and on the authority of many witnesses judicial training is wanting in the body of civilians.

The greatest horror is felt by settlers at the idea of extending the power of natives to try Europeans in criminal cases, and the "Black Act," so called, has caused great alarm. The Affray and Recognizance Bills are also a bar to free settlement. In civil cases the native judges appear to be unobjectionable. The resumption of free lands by the Government of India is condemned, as tending to shake the very foundations of property.

During the investigations of the committee the Government appears to have partly, if not entirely, conceded two points of great interest to British settlers—the right to acquire land in fee simple, and the power of redeeming the land-tax in Bengal. "If," say the witnesses, "you will grant Europeans waste land in perpetuity in India, India will prosper, like Java and Ceylon." There are, no doubt, many parts of India (described or alluded to in the evidence) where waste lands, in habitable and healthy situations, could be thus granted by the Government; as in Assam, the neighbourhood of the Neigherries, Kumaon, Garoohal, and other districts. Some of the civil servants of the Government, as well as settlers, are favourable to such a policy. It has been suggested that it might also be expedient to allow to purchasers of the fee simple of land the power of paying their purchase-money by instalments. For a similar reason the committee have, from the first, looked favourably on the concession of a power of redeeming the land-tax; in favour of this concession (which applies especially to Bengal) there are many witnesses.

There is one very important point on which the witnesses appear to concur; that is, the introduction of non-official Europeans and natives into the Legislative Council of India. The example of Ceylon is quoted to show the good effects of this reform. It is stated that one of the defects of the Legislative Council is a want of local knowledge. Such knowledge the reform suggested would supply.

It appears to the committee that there is wanting in India less of central and more of local government. It is stated by Major Wingate that "the administration in Bombay is paralysed by the centralisation of supreme authority in Bengal." Roads may be wanted in Bombay, but the want of roads in Bengal cannot be equally appreciated in Bengal. On the other hand, it is stated that to the officers of the other Presidencies Bengal itself is "nothing less than a foreign country."

The system of "forced labour" under the coercive power of Government, as prevalent in many parts of India, is condemned as objectionable and injurious. A convertible paper currency, or "Government paper," is much demanded. Just before the rebellion it was the practice to convey a lakh of rupees guarded by 100 soldiers! The report thus concludes:—

"Your committee welcome with satisfaction the account given by many witnesses of the improved state of feeling between the settlers and the natives. It is clear that, for governing a country like India, important as may be the laws and institutions, much must also depend on the silent but certain influence of manners. It is painful to read the following statement, made by a most competent witness:—'That the natives have not been so kindly treated by Europeans as they ought to have been. I know that they feel it deeply. When they are treated with respect, and honestly dealt with, Europeans may acquire great influence over them.' It is also painful to find it averred that 'drunkenness is a great obstacle to the settlement of Europeans of the poorer class in India.' Let those who unexceptionally condemn the native character reflect that it is the growth of ages of misgovernment, and that there are many instances of the just and temperate European winning the confidence and attachment of the natives. An instance of the great ascendancy which good conduct and good management may acquire is to be seen in the success of Mr. Fischer, whose influence is stated to be widely and beneficially felt in the province of Salem. It is mentioned by Mr. Saunders, that during the recent mutiny the respectable natives protected his property during his absence; that the neighbouring zemindars worked his plantations and restored to him the profits after the mutiny was over. While, therefore, your committee have felt anxious to embody in their report such general and practical information as relates to European settlement in India, they desire to express their hopes that individual co-operation may not be wanting to promote it. Every Englishman should go to India with a deep sense of his responsibility, not only to those whom he is about to govern, or among whom he is about to reside, but to his own country, whose character for firmness, justice, and forbearance he is bound constantly, zealously, and by personal example, to maintain."

MISCELLANEOUS.

EAST INDIA EXAMINATIONS.—Returns of the names of examiners appointed to examine the candidates who presented themselves on the 10th of May last for admission to the Engineers' Establishment and Public Works Department of India; of the names of the successful candidates in order of merit; of the marks which were assigned on each subject to every candidate; and of the examination papers on each subject, have been published on the motion of Mr. Longfield, M.P. There were fourteen successful candidates whose names and marks we subjoin—viz., Mr. W. W. Culcheth, 605 marks (in all); Mr. J. P. Flynn, 571; Mr. W. J. Howard, 525; Mr. J. Hain, 507; Mr. E. Martin, 440; Mr. A. Brind, 435; Mr. F. D. Campbell, 427; Mr. A. Richardson, 411; Mr. S. W. Nugent, 405; Mr. E. V. Vernon, 405; Mr. E. Compton, 402; Mr. H. Roberts, 400; Mr. C. J. Rodham, 385; and Mr. R. Tyndall, 354. None of these gentlemen, except Mr. Culcheth, appear to have obtained the prescribed number of marks, but they were appointed on the strong recommendation of the examiners, the Rev. J. Cape, Mr. G. P. White, R.E., and Captain J. Ouchterlony, Madras Engineers. One candidate was "plucked," he having obtained only 231 marks, against 354, the lowest on the successful list. The examination was in history and geography, pure mathematics, engineering, surveying, &c. The paper on English and Indian history and geography is a decidedly "mild" one, and yet two of the candidates only obtained two and five marks in it respectively.

COOLIE IMMIGRATION.—The number of Coolies despatched from the East to the West Indies in the season 1858-9 amounted to 7,562. Of these 4,282 were men, 1,797 women, and 1,227 children and infants. 2,926 emigrated to British Guiana, 3,718 to Trinidad, 344 to Grenada, and 574 to St. Lucia. Previously to the season 1856-57 the average mortality had been under 2 per cent. from Madras, and 5 per cent. from Calcutta; in 1856-57 the mortality rose to 17-26 from Calcutta, and 0-98 from Madras; in 1857-58, 13-22 from Calcutta, and 1-31 from Madras; and in 1858-59, 10-43 from Calcutta, and 1-64 from Madras.

INDIAN FINANCE.—In the year 1857-58 the amount of debt (at the end of the year) in India was £80,704,084; the debt contracted in the year, £9,257,344, at 6, 5, 4, and 3½ per cent.; the amount of bonds and other debts in England, £6,799,400, and the amount of bonds issued, £2,905,000 (the 4 per cent. Debenture Loan, under the 21st Victoria, cap. 3); the total loans contracted in India and England, £12,162,344; the total amount of debts redeemed in India, £4,099,910; the total amount paid for interest, £2,196,672 in India and £159,166 at home; the total amount of the gross revenue of India, £31,706,776, and the percentage pressure of the interest on debts in relation to the gross revenue, 7-43. In 1800-1 this percentage was 13-63, and was so high as 10-15 in 1833-34. In 1852-53 it was 9-07, and ever since it has been seven and a decimal.

THE LATE COLONEL STEEL.—The East India Directory gives the following account of the services of the late Brigadier James Steel, C.B.:—"Colonel Steel, C.B., served against the Garrows in 1810, when he was wounded. He served in the light infantry battalion in Java in 1811; in the 2nd battalion 21st Native Infantry in Oude in 1817; in the 1st Light Infantry battalion in Arracan in 1824 and 1825. He was present at the siege and storm of Bhurtpore in 1826, when he received the Indian medal. Colonel Steel commanded the Second Fusiliers with the army of the Punjab during the campaign of 1848 and 1849, including the affair of Ramnuggur on the 22nd of November. He was present at the passage of the Chenab, and in the actions of Chillianwalla and Goojerat, also in the subsequent pursuit of the Sikhs and Affghans by the force under Sir W. Gilbert, for which he received a medal and the rank of C.B."

THE EX-KING OF OUDE.—The Calcutta papers notice the release of the ex-King of Oude and other State prisoners confined in Fort William on Saturday, July 9. Ali Nucky Khan was among the liberated. Their imprisonment has now continued for about two years. With neither power nor temptation, the ex-King's conduct has been most exemplary. His time was chiefly spent in verse and letter writing, in portrait painting and in watching the motions of automatic toys. The ex-Queen or Khas Mehal, from her residence at Garden Reach, has been untiring in her efforts to obtain his liberation. Her last petition congratulates Lord Canning on the proclamation of the restoration of peace to India, and suggests that it is a most auspicious occasion on which to free her husband. She pleads for the liberty of "his High and Holy Majesty" on the ground that her enemies are taking advantage of their separation to malign her to him so as to estrange his affections from her. She addresses Lord Canning as a "mine of generosity and beneficence, the Holy Nawab of high title, noblest of Ameers, &c., for ever may his kingdom be!" The ex-King has at last condescended to make use of his allowance from the State.

MAPS OF INDIA &amp; CHINA.

MAP of INDIA; showing the British Territories subdivided into Collectories, and the position and boundary of each Native State; chiefly compiled from Trigonometrical Surveys, executed by order of the Honourable Court of Directors of the East India Company. On six sheets—Size, 5 ft. 6 in. high; 5 ft. 8 in. wide. 2½; or, on cloth, in a case, 23. 12s. 6d.; or, with rollers and varnished, 23. 3s.

The object kept in view in compiling this map has been to render it available to the greatest possible extent for popular use. For this purpose the names of all stations, civil and military, are inserted, as well as those of all towns and places of note likely to be looked for. To make clear the subdivisions of the whole of the country, both British and native, the limits of the various districts and collectories, with their names, are distinctly indicated. The railways and telegraphs are laid down, and the trunk roads conspicuously coloured. The newly-acquired district in Burmah is included. To avoid, however, the confusion consequent upon over-crowding, and make the map clear and easy for reference, the names of many small villages, and places of no present importance, have been omitted, and thus a very wide measure of comprehensiveness has been attained, while needless diffuseness has been avoided.

A GENERAL MAP of INDIA; compiled chiefly from Surveys executed by order of the Honourable East India Company, with the railways and telegraphs. On six sheets—Size, 5 ft. 3 in. wide; 5 ft. 4 in. high. 23; or, on cloth, in a case, 23. 12s. 6d.; or, with rollers and varnished, 23. 3s.

MAP of the ROUTES in INDIA; with Tables of Distances between the principal Towns and Military Stations. On one sheet—Size 2 ft. 3 in. wide; 2 ft. 9 in. high. 9s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 12s.

In this map are given the whole of the military and civil stations, together with the principal towns, the villages being omitted, so as to make the stations more prominent. The colouring defines the boundaries of the three Presidencies, and shows also the railways and telegraphs.

MAP of INDIA and CHINA, BURMAH, SIAM, the MALAY PENINSULA, and the EMPIRE of ANAM. On two sheets—Size, 4 ft. 3 in. wide; 3 ft. 4 in. high. 16s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 21. 5s.

MAP of the PUNJAB and SIKH TERRITORY. On one sheet, 5s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 6s.

MAP of AFGHANISTAN, and the ADJACENT COUNTRIES. On one sheet—Size 2 ft. 3 in. wide; 2 ft. 9 in. high. 9s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 12s.

MAP of CHINA, from the most Authentic Sources of Information. One large sheet—Size, 2 ft. 7 in. wide; 2 ft. 2 in. high. 8s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 11s.

MAP of the BURMAN EMPIRE, showing the Annexed District of Pegu. One sheet, 3s. 6d.; or, on cloth, in a case, 5s.

A MAP of the WESTERN PROVINCES of HINDOOSTAN, the PUNJAB, CABOOL, SINDE, BHAWULPORE, &c., including all the States between Candahar and Allahabad. On four sheets—Size, 4 ft. 4 in. wide; 4 ft. 2 in. high. 30s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 22; rollers, and varnished, 22. 10s.

MAP of ARABIA, from all the most recent Authorities, by order of the Court of Directors of the East India Company. Size, 3 ft. 3 in. high; 4 ft. 3 in. wide. On cloth, in a case, 21. 5s.

HAND-BOOK to the MAPS of INDIA, giving the Latitude and Longitude of all places of note. By Major H. V. STEPHEN, late of Bengal Army Revenue Survey Department. In 18mo, bound, price 5s.

MAP of INDIA; from the most recent Authorities, showing the railways and telegraphs. On two sheets. Size, 2 ft. 10 in. wide; 3 ft. 3 in. high. 16s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 21s. 1s.

MAP of the STEAM COMMUNICATION and OVERLAND ROUTES between ENGLAND, INDIA, CHINA, and AUSTRALIA. In a case, 14s.; on rollers, and varnished, 18s.

London: WM. H. ALLEN and Co., 7, Leadenhall-street.

THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS.

FOR INDIA AND THE COLONIES.
A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF BRITISH AND FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

This Newspaper presents a comprehensive and perfect view of British and Foreign affairs, with special reference to those subjects in any way interesting to residents in India, or those at home having connections there. The Intelligence is brought down to the latest possible moment prior to the departure of the Mail. The various departments are so arranged, and the intelligence analysed, as to form a weekly register of permanent interest and value, which subscribers will be glad to preserve.

The weekly issue of "THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS" renders it as eligible a newspaper for Anglo-Indians resident at home as abroad.

Families should send it to their friends abroad.

Parties proceeding to India or China should not fail to order a year's subscription.

THE MELTON RIDING BELT.—Important to those who are suffering from Weakness in the Back and General Debility. The following is printed by permission:—

"Sir,—You ask for my opinion of your Melton Riding Belt; I give it. Having resided for a long time in India, my constitution is very much debilitated, and for a long time I was suffering from a weakness in the back and the lower part of the body, which no internal remedy could reach, and the slightest exertion completely overpowered me. I was ordered by my medical man to wear a support, and seeing your advertisement, I obtained one of your Melton Riding Belts, which I have worn for the last five months. It gives me great support. I can take riding or other exercise without feeling that extreme lassitude and weariness afterwards. My general health is much improved. You have my best thanks. You will secure my best support.—Yours truly,
"Torquay, July 30, 1859. "J. PRATT MATTESON."

"To Wm. Elstair, 12, Avery-row, Bond-street."

TEETH.

No. 9, LOWER GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.—Newly-invented and Patented application of chemically prepared WHITE and GUM-COLOURED INDIA-RUBBER in the construction of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, GUMS, and PALATES.

Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon-Dentist, No. 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee.

A new, original, and invaluable invention, consisting in the adaptation, with the most absolute perfection and success, of chemically prepared White and Gum-coloured India-rubber, as a lining to the ordinary gold or bone frame. The extraordinary results of this application may be briefly noted in a few of their most prominent features.

All sharp edges are avoided; no springs, wires, or fastenings, are required; a greatly increased freedom of suction is supplied, a natural elasticity, hitherto wholly unattainable; and a fit, perfected with the most unerring accuracy, is secured; while, from the softness and flexibility of the agents employed, the greatest support is given to the adjoining teeth when loose, or rendered tender by the absorption of the gums.

The acids of the month exert no agency on the chemically prepared India-rubber, and, as it is a non-conductor, fluids of any temperature may with thorough comfort be imbibed and retained in the mouth, all unpleasantness of smell and taste being, at the same time, wholly provided against by the peculiar nature of its preparation.

To be obtained only at 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, London; 14, Gay-street, Bath; and 10, Eldon-square, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

TEETH

WITHOUT SPRINGS.

110, REGENT-STREET, and 33, LUDGATE-HILL, Are the Dental Establishments of

MESSRS. GABRIEL, the old-established DENTISTS, Patentees of the System for Insuring Perfect ARTICULATION and MASTICATION, without the impediments usually attendant upon the ordinary plans.

In their IMPROVED MINERAL TEETH and FLEXIBLE GUMS there are no springs or wires, no extraction of roots; the fit is of the most unerring accuracy, while, from the flexibility of the agent employed, pressure upon the gums or remaining teeth is entirely avoided. It is permanent, wholesome, and congenial to the mouth, and, when in use, defies the notice of the closest observer. It is only necessary to see them to be convinced of their superiority; and unless every satisfaction is given, no fee is accepted.

The best materials are used, which Messrs. GABRIEL are enabled to supply at prices lower than are usually charged for common qualities, they having on the premises extensive laboratories for the manufacture of every speciality appertaining to the profession. Consultation gratis. Established 1804; and at 134, Duke-street, Liverpool.

GABRIEL'S TREATISE fully explains the system, and may be had gratis, for stamped envelope.
The Patent White Enamel, which effectually restores decayed front teeth, can only be obtained as above.—OBSERVE THE NUMBERS.

PREPARED WHITE GUTTA PERCHA ENAMEL, the best Stopping for Decayed Teeth or Footache, 1s. 6d. per box, obtainable through any Chemist in town or country, or direct Twenty Stamps.

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY, 29, Lombard-street, London, and Royal Insurance Buildings, Liverpool.

CHAIRMAN IN LIVERPOOL.—CHARLES TURNER, Esq. CHAIRMAN OF LONDON BOARD.—SAMUEL BAKER, Esq. The Royal Insurance Company is one of the largest Fire Offices in the Kingdom.

At the Annual Meeting of the 5th instant, the following highly satisfactory results were shown:—

FIRE DEPARTMENT. The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact—that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing, and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this Kingdom.

The Premiums for the year 1855 being... £130,060
While the Premiums for the year 1858 are... 196,148
Showing an actual increase of... 66,088
or upwards of 50 per cent. in three years.

The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1858) again show the Royal as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London Insurance Offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the moiety of its advance.

LIFE DEPARTMENT. The amount of new life premiums received this year is by far the largest received in any similar period since the commencement of the business, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful offices in the Kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 832, the sum assured £387,752. 6s. 8d., and the premium £13,354. 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension of business during the last ten years. Thus:—

No. of Policies.	Sum Assured.	New Premiums.
1848 ... 98 ...	£48,764 17 0	£1,380 9 1
1850 ... 190 ...	95,650 9 11	2,637 4 7
1852 ... 422 ...	181,504 10 6	5,628 5 10
1854 ... 408 ...	161,848 18 4	4,694 16 0
1856 ... 708 ...	297,580 16 8	8,850 3 11
1858 ... 832 ...	387,752 6 8	12,354 3 4

The remarkable increase in the business of the last four years is mainly consequent upon the large bonus declared in 1855, which amounted to no less than 22 per cent. per annum on the sums assured, and averaged 80 per cent. upon the premiums paid.

THE FOLLOWING IS AN EXTRACT

from the Second Edition (page 188) of the Translation of the Pharmacopoeia of the Royal College of Physicians of London, by Dr. G. F. Collier, published by Longman and Co.:—

"It is no small defect in this compilation (speaking of the Pharmacopoeia) that we have no purgative mass but what contains aloes; yet we know that haemorrhoidal persons cannot bear aloes, except it be in the form of COCKLE'S PILLS, which chiefly consist of aloes, scammony, and colocynth, which, I think, are formed in a sort of compound extract, the acidity of which is obviated, I suspect, by an alkaline process, and by a fourth ingredient (unknown to me) of an aromatic tonic nature. I think no better and no worse of it for its being a patent medicine. I look at it as an article of commerce and domestic convenience, and do not hesitate to say it is the best made pill in the Kingdom; a muscular purge, a mucous purge, and a hydragogue purge combined, and their effects properly controlled by a dirigent and corrigent. That it does not commonly produce haemorrhoids, like most aloetic pills, I attribute to its being thoroughly soluble, so that no undissolved particles adhere to the mucous membrane."

"Messrs. W. H. Allen and Co. have just brought out the first number of a monthly periodical, called THE UNIVERSAL REVIEW OF POLITICS, LITERATURE, AND SOCIAL SCIENCE. We confess that until we read this first number we had no very clear impression that we were in any need of any addition to our already heavily-laden monthly literature; but a careful examination of the contents of the work has satisfied us that its projectors are justified in the undertaking. If they cannot be said, in the slang of the book-market, to have supplied a want, there is little doubt that they will create an audience. The best brief notion we can give of the publication is to say that it promises to become to English readers what the Revue des deux Mondes is to French, with an indefinitely wider latitude of topics and freedom of opinion. The critical element predominates, but it admits of the essay in its pure form, and is sufficiently elastic in both departments to embrace every variety of subject of current or permanent interest. In politics it ranges with the progressive section of the Conservative party, which would preserve the constitution, by adapting it from time to time to the necessities of successive epochs. The soundness of its judgment on the question of Parliamentary Reform is displayed in the ablest and most thoroughly constitutional article that has yet appeared in any of our periodicals on the subject; an article which acquires additional value from the fact that it foreshadowed the whole scheme of the Government two days before the Reform Bill was brought forward. In social laws and morals, the object of the UNIVERSAL REVIEW will be to note the progress, and collect the results, of all movements tending towards the advancement or elucidation of those vague philosophical investigations which are clustered under the general head of social science. Good earnest is given of the resources at the command of the writers, and of the practical manner in which they are prepared to deal with them, in an excellent article on the 'Homeless Poor.' There are also capital papers upon 'Russia' and 'Indian Finance;' and some admirable literary articles. This last department is pervaded by a spirit of independence, and a high scholarly tone which, we trust, 'custom' may not impair. Let us have at least one English periodical, written with integrity and good taste, to which we may confidently look for fearless and honest opinions. The UNIVERSAL REVIEW promises to realise these expectations, and we heartily wish it the success it deserves."

7. THE LAST OF THE MOGULS.
8. HOW SHALL WE VOTE?
9. THE SESSION.
10. BOOKS ON OUR TABLE.

From THE PRESS, May 14, 1859.

"The UNIVERSAL REVIEW contains seven articles, which, some for one reason, some for another, merit the attention of the public. The article on Mr. Robertson derives virtue from the excellence of its subject, but is nicely written as well. 'Women—neither Nice nor Wise,' is a protest against the smoking-clubbed, shooting-galleried, red-trousered style of young lady, of whom it is very truly said that all their efforts for the emancipation of women are in reality intended for the enslavement of men. 'The Resources of India, and its Colonization,' has only one fault—it is greatly too short; and we confess if it had been extended over the space which 'The Philosophy of Fabulous Ages' now occupies, we should not have regretted the exchange. 'Michelet on Love' is a review of which it is difficult to determine the merit without having read with great attention the book of which it treats. The writer seems so entirely to agree with his author as to have abandoned any idea of criticising him in the literal sense of the word, so he gives us instead a very compact and clever abstract of his theory, expressed with great felicity, and enlivened by occasional touches of real humour. The writer of 'French Dramatists and English Adapters' took a good grasp of his subject, but laid it down again before he had squeezed it dry. His article contains a good deal, but might have contained more. For instance, he takes up some half-dozen hypotheses to account for the decline of the drama, turns them over, and leaves them, saying it is not his business to settle which is true. But we think this is just what his business was. The article is written in so agreeable a style, and evinces so much latent ability, that we regret more was not made of it. 'The Last of the Moguls,' though a little florid in diction, is well and strikingly executed. The article called 'How shall we vote?' after a summary of the policy of Lord Derby's Administration, proceeds to the delivery of a strong philippic against the Opposition leaders, and especially Lord John Russell. We observe this article has been reprinted in a separate form, and we trust may have contributed to blow away some of those delusions which the public mind has been carefully fed by the partisans of the 'Bedfords.' With the writer's remarks on Lord Palmerston we do not so fully agree. His lordship has performed great services, and what he may have done in a moment of irritation should not be too harshly criticised. The customary 'Session' and 'Books upon our Table,' conclude a very good number."

No. 4 (JUNE) CONTAINS:—

1. MAN AND HIS DWELLING PLACE.
2. A REVIEWER'S PARCEL.
3. THE STORY OF MICROSCOPICAL DISCOVERY.
4. AUSTRIANS AND SLAVONIANS.

5. RESOURCES OF INDIA.—COLONIZATION, PART II.
6. THE ROYAL ACADEMY AND THE WATER-COLOUR EXHIBITIONS.

7. POPULAR HISTORY.—KNIGHT'S HISTORY OF ENGLAND.
8. THE FRENCH IN ITALY—A NATIONAL AND TRADITIONAL POLICY.
9. BOOKS ON OUR TABLE.

From THE GLOBE, June 3, 1859.

"The UNIVERSAL REVIEW is, as usual, distinguished by discussing subjects of deeper and more permanent interest than are commonly entered on in monthly publications. The first article, on a book entitled 'Man and his Dwelling Place,' affords the writer an opportunity of professing his acceptance of the Idealistic theory of Bishop Berkeley, which, though supported by reasoning that it is admitted cannot be refuted, has hitherto made so little progress with mankind in general, chiefly on account of the misapprehension that has prevailed, or, perhaps, we may say, which does prevail, respecting it—a misapprehension that, doubtless, the writer is correct in ascribing to people picking up their notions of it at second hand, instead of resorting to the exposition of Berkeley himself. The article entitled 'A Reviewer's Parcel' is a lament over the degeneracy of the present age, especially made manifest by the vast number of new books published every month. Every one has a vague desire to go behind the scenes of a theatre, and by admitting, or pretending to admit, the public behind the scenes of reviewing, the writer of the article in question has produced a taking and readable paper, with which those who know little or nothing about the subject of which it treats will probably be best pleased. 'The Story of Microscopical Discovery' is an interesting article in which the progress of microscopical science is traced from its commencement to now. 'The Resources of India and its Colonization,' an article the first part of which appeared last month, is continued in the present number by a writer who has evidently devoted to the subject considerable care, pains, and research. An article on the picture exhibitions, a political article entitled 'The French in Italy,' 'Austria and the Slavonians,' with other papers, fill up the number."

No. 5 (JULY) CONTAINS:—

1. MODERN DIVORCE.
2. WHAT WILL HE DO WITH IT?
3. THE EARLY DAYS OF CHARLES FOX.

4. THE CORNISH DRAMA.
5. ILLOGICAL GEOLOGY.
6. OUT OF THE DEPTHS.

7. PARTIES, NATURAL AND ARTIFICIAL.
8. LOUIS NAPOLEON—PRINCE AND EMPEROR.
9. THE SESSION.

From THE ILLUSTRATED TIMES, July 9, 1859.

"The new periodical, THE UNIVERSAL REVIEW, fully maintains its excellent start, and may be regarded as one of the cleverest exponents of sound, sensible, unbiassed views among the periodical press. Nothing can be fairer than the spirit pervading two of the articles of the new number, the one on the Divorce Court, the other (in the shape of a review of a bad novel, 'Out of the Depths') on the Delicate Question; though, while giving the writer of the first-named pages every credit for sincerity, we deny the truth of his denunciation of a measure which undoubtedly has given the means of relief to scores of persons weighed down and lost here and hereafter by their tie to a worthless person. As regards the second article, every man of sense must go hand in hand with the reviewer, more especially in that portion of his paper where he deprecates the publication of such books as useless and demoralising. Other very readable essays are—a review of 'What will he do with it?' in which Bulwer is very honestly, and withal very favourably, judged; a pleasant paper on 'Charles James Fox;' an erudite dissertation on Mr. Norris's 'Erudite Book;' 'The Ancient Cornish Drama,' and three political articles, the best written of which is devoted to Louis Napoleon, and closes in the following words—'He said of himself, Je suis cing cent ans d'être Bonaparte. He might more truly have said that he was a political fanatic rather than a great prince; that his genius was a monomania; that his idea of internal order is that of a wolf who would muzzle the dog, and that his faith in foreign powers is that of a burglar in possession of a ticket-of-leave who surveys at his leisure his neighbour's premises, and chooses his own time to break in and seize the spoils.'"

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz. —Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THERE is little to interest the general reader in the intelligence received by the Bombay Mail of the 5th of August. Preparations were being made for the conveyance of the discharged European troops to their native country, but there appears to have been some difficulty in inducing officers to volunteer taking charge of them during the homeward voyage. The duty is not likely to be a pleasant one. There seems to be no doubt that Lord Clyde has earnestly urged the men to reconsider their late decision, and it is thought that some few will yet change their minds at the last hour. Lord Canning evidently overreached himself in offering what he imagined the men would hesitate to accept. His lordship probably laughed in his sleeve when he acceded to the second of the two demands made by the indignant soldiery—a bounty or their discharge. If so his merriment has been short-lived, and he has now the satisfaction of reflecting that his astuteness has deprived the State of the services of 10,000 trained men, and will entail an expenditure of a million sterling.

The public Thanksgiving on the 28th July was celebrated in Bombay by all classes and denominations of "clearly-articulating men." Mahomedans, Parsees, and Hindoos, vied with one another in expressions of gratitude for the preservation of a foreign yoke, and their prayers and praises were marked by the usual number of ejaculations customary on such occasions. It may not be inappropriate to mention in this place the death of the Venerable Francis Reynolds, Archdeacon of Bombay. The melancholy event is described as having been quite unexpected, and to have been caused by the rupture of a blood-vessel in the chest.

The Bombay public has been greatly scandalised by the disappearance of Mr. Hencage Walker, the resident engineer of the Vihar Water Works, and the discovery of something worse than mere carelessness with respect to the financial department of the Vihar contracts. More ample particulars will be found elsewhere.

We have already alluded to the rumour that the seat of Government is likely to be transferred ere long from Bombay to Poona. It is now reported that Madras also will eventually be abandoned by the magnates in favour of Ootacamund, while the trade of the port will pass to Beyport. Calcutta, likewise, it is said, may look forward to the loss of the viceregal splendour, and Lucknow is spoken of as the future metropolis of British India. It may be questioned, however, if change be not more needed in the head than in the seat of the Government.

There is little to tell of the movements of the rebels, unless it be that the Rajah of Boondee has returned to life, and that his place in the Shades below has been taken by Bala Rao—a modern adaptation of the classical fable of Castor and Pollux. The total number of vagabonds on the frontiers of Oude is estimated at 8,000, but fever is busy with them, and they are suffering likewise from want of food and the simplest necessities of life.

The wreck of the ship Natalie on the inner reef between Colaba and Malabar Hill has furnished the Bombay papers with an opportunity for "fine writing," of which they have not failed to avail themselves. The news from Calcutta, however, is far more disastrous; but at present our knowledge of the facts is confined to the following telegram from Sir William O'Shaughnessy to the authorities at Bombay:—

"CALCUTTA, 29th July, 1859.

"On the night of the 26th a Cyclone passed over Calcutta, and the following morning every line was interrupted. Our strongest constructed lines have been swept away miles on the Barrackpore road. Seven large trees fell in different places, destroying posts and wire.

"Two steamers have been wrecked in the Hooghly, besides many sailing vessels; lives lost, and immense destruction done.

The Candia mail steamer was seen off Saugor just as the gale commenced. She is supposed to have run out to sea again, and no tidings have since been received of her.

"Every available hand I have at work, repairing damages done to the line."

The following has just been received from Kedgee, dated this day:—

SINGAPORE—A TYPE.

Anglo-Indians, accustomed to expansion, see little remarkable in the growth of the ports which dot the eastern and southern coasts of Asia from Shanghai to Aden: they are rather impatient at what seems a slow development. But if European life were as permanent and as long continued in the East as in its native seats—if the restlessness of the race that has swarmed forth to new scenes of adventure were tempered by the gloom and the chill a conservative age or an old civilisation cast upon it, the growth of European trade in Eastern and Southern Asia would seem more like the splendours of a fairy tale than the sober realities which are buried in blue books, or stored up in administration reports. The riches of the East, which lured the lustful fancy of Europe from the days of Herodotus to the end of the last century, were not so shadowy as we of this day are apt to suppose. We have not the barbaric wealth of gold and of jewels, for Asia eats up our bullion, and the rebellion has disintombed almost the last of the hidden treasures of Indian princes. But the spoil of lawful commerce has been reserved for us, and the profits of a decade exceed the plunder of a century.

Since the year 1833, that has been accomplished for commerce which men of even the boldest imagination, like Sir S. Raffles, did not dare to dream. When their monopoly was being taken from them, the East India Company declared that their trade was so large as to be already draining England of its specie, and that the extension which would result from opening it to interlopers would be most disastrous to Europe. The whole trade of India then amounted to some three millions sterling, and now that of Bengal alone is thirty; while, if that of Bombay, Madras, Pegu, and the Straits be added, the total will not be far from seventy-five millions. Estimating the profit on that commerce at only twenty-five per cent., carrying trade included, India adds still nineteen millions a year to British wealth. And if the trade of India has increased in value within the last twenty-five years to the extent of seventy millions sterling, when it has, with the one exception of Bengal, been almost entirely confined to the coasts and the deltas of the great rivers, the boldest conjecture will hardly exceed probability in guessing at its expansion within the next twenty-five, or by the end of the century. Then by new ports, railways, canals, and roads, by the application of Saxon capital and Saxon skill, Southern Asia will supply the wheat, the cotton, the fibres, the rice, the tea and coffee, the silk, the spice, and the dyes of Europe; while Borneo and Bengal will render it independent of all other sources for its coal and copper, and Madras and the Himalayas for its iron.

We have selected Singapore as one, by no means too favourable, specimen of this ever increasing development of trade. It is about to have a new governor; it will soon become a Crown colony. All around it the last few years have opened up new fields of commerce, or given an impetus to those which formerly existed. Japan, Polynesia and Australia, will feed the port with new produce, and China and Netherlands India with increased supplies. It is the focus of a commercial system whose radii are ever extending, whose circle will soon include Tasmania, British Columbia and the Amoor. Next to Constantinople, the one city unmatched for its position, Singapore is most wisely situated. No town equals it in Asia. The same wonderful imagination that led Alexander to fix upon Alexandria as a site, led a man to whom history has yet to do justice—Sir Stamford Raffles—to fix upon Singapore. In 1819 he entered the East India Company to buy what was then a miserable village, whose whole population was 150 pirates and fishermen. Forced by the folly of an English Cabinet to give up his favourite Java to the cruel mercies of the Dutch, he chose this as a substitute, as the theatre of his civilising efforts among the Malays. And if the faith that turns a mud hamlet into a city, the entrepot of the wealth of continents, is an evidence of the highest form of greatness, then must that greatness be Sir S. Raffles. He lived but a few years to lay the foundation of its commerce, and Mr. Crawford was not unworthy of being his successor. In 1824, the 150 pirates of 1819 had become nearly 11,000 citizens; in 1836, they were 30,000, and in 1848 that number had doubled. During the last official year ending April, 1859, the value of the imports and exports, which, four years ago, was a little above eight millions sterling, had risen to about eleven millions, and this in a year unusually exceptional. The disturbances in China, a check in the trade with Siam, and a scarcity of money and a panic in the Singapore market, impeded a trade which in the previous year was upwards of twelve millions. The European and American tonnage has for the last five years always exceeded 350,000, the native tonnage 76,000.

This is but the beginning of the career of Singapore. As a mere entrepot, it is true, it can never rise to the rank of a first-class city, but already its trade is more than a third that of Bengal, and the resources of the whole continent, when developed, must flow through it. The harbour will soon be the station of an English fleet. As it already forms the great point in the line of navigation from west to east—from the Indian Ocean to the Pacific, so will it in the line of telegraph from north to south—from Calcutta to Rangoon, south to Anjier, Australia, and New Zealand. There exists no reason why the trade, which in forty years has increased elevenfold, should not in the remaining forty years of the century be at least tripled. Governed as a separate colony with a municipality, Singapore in 1900 may be the bonded warehouse of Southern Asia, the exchange for a trade of fifty millions a year. —Friend of India.

THE CIVIL SERVICE AND ITS PROSPECTS.

We have never seen the Civil Service as a body act with such inaptness as in this matter of reductions. Either the introduction of competition has disorganised them, or they have lost their capacity for discerning the tendency of public affairs. The elder members are either sulkily resigned, or disbelieved in the possibility of reductions. The younger are proposing schemes based on a partial ignorance of the true position of the question. The men of between ten and twenty years' standing, who will be most injuriously affected, are apparently quiescent. There is neither union nor energy, nor even a plan visible in the entire body, and unless a very rapid change takes place, they will find themselves under the shears without having prepared a word in their own defence. The Sudder Court has protested against giving up a penny. Mr. Drummond, in a really clever paper which stops far short of the truth, has shown that Government contribute only £250 a-year to the pension. Mr. Money has prepared a memorial remonstrating against Mr. Ricketts' reductions on general principles. We publish to-day a circular sent anonymously to the whole service, entreating them, in most extraordinary grammar, to do something not explained to secure some benefit not specified, in some method not made clear, for the Pension Fund. The service may depend on it, if their able men can show no more ability than this, if they are determined not to stir, or stirring stir in secret as if they were ashamed of their cause, their time will have arrived.

It may possibly accelerate their action if we explain in plain terms their true position. The six hundred members of the service throughout India out of Colle-e draw among them, while in service, £1,200,000 a-year. They will be entitled when out of service to £600,000 a-year in pension and annuities. The bare mention of those sums in a Parliament accustomed to consider colonial allowances will appear sufficient reason for large reductions. The Secretary of State has every reason to encourage that view. Government wants money, wants it more bitterly than our readers would be apt to believe without official confirmation. Within the next year money must be had somewhere, if the State is not to adopt an expedient its servants would deem worse than Mr. Ricketts. The Council of India has not the remotest interest in protecting men appointed by their own exertions, even if it had, as it has not, the power. Parliament has no civilian members. There is literally nothing to prevent English action of a most determined sort, except the interests of a class who at home have no votes, no boroughs, and no class at their back. Add that the Secretary of State stands pledged personally to reductions made from England, and that the next Indian budget will terrify Lombard-street, and we may leave it to educated Englishmen to estimate their chance of retaining an average salary of £2,000 a-year.

Under these circumstances the only feasible line of action seems to us clear. It is useless to protest on the general ground, to talk of the difficulty of getting good men, of the inferiority of the new and under-paid class who may be introduced. A trained cook is better than a plain cook, but to diate on that fact to an employer with the Court of Bankruptcy in immediate distance is simple folly. Cooks will be had of some kind, and employers in distress must just put up with inferior dishes, even if less healthy for their children. Equally absurd is the notion of standing on service claims. Parliament has abolished a hierarchy before now, and will care no more about a scream of wrath from the Service than it did about the demand for Lord Canning's recall. The reductions will be made, and the only chance for the service is to devise, if possible, some compromise by which they may submit to the English dictate, without the prospect of personal misery and ruin. The possibility of a compensation for salaries seems never to have entered the heads of all the officials who have "remarked" and "remonstrated" and "protested" and "feared" all through Mr. Ricketts' appendices. Yet that is the claim which will address itself most readily to the English mind. The House of Commons comprehends individual suffering. It will most certainly not surrender its right of fixing the salaries of the servants of the Crown, but it may yield to the plea that State reforms should not ruin individuals. It has so yielded previously time and again. Is it impossible to secure to the six hundred gentlemen who now fill the service an individual compensation, which while sparing the State shall spare them too?

It is a difficult point, but we believe one kind of compensation is possible. The crave to live in England almost balances the desire for large salaries, and may be made the basis of an arrangement. Suppose, as an extreme example, the average of salaries were reduced thirty-five per cent., and the sufferers allowed after fifteen years' service to return to England on three hundred a-year, or after twenty on five hundred, and the value of whatever sum they had paid up to the Fund. The loss to Government would be at the uttermost but half the gain, and continue only for the difference between eighteen and twenty-five years. For the future service any terms, if frankly stated beforehand, are just. We do not mean that these figures in any degree represent the precise object to be sought. We give them only as indicating the line in which, and in which only, a working plan of compensation may possibly be found. It is by balancing a small sum enjoyable in England, against a large sum to be sweated for in India, that alone the necessities of the State can be made compatible with the interests of the Service. At all events, the time for combined action is passing; and if the Service simply await the decree, or meet it by a declaration of their right to more than they already have—and that is what all proposals at present amount to—they will fail to avert the blow.

Mr. Ricketts' ten per cent. reduction could be met. There is room in most establishments for that amount of paring down. A shorter bill with Wilson, a horse the fewer, a little determination to make servants devote their energies to work instead of to swindling, would pretty nearly reimburse that loss. Staff officers live well enough on half the remainder. But if we do not utterly mistake the condition of the finances, Mr. Ricketts' report will be laughed at. There are difficulties ahead, difficulties due chiefly to the monstrous management of the past three years, before which all private or class interests must give way. Twelve months more, and the most kindly of secretaries must act like the most cold-blooded of doctrinaires. —Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

AN ENERGETIC CORRESPONDENT.—A correspondent observes:—"A story is abroad that a Sikh Cavalry Regiment, down country, demands its discharge under the terms of G. O. G. G. No. 883, of 20th June last! It appears, moreover, that this demand is made insubordinately, and that the officers of the corps are losing control over the men. Let us hope that all native soldiers, enlisted before the death of 'John Company,' may come forward now, seriatim, and make a similar demand; and then the road towards lessening our immense reaccumulation of native troops would be opened. Discharge the rascals by the hundred, and send them back to their villages under police surveillance, and our present quarter of a million of dangerous mercenaries would be rapidly and easily reduced to a controllable number. As regards the Sikh Cavalry corps referred to, or any other native regiment that may venture upon a violent and mutinous method of demanding their discharge, just march the men into a hollow square of three sides, with a battery at one end, and drench them with grape and canister until they cry 'peccavi' in Hindustani." —Lahore Chronicle.

SHIP DESTROYED BY FIRE.—We are sorry to announce the destruction by fire of the American ship Brutus, in the harbour. At 8 o'clock on Saturday morning, the 9th July, without any previous indication, flame was seen to burst up from the fore-hatch of the vessel. Captain Janvrin and the crew immediately endeavoured to get into the hold to ascertain where the fire was, but they found it impossible to do anything, the entire hold being a mass of fire. To prevent its spreading on deck the hatches were battened down. Very shortly after the harbour master's assistants came on board, unmoored the ship, to prevent the fire communicating to other vessels, and with the flood dropped her up to Cossipore and beached her on a sand-bank. Another attempt here was made to see if the fire could be suppressed, but on opening the hatches flames burst from every direction. There was no alternative but to scuttle her, which was accordingly done. The Brutus was a vessel of about 600 tons, and had just arrived here from Bombay, consigned to Messrs. Whitney and Co. She was discharging her import cargo, of which she had on board about 400 tons of salt, 150 bales of cotton, several cases of piece goods, and some bundles of Coir yarn. —Englishman.

MR. D. F. MACLEOD, financial commissioner of the Punjab, is spending a few days in Lucknow, on his way to England. We regret to hear that his health is not so good as his friends would wish, but it is to be hoped a sea voyage and a residence in England will thoroughly restore it.

TESTIMONIAL TO MR. LINGARD STOKES.—On Friday evening, July 1, the officers and workmen of the East India Railway Company assembled in the theatre-room of the Literary Institution at Howrah to present to Mr. Lingard Stokes a testimonial of their esteem and respect. A collation was provided by Mr. Kellner, to which a goodly number sat down. After the cloth was removed, the chairman spoke very briefly of the approaching departure of their much-respected superintendent, and of their having assembled to thank him for his kindness and consideration shown to all during his connection with them. The address was then read by the secretary and the testimonial presented, consisting of a handsome silver centre piece, which was surmounted by a locomotive engine, also two drinking cups of elegant design, which reflected great credit on Messrs. Allen and Hayes, by whom they were executed, particularly the locomotive engine, which was the most complete thing of the kind we ever witnessed. Mr. Stokes, on rising to respond, was greeted with much applause. He spoke at some length of the advantages gained by the master and man being on good terms with each other and working together. He showed that by this system only could works of great magnitude be carried on successfully, and without which nothing great could be accomplished, and to bring about that unity had always been his earnest endeavour so far as was consistent with the interest of the company. Various other speeches were made, and the rest of the evening passed off cheerfully. The entertainment was enlivened by the band of H. M.'s 90th, who were in attendance by the kind permission of the colonel of the regiment. —Hurkaru.

A DISTINGUISHED QUARTETTE.—Major-general Sir Sydney Cotton, K.C.B., commanding the Peshawar division, and Major general C. A. Windham, C.B., commanding the Lahore division, are at present located at Murree, where it is probable they may be soon joined by Major general Sir R. Garratt, K.C.B., commanding the Sirhind division. The whist party will be complete on the expected arrival of Sir Robert Montgomery, K.C.B., Lieutenant-governor of the Punjab.

PRICE OF SALT.—The price of all commodities, as our readers are aware, has been raised; and that not only in Calcutta but also in the Mofussil. Salt, however, is the last article that one could possibly conjecture to be variable in its market value. For years, one may say, the price, with but little variation, has remained almost the same. This has arisen from the system under which the article has been hitherto manufactured. The Government system of advances fixes a contract rate, which in some of the districts has remained unaltered for the last quarter of a century. Whenever the late board of customs, salt, and opium saw that the cost of salt produced in any agency became excessive—in other words, when the profits derived from that district became less, that agency would be abandoned, as, for instance, the twenty-four pergunnas, Bulloah, Jessore, and others. The case now appears to be different. The relative value of articles, the state of the market, and the wages of labourers, have so much risen, that Government has been compelled to pay a higher price to their Molunghees. In the Tumlook agency the price has varied to the extent of an anna per maund, or thereabouts. From all this we see, we fear that salt, like rice and mutton, will become dearer, and purchasers will suffer proportionably. —Phoenix.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.—Fifty civil servants, nine military, ten military cantonment police, and fourteen uncovenanted servants, are to be appointed justices of the peace in the North-West Provinces, all British-born subjects. These officers to be put in commission with the least possible delay, as justices of the peace are urgently required for the purpose of attesting soldiers desirous of enlistment.

COL. K. MACKENZIE.—The state of Col. K. Mackenzie's health obliges him to leave Berhampore. Brigadier Christie, from Barrackpore, is shortly to leave for Berhampore, to assume the important duties of that station.

ALLAHABAD, July 23.—The New Times appears to have been informed that Lord Canning has not yet reported to the Secretary of State his reasons for the removal of the seat of Government from Agra to Allahabad. I suppose this utter disregard of the interests and feelings of the hundreds of his fellow countrymen, to whom the removal is a matter of so much importance, will be construed by his admirers into a sign of greatness of soul, and a superiority to those influences which operate on ignoble minds. The fact, I fully believe, is, that his lordship hardly knew how to extricate himself from the dilemma in which he was placed. With the exception of a few civil servants attached to the Calcutta secretariat offices, and a handful of yet smaller fry, whose feeble utterances were nothing but "an echo," the voice of the public was against the removal of the seat of Government from the beginning. A very few, who were against the measure at first, strove to find reasons for it, when they perceived how utterly his lordship's heart was set on it. But now even these friends seem disgusted at the vacillation which keeps the public so long in suspense. In the meanwhile, the Governor-general is in the unhappy position of one who can neither justify his act by convincing arguments, nor retract with any grace or dignity. We have had several heavy showers of rain. Had the hot weather lasted much longer the cholera might have reappeared as an epidemic. As it was two or three fatal cases have occurred lately in the Christian community. I do not think I have yet chronicled the departure of Mr. W. Muir, the junior member of the Sudder Board, who left the station for the Hills last week, on three months' leave. Mr. E. A. Reade, the indefatigable senior member, is now disposing of the work single-handed. I see arrangements are being made to send down the discharged Europeans of the 4th and the artillery to Calcutta by steamers. Besides their own vessels, Government are engaging those of private companies. Should the war in Europe be marked by complications which will render it imperative for England to join in it, these men will I fancy be sought for on their arrival. They will for the most part be glad enough to serve the Queen, if allowed to enlist again. Many of them, and especially the artillery, with their perfect training, will be a valuable accession to the strength of the army in England. —Delhi Gazette.

DE GUSTIBUS, &c.—However light we may deem the punishment of transportation, viewed in reference to capital punishment, it is a fact that prisoners in the Lucknow jail under sentence of transportation have been known to implore the authorities to commute it to death. One of them actually followed the judicial commissioner the other morning, while inspecting the jail, and insisted upon being hanged.

EXECUTION OF MURRAY.—The following is from Bancoorah, dated July 14:—"The warrant for the execution of Murray reached the session judge on the 8th. On the 10th the magistrate read out the warrant to the prisoner, and told him that he must prepare for death on the 13th, Wednesday. The prisoner listened to his sad sentence with great calmness and resolution. Afterwards he took leave of the judge by putting a finger upon his forehead, either as an indication of his being entirely resigned to the will of the Almighty, or his total submission to the course of law. At last, the fatal Wednesday, the 13th of July appeared, and early in the morning the prisoner, attired in black, accompanied by the magistrate and minister, repaired to the place where the gallows was ready. The minister read to him the service, and he listened to it with great attention. At last after bidding farewell to this world, he mounted the gallows with great presence of mind and without any assistance whatever, but he continued praying to God till the two 'koides' put the rope round his neck, and thus brought an end to his life. The place of his execution was thickly crowded, and it is beyond my power to say how much the people were affected by this sad spectacle; every one of the spectators was seen to return with tears in his eyes."

ACONITE POISON.—Captain Lowther has communicated the following information to the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India:—"I have sent a box to your address, with sundries, as specimens of various products, viz., 'aconite poison,' for experiment, one, at present, of peculiar interest, the lives of our soldiers on this frontier (Upper Arsam) being concerned. Dr. White, of the naval brigade, was eminently successful in his treatment, sucking the wound by the use of the cupping-glass. Out of twenty-five wounded Europeans only four died: one of these men in half an hour. Fortunately for humanity, the Digarloo tribes are the sole producers of this virulent drug, and they are chiefly peaceable traders, totally dependent on British territory for their small luxuries of life, i.e., salt, tobacco, cloth, spirits, cattle, &c. It is almost solely to the rascality of our subjects that these hostile tribes are now indebted for their comparatively small, and hence adulterated, supply of this root, which, under the present system of frontier trade, finds its way down into the shops of the covetous Hindostanee Bunneeahs, and thence oozes out in the transactions for rice and boats with the Mori Nomades of the Dihong (as cunning and faithless a set of rhyots as could be expected), and these in their turn purvey all they can get to the Abors. Fortunately for humanity, I repeat, your enemies have to pay for their poison, and even then cannot obtain the genuine article, or our force would all be dead men. The great Alpine region of the Digarloo country is described as abounding with the plant furnishing the Bih, as they call it (query, Aconitum ferrox). Last cold season I was out with a Digarloo hunting party; one of the men stalked a large female Sambur deer feeding in the grass; he made a bad shot, merely ripping up her skin on her side, and off she bounded, followed by the active savage, who caught her up in her death struggles in a few hundred yards. I am told the method of preparing the drug is as follows:—Bruise the root on a flat stone, gradually grinding it into a mass with the fresh juice of the Dillenia spectosa fruit; while in this moist state it is to be kneaded to the required size on the wood of the arrow to be poisoned, a few deep notches being first cut just below the junction of the metal, but the weapon may break off into the wound. The 'Singpho' people slay their elephants and rhinoceroses after this fashion, the hunter patiently tracking them till they drop, and which sometimes occupies many hours. The Kampteas tell me they employ saltpetre both externally and internally in cases of wounds so poisoned with success: others profess to heal with seeds or barks of the jungles, and which I have seen administered to a wounded man without saving his life. However small and superficial the said arrow wounds, even those made with pointed bamboo, the pain is described as horrible, and the appearance is invariably highly inflamed and attended with suppuration. Dysentery, too, is a usual feature and concomitant of these venomous applications, and which seem to affect the native less than the European system, to judge by the rapid recovery of the former under medical treatment. Thus I hope I have directed public attention to a new branch of military field surgery, and one which may possibly prove of some importance in the future warfare of our ultra-savage frontier; and I know of nothing more politically tending to pacify those turbulent Tartar hordes than the bare fact that we can cure our wounds, numerous though they may be, although our bullets may fail to reach them in their lurking places. It ought to be known that Dr. White sucked all the wounds himself, like a veritable leech of the olden time, and made the caste gentry of the native force stare in astonishment at this novel application of the sacred organ."—Hurkaru.

THE REBELS.—The Nana, Bala Rao, Daly Bux, and Mummoo Khan are in the Dandoka valley, with a force of about eight thousand men. They are not together, but scattered in different places along the valley, which extends west for twenty miles from Dandoka. Dandoka is in the second range of hills. They are said to be very sick, but not so bad as they were some time ago.

Bala Rao was reported to have been on his death-bed, but has now got much better. There are also smaller parties of the rebels at the foot of the hills, and in the Terai. There is "Bullee," and "Bulkeree Sing," a little to the west of Bunghoi, each with about four hundred men, and another chief named "Narbullee Sing" at the Sorai Pass, with some 200 or 300 men. They seem to keep pretty quiet, now and then they send out looting parties, but confine themselves to Nepal, seldom venturing near our boundary. The Begum is at "Nyacote," very comfortable, with just her personal attendants, and pretty well off as regards money, &c. She is under restraint, and the Nepal people allow nobody to go near her. Khan Bahadoor Khan has got better from his jungle fever, and is living in Bootwul, with three or four servants, still very sick, and very badly off. As report says, one of his servants (an elephant driver) decamped with all the old man's money. It seems the general opinion of all who give themselves up, that they will all be dispersed, and have died off before the cold weather. It might have been so had they remained in the Terai, but now in the hills they are recovering their sickness.

RELEASE OF THE EX-KING OF OUDE.—The ex-king, up to the moment of his release, was unaware that his imprisonment was so soon to end. His liberation was announced to him by Colonel Cavenagh and Major Herbert, and he received the announcement, testifying great but dignified satisfaction. He had invariably been treated by these officers with the courtesy and consideration due to his rank, and seemed to perfectly appreciate the consideration which had dictated such treatment. He was therefore always willing to communicate freely with them, and often sought their advice, which, as freely rendered, has more than once baffled attempts made on his purse. The ex-king's meals were always brought to him from Garden Reach, and his dinner had reached on Saturday evening, July 9th, at the time it was intimated to him that his imprisonment had terminated. His ex-Majesty ordered the viands to be taken back to Garden Reach, whither he intended immediately proceeding; but before he got into the carriage prayer time had come round, and he would not leave until he had gone through his rather lengthy devotions. These finished, he drove off in an open carriage, accompanied by Major Herbert. The ex-king's life during his two years' imprisonment has been such as to induce the belief that if left to himself he would, for an Asiatic prince, be of very irreproachable character. He has been abstemious in the extreme, and has denied himself many pleasures which even the rules which regulated his imprisonment would have permitted. His time was mostly spent in the composition of verses, in portrait-painting, and in writing letters to his numerous begums both in Oude and at Garden Reach, to whom he generally sent presents of jewellery and of money. His attitude, or pose, during verse-writing hours was a curious one, his ex-Majesty on such occasions being stretched out like a large turtle taking a swim on the top of a bed piled with cushions, at one end of which was a writing-desk! Like other great men he was fond of toys, and spent much money on them, nothing apparently giving him more pleasure than to sit and watch the circular movements of automatic toys set in motion by himself. He was particularly jealous of being intruded on, and comported himself like a king in that respect. The orders of Colonel Cavenagh were, however, very rigid on this particular point, and none, no matter what their rank, were allowed to enter the ex-king's chambers, or in any other way to incommode him. He will have to confess that if the English did imprison him, during his imprisonment he was treated in every respect as became his rank. Ally Nucky Khan was less comfortably situated. He was liable to be visited by the officers on duty and by others; but of the presence of any the ex-visier took little notice. He was always reserved if not silent, and apparently cast down in spirit, his whole time being devoted to reading the Koran.—Phaniz.

RAMPORE, July 10.—His Highness the loyal Nawab of Rampore, by great exertions and tact, has collected from his state 33,669 stand of arms of all sorts up to 19th July, 1859, and is trying to get more. He has sent the magistrate of the city out into the district, and to-day made the Kotwal proclaim all over his territory, that whoever will give intelligence and get ten stand of arms shall receive one hundred rupees present and a situation in his army, and if the man is already in his service, promotion, and whoever finds arms in any village shall get ten biggahs of land in his elakah as jagheer. Great praise is due to this loyal prince. Yesterday, the 18th July, General Walpole of the Bareilly brigade, with two other gentlemen, came from the hills and passed the day at Rampore, and in the evening left for Bareilly. His highness with his suite went to the Dak Bangalow at 12 o'clock to meet the general.

THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF BENGAL has sent round a circular to all educationalists, both European and native, requesting their opinion as to whether Vernacular schools could not be established in the several districts in Bengal similar to those Mohulla schools in the interior of the North-Western Provinces, the expense of which amounts from ten to fifteen rupees a month, and whether such institutions in the interior of Bengal would be of any material interest to the villagers.

SUTTEE.—On the 19th June last, a Choomar died in a village called Koonghur some nine or ten miles distant from Hansee. His widow was desirous of immolating herself on his pyre, but was restrained by the villagers, who appear to have been fully aware of the magnitude of the crime of abetting Suttee. But Nunnoo the widow was not satisfied, and on the third morning after her husband's death, shortly after dawn, declared she had had an inspiration, and threatened to curse anyone who should oppose her becoming a Suttee. The lumbarbars of the village sent off a "dowraha" to the nearest police station which was distant about eight miles, but he either was ill or feigned illness and returned in the evening without accomplishing his mission. Nunnoo was advised by many, both of the Choomars and the proprietors of the village, to desist from her intention, but to no purpose. The curse was held over them, and in a short time the whole community lent itself to furthering the preparations for the rite. For the sake of "dhuurm," each Choomar conveyed a log to the spot where the smouldering ashes of Nunnoo's husband lay, and Jats, Bunnias and Brahmins prepared libations of ghee. Shortly after sunrise Nunnoo came forth from the hamlet, bearing a "mala" in one hand, and a cocoa-nut in the other, and ascended the "chutta" or pile. Fire was applied by the nearest relative of her husband, crowds of people were beholding, but there seems to have been no din. It was a village affair. The attendant Brahmin, if there was one, for even Choomars have their Brahmins, is not to be heard of. The Choomars most actively engaged in erecting the pile and the lumbarbars of the village have met with condign punishment, sentence having been passed against each of them of ten years' imprisonment. Sixteen other Choomars who assisted in collecting wood and the three Chokeydars of the village have been imprisoned for five years each, and the dowraha has been imprisoned for two years. A fine of Rs. 500 has also been inflicted on the remaining inhabitants of the village, to be realized according to their respective means, and the thanadar and the whole of the police have been dismissed.—Delhi Gazette.

MR. ALONZO MONEY, of the Civil Service, met with a very severe accident on Saturday evening, the 8th July. He was thrown from his horse on the maidan just in front of his own house, and received an extremely bad compound fracture of one leg. We believe he has since been progressing favourably.

THE RAJA OF NUGGUR and also the Raja of Subtasee, committed suicide while in confinement in Gorruckpore gaol.

THE RAJAH OF PACHETE.—Some time since the Rajah of Pachete was offered two khilluts, with the proviso that he would come and take them. This he then refused to do, on grounds that were alleged in extenuation during the trial to which he was last year subjected under the orders of the Government. He now comes forward to claim the distinctions, which, before his conduct had rendered his loyalty suspected, Government would have conferred on him. The answer, which is characteristic of the new Lieutenant-governor of Bengal, justly reproves the assurance which alone could have caused such a request to have been proffered. The Rajah is told that the Government do not attach credit to the excuse made by him for not appearing before the Commissioner to receive the khilluts, namely, that the district through which he was to have passed was in a disturbed state; that he must consider himself lucky in having been dealt with so very leniently, and must not look for the bestowal of the honours he now covets.—Phoenix.

BANK OF BENGAL.—The Hurkaru has been informed that in consequence of the heavy cash balances recently accumulated in the coffers of the Bank of Bengal, the directors of that corporation have resolved to receive from Government Treasury Bills to the extent of fifty lakhs of rupees at three months' date, on account of drafts and mint certificates discounted by the bank instead of cash payment.

A HINT TO THE S. P. G. F. P.—A correspondent of the Delhi Gazette gives the following exact translation of a petition presented to himself in Court:—"Petition of 'Suktee,' a Chhmar, of mouzah Saughur, Thannah Chandpore, dated 23rd July, 1859. Cherisher of the Poor, Hail!—Janab' ali. Since your servant has approved of or accepted ('kabool') the Christian religion (mazhab'isawi) because in these times the honour ('izzat') of the Christian religion is superior to that of any other—for this reason your servant has brought his six children and presenting himself to the Huzoor requests that in the same way that other tribes of Hindoos and Musalman have become Christians and have risen in the estimation of the Government (Kadar Sirkari,) orders may be issued with regard to your servant, that he and his six children may be made Christian."

THE CALCUTTA PRESS.—The good will of the Bengal Hurkaru newspaper and of the New Era and Press, also the presses, types, &c., connected with the above papers, the outstanding bills, the books comprising the late Hurkaru library, and the Bengal Hurkaru premises, are to be sold by public auction, on an early day, by Messrs. McKenzie, Lyall and Company. There is also a rumour current that the Englishman newspaper is to be sold to another party. Mr. Hurry still conducts the latter journal, and the Hurkaru has fallen into the hands of a barrister. The Phoenix has very much improved of late, and has a large circulation.

DR. BUIST, OF BOMBAY, has been offered, and has accepted the appointment vacant by the death of the late Mr. E. H. Longden. Few men are better fitted to supply the vacancy.

A JUST DECISION.—A question has recently been submitted by the Government of Bombay to that of India for decision, as to how the services of an uncovenanted officer, formerly employed in a foreign state, which was subsequently annexed with the British territories and the officer also transferred to that Government, are to be counted. The Governor-general in Council has decided that all uncovenanted officers now serving the Indian Government, and formerly employed by independent native princes whose estates have been resumed by the British Government, shall be entitled to the benefit of the uncovenanted pension rules, counting their services from the date on which they first entered the foreign service. In conformity with the above decision, an uncovenanted officer who served the British Government for a few years only, but was formerly employed by a native prince of Scinde, has been permitted to retire on a superannuation pension.

"CONSCIENCE MAKES COWARDS OF US ALL."—Major Bruce's investigations are tickling the consciences of the guilty. The Raja of Churda, and one Mahomed Bawkur, a brother of Nisahut Mehal, apprehending that information of the part they had played during the mutinies, other than the part which has been condoned by the royal amnesty, might be laid against them, have decamped—Mahomed Bawkur, on the pretence of proceeding to Calcutta, but the Raja so suddenly that he has left all his regalia behind. Instructions for his apprehension have, we believe, been issued.

IMPROVEMENTS IN LUCKNOW.—The Chief Commissioner, Mr. Wingfield, proposes to construct a "Grand Place," such as one sees in continental cities, on the banks of the Goomtee, on the vacant ground bounded by the river, the Chuttur Munzil, the Huzrut Gunge-road, the Tara Kotee, and the Motee Mehal. The area is, we believe, to be laid out as an ornamental garden, planted with rare trees and shrubberies, interspersed with flowerbeds, marble statuary, and, possibly, a fountain or two, a café, and a band stand. He has availed himself of the Italian talent of Dr. Boussia, the surgeon in charge of the police in Lucknow, who has submitted a plan of the proposed "Place," which, if carried out, will add in no small degree to the beauty of the already very beautiful city.

BARRACKPORE.—The Government have sanctioned Rs. 8,478 for the construction of a Roman Catholic Chapel with iron barrack frames at Barrackpore.

THE TELEGRAPH LINES now open are 9,190 miles, the receipts for May on private messages were Rs. 31,943-1, and for service messages, Rs. 10,571-10, being a reduction from Rs. 32,000 in March, in consequence of the service messages being now paid for by the public officers.

GRANTS IN AID.—The Secretary of State for India has sanctioned a grant of Rs. 50 a month in aid of the schools of the American Methodist Mission at Nynee Tal, and Rs. 1,500 for the school buildings. But urgent financial considerations do not allow him to sanction grants, as requested by the Government of India, in aid of a central Normal school in Bombay, the mechanical school of Poona, the establishment of model female schools in Bengal, or for the encouragement of vernacular education in Cuttack.

STAFF APPOINTMENTS.—It is reported that the Governor-general has in his consideration a new rule regarding the tenure of staff appointments. Officers on staff are to vacate these appointments in March next, if they have been five years absent from their regiments.

MRS. WEBB, who was lately tried at Allahabad for attempting to poison her son and daughter-in-law, and who was acquitted because there was not the shadow of evidence against her, died on the 7th July. Distress of mind at being falsely accused of a foul crime, added to confinement for six weeks in a hot cell of the gaol, so shattered her constitution that she sunk under a slight illness and died.

MUNNOO KHAN, who was the chief of the Begum's council, and ordered the murder of the Europeans at Lucknow, has been excepted by an order of Government from the conditions of the amnesty.

TUMLOOK, July 18.—The storage of the season's salt in the Government golahs at Narainpore has been completed, the quantity being 7,53,870; of that, 700,000 have been sold already at the office of the Board of Revenue, and about 21,000 of the remainder are still available for wholesale transactions. The Government have not yet fixed the taidad Tumlook agency for the ensuing season.

OFFICIAL CHANGES.—Mr. Rivers Thompson, Junior Secretary of the Board of Revenue, has been appointed Junior Secretary of the Bengal Secretariat, on a salary of Rs. 1,500 per month, and Lord Ulick Brown, Under Secretary of the Bengal Government, on a salary of Rs. 1,000 per month. It is rumoured that Mr. W. Dampier, of the Civil Service, intends to proceed to England in the month of May next.

BEYPORE

Beyapore seems yet destined to become the commercial capital of the Madras Presidency. Situated on the north side of an estuary formed by a river of the same name in the district of Malabar, as a port it presents greater capabilities for improvement, and promises to reach a higher point of prosperity, than any on the western coast. From the forests that fringe the Ghauts vast quantities of teak are floated down, so that, but for the difficulty of its bar, which can be removed, it would have rivalled Bombay as a ship-building port. The district around it abounds in ore yielding iron of the first quality, which tempted the Porto Novo Company to establish smelting works. Even with the great drawback of being forced to use wood as fuel, the Company has succeeded; its iron has been largely used in India, and well reported on by scientific men in England. Bepore forms the natural outlet of a densely-populated country with a valuable export trade, of Coimbatore, of Cochin and Travancore, as well as of Malabar to which Wynad belongs. In coffee, oil, and rice, there is a rising trade, and a better system of irrigation would raise extensive crops of tobacco, cotton, and sugar. The railway from Madras to the west coast, of which the port forms the great terminus, will open up the whole of South India, and when the state of the finances allows public works to be resumed, the natural water communication will be so extended and improved that the produce of the Presidency will feed Bepore with a trade never seen in India out of Calcutta. There are the greatest facilities for a back-water communication from Cape Comorin to the south of Malabar along the coast, and the Government of Madras has already addressed Lord Stanley, urging him to allow them to begin at once on the canal and back-water between Cochin and Ponany, which will rejoice the heart of Colonel Cotton. Bepore wants but two things to become the second city of the future in India—coal, and the improvement of its bar. At present no vessel drawing more than fourteen feet of water can pass that bar unless floated over it by the clumsy contrivance of casks. Once over, there is sufficient depth for the greatest tonnage.

This hitherto obscure place will soon have a new interest for all Anglo-Indians. The local government have resolved to take immediate steps for the construction of a harbour, sufficient to secure the safe landing and shipment of the overland mails and passengers. By the time that this work is finished the railway from Madras will be completed, and a change of no little importance at once effected in our overland communication with England. So far as we can conjecture the arrangements which will then take place, at least five days will at once be saved between Calcutta and England. Bepore will become the most easterly terminus of the P. and O. Company's Mail steamers. There all the passengers now conveyed to Madras and Calcutta must be landed and conveyed by railway to Madras. Thence the mails and passengers for Calcutta will proceed by steamers to Ceylon and Calcutta. The course of the passenger from Calcutta to Suez will then be as follows. From Calcutta to Madras, 750 miles, by small steamer—3 days; from Madras to Bepore, by railway, 450 miles—1 day; from Bepore to Aden, by ordinary mail steamer, 1,500 miles—6 days; and from Aden to Suez, 1,500 miles—7 days; or 17 days in all, instead of twenty-two, which is the ordinary average. These figures, too, are Colonel Cotton's, whose special mission it is to oppose all railway schemes.

The great drawback of this new route, which will soon become a reality, is the trans-shipment of goods at Madras and Bepore. But against this, which will not affect mere passengers, we have to set a saving of five days in time, and of two days, or the difference of distance between Aden and Bepore on the one hand, and Aden and Galle on the other, in telegraphic news. And there is also the saving of five days' working of the steamers forty-eight times a year, which represents the interest of a large sum of money. When we shall have this boon depends on the completion of the railway. This branch of our railway system equals in importance the triangular lines, and the Government and public alike should not cease to urge it on. The people of Madras will not fail to see that the success of Bepore is the ruin of their city. It will soon be preferable to rule Madras from the sanitarium on the hills, at the foot of which the railway passes, or to build a Government house at Bepore. Madras will become a second Suez, and revert to the insignificance for which nature intended it, from which man should never have raised it. It may still have a small coasting trade, but the traffic to and from Calcutta alone will distinguish it from one of the petty northern ports.

It was at Calicut, a few miles to the north of Bepore, that the first European navigator trod the soil of India. There in 1498, after a ten months' voyage, landed the great Vasco de Gama. There the nobles of Portugal humbled themselves before the so-called Zamorin (Tamuriu) whose descendants are now our stipendiaries. There in 1616, after much difficulty we established a factory, and there in 1792 we took possession of the country. Thence Europe procured the cotton which still bears its name—calico. Strange if the course of commerce is again to return to the coast whose inhabitants traded with the Ptolemies of Egypt, the emperors of Rome, and the old Kings of Portugal.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HYDERABAD, July 14.—Some months ago two 68-pounders were brought up here for the arsenal at Secunderabad, and the other day two more arrived under an escort of Lancers. This has rather frightened the City Bahadoors; they fancy these are brought to pound the city with: and fellows who a short time ago were looking quite ferocious and talking wildly are now upon their best behaviour. But the Arab Jemadar Abdool bin Ali and his vakeel Neam-ood-een Khan have lately been showing their teeth, and behaving with great insolence towards us. I wonder how long are political motives to restrain us from action against these people. They are completely masters of the city, and neither can the Nizam or his Minister control them. The Minister cannot carry any plan into execution, having for its object the good of the country, should it be opposed to the interests of the Arabs, though that would cause great misery to many innocent people. I think the sooner we clear the city of these scoundrels the better, for it must come to this in the end. A villain named Abdool Russal, but commonly known as Hajee Sahib, was deprived of his talookas and other employments by the Minister at the desire of the Resident, Colonel Davidson. The fellow now swears he has been unjustly disgraced, and that he will in retaliation seize upon the first Englishman he can lay hold of. This man is a desperate daring character. It appears that last year, when he was Naib of Hoomanabad, some horsemen had fled from Shorapore, after the row there, with the state jewels, and that on their arrival at Hoomanabad Hajee Sahib seized them, boned the jewels, and afterwards let the horsemen go. He was confined on this account last year, but was released on giving security that he would produce the horsemen, which being unable to perform, his punishment has been insisted upon by the Resident as above mentioned. If he does what he threatens, I suppose it will bring about a crisis.—Poona Observer.

THE DECCAN.—A friend in the Deccan has supplied us with the following information in regard to the revenue and charges in the ceded districts in West Berar for 1858-59:—Revenue: ordinary, 14,11,031 lakhs; extra, 24,487; total, 14,65,518. Charges: ordinary, 3,25,721, lakhs; extra, 5,242; total, 3,31,963. The surplus, eleven lakhs, thirty-three thousand five hundred and fifty-five rupees, will materially aid in reducing the Nizam's debt to the British Government; and if all the assigned districts are equally productive, not many years hence they must be returned to our faithful ally, no doubt in a much more flourishing condition than they were in when surrendered to our management.—Madras Spectator.

CIVIL ENGINEERS.—We understand that 118 applications for admission to the Civil Engineering College have been received. Of these 29 are from youths under the specified age, and who, therefore, are inadmissible. Of the remaining 89 applicants, 25 are from soldiers of the various European regiments in this presidency. The examination for admission, we see by the Fort St. George Gazette, is to be held on the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd of August, at the Government offices at Chepauk.

EARTHQUAKE.—On the morning of the 22nd of July Madras was visited by an earthquake. The "seven (hundred) sleepers," who were calmly occupied in snoring the snore of the virtuous about the small hours, were of course undisturbed by the shock, but those whom slumbers' light visit, or who for their sins could not sleep at all, felt the convulsion most distinctly. One of them has kindly supplied us with his own observations, which we give in his own words:—"I was awake," he says, "at half-past three o'clock, and anything like the still oppressive feeling of the atmosphere I never experienced during a twenty-three years' residence in India. The Punka men were made to work with more vigour, and the doors were thrown open, but still the dead stillness continued. I threw myself on my bed again, with little prospect of sleep, and was not there long, when my bed rocked, the doors and windows of my room, and the pictures on the wall shook; the whole house quivered to the base, and my little terrier suddenly sprung from his lair and barked. The vibration was from north to south, short and rapid in its action, and there were three distinct shocks. The first may have lasted thirty seconds; then there was a lull, and another, shock, and a third lull, and a still more violent shock. On paying a morning visit to a friend in Nungumbakum, about a mile from my house, I learned that the earthquake was felt there also, by all the members of the family, about the same time that it was felt by me at Egmore. It would be interesting to know how far the spasmodic convulsion extended.—Times.

Courts Martial.

No. 1042 of 1859.—With reference to the G.O. cited in the margin*, which authorised every general officer comdg. a division, every brigadier, and every officer commanding a station, being the senior officer on the spot, to appoint general or other courts martial for the trial of offences under the provisions of Acts of Nos. VIII, XI, and XIV. of 1857, and to confirm and carry into effect immediately or otherwise, any sentence of such courts martial; H.E. the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct, that the proceedings of every trial, held under the authority of the Government general orders above quoted, shall, when a capital sentence has been awarded, be referred for the orders of the right hon. the C. in C.

Forfeited Property.

North Western Provinces, Judicial Department, July 5.

Courts of special commission for the adjudication of claims to property seized as forfeited, are hereby established, under the provisions of Act IX. of 1859, with jurisdiction in all the districts of the Meerut, Rohilkund, Agra, Allahabad, and Benares divisions, and in the Humeerpore and Goruckpore districts.

The Courts will hold their sittings from and after the 1st August next, at the following places, for the respective divisions:—

For the Meerut division, including the districts of Mozuffernugger, Meerut, Allyghur, Boolundshuhur, Saharanpore, and Dehra Doon, at Meerut.

For the Agra division, including the districts of Agra, Nuttra, Furruckabad, Mypoory, and Etawa, at Agra.

For the Rohilkund division, including the districts of Bareilly, Mooradabad, Budaon, Shalichanpore, and Bijore, at Mooradabad.

For the Allahabad division, comprising the districts of Allahabad, Cawnpore, Futtehpore, and Banda, for the Humeerpore district; and for the Benares division, comprising the districts of Benares, Mirzapore, Jounpore, Azinghur, Ghazepore, and also for the Goruckpore district, at Benares.

From the said 1st August next, the powers heretofore vested in the Courts of the several districts above named, in respect of all cases cognisable by the Courts hereby established, will be suspended, until such Courts be informed that the local jurisdiction of the Courts of Special Commission has ceased.

The under-mentioned officers are hereby appointed Commissioners of the Courts of Special Commission, established under Act IX. of 1859, with jurisdiction in the several divisions of the North-Western Provinces, as follows:—

1. In the Meerut Division, Mr. F. Williams, Commissioner, Meerut Division.

Mr. G. D. Turnbull, Judge of Meerut.
Mominie Alee Khan, Principal Sudder Ameen of Meerut.

2. In the Agra Division, Mr. A. Ross, Officiating Commissioner, Agra Division.

Mr. R. B. Thornhill, Officiating Judge of Agra.
Mr. James Paul Lyons, Principal Sudder Ameen of Agra.

3. In the Rohilkund Division, Mr. J. H. Batten, Officiating Commissioner, Rohilkund Division.

Mr. A. Shakespear, Officiating Judge of Moradabad.
Syed Ahmed Khan, Principal Sudder Ameen of Moradabad.

4. In the Allahabad Division, including the Humeerpore District, and for the Benares Division, including the Goruckpore District.

Mr. F. B. Gubbins, Commissioner, Benares Division.
Mr. S. J. Beecher, Officiating Judge of Benares.

Consignment of Stores.

Adj. Gen. Office, H.M.'s Forces, Calcutta, July 20.

—Head Qrs., Simla, July 5.—It is notified for information, that quartermaster's stores and regimental necessaries, &c., of the royal army, can now be consigned to, received, stored, and forwarded by the Military Store Department, Calcutta.

* G.G.O. No. 694, dated 16th May, 1857. G.G.O. No. 764, dated 6th June, 1857.

Commanding officers of H.M.'s corps may direct their agents in England to consign all regimental stores to the above department, whereby commission, and other incidental charges, hitherto levied by agents at Calcutta, will be avoided.

The bona fide expenses only, at the rates paid for Government property, will be charged on packages consigned to, and forwarded by, the Military Store Department.

The Recruiting Service.

Head Qrs., Simla, July 5.—In compliance with G.O. No. 844, of the 13th ult., officers commanding corps therein referred to, whose strength is above the establishment now fixed, will cease recruiting until such time as they are reduced below the proper complement.

Such armed regiments as are below their establishment will recruit up to their complement from amongst the classes of which the corps have been hitherto composed; except in cases where recruiting has been specially stopped by orders from head quarters, in view to the ranks being completed by transfers from regiments that have supernumeraries on their rolls.

The formation of the various levies named in the G.O. into eight companies will be carried out at once, notwithstanding that the strength of some of these corps may be in excess of the revised establishment.

Officering of the Bengal Sappers and Miners.

No. 1,015.—With reference to G.O. by the Gov. gen., of March 20, 1851, which notified that in future the corps of Bengal sappers and miners would be exclusively officered from the corps of engns., H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to determine that, pending further orders, subaltern officers of the inf. shall be eligible for appt. to the sappers and miners in the proportion of one to each comp., subject to their passing prior to appt. an examination in field engineering, such as throwing up the simplest kind of field works as laid down for inf. officers appt. to pioneer companies under the operation of G.O. by the C. in C., Sept. 30, 1847.

Subaltern officers of inf. posted to the sappers and miners will draw the book, instrument and palkee allowance of rupees (60) sixty per mensem, in addition to the usual com. and contract allowances when in com. of a comp.

Disbanding of the Bengal Yeomanry Cavalry.

No. 1,043.—The term of service for which the members of the Bengal Yeomanry Cavalry engaged being about to expire, and a large proportion having expressed a wish to be discharged, the corps was ordered to Sultanpore, Benares, to be broken up.

The disbandment of the regiment is now in course of being carried into effect.

H.E. the Viceroy and Governor general of India in Council cannot allow the officers and men of this corps to separate, without expressing in General Orders his acknowledgment of the excellent services they have rendered, and his admiration of their endurance, and of their gallant bearing on the many occasions in which they have come in contact with the enemy.

The Bengal yeomanry cavalry, formed in Calcutta in the summer of 1857 on the footing of a volunteer corps receiving pay, was, in October of that year, moved towards the scene of the disturbances. Reaching Ranegunge, it proceeded in pursuit of mutineers to Gya. and thence marched to Patna and crossed into Tirhoot, in which district it was employed watching a body of rebels. Early in 1858 the regiment entered the Goruckpore district and took up, alone at first, a bold position at Ahmora, distant only five miles from an overwhelming rebel force, themselves only 200 in number; and they held for the greater part of that year, with the Goruckpore field force, important posts, and were, during that time, repeatedly engaged with the enemy.

In the cold season of 1858-59 the regiment was employed in the operations in the Barutch district in Oude, and finally it was engaged till recently against the rebels on the Nepal frontier.

The Gazettes of the 23rd March, 27th April, 11th May, 6th and 13th July, 13th August, 12th and 19th October, 23rd November, 1858, and 11th and 18th January, and 9th March, 1859, all testify that the Bengal Yeomanry Cavalry have borne a distinguished part in the several operations therein recounted.

Long marches, exposure, fatigue, and harassing patrol and picket duties have, from the first, fallen to the lot of this young corps, and they have borne the whole in a truly soldier-like spirit.

The Governor general in Council desires to convey to Major Richardson, C.B., and the brave officers and men of the Bengal yeomanry cavalry, a regiment of which all who have belonged to it may be proud, his best thanks for the good service they have rendered to the state, and in disbanding the corps, which, from the 27th inst., will cease to belong to the Bengal army, he wishes the members of it a hearty farewell.

Civil Furloughs.

No. 55.—Financial Dept., Fort William, July 16.—Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, Financial Department, dated June 20.—

Extract from a despatch from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, No. 83 of 1859, dated April 21.

Para 10. The new furlough and absentee rules admit of the division of a furlough into three periods of one year each, to be taken after successive periods of seven years' service, or in two periods of one or two years, respectively, or of eighteen months each, provided that in the latter case the first must be taken after a residence of not less than ten years, and the second after a further residence of a similar period.* You therefore consider that when furlough "has been earned by a civil servant after ten years' residence, there is no objection to his dividing his furlough into two instalments of one or two years respectively, or of eighteen months each, and to his obtaining the second instalment after an uninterrupted residence of seven years when available;" and you request authority for altering the existing rule accordingly. The proposed alteration being consistent with the spirit of the rules, it is sanctioned accordingly.

Ordered, with reference to the papers noted in the margin, that a copy of the above be forwarded to the Home Department for information and for communication to the Government of Bengal whence a transcript of it will be forwarded to Mr. W. G. Young for his information, with advertisement to his letter to the address of Mr. Secretary A. R. Young, No. 2,735, dated the 3rd November, 1858.

Ordered also, that a copy be forwarded respectively to the departments, subordinate Governments, and the authorities noted in the margin for information and guidance, and that a transcript of it be published in the Calcutta Gazette for general information.

CIRCULAR.

General Dept., Fort St. George, Acct. Gen.'s Office, 5th July, 1859.

No. 438.

From G. L. Prendergast, Esq., Acct. gen.

To all Collectors, &c.

Sir,—A correspondence has lately taken place between the civil auditor and this office, on the subject of payment of their substantive allowances to officers absent from their fixed stations on duty or leave. By the circular from this office of 26th Aug. 1856, it was prescribed, that the collector of the district to which the absent officer may be permanently attached, should send a bill of exchange (to be posted on the 2nd of the month) to the collector of the district in which the absent officer may be temporarily employed or on leave, the bill to be drawn in favour of the same collector for the net amount of salary due to the officer; and that the absent officer should, on the 1st of the month, send his abstract for audit to the civil auditor, who would return it to him when passed, to be by him presented to the collector for payment.

2. The civil auditor informs me that the course above pointed out is not followed, and that the numerous complaints he has received from officers of the difficulty they experience in getting their salaries at an early date, are owing to a neglect of it. He has therefore suggested to me that I should call the attention of collectors to my circular above referred to, and request them strictly to carry out the arrangement therein prescribed.

3. I have the honour accordingly to request that you will be good enough to intimate the course to the parties concerned, and give full effect to the instructions contained in that circular on all future occasions of officers permanently attached to your district, being absent elsewhere on duty or on leave, or when officers attached to other districts temporarily reside in your district.—I have, &c.,

G. L. PRENDERGAST, Acct. Genl.

Allowances to Officers on Removal.

Bombay Castle, July 26.

No. 659.—The Right Hon. the Gov. in Council is pleased to publish the following rules in accordance with the practice obtaining under the Bengal Presidency, for general information and guidance.

1. An officer of a British regiment in India removed in the same grade to another battalion of the same regiment in England, or removed in the same or in a higher rank to a different corps on the Home establishment, loses Indian allowances from the date of notification of the removal at the station at which he is serving.

2. But an officer promoted from a battalion in India to another battalion of the same regiment in England may retain the Indian allowances of his advanced rank to a latter date, if the official notification of his posting (as distinguished from his promotion) to the home battalion have been delayed; for not till receipt of such notification would he be deprived of them.

3. And whether an officer be removed or promoted to a different corps or to a battalion of his own regiment on the home establishment, his Indian allowances are continued to him beyond the dates above specified, if he be further detained with the regiment in India, on field service.

4. An officer of a British regiment in India transferred on public grounds to a battalion of the same regiment in England is allowed travelling expenses to the port of embarkation.

Barrack Masters.

Bombay Castle, July 20.

No. 615 of 1859.—His Lordship in Council is pleased to publish the following arrangements for the conduct of the duties of the barrack department:—

2. The following grades of officers will form the establishment of the barrack department, under the orders of the quartermaster general.

First class barrack master on a staff salary of Rs. 120
Second class barrack master on a staff salary of „ 70
Barrack sergeant on staff salary of „ 20
in addition to the military pay and allowances of their rank.

3. Unattached officers, and officers of the invalid battalion, and warrant officers are eligible for appointment as barrack masters.

4. Travelling allowance to officers of the quartermaster general's department, and to barrack masters, when employed under proper authority in the inspection of barracks, will be passed at the rate of eight annas a mile going and returning, if travelling by dak; three annas a mile if travelling by rail; or Rs. 5 a day if marching.

5. The officer of the quartermaster general's department at the head quarters of each division will have a general charge of the whole of the barrack buildings in the division, and the several barrack masters will be subordinate to him.

6. A first-class barrack master will be allowed for each station or circle of adjacent stations, where the barrack buildings are intended for more than two European regiments, and a second-class barrack master where the buildings are for from one to two regiments.

7. Buildings at outposts intended for one regiment or less will be under charge of the nearest barrack master.

8. A barrack sergeant and one peon may be allowed for each set of buildings for a regiment of cavalry, infantry, or detachment of artillery, and for each detached station when the buildings are for less than one regiment.

9. The nomination of barrack masters and of barrack sergeants and their appointment to stations will be made by the C. in C.

10. No office establishment will be allowed to barrack masters, but a room with furniture will be set apart in one of the buildings for an office, and they and their barrack sergeants will be required to prepare all reports, returns, &c. Furniture, printed forms, and stationery will be provided as may be considered necessary by the quartermaster generals of the army.

11. An office establishment will be allowed at the head quarters of each division, under the officer of the quartermaster-general's department, consisting of—

One writer at .. .. .	Rs. 30
One ditto .. .. .	20
One peon at .. .. .	5

And Rs. 20 per mensem will be allowed for office rent when a room cannot be provided in one of the buildings for the office. Office furniture and stationery will be provided as in the case of barrack masters.

12. Reports, returns, &c., from the several barrack masters and out-stations of each division will be made to the officer of the quartermaster-general's department at divisional head quarters.

13. The whole of the barrack and hospital buildings, barrack and hospital furniture will be in charge of the barrack department, by which the usual returns of furniture will be submitted to the military auditor-general in the ordnance department, under such regulations as he may prescribe.

15. Line sergeants will no longer be required as a separate body of non commissioned staff; all those therefore now borne on the rolls as such will be transferred to the barrack department at their respective stations, and be borne as part of the regulated establishment of barrack sergeants.

16. The present arrangements regarding repairs of buildings and supply of furniture remain in force.

17. The establishment attached to the barrack master's office in the garrison of Bombay will, for the present, be maintained as heretofore.

18. The commander in chief will be pleased to issue such subsidiary orders as may be necessary to give immediate effect to this order, and the inspector general of ordnance will be pleased to order the records of the department to be made over to the quartermaster general's department.

Services of Officers and Seamen at the Wreck of the "Natalie."

The Commander in Chief desires to regard with greatest satisfaction the high sense he entertained of the courageous energy displayed by those officers and seamen of H.M.'s I.N., in port, who were employed on the 23rd instant in rescuing the crew of the English ship Natalie, wrecked in Black Bay.

It is a most gratifying circumstance that by the noble exertions of the crews of the boats which put off to their assistance three out of six men were picked up from the boat of the ship which had capsized, and after they had been in the water upwards of three hours; and that before dark the gallant crew of the Alma's life-boat had succeeded in taking from the ship, and in landing safely, the commander and the rest of the crew.

LORD CANNING AND LORD STANLEY.

The following minute of Lord Canning, transmitting a report by Mr. Montgomery on the administration of Oude, is in reply to the despatch of Lord Stanley to Lord Canning, published some months ago:—

MINUTE BY THE RIGHT HON. THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF INDIA, DATED 22ND APRIL, 1859.

Oude.

1. A report by Mr. Montgomery, lately Chief Commissioner in Oude, of the administration of the province during the eventful period for which he held that office, is sent to-day to her Majesty's Government.

2. I have had before me for some time the despatch of the Secretary of State, dated the 9th of December, in which his lordship notices the despatches which, on the 17th of June and 4th of July, I had the honour to address to the Court of Directors, regarding the policy pursued under my orders in Oude, and especially regarding the proclamation issued on the recovery of Lucknow.

3. I do not seek to prolong the discussion of these topics, but there are some passages in the above-mentioned despatch of his lordship upon which I desire to write a few words. So far as those words are my own, they shall be very few indeed.

4. The passages to which I refer are those in which it is said that the policy indicated in the proclamation as regards the claims of the Talookdars and other proprietors in Oude was not in practice adopted by me; that the sentence of confiscation which the proclamation pronounced has not been put in force, and that it would appear to have been merely a menace; and, lastly, that the proclamation has been cancelled by myself.

5. In explanation on these points, and I trust that I may without disrespect say, in correction of the misapprehensions which may probably arise from the expressions to which I have referred, I beg leave to cite the following extract from Mr. Montgomery's report.

After reviewing the land tenures in Oude, the former position of the Talookdars, and the changes under this head introduced by our Government upon the annexation of the province, Mr. Montgomery writes thus:—

wisdom dictated some change in the revenue policy of the Government.

(343.) "The events of the rebellion had tended to show that the entire release from a condition of subordination to the Talookdar was not universally desired by village proprietors. In Oude, where the release was most recent, and where it might be presumed that the vivid recollection of the thralldom to a landlord would render the holders of villages all the more averse to subject themselves again to the evils they had just escaped, the Talookdars were allowed to re-assert their former rights and resume their ancient position without the slightest opposition. This voluntary return to the status quo ante showed clearly what the feeling of the people was, and on this ground, as well as because the Talookdars, if they chose, could materially assist in the re-establishment of authority and the restoration of tranquillity, it was determined by the Right Hon. the Governor-general that the settlement of the land revenue should be made with Talookdars.

(344.) "This settlement was to be formed so as to secure the village occupants from extortion, and the tenures were to be contingent on a certain specified service to be rendered, and the assessment was to be so moderate as to leave an ample margin for all expenses incidental to the performance of such service.

(345.) "The duties required of all Talookdars were, the active co-operation in the preservation of peace and in the detection of crime, and rendering aid to the Government when called upon by the district officers.

(346.) "It would be, perhaps, indecorous in the Chief Commissioner to do more here than to express his hearty concurrence in this measure, which emanated from the wisdom of the head of the Government.

(347.) "To carry it out, however, some authoritative declaration, either of the failure of the village system or of the imperative policy of a return to the former tenures, was required. Under no other circumstances could the Chief Commissioner, of his own accord, undertake to arrange a resettlement of the revenues on any other than the originally-announced principle of the Supreme Government.

(348.) "The authority thus sought was obtained in the issue of the proclamation of the Governor-general on the recapture of Lucknow, declaring that the titles of all landholders to estates in Oude, with a few exceptions, were confiscated to the State.

(349.) "This sentence having been recorded against all estates in Oude, there was no longer difficulty in returning to the tenure which prevailed at the time of annexation; and, as far as possible, the status of parties in February, 1856, prior to annexation, was restored.

(350.) "Exceptional cases have been made where the titles of Talookdars were but of recent origin, and their hostility had been marked and persistent. Such men were not completely reinstated in their former position.

(351.) "A few have altogether forfeited all title to lands and claim to consideration; but, happily, these are few."

6. This statement of the late Chief Commissioner shows that the proclamation has not, in any sense, been cancelled; that confiscation was not only adopted, but put in force; that the present tenure of land in Oude, and the conditions attached thereto, mainly rest upon it; and that the issuing of the sentence of confiscation has not been merely a menace, where there has been persistence in hostility.

7. I have preferred in this matter to use the testimony and words of Mr. Montgomery to any other, not only because the responsibility of carrying out the policy prescribed in Oude, and the great credit of having done this with eminent success, belong to him alone, but because he has no share whatever in the responsibility for the proclamation.

It was issued before his arrival in Oude, and if, instead of a facility, he had found it to be a hindrance to his work, most assuredly no undue regard for superior authority would have deterred him from saying so.

8. I have nothing further to add, but I have desired to say thus much, because, for reasons far higher than a consideration of the personal credit or consistency of the Governor-general, I hold it to be of the utmost importance that no misapprehension should prevail as to the meaning, practical effect, and validity of the proclamation.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

THURSDAY, Sept. 1, 1859.

THE RESOURCES OF INDIA AND ITS COLONIZATION.

WE have been favoured with the following interesting communication, to which we particularly desire to invite the attention of our readers.

MANY who are now looking to India as a field for the energies of the rising generation, must have read the articles, under the above title, in the Universal Review for May and June last, with great interest, seeing they contain much very valuable information not easily obtainable from other sources.

The author of those articles has shown clearly that the exports from India in the course of the next ten years will probably be doubled or even tripled, provided that in the interim colonists can go on with their operations without the fear of interruption from discontented natives.

There is, however, this great difficulty to be encountered, to which the reviewer has not particularly adverted, viz.: If ten years hence India be in a condition to export to England, say to the value of ten millions sterling more than she does at present, how are these extra exports to be paid for by England? As in late years we have exported to India and China precious metals to the extent of about sixteen millions per annum; and as, with our present limited supplies of them (as likely to be decreased as increased), it is not likely that the exports of silver can be much augmented, to pay in part even for the contemplated extra exports from India. The following circumstances, however, may be taken into consideration in reduction of the difficulty.

By the May article it is contemplated that, ten years hence, we shall receive all our supplies of tea from India. In that case we will then have no occasion to remit to China silver to pay for tea from thence, say . . . 3,000,000

In late years, owing to the failure of the silk crops in France and Italy, the imports of that article from China have sold in Europe for about eight millions per annum, cost in China say six millions. The late diseases in the vine and potato have now nearly vanished, and that in the silk-worm in France and Italy will soon probably do so likewise. In that case, it may be fairly expected that the present unusually large exports of silk from China to Europe will be reduced one-half. Say, therefore, there will then be a diminution in our exports of silver to pay for the cost of silk in China of . . . 3,000,000

With reference to what is said in the sequel in regard to cotton, it may be fairly inferred, that when the railways in India have been completed, the exports of it from India to China will be increased by say 200,000 bales per annum; and as the proceeds of that extra quantity may be employed in China in the payment of silk purchased for England, the demand for silver from England for such payment will, pro tanto, be rendered unnecessary, say . . . 1,000,000

If, too, colonization be carried on in India to the extent contemplated by the reviewer, the exports of merchandize from England will also be greatly increased. Corrugated iron roofs will be required for the safety of the contents of the curing and storing houses at the tea factories; steam saw-mills for the tea-chests; sheet lead for the lining of the chests, to the value of about £3,000 for every million pounds of tea that may be shipped; iron boats, made in England, will be found very useful in many parts of the country; saw-gins and many other instruments will be required in the cotton districts, and hundreds of other machines will be brought into use in all parts of the country. If, too, the new colonists amount even to a few thousands only, they will occasion a vast increase in the consumption of all articles at present sent to India for the use of the European population now there. In short, there is good reason to believe our commerce with India is still in its infancy.

COTTON.

In the June article it is maintained that India can supply all the cotton that England requires. When the railways now in contemplation are completed, it will not only be able to do so, but also to send hundreds of thousands of bales annually to China, where the consumption of the article is greater than that of all Europe. In the present state, however, of the English cotton-spinner's machinery, it is not possible for him to use Indian cotton in the production of his fine fabrics. By sending Europeans into the cotton districts in India to superintend the cleaning of the article, you may bring it home in a more merchantable state than is done at present; but though the late East India Company for many years went to great expense in attempts to improve the staple of Indian cotton under the management of experienced and intelligent planters from U.S. America, they entirely failed in that object. The reason of the failure, the writer of this thinks, is fully explained in the following paragraph:—

While he was in Calcutta, thirty four to forty-eight years ago, attempts were made to grow coffee on lands near Calcutta and Dacca, and also at Sook-sagur, all above the annual reach of the inundations. In all these places the coffee plants appeared to thrive perfectly well even up to the end of the rainy season of the third year, when they were covered with fruit advancing to maturity; but when the dry weather set in, and the fruit came to be fully ripe, the berries, on being opened, were found to be half empty. Such was the result near Calcutta and at Sook-sagur. The produce was, in fact, good for nothing, and these plantations were therefore forthwith abandoned. At Dacca the land was a little higher, and the produce of a somewhat better quality; still the plantation was in the end relinquished as unprofitable. In each of the above cases the failure in all probability arose from the excessive quantity of water, that lodged around the roots of the coffee plants during the heavy rains in July and August. In the opinion of the writer of this, the reason why Indian cotton is not of so good a staple as that from some other countries also is, the excessive moisture that is lodged about the roots of the plants while the pods are approaching maturity.

Very fine long staple cotton can only be produced where the influence of a sea-breeze is felt, as on the island of Bourbon, along some parts of the coast of U.S. of North America, &c. It is on this account, too, that Tinnevely cotton is of a superior quality to that grown in other parts of India.

Some of the witnesses, who were lately examined before a Committee of the House of Commons on Indian affairs, stated that as good cotton has been produced in India as is to be got anywhere. Below is a Manchester broker's report on this matter. It requires no comment.

Statement of the relative values of different sorts of cotton in the English markets, from a Manchester cotton-broker, dated 18th August, 1859:—

* The quantity of tea now shipped annually from China is about 100,000,000 lbs., say half to England and the rest to other places. Suppose the whole of this to be hereafter shipped from India, the lead required there annually for tea-chests would cost in England about £300,000.

Sea-island . . .	per lb. 12d. to 22d. according to quality.
Brazil . . .	8d. to 10d. "
Egyptian . . .	8d. to 10d. "
Bombay . . .	5d. to 5½d. "
Madras and Calcutta . . .	5½d. to 6½d. "

The broker, in the above mem., has omitted to give the values of the other descriptions of cotton from U.S. America, besides Sea-island. They may, however, the writer believes, be taken at 7d. to 11d. per lb., according to quality. The consumption of these in England is the greatest.

FLAX AND HEMP.

There can be no doubt, from what is said in the June article, that, when the railways are completed, we shall be able to supply all Europe with hemp, or other fibres, that will answer all the purposes for which it is at present used. The reviewer does not enter fully into the subject of flax, though it is an article of first-rate consequence to our manufacturers; for, up to the end of last century, linen garments were as common in England and all over the Continent, as cotton ones are at present; and it can scarcely be doubted, that if India can produce in large quantities flax equal to the Irish and Belgian, at £45 per ton, the consumption of it will be again enormous. The spinners of flax in Belfast and other places where the article is manufactured, have lately made efforts to get supplies from India; and will probably succeed. According to Dr. Royle's very interesting work "On the Fibrous Plants of India," published in 1855, it does not appear that up to that time any really strong fibred flax had been produced in India. Dr. Royle, however, thinks it probable that the fibre of the plant has hitherto been injured by its too rapid growth on the plains, and that it will succeed much better if cultivated in the hills.

TEA.

As far as India and its future colonists are concerned, this is likely to be by far the most important commercial product of the country; but, as the reviewer's details are ample and interesting, there is no occasion here for many remarks.

On comparing, however, some of the statements in the May number with the printed Annual Reports of the Directors of the Assam Company, put into the hands of the writer of this, for the occasion, by a friend, he has come to the conclusion, he says so with some hesitation, that the profits by tea-planting will not, in the end, be found to be nearly so great as the article in question leads one to expect. He says with hesitation as he has had no personal experience in the culture and manufacture of tea. Some of his reasons for that opinion are, in Dr. Jameson's estimate (page 349 of the May number), the expenses of the transit of his tea to Calcutta is included: but though tea is never dispatched, the writer believes, from a factory to a shipping-port without being cased in lead, yet the cost of sheet-lead is not included in Dr. Jameson's estimate. For the quantity of his produce, maunds 6,000 at 82 lbs. = 492,000 lbs., the lead required, would usually cost in England about £1,200, to which should, of course, be added the cost of transit to Calcutta and the factory.

There is no interest taken into account in his estimate. The amount expended, in equal sums, in six years, is about Rs. 130,000. Say interest on the whole amount for three years at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum—Rs. 23,400.

The Assam Company formerly occasionally met with losses by fire, and have since, in consequence, gone to an expense, so far as can be gathered from their annual reports, of about £700 or £900 for corrugated iron roofs for their curing houses and tea stores. Whether or not this heavy expense can, with tolerable safety, be avoided by other tea planters, the writer of this does not pretend to say.

In Dr. Jameson's estimate, there is no allowance for a superintendent (it is probably expected that the proprietor will superintend), and only four overseers, at the joint cost of Rs. 320 per month. At the Assam Company's factories there are the following Europeans, viz., a general manager; a medical man; an engineer to superintend the saw-mill, &c.; a book-keeper and six overseers in various divisions of the works, and three other assistants now on their way out from England. The cost of all these together must be four times the amount that Dr. Jameson pays for this division of his work. The writer of this believes that in Assam, European overseers are to be preferred. How the case may be at Dr. Jameson's establishment he does not pretend to say.

On reading Dr. Jameson's estimate before referred to, it appears from what is there said, that the whole of his 6,000 acres are represented to be brought into cultivation in the course of the six years included in it with the assistance of only 1,000 malays, or coolies. By the Assam Company's Annual Report of May, 1859, they had only in cultivation in 1857-8 Poorahs 2,870 (page 26), or cleared (page 4) Poorahs 3,342 = about English acres, 4200; and to work this smaller quantity of cultivation, they had (page 28) in April, 1858, coolies 3,775, and in September, 3256—or say average for 1858, 3,500. The writer, therefore, considers it very improbable, that Dr. Jameson's whole 6,000 acres can have been brought into cultivation during the period included in his estimate, seeing that he only employed 1,000 coolies.

On the other hand, Dr. Jameson incurs much expense for tea-chests, which the Assam Company avoid, as they have a steam saw-mill capable of sawing deal equal to 120 chests per day; but in Dr. Jameson's locality it may be impossible to find fuel for an engine. In Upper Assam they have coal. In late years the Assam Company's tea has sold in London, on an average, at 2s. 2d. per lb. = 1s. 10d. at the factories. Dr. Jameson's is only estimated to bring 1s. 6d. What it will bring will, of course, depend on the quality.

The following remarks do not refer to the cultivation of tea in India generally; but as there are already very many settlers growing it in Assam, and as there is room there for a vast number more, the writer of this adverts to what is said by the reviewer in regard to the asserted difficulty in procuring coolies in that quarter.

At pages 355-6 of the May number, the reviewer states his conviction that the colonists in Assam can readily obtain all the labour they require, provided the coolies be properly paid and well treated. In reply to this, it may be admitted that the Cacharee coolies are not, perhaps, unusually difficult to manage; but as in late years the demand for their labour has so much increased it is no wonder they are sometimes not to be had. As to Bengal coolies they do not like Assam, and no one, the writer believes, has been able to induce them to remain there. The following extracts from the Assam Company's Reports, and the testimony of Colonel Vetch, will go far to confirm what has just been said.

Extracts from the Reports:—

May, 1853.—Page 4. Our great difficulty is the paucity of labour.

May, 1854. Page 26. For several years past the number of coolies obtained has fallen far short of its (the Company's) requirements.

May, 1855, pages 5 and 6.—It is not necessary to state what is said in detail in this report; but in 1854 the extension of cultivation was nearly brought to a stop by the want of coolies.

May, 1857.—Pages 3 and 4. Up to 1856 nearly all the coolies that had been imported by the Assam Company had come from Durrang and the neighbouring districts. In that year they imported from Burdwan, or districts further to the westward, via Calcutta, several discharges of coolies; but nearly all of them absconded shortly after their arrival at the factories. They did not complain of the treatment they had received from the Company's servants, or any one else.

May, 1859, page 24.—“The Calcutta Secretary, on his return from an inspection of the factories, writes: ‘Every year the Company sustains a heavy loss, owing to the inadequate supply of labour.’ He adds, however, that the coolies, who have arrived from Durrang in late years, have generally behaved well; and that some of them have, in the last year, for the first time, brought their families with them, thereby showing a disposition to settle permanently at the factories.”

As more has already been said in respect to coolies for Assam than may be agreeable to your readers, only the evidence of Colonel Vetch before the committee referred to will be quoted. He has been thirty years in Assam and its vicinity, latterly as Political Agent in Upper Assam. In reply to queries No. 3,090 to 3,092, he says, in substance:—“The Assam Company and other colonists have, at various times, sent to Bengal for coolies; but the result has been almost a failure. The coolies generally dislike the country and leave it as soon as they can.”

The first consideration with a colonist now proceeding to India should be,—is the country likely to continue to be held by us; and is it likely to be kept in a tranquil state? For as long as budmashes abound, great risk must attend all mercantile operations. The difficulties the Secretary for India has to contend with are very great. No country can be well governed, the revenue of which does not cover its current expenses. At present, the revenues of India are estimated at 38,000,000 sterling, and its expenditure at 46,000,000; but before the mutiny the military expenses only amounted to 12,000,000, whereas in late years they have been 21,000,000 per annum. It is, however, expected they will be greatly reduced in the next eighteen months; in short, that the country will then be able to pay its way without assistance from this country. The writer of this believes that when the railways now in progress shall have been completed, if they be protected from budmashes, they will enable the Government to concentrate troops at any particular place in a twentieth part of the time now required to effect a similar object. His impression, therefore, is, that a smaller number of European troops will then be necessary, say 65,000. At present we have 110,000 in the country, though before the mutiny 45,000 was about the usual number. The greatest difficulty in regard to revenue and our holding the country is—£8,000,000 of revenue is derived from opium, nine-tenths of which are paid for by China. The Chinese can produce it in their own country at a fifth or sixth of the sum they pay to India for it; and there is reason, therefore, to fear that they will soon begin to grow it, and thus save themselves from a ruinous expense. Should that take place, the English Government will have the utmost difficulty in their attempts to make India able to pay her current expenses.

Since the foregoing was written, the writer of this has seen an anonymous London brochure, recommending the formation of companies for the cultivation of tea in the Himalayas. By it the East India Company's gardens, under Dr. Jameson, only contain about 1,400 acres, of which 700 are in the Kangra valley, 400 in the Deyrah (or Dahrah) Dhoon district, 200 in Gurwall, and the rest in very small patches, at great distances from one another. By that brochure there is now no want of labour.

With regard to the Dahrah Dhoon, however, it may be remarked, that so far as the writer has been able to ascertain, it is only very thinly peopled. Suppose it then to contain 100,000 inhabitants, not more than 17,000 of these are likely to be able-bodied men, willing to work as labourers. Out of the latter number, a half cannot probably be withdrawn from their present occupations in raising food for the district, so that only about 8,500 are likely to be available for the cultivation of tea. As then it is assumed in your May number that 10,000,000 lbs. tea will be produced annually in Dahrah, it is manifest, that if that quantity be obtained, it must be so chiefly by the means of labour from the plains.

In Thornton's Gazetteer of 1857, head “Dehra Doon,” it is stated that the Government made large grants of land there in 1837 to colonists; but that not one native or European afterwards employed on these grants escaped the fever that was prevalent in the first succeeding unhealthy season; and it is believed in consequence that all, or nearly all, these grants have, since then, been abandoned. The small patch occupied by the Government's tea garden may, perhaps, be in a more healthy situation. All that the writer desires to be inferred from the above is, that in selecting a tea garden great care should be taken that the situation be free from malaria at all seasons of the year.

If 100,000,000 lbs. of tea be produced in India, 300,000 coolies at least will be required; and that number, or the half of it, will not probably be got without raising greatly their present rate of wages.

The writer remarks, in conclusion, he is afraid your readers will consider him a grumbler. His only object has been to give correct information. Those going to India should not expect an El Dorado there, but rather difficulties and disappointments. On the whole, however, he believes that in the next thirty years many more fortunes will be made by commerce in India than hitherto, i.e., provided the revenues of the country can be made to pay its expenses. In order to secure that grand object, we should now have at the helm in the East some one known to all the natives and Europeans as a man of excellent business habits, intelligence, and energy. Who that “some one” is, all who know anything of India are aware, and the sooner he is appointed the better, for there has been much ruinous mismanagement lately.

MISCELLANEOUS.

STATUE OF THE LATE GENERAL SIR JOHN NEILL.—A duplicate copy of the statue of this gallant and lamented officer has been most successfully cast at the statue foundry of Messrs. Robinson and Cottam, Pimlico. The one which has been already executed is for erection in the town of Ayr, Sir John Neill's native place; that cast on Friday is destined for Madras. Both are of heroic size, and represent General Neill in the dress which he wore when he received his mortal wound at the gate of Lucknow, when he, with Havelock, made his second and successful effort to relieve the heroic little garrison of that city. The statue is said to possess all that strong individuality of resemblance, with the boldness of attitude and outline which are so characteristic of Mr. Noble's works. The pose is at once dignified and commanding, and without any of that straining after effect which so often mars the beauty of these public memorials. The whole figure impresses the spectator as being a natural and dignified likeness of one of our most gallant soldiers. One arm rests easily upon the handle of the sword, while the other, extended in the act of directing the execution of some order, harmonizes well with the reserved though firm and most energetic expression of the features. At the foot of the figure, in the background, is a broken cannon, which the military cloak of the general just touches in easy folds. More towards the front, on the ground, is one of the light pith helmets in general wear among the officers in India. These slight accessories aid the general effect, without at all distracting the attention from the figure itself. Both the statue at Madras and that at Ayr will be placed on pedestals of granite, with a small bas-relief in front, representing in detail the rapid advance of the succouring army upon the principal gate of Lucknow, a few minutes before General Neill was shot dead. Beneath this plaque the following inscription is intended to be placed:—“James George Smith Neill, c.b., aide-de-camp to the Queen, Lieutenant colonel in the Madras army, Brigadier-general in India, a brave, resolute, and self-reliant soldier, universally acknowledged as the first who stemmed the torrent of rebellion in Bengal. He fell gloriously at the relief of Lucknow, 25th September, 1857, aged 47.” At the back of the pedestal will be cut, “Erected by public subscription, 1859.” The cast of the Madras figure was made yesterday with the same rapidity, and, as far as could then be judged, with the same success which has always distinguished the works at this foundry. Both figures are well calculated to maintain the reputation which Mr. Noble has already achieved.

BOOKS.

Universal Review. No. VII. W. H. Allen and Co.

The September number of this excellent periodical contains a brief review of Neumann's history of the British Empire in the East. Though strongly prejudiced against our nation, the stolid German is compelled to acknowledge the invincible perseverance, the love of truth, and the inflexible honesty which so honourably mark the true English character. While protesting against the encroaching and aggressive spirit of the race, he is forced to admit that it is to the advantage of general civilisation and the best interests of mankind. His history, indeed, is somewhat involved and surcharged with unnecessary minuteness of detail, but it is undeniably truthful and conscientious. He has also erred against art in keeping the story of each race or principality distinct from that of its neighbour, the result being frequent repetitions and an extreme difficulty in taking a general and comprehensive view of contemporaneous events. The work, however, is interesting as indicative of the opinions of the well-informed classes in Germany with regard to our position in the East and our administration of India. Of the Universal Review itself we need only say that it fully maintains its reputation for clever and thoughtful writing, and the present number contains the first part of a tale from the pen of the author of "The House of Raby."

THE DEANE-HARDING REVOLVER.—We must all remember the excitement created in military circles by the exhibition of Colonel Colt's revolver in 1851. Officers, especially, rejoiced at the prospect of being not only able to defend themselves, but also to inflict certain loss upon the enemy at close quarters. After a time, however, it was discovered that the pistol was apt to hang fire at the most critical moment, and that there was also much difficulty in putting the parts together again when taken to pieces for the purpose of cleaning. Messrs. Deane and Adams thereupon introduced several improvements, which still left much to be desired. At last, the object appears to be attained of producing a multiple fire by means of an instrument as simple as an ordinary duelling-pistol. The Deane-Harding Revolver combines rapidity of fire and certainty of aim with the most perfect simplicity of weapon. To take it to pieces, clean, and set it up again, is the easiest thing in the world, the only difficulty being to make a mistake. We therefore give it a decided preference to all other denominations of revolvers, and strongly recommend it to the notice of our military readers, and, indeed, of all who travel beyond the protection of the familiar "Bobby."

ADVERTISEMENTS.

JAMS, JELLIES, and MARMALADE,
PRESERVED IN TINS.

By BARNES, MORGAN, and Co.

(the Originators of this method of preserving), Upper Thames-street, London, E.C. This mode of Preserving is now acknowledged to be far superior to any yet invented. The contents will keep good for any number of years without the Tin imparting any metallic taste to the Preserve, and never candy or ferment. To Regimental Messes they are peculiarly adapted, being more portable than jars, and not liable to breakage. B. M. and Co. would also recommend their Pickles, Sauces, Tart Fruits, &c., and their large stock of York and Cumberland Hams, Cheese, and Bacon.

THE MAGNESIAN EFFERVESCENT is the most agreeable and effective remedy in all cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Acidity, Heartburn, Indigestion, and Biliary Affection, Nausea, Fever, Thirst, and Sea-sickness. It is highly recommended by the profession, and will be found especially valuable to those going to India or travelling in warm climates; as a mild and efficacious saline aperient it stands unequalled, and will be found peculiarly adapted for delicate females and children. To be obtained through all respectable chemists, and wholesale from Messrs. BARCLAY, Farringdon-street (put up in stoppered bottles at 4s. 6d. for India), and smaller size at 1s. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. and 2s. 9d.

THE MELTON RIDING BELT.—Important to those who are suffering from Weakness in the Back and General Debility. The following is printed by permission :—

"Sir,—You ask for my opinion of your Melton Riding Belt; I give it. Having resided for a long time in India, my constitution is very much debilitated, and for a long time I was suffering from a weakness in the back and the lower part of the body, which no internal remedy could reach, and the slightest exertion completely overpowered me. I was ordered by my medical man to wear a support, and seeing your advertisement I obtained one of your Melton Riding Belts, which I have worn for the last five months. It gives me great support. I can take riding or other exercise without feeling that extreme lassitude and weariness afterwards. My general health is much improved. You have my best thanks. You will secure my best support.—Yours truly,

"Torquay, July 30, 1859. "J. PRATT MATTESON.
"To Wm. Elstap, 12, Avery-row, Bond-street."

SIXTY YEARS OF SUCCESS HAVE PROVED BEYOND QUESTION THAT

ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL possesses extraordinary properties for promoting the growth and improving and beautifying the human Hair. It prevents Hair from falling off or turning grey, strengthens weak Hair, cleanses it from Scurf and Dandruff, and makes it beautifully soft, pliable and glossy. Its operation in cases of baldness is peculiarly active; and in the growth of Whiskers, the Beard, and Mustache, it is unfulfilling in its stimulative operation. For CHILDREN it is especially recommended as forming the basis of A BEAUTIFUL HEAD OF HAIR, while its introduction into the Nursery of Royalty, and the numerous Testimonials constantly received of its efficacy, afford the best and surest proofs of its merits.—Price 3s. 6d. and 7s.; Family Bottles (equal to four small), 10s. 6d.; and double that size, 21s.

CAUTION.—On the Wrapper of each Bottle are the words, "ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL," &c., in white letters, and their Signature, "A. ROWLAND AND SONS," in Red Ink. Sold at 20, Hatton-garden, London, and by Chemists and Perfumers.

TEETH.

No. 9, LOWER GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.—Newly-invented and Patented application of chemically prepared WHITE and GUM-COLOURED INDIA-RUBBER in the construction of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, GUMS, and PALATES.

Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon-Dentist, No. 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee.

A new, original, and invaluable invention, consisting in the adaptation, with the most absolute perfection and success, of chemically prepared White and Gum-coloured India-rubber, as a lining to the ordinary gold or bone frame. The extraordinary results of this application may be briefly noted in a few of their most prominent features.

All sharp edges are avoided; no springs, wires, or fastenings, are required; a greatly increased freedom of suction is supplied; a natural elasticity, hitherto wholly unattainable; and a fit, perfected with the most unerring accuracy, is secured; while, from the softness and flexibility of the agents employed, the greatest support is given to the adjoining teeth when loose, or rendered tender by the absorption of the gums.

The acids of the mouth exert no agency on the chemically prepared India-rubber, and, as it is a non-conductor, fluids of any temperature may with thorough comfort be imbibed and retained in the mouth, all unpleasantness of smell and taste being, at the same time, wholly provided against by the peculiar nature of its preparation.

To be obtained only at 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, London; 14, Gay-street, Bath; and 10, Eldon-square, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.—Under the Provisions of an Act of Parliament, this Company now offers to future Insurers Eighty per cent. of the Profits with Quinquennial Division, or a Low Rate of Premium without Participation of Profits. The next Division of Profits will be declared in June 1860, when all Participating Policies which shall have subsisted at least a year at Christmas, 1859, will be allowed to share in the Profits.

At the Five Divisions of Profits made by this Company, the total Reversionary Bonuses added to the Policies have exceeded £91,000.

At the last valuation, at Christmas, 1854, the Assurances in force amounted to upwards of £4,240,000, the Income from the Life Branch in 1854 was more than £200,000, and the Life Assurance Fund (independent of the Guarantee Capital) exceeded £1,700,000.

FOREIGN RISKS.—The Extra Premiums required for the East and West Indies, the British Colonies and the northern parts of the United States of America, have been materially reduced.

INVALID LIVES.—Persons who are not in such sound health as would enable them to insure their Lives at the Tabular Premiums, may have their Lives insured at Extra Premiums.

LOANS granted on Life Policies to the extent of their values, provided such Policies shall have been effected a sufficient time to have attained in each case a value not under £50.

ASSIGNMENTS OF POLICIES.—Written Notices of, received and registered.

MEDICAL FEES paid by the Company, and no charge will be made for Policy Stamps.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.—Insurances are effected upon every description of property at Moderate Rates.

Losses caused by Explosion of Gas are admitted by this Company.

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY,
29, Lombard-street, London, and Royal Insurance Buildings, Liverpool.

CHAIRMAN IN LIVERPOOL.—CHARLES TURNER, Esq.
CHAIRMAN OF LONDON BOARD.—SAMUEL BAKER, Esq.

The Royal Insurance Company is one of the largest Fire Offices in the Kingdom.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact—that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing, and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this Kingdom.

The Premiums for the year 1855 being... £130,060
While the Premiums for the year 1858 are... 196,148
Showing an actual increase of... 66,088
or upwards of 50 per cent. in three years.

The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1858) again show the Royal as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London Insurance Offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the moiety of its advance.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

The amount of new life premiums received this year is by far the largest received in any similar period since the commencement of the business, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful offices in the Kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 8,2, the sum assured £387,752. 6s. 8d., and the premium £12,354 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension of business during the last ten years. Thus:—

No. of Policies.	Sum Assured.	New Premiums.
1848 ... 98	£48,761 17 0	£1,350 9 1
1850 ... 190	95,650 9 11	2,627 4 7
1852 ... 422	181,504 10 6	5,628 5 10
1854 ... 408	161,848 13 4	4,694 16 0
1856 ... 703	297,500 16 8	8,850 3 11
1858 ... 832	587,752 6 8	12,354 3 4

The remarkable increase in the business of the last four years is mainly consequent upon the large bonus declared in 1855, which amounted to no less than 20 per cent. per annum on the sums assured, and averaged 80 per cent. upon the premiums paid.

PERCY M. DOVE, Manager and Actuary.
JOHN B. JOHNSTON, Secretary to the London Board.

THE FOLLOWING IS AN EXTRACT

from the Second Edition (page 188) of the Translation of the Pharmacopœia of the Royal College of Physicians of London, by Dr. G. F. Collier, published by Longman and Co.:—

"It is no small defect in this compilation (speaking of the Pharmacopœia) that we have no purgative mass but what contains aloes; yet we know that hæmorrhoidal persons cannot bear aloes, except it be in the form of COCKLE'S PILLS, which chiefly consist of aloes, scammony, a d. colocynth, which, I think, are formed in a sort of compound extract, the acidity of which is obviated, I suspect, by an alkaline process, and by a fourth ingredient (unknown to me) of an aromatic tonic nature. I think no better and no worse of it for its being a potent medicine. I look at it as an article of commerce and domestic convenience, and do not hesitate to say it is the best made pill in the kingdom; a muscular purge, a mucous purge, and a hydragogue purge combined, and their effects properly controlled by a dirigent and co-regent. That it does not commonly produce hæmorrhoids, like most aloetic pills, I attribute to its being thoroughly soluble, so that no undissolved particles adhere to the mucous membrane."

NEWBERRY'S COD LIVER OIL CAKES.

"We have examined a specimen of gingerbread made by Messrs. Newberry—each cake containing a teaspoonful of Cod Liver Oil. The gingerbread is extremely light and pleasant, the flavour of the oil being completely covered. This seems likely to prove a very useful mode of administering Cod Liver Oil to children, and to others who are nauseated by the offensive odour and flavour of the Oil as generally taken."—Medical Times, 12th Feb., 1859. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT —FOUNDATION OF HEALTH.—The public need scarcely be informed upon what a narrow basis sound health rests; it must be obvious that pure blood and perfect digestion will preserve that greatest blessing; and to ensure its continuance the occasional removal of all impurities alone is required. Before good blood and easy digestion all disorders must retreat; every invalid would be convinced how easily this desirable end is attained by making trial of Holloway's remedies when the digestion becomes disordered, the intellect clouded, or the spirits depressed. By occasionally resorting to these remedies the utmost possible enjoyment will be extracted from life; health, thus secured, will bring happiness, and both will combine to create competent wealth.

LORD CLYDES' WARNING.

Head Quarters, Simla, July 9th, 1859.

The Commander in Chief deems it right to inform such men of her Majesty's Indian regiments as may take their discharge under G. G. O. No. 883, of the 20th ult., that he not only cannot hold out any hope to them that in case of their re-enlistment their former service will be counted in their favour, but that he is confident that any such claim to reckon former service on re-enlistment, made by the men alluded to, will certainly be denied by her Majesty's Government.

The Commander in Chief accordingly, with the sanction of his Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General in Council, desires that the last portion of the declaration * signed by the soldiers on discharge, beginning immediately after the words "pensionary benefit," shall be omitted in the case of men taking their discharges under the G. G. O. above quoted.

Having uttered this warning, the Commander in Chief hopes that the old soldiers of her Majesty's Indian army will be wise enough not to throw away, without due reflection, and in a moment of excitement, the advantage of former services. They are precisely in the same position as regards pay, pension, clothing, and other regulations as the men in her Majesty's regiments of the line.

Let them think well on the mischief they may incur by a false step now taken in consequence of the option of discharge which has lately been given them under the orders of the Government.

THE GREAT TRIGONOMETRICAL SURVEY.

The Great Trigonometrical Survey was established about fifty years ago; but there are very few who are at all acquainted with its details, which have remained official knowledge alone for nearly half a century. Its science and its maps have both come out piecemeal, and not the whole of either as yet. If any one who has complete access to the records of Captain Thüillier's office in Calcutta, or that of Colonel Waugh in Dehra Doon, would give a general account of the whole proceedings, well stocked with references, and abounding in short but clear statements with reference to time, place, and persons, he would confer an obligation even on the class of men who seek general information, and have no pretensions to scientific attainments.

A few years ago Colonel Everest published a quarto volume, full of figures, to describe the measurement of an arc of meridian. A great many of our readers have about as much notion of what all this is for as the natives, twenty years ago, had of the railroad. In England, the policeman often drags the wheel along the streets to test a disputed cab-fare, and he will swear to the absolute accuracy of his result; and why five or six engineer officers, with as many assistants, and several natives, and a large apparatus of tents, bars, microscopes, and theodolites should be required to measure a base line of seven or eight miles, and call it a good progress when they make three or four hundred feet a-day, would puzzle many as much as to conceive what it could be all for when done. Upon the simple but accurate measurement of the base line, however, depends a whole network of triangles, often extending over hundreds of miles. And an accurate measurement can only be obtained by the most refined calculations in astronomy.

We fancy it will be good many years yet before the survey will be completed. As the limits of our empire have been increasing so has the work. The Ordnance Survey of England and Ireland was commenced long before Colonel Lambton measured his first base in the Deccan—and that survey is yet going on. Mark the difference between the area of India and that of Great Britain and Ireland, and it will be seen what an extensive field yet remains to be embraced by the operations of the survey (Colonel Waugh, the present Surveyor-general of India, writing on this important point, says:—

"With regard to the duration of the survey, it has been already remarked by the late Colonel Blacker, that the question depends on the strength of the establishment employed; which statement is true within certain limits defined by the power of supervision and training. The chief point is the rate per square mile, which I have shown to be on an average 15s. 4d. The survey has been about forty-eight years in operation, chiefly on a small scale. Now, as the area of India exceeds Great Britain and Ireland some twelve times, we have, comparatively speaking, been only four years at work. Since the commencement, the object in view has perpetually extended. Successive wars have added continual accessions of territory to be surveyed. The late wars alone have given new kingdoms, with no less additional surface than 169,827 square miles, as will be apparent from the following statement:—

Scinde .. .. .	60,240 square miles.
Julander, Doab, and Kohistan	16,400 "
Protected Sikh and Hill States	15,187 "
The Punjab Proper .. ..	78,000 "
Total .. .. .	169,827 "

"The limits of our Empire, however, appear to have been at length reached. The total area of British India, as it now stands, including Scinde, Punjab, Julander, Doab, and Tenasserim, has been carefully estimated at 800,758 square miles, and the native states at 508,442 square miles, making a grand total of 1,309,200 square miles, as the area of survey under my charge. A complete delineation of this vast superficial extent, amounting to one and one-third million of square miles, confined within an external boundary of 11,260 miles in length, including every variety of configuration and climate, is an undertaking of unprecedented magnitude, demanding considerable time to accomplish with any pretensions to mathematical accuracy. The exertions hitherto made have been unremitting, and it is but justice to say that the progress has been, generally speaking, as honourable to the officers employed, as the results have been useful to the country."

We are not aware of the present strength of the survey, but we believe there is a large party in Cashmere, under the direction of Lieutenant Montgomery, whose work is performed precisely on the system which was adopted six years ago in the north-west Himalaya series. There are also one or two parties employed in extending the great longitudinal series from Calcutta to Kurrachee in Scinde. And since the measurement of a base line at Attock, the survey of the Punjab has been going on. The triangulation of the Gogra was commenced five or six years ago, and it was intended to extend it to Nepal; but we fancy this survey has been suspended since the mutiny, and of course in the present disturbed state of the country it cannot be carried on. Captain Rivers has charge of the party employed in the Bombay presidency, but we believe he is not connected with it now.

The duties of an Indian surveyor must necessarily be of a most laborious kind. In the Himalayas and mountain districts, his stations must be planted on the highest peaks; and it is a well known fact that no class of travellers—not even the natives of the country—have reached any elevations as high as some of the points on which the Trigonometrical surveyors have fixed their stations. Captain Gerard ascended the Manuring Pass about 19,000 feet above the sea, and some of the assistants attached to the Himalaya series went up still higher, probably 20,000 or 21,000 feet above the sea. Talk of the perils attending the ascent of Mont Blanc, of hair-breath escapes such as Albert Smith has so well described! You must let the perils and dangers of Alpine travelling grow into awful dimensions to picture to yourself the difficulties to be encountered in ascending a mountain 20,000 feet above the sea. Regarding the duties of the Trigonometrical surveyors Colonel Waugh writes:

"With regard to the probable rate of progress, much depends on the efficiency of the officers, and on the accidents of the climate to which the parties are so much exposed. In a hilly country, the average advance made per season by each party is now about 120 miles in length by 30 in breadth, or say, 3,600 square miles. In a flat country, the average is 80 miles in length by 12 in breadth, or about 1,000 square miles. The average for both kinds of ground may be taken at the mean or 2,300 square miles, which, multiplied by seven, gives 16,100 square miles per annum of probable progress. The cost is not likely to exceed the general average hitherto attained of 10s. or 12s. per square mile of hilly country, and from 20s. to 30s. in flat land, or to a general average of 15s. to 16s. over all. This rate might be expected to diminish, if the department were made more efficient in officers. It has been shown in the foregoing narrative that few succeed in these arduous undertakings. A rigorous training is indispensable at the outset, without which success cannot be certain, nor any adherence expected to system. Widely dispersed as the surveys are, and remote from constant supervision, little by little innovations would creep in, and the character of the work become compromised. To prevent evils so calculated to retard the completion of the survey of India, due provision should be made for contingent vacancies, instead of waiting till they occur. A newly-appointed officer is not effective for two years, and, when more than one vacancy occurs at a time, the task of training is inconvenient. The department is now so under-officered, that a few casualties occurring together would leave it un-officered—an anticipation which would give me more anxiety than it does, were it not for the great ability of a few of the subordinates, who are themselves competent practically to conduct series. It is evident that at the present stage of the business, when so large an area remains for survey, effective establishments are most important. In fact, an augmentation of two or three officers now would be more useful than filling up vacancies towards the close of the work. Such an augmentation would most likely provide for every contingency, without any further addition hereafter, as vacancies occur."

Colonel Waugh bears a high testimony to the services of the unconvicted assistants. Of all the servants of Government these men are the worst paid, and yet their work, mentally and physically, is one of the most difficult that can be conceived. Baboo Rhadanath, who is now in charge of the observatory in Calcutta, is considered a first-rate mathematician; but the oldest and most experienced surveyor is Mr. John Peyton, who held for the last ten or fifteen years the appointment of Chief Civil Assistant, and has only recently retired from the service.—Bombay Gazette.

THE MEDICAL SERVICE.

The retiring allowances in her Majesty's Indian medical service, after twenty-five years' service, are as follows:—After 25 years' service, £300; after 29 years' service, £365; after 32 years' service, £500; after 35 years' service, £700.

While in cases of voluntary retirement the scale of retiring allowances for her Majesty's medical service are:—

	After 30 years' Service.	After 25 years' Service.
Inspector General .. ..	574 14	574 14
Deputy Inspector General ..	434 0	383 5
Surgeon Major .. .. .	....	319 4

A glance at these regulations will show that in every instance the Indian medical officer labours under a considerable disadvantage. He is only entitled after an arduous and continuous service in the tropics—although in her Majesty's service tropical service gives advantages in retirement—to a considerably lower rate of pension than his more fortunate brother-officer of the English army, who may have spent many years of his service in England, or, at any rate, in a European climate. Compare the retiring allowances after twenty-five years, the period when an English army medical officer is entitled to retire. If a surgeon-major, he gets £319. 4s. per annum; if a deputy inspector-general (which grade he usually attains under that period), he gets £383. 5s. per annum; and if an inspector-general, he gets £574. 14s. The Indian medical officer, whatever his rank, after the same period of service gets only £300 per annum, which is less than the lowest rate in the other case. A similar disposition obtains throughout. It is also to be remembered that the good service pension is open to her Majesty's medical service. These medical officers have within the past two months got good service pensions of £100 a-year.

Next, as to retiring allowances for half pay on reduction of establishment or incapacity from ill health or wounds brought on in the discharge of official duties. For her Majesty's army these are as follows:—

	Surgeon Major	Surgeon.	A-sist. Surgeon.
After 25 yrs. service on full pay .. ..	887 18	....	....
" 20 " " "	301 0	....	....
" 10 " " "	....	200 0	182 3
" 5 " " "	....	....	146 0
Under 5 " " "	....	....	109 9

The Indian officer, if incapacitated by wounds or ill health brought on by the discharge of his duties, and thus compelled to leave the service, receives from a fund bequeathed by Lord Clive, for the benefit of officers unable to endure a tropical climate, the sum of £45. 12s. 6d. per annum, if compelled to retire under three years' residence in India, and the half pay of his rank, calculated, if an assistant-surgeon, at £73. 1s. per annum, and if a full surgeon, at £127. 10s. 9d. per annum, if he retires after more than three but less than seventeen years' residence. If compelled to resign from ill health or wounds the English army surgeon is liberally provided for, although such cases are much more closely scrutinised than in the Indian army; but his brother officer in the Indian army, if he retires under three years' service, gets nothing, except from a private fund, which furnishes him with a small allowance, and if he retires after more than three years' service, is allowed by the Government only a sum which is utterly inadequate to maintain him as a gentleman. In considering the unfairness of this state of things, it is to be borne in mind that a medical officer of her Majesty's regular army, if unable to endure a tropical climate, may still continue to serve at home or in one of the colonies; but if a tropical climate disagrees with an Indian medical officer, he has no option, but after much waste of time and money in furlough in search of health, must resign on the poor pittance awarded him.

It may be remarked that the Indian medical officer has never yet had to suffer from reduction of establishment, and that retiring on half pay for ill health is not very common in her Majesty's army, owing to the necessity of appearing every two years before a committee which may remand the officer to active service. The practice in the case of her Majesty's medical officers is nearly as follows. When invalided home, they have on their arrival to appear before a board at headquarters, and perhaps get leave for two months, at the end of which they have to return to duty, generally at Chatham. If they are very ill, they may perhaps get six months' leave, and after that are placed on half pay. They are occasionally examined with a view to service, and if unfit, and of short service, they are often struck off the half pay list. The new warrant has greatly increased the amount of half pay, which formerly was almost nothing. We have already said that we believe the majority of our medical friends look on increased pay as quite as advantageous to them as increased rank; and if they cannot look to increased pay under the new warrant, they would at least hope, while on furlough, to be placed on an equality with her Majesty's medical officers, or with their brother-officers of the Indian army of the same rank. But here, again, the Indian medical officer is much less fortunately placed than the medical officer of the English army.

The latter, if compelled to leave India temporarily on medical certificate, or if availing himself of a temporary furlough, is entitled during his period of absence to draw the English rate of pay of his rank, according to the following table:—

	Inspector General.	Deputy Inspector General.	Surgeon Major.	Surgeon.	Assistant Surgeon.
	£. s.	£. s.	£. s.	£. s.	£. s.
After 30 yrs. ser.	821 0	620 0	456 0	..	..
" 25 " "	821 0	547 0	456 0	..	..
" 20 " "	730 0	511 0	401 0	..	..
" 15 " "	..	..	..	328 0	..
" 10 " "	..	..	..	273 10	237 0
" 5 " "	..	..	..	..	210 0
Under 5 " "	..	..	..	..	182 3

An Indian medical officer, under the same circumstances, is entitled under the old rules,—if an assistant surgeon, to only £118. 14s. 1d. per annum; if a surgeon under thirty years' service, to £191. 15s. 1d.; if a surgeon of more than thirty years' service, to £202. 4s.; if a superintending surgeon, to £365. 5s.; and if director general, to £418. 9s. It is true, however, that for six months under the new furlough rules they are better treated. There is no question that in their furlough allowances Indian medical officers are severely treated, and the only advantage they have over the other service consists in their having more freedom, and a longer leave when they take their furlough.

In the Queen's army medical officers complain much of the difficulty of getting away at any time for a lengthened furlough. Even the furloughs of the new regulations are long as compared with anything they can get. No leave in India avails on arrival in England. The Board there is most jealous of allowing more than a few months' leave on private affairs, and the "exigencies of the service compel" is the only reply to those who try to struggle for protracted leave. In fact, the medical officers of the Queen's army cannot be said to get furlough at all in the sense in which Indian officers enjoy it.—Hurkaru.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE HUMBLE MEMORIAL OF MEMBERS OF THE LATE AGRA MILITIA.—To his Excellency the right hon. the Governor-General of India in Council. Sheweth,—That your memorialists, when asked by the late hon. Mr. Colvin, Lieutenant-Governor of the North West Provinces, to take up arms for the protection of Agra, and the maintenance of British authority within its precincts, responded cheerfully to the call, and not only rendered valuable service as treasure escorts, garrison guards, bazaar and kotewalee guards, guards over convicts, patrols, fatigue parties, &c., but engaged the enemy in a hard-contested and unequal battle on the 5th of July, 1857, in which several of their number were killed and wounded by the enemy. Your memorialists further beg to state, that when requested to maintain order in the surrounding districts, and to relieve Christian fugitives concealed in various places miles away from Agra (although contrary to the original engagement), they cheerfully consented, and performed their trust faithfully; on two occasions your memorialists relieved large parties of beleaguered Christians, rescuing them from the enemy, and escorting them in safety to Agra. Again in several instances your memorialists routed large bodies of rebels and mutineers, in Hattrass, Allygurrh, Futtehpoore Secree, Khundowlee, and other towns and villages, capturing and executing notorious leaders, and performing all manner of harassing duties for several months in very trying weather without food and shelter. Your memorialists, a mere handful of undisciplined men, unused to arms and hardship of any kind, fought side by side with the European soldiers, and aided materially in maintaining the British authority in the very heart of the empire, and restored order in all the surrounding districts, hemmed in on all sides by hundreds of thousands of bloodthirsty monsters in arms. Your memorialists expected great things from Government, especially when that Government made handsome promises. Not only members of the Civil and Military service, but the late Lieutenant-Governor himself praised your memorialists for their gallantry and patient endurance to all hardships; and your memorialists were informed that they would be better provided for, under Government, and compensated in full for all their losses. The mutiny has been quelled, peace and order restored, but your memorialists have as yet received nothing, no, not even the thanks of the Government, whom they clung to, and served so faithfully at such a crisis, and your memorialists cannot but feel keenly the slight and neglect with which they are treated on seeing natives receiving rewards, pensions, grants of lands, compensation, &c., in all directions for their loyalty, and good service, merely because some remained passive, and others showed a little zeal on seeing the scale turn, while your memorialists with the blood of the British in their veins, which they freely shed, whose every thought and wish was loyal, who rendered no imaginary but really invaluable and substantial aid, who have suffered every hardship and whose constitutions have been racked, are totally uncared for and neglected. During the mutiny Government promised to compensate your memorialists, in full, and your memorialists were directed to submit their claims through the late Mr. Longden. Shortly after small pittances were doled out to your memorialists as temporary succour, which your memorialists were distinctly informed was merely succour money, irrespective of their claims for compensation, which would be paid to them immediately on restoration of order. Your memorialists now pray for the early payment of the compensation for their losses, and in the interim your memorialists hope that your lordship will be graciously pleased to grant them six months' batta, as they are suffering the greatest discomforts without shelter and property. Should your lordship not be able to comply with the request of your memorialists as regards the payment of compensation for losses, they respectfully beg that their case be submitted to Lord Stanley, Secretary of State for India, to be laid before her most gracious Majesty, Queen Victoria, whose most loyal and devoted subjects they beg to subscribe themselves,—Members of the late Agra Militia.

VICTORIA CROSS.—We have received the following official report of the Governor general's address to Major Innes, on the occasion of his investiture with the Victoria Cross:—

"Major Innes.—It is very gratifying to me to invest you, an officer of the staff of this garrison, with the illustrious decoration of the Victoria Cross. You have been recommended for this great honour by Lord Clyde, and it has been awarded to you by the Queen for an act of gallantry and self-devotion unsurpassed by any which the events of the last two years, prolific as these have been in glorious deeds, have called forth. After sharing for five long months the trials and dangers of the heroic garrison of Lucknow, and after taking part in the fierce struggle at Cawnpore, you were called upon to assume the post of field engineer of the column, which, under the command of Sir Thomas Franks, fought its way through Oude. You did your duty in this capacity in such a manner as to win the highest praise from your commander in the several actions of Nisrutpoore, Chanda, Ameerapore, Sultanpoore, and Dhowara. At the last of these you were severely wounded. But it is for your conduct at Sultanpoore, especially, that the honour which you are about to receive has been conferred upon you. There, far in advance of the column, unsupported and single-handed, you seized one after the other, and held until assistance reached you, two guns of the enemy in position. You seized the last, just as the match was at the touch hole, and by this noble act of well-timed daring, you turned aside sweeping death from the advancing ranks of your comrades. It is for this brave action that her Majesty has been graciously pleased to reward you with the Cross, which I am about to place upon your breast. Long may you live to wear it; a mark of the well-earned favour of your sovereign, and a title to the respect of your fellow-countrymen. I must add, that it is a peculiar pleasure to me to present this Cross to an officer of the Bengal Engineers. For I say to you, not as a compliment, but in the words of sober truth, that I do not believe that there ever has existed in any army, a body of men who have rendered, individually and collectively, more constant and valuable good service to their country than the Engineers of her Majesty's Indian forces. Men, all of them, of proved ability and highly-cultivated intellect, they have been unceasingly called upon in peace, as much as in war, to achieve great tasks for the protection and advancement of India. And they have never been found wanting. That when summoned to meet an enemy in the field they can carry their lives in their hands as lightly as any men your own deeds and those of many of your brother officers have abundantly proved. It is in itself a distinction to belong to such a corps; and you, Major Innes, have the proud satisfaction to know that, whilst you have derived honour from being enrolled amongst the Engineers of the army of Bengal, you have done all that a soldier can do to repay that honour in augmenting by your own acts the lustre and reputation of your distinguished regiment."

THE BEGUM AND HER PARAMOUR.—The Begum, of whom we have all heard so much, is no princess, and has no claim whatever to the title by which she is known. She was originally a dancing-girl with whom Munnoo Khan, then holding a subordinate charge in the royal cook-room of Lucknow, had formed an intimacy. The present ex-King, hearing of the girl's beauty, admitted her to the number of his mahuls, under the title of "Huzrut Mahul." She received a handsome allowance, with a large establishment, of which she appointed Munnoo Khan the darogah or superintendent. The former intimacy was still, though secretly, carried on, and resulted in the birth of the boy, Birjees Kudr. This boy was supposed to belong to Wajid Alee, and when the mutiny broke out, although only between ten and twelve years of age, he was proclaimed king. His claims were recognised by the Oude Irregular Force, for the most part composed of men who had held service under the ex-monarch. On his elevation to the throne, or rather on his being created Wazir of Oude, for his authority was at first held subordinate to that of the Emperor of Delhi, his mother and Munnoo Khan enjoyed an amount of power checked only by the caprices of the troops to whom their elevation had been due. Munnoo Khan was a man of no talent whatever, and alike wanting in that courage, both moral and physical, so requisite in a person in the critical position to which he had been exalted. He was, moreover, of low origin, destitute alike of taste and the advantages of education.—Bombay Telegraph.

THE MAHOMEDAN AGITATION IN THE PUNJAB.—As rumours more or less exaggerated have been in circulation regarding disaffection or excitement among some of the Mahomedans in this part of the world, we desire to place before our readers a summary of some of the real facts, so far as they are yet known. About a fortnight ago a fakere was arrested in the Sealkote district with some treasonable papers in his possession, evidently intended for circulation among Mahomedans. It was naturally inferred that this man must have some accomplices, and must have passed through the centre of the Punjab. Then the man himself confessed that he had one or more confederates still at large. This led to stringent inquiries at Lahore and Umritsir, in consequence of which several persons have been arrested on suspicion in the Lahore and Jullundur districts. Whether positive proof against these men will be obtainable remains to be seen; but suspicious circumstances have already come out against them, and there is no moral doubt that they are mischief-makers. The other day information was received at Lahore that one of these emissaries had crossed over from Umritsir, and search was made for him in all the mosques and "tukyas," i.e., places where fakere live. About the same time it was found that the Mahomedans of Lahore were full of stories of the birth of the Prophet Iman Mehndee, and expected that a revolution was at hand. This idea was unfortunately encouraged by the publication of this story by the vernacular newspapers down country. The account, too, was accompanied by a portrait of the prophet. There is no doubt that the story was eagerly credited and canvassed by the religious section of the Lahore Mahomedans.

The sermons preached at the mosques on the last Eed contained allusions calculated to unsettle men's minds; and the authorities were informed that the priests at the mosques were telling the people of a coming revolution, and the like. It is probable that this kind of foolish, seditious talk goes on at mosques in such cities as Lahore to a much greater extent than is generally supposed. The authorities often do not think it necessary to notice the thing, and the priests and the fanatics perhaps get the idea that they may do it with impunity. But as the seditious talk had become rather more open and more frequent within the last fortnight than heretofore, it was determined to treat the matter as a misdemeanor, and to prosecute a few of these foolish talkers. Four persons have been accordingly put on their trial. One man has been fined and placed on security for seditious talk. Another man has been imprisoned for three months and sentenced to a fine, for having in his possession a paper intended for circulation at the coming Mohurum festival, predicting the advent of fresh troubles in Hindostan, and political disturbances generally. Such briefly are the facts. There are no traces of any conspiracy, nor the slightest cause for alarm. The present affair is only one of those slight gusts which periodically agitate the surface of Mahomedan society. Such things, if neglected, might in time cause trouble, but when promptly taken in hand are easily suppressed. We trust that the measures which are being taken will stop the movement of itinerant mischief-makers, and will teach the priests at the capital of the Punjab that they are not to talk sedition with impunity. So long as they pray and preach on purely religious subjects, and teach the young, no official will ever molest them. But if they utter political prophecies, and enunciate political doctrines calculated to disturb men's minds, they will find that the arm of the criminal law can reach them.—Lahore Chronicle.

BERHAMPORE, July 25.—The 5th are quiet. The ex-Colonel Marshall has at last put his foot in it. He abused the adjutant (I believe on parade), throwing down his gun, and saying he would not serve any longer under Sepoy officers. He is in the guard, and will be tried by general court-martial. It is said that this fellow has been kicked out of two Queen's corps, so I expect he will get his desert at last. How careless the Government seems to have been in administering the oath to the troops. Many of the 5th, who enlisted since the Queen's assumption of power, were sworn in under the old oath, so they claim their discharge, as they swore to obey the East India Company. There has been a good deal of robbery going on in the station lately, and it is thought the troops have had a hand in it.

DIAMOND HARBOUR, July 28.—Between the hours of two and three P.M. on the 28th it blew strong from the N.E., with heavy squalls of rain, and cloudy threatening weather. This continued throughout the night till dawn of day, when it blew a perfect hurricane. The tug steamer Canning went down at her anchors off Culpee, in four fathoms of water, and Captain Ludlam and eleven of her crew were drowned; the chief officer and the remainder of the crew managed to get on shore, and walked up to the magistrate's cutchery, and ultimately to the Customs' station, where they are at present located. The tug steamer Forbes, belonging to the same company as the Canning, parted from her cables, and was driven on shore abreast the Customs' station, where she lies a wreck. Captain Arrow-smith has written up to town for assistance, as he is sanguine of getting her off. A lascar belonging to the Forbes met with a watery grave; the crew of the last-named tug are also located at the Customs' station. The anchor boat Purchase was driven on shore: also the French ship Periguy. The bund facing the Customs' station has been washed away, and several trees uprooted. A brig from the coast laden with cocoanut cap-sized in Hooghly Bight. Two passengers by the Forbes, Mr. Harwood of the police, and the Rev. Mr. Babanau—also putting up at the Customs' station, being desirous of getting up to town, signalled to the Government steamer Despatch, proceeding up, to give them a passage. "Bear a hand" was signalled in reply, but no attempt was made to stop the vessel. The electric telegraph is out of order. The ship Sultana, with emigrants on board, is lying off Kantabarri Point. This is the vessel the Canning was towing down. The Forbes was bound up. Messrs. Payne and Co., of the Belatee Bungalow, intend to open a branch of their establishment at this place. To make it pay they will have to sell marine stores. The weather still continues threatening.

July 29.—The Union steam tug passed the station at 4 P.M. on the 28th, to render the French ship Periguy assistance. During the evening's flood the pilot, Mr. Vincent, dropped the ship Sultana to off Diamond Harbour, where she awaits a steam tug to tow her to sea. At high water this forenoon the Union towed the French ship Periguy off her bank; she will be detained here for a couple or three days to get anchors, having lost those she had. The anchor boat Purchase and tug Forbes are still on shore. At twelve o'clock, Capt. Smith, of the tug Mary Stewart, came down in the Francis Gordon to render assistance to the Forbes with the least possible delay. He had Mr. Marshall, chief officer, and Mr. Cooper, engineer of the late tug Canning, brought before him, and took down their deposition, with the view to forward an abstract of the same by electric telegraph to Messrs. Gordon, Stewart and Co., the agents. I am glad to have it in my power to inform you that there is every probability of the Forbes being got off, and the circumstance I attribute mainly to the exertions of Capt. Arrow-smith, his officers, and the two European survivors of the tug Canning, who remained by the Forbes, instead of proceeding up to town with the lascars. The tug Francis Gordon will return to Calcutta tomorrow, after proceeding down to Culpee in order to ascertain if any thing can be seen or found appertaining to the Canning.—Hurkaru.

ROHILCUND, July 19.—I send you a few lines to let you know that Bala Rao, brother to the Nana, Hurdut Sing, Talookdar of Bhownie, near Baraitch, and the Nawab of Nujeeabad, have from the effects of the climate died, near Dhoker, in the Nepaul territories somewhere near Boohwal, where the Begum is. The rebels are all of them suffering much from the malaria of the terai, and most of them are laid up with fevers, as is also the Nana himself—who will, he says, either die where he is, or else be killed in battle,—and to being captured, he will sooner kill himself. The Begum still holds out bravely, and will give us most trouble, should they succeed in getting out from their present abode into Tirhoot, and the Santhal Purgunnahs, as is her intention. Colonel Holditch, C.B., of the 20th, has succeeded Colonel Horsford in the command of the Brigade,—the latter goes home, quite done up with sickness. It is to be hoped he will be rewarded with a K.C.B.

THE MATERIAL OF GOVERNMENT.—Some of our London correspondents have repeatedly asserted that though the East India Company's authority in this country has nominally been abolished, yet that it still exists with merely a change of name. We have seen some reason to believe them right, but yesterday for the first time met with a convincing proof, in a government advertisement published in the Exchange Gazette. The superintendent of stationery requires 30,000 bundles of narrow and 3,500 of broad red tape. This thoroughly company's official requisite is therefore as much in demand as ever, notwithstanding the introduction of printing in every department. But there is another article advertised for, which even more strongly indicates the prevalence of the old system. Most people think that we have flat rulers enough already, but it seems 125 more are required. Where are they to be stationed? Let us hope none of them will be posted to the financial department.—Englishman.

THE Loss sustained by Government in consequence of the destruction by the mutineers of the two medical depots at Meerut and Cawnpore is estimated at nearly eight lakhs of rupees.

DISARMAMENT OF NATIVES.—The Lucknow Herald states that according to the latest returns the number of arms of all kinds collected in Oude amount to nearly fourteen lakhs. It appears that in the city alone the police discover from 300 to 400 per week. Those who have arms show no reluctance in giving them up, and when questioned why they were not given up before, say in reply, "Because you did not ask for them."

SIR WILLIAM O'SHAUGHNESSY has been directed to proceed to Benares, for the purpose of superintending the construction of a double line of telegraph between that station and Allahabad, with the view of making experiments on preserving isolation in great lengths of wire, and the mechanical means of keeping multiple lines from contact with each other.

ONE GOOD TURN DESERVES ANOTHER.—The Delhi correspondent of the Englishman states that Mr. Roberts, lately in the employ of Government in the Customs' department, was attacked by a fanatic whilst driving in a buggy a few days since. The man leaped into the conveyance, and struck him several times with an iron-bound stick. Some Sikhs of the 23rd, who witnessed the affair, ran to the rescue, and inflicted severe chastisement upon the villain. He has been taken into custody, but affects insanity. The cause of this violent assault on the part of the fanatic was on account of his having received a beating from Mr. Roberts some months back.

CAT AND DOG.—The Meerut correspondent of the Delhi Gazette states that on the 12th July, it being "The Bakri, Eed," the Mahomedans sacrificed an ox as a sin-offering, the Mussulmans of the city produced one in the Jumma Musjid for the purpose. The Hindoos having come to a knowledge of their intention opposed it, on the ground that such a sacrifice should not be permitted to take place in the heart of the city, a similar instance never having occurred there before. Though the Mahomedans could not perform the sacrifice in the day, they succeeded in doing so at night. When this came to the knowledge of the Hindoos on the following morning they assembled in arms to revenge the insult. The Mahomedans were prepared for the attack, and each party arrayed itself against the other to the number of 500 on both sides. A dreadful conflict would have taken place, attended perhaps with the loss of many lives, had not the police interfered. The ringleaders were taken into custody, and the mob was dispersed.

BENGAL COMMISSARIAT.—We extract from the Phaniz the following estimate of the Commissariat Department of Bengal for the coming year 1859-60. For the Queen's British troops, Rs. 1,19,11,000. For the Queen's Indian forces, including the local European regiments, Rs. 1,38,17,000. The figures for the past year (1858-59) stood thus:—Queen's troops, Rs. 1,73,66,160; Indian forces, Rs. 1,75,95,800. Thus the Commissariat expenditure on Queen's troops in 1859-60 is Rs. 54,55,160 less than for 1858-59, while her Majesty's Indian forces will likewise cost less, as far as the Commissariat is concerned, to the extent of Rs. 37,78,800, the total reductions of Commissariat expenditure being Rs. 92,33,960.

LUCKNOW, July 26.—The head-quarters and left wing of H.M.'s 73rd regiment, under Colonel Smith, left Newabgunge, Burra Bunkee, on the 17th, and arrived here on the 19th. This move was owing to the unsafe state of the huts at the former place, five of which were thrown down by a sudden gust of wind, burying all its inmates. Fortunately only one barrack cook sustained severe injury from which he died. The soldiers took refuge under their charpoyas, and crept out of the buildings through the thatch. The 73rd are located in the new barracks at Dilkosha, which are in an unfinished state. They will remain there during the rains, and move into tents again in the cold weather, for the purpose of allowing the barracks to be finished. Rumour has it that the troops here take the field in October next against the Nana. The weather has been very wet for the past week, and thunder-storms are not uncommon. This, with the muddy state of the roads, makes it very unpleasant for those who have out-door work to attend to. Yesterday a small portion of the barrack, intended as family quarters, fell in, and buried some half a dozen labourers. With the exception of a few bruises all got off scot-free.

THE RIVER PILOTS.—We (Englishman) hear that the Candia was at the Sandheads on Tuesday, July 26, and could she have got a pilot might have been in Calcutta in a few hours, instead of which she was forced to put out to sea and was exposed to the fury of the gale for three whole days, not having coals enough on board to get a good offing. It has been suggested that the mail steamers should take their pilots on to Madras, where they might wait for the next inward-bound steamer. Thus they would never be delayed at the Sandheads for want of a pilot, and the expense of the arrangement, allowing a liberal remuneration to the pilots, would scarcely exceed the cost of the coals now needlessly consumed, to say nothing of the delay of the mails and the discomfort of the passengers. It is not likely either that the Government or the marine authorities would object to such an arrangement, for early intelligence is of so much importance that it cannot be counterbalanced by a few days' detention of a pilot.

MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT.—On Thursday night, August 6, a sad accident occurred, which resulted in the drowning of Mrs. Anderson, her daughter, and seven others. A party of twelve persons, comprising Mrs. and Miss Anderson, Messrs. Rodgers, Roberts, Perroux, and Lockner, a lad named Favier, and five men of the 99th regiment, named Harris, Thorpe, Bedford, Lake, and Maxwell, left Howrah Ghaut, in a beauleah, at about 12 o'clock, after the performance in the theatre there. Messrs. Rodgers and Roberts sat on the roof smoking, while the rest sat in the cabin at supper. They had not been in the boat above five minutes when it by some mismanagement struck a buoy and immediately capsized; there was one scream and all was silent. Mr. Lockner found himself holding on to the boat, and after a great deal of exertion succeeded in gaining the bottom, which had turned upwards; he was then carried away towards a number of cargo boats; on reaching one of them he was taken up on board by the boatmen. Lake was also hanging to the wreck and has been saved, as also was Mr. Roberts, who, when the boat struck, jumped off the roof and swam ashore.

THE DATE TREE.—The Agricultural Society have published in their journal a prize essay on the cultivation of the date tree and the manufacture of its juice into sugar. The tree, the Phaniz Sylvestris, is found in every part of Bengal, but flourishes best in the alluvial tracts in the south-east, over an area of 9,000 square miles. Its juice is manufactured into sugar chiefly in Jessore, Furreedpore, Nuddea, and Burrisaul. On the breaking up of the company's trade monopoly, date-tree sugar first became an article of export. In 1792 the total produce in Bengal was 15,000 maunds. After 1837, when the equalization of duty on East and West India sugars imported into England took place, its growth increased so that from 1854 to 1858 the yield averaged 35,000 tons, or 953,7000 maunds. The writer says, were Europeans to direct their attention more largely to the growth and manufacture, they would make a profit of 60 per cent.

A NEW TEA COMPANY.—We notice the formation of "The Bengal Tea Company, Limited." It has possession of 25,000 bigahs of tea land in the district of Cachar, of which nearly 500 are cleared and upwards of 400 planted. Some of the trees are one and two years old, exclusive of those of indigenous growth. The directors are Calcutta merchants. The capital is 2½ lakhs of rupees, divided into 2,500 shares of Rs. 100 each.

SHIPWRECK.—The ship Chinsurah, a bark of 461 tons, Commander Eastaway, bound from London to Calcutta, and containing a very valuable cargo, was lost on the Gaspar on the 1st August.

Mr. W. TAYLOR has declined to avail himself of a full inquiry into his judicial conduct with respect to the trials held by him at Patna in 1857.

FIGHTING QUAILS.—A correspondent of the Indian Field gives an account of Quail-fighting and gambling among the Affghans. During the season nearly every Affghan is seen with a quail in each hand, smeared over with green or red dye, so as to colour the plumage without causing the feathers to stick together. After being thus handled and starved for a few days, the birds become very tame, and in proper trim for fighting. Large crowds assemble with their birds at an appointed place, a white sheet is spread on the ground sprinkled over with small grain, and the spectators form three sides of a square round it. One puts his bird on the cloth, along with his stake; and another then similarly accepts the challenge. When both birds have eaten for a few seconds, they fiercely attack each other, one is driven off the cloth, and the other proclaimed victor. This amusement goes on for days and weeks together in the streets of every town and village in Affghanistan and Persia. Both in China and Affghanistan the birds are carried in the hand to warm them on cold days. The quails employed are the Coturnix communis and the C. Coromandelica.

THE LATE GALE has caused considerable damage both in the town and the Mofussil. A great number of boats were sunk in the Hooghly on Tuesday the 25th, and many native boatmen drowned. On Wednesday morning many bales and other merchandize were afloat in the river from the sunken crafts. Some merchants of Serampore have sustained very heavy loss in this way. We believe there is not a single thatched house left standing in Sealdah and other places, and some of their inhabitants have been killed in their fall. In the districts of Hooghly, Burdwan, and Bancoorah, the villagers have sustained considerable loss, and several are reported as being killed through the falling of large trees. Some boats filled with natives coming down to Hooghly were swamped in the middle of the river, near the station. The river police were then occupied in assisting another boat, and some of the boatmen only escaped. The railway company could not start the morning up-train at the usual hour, on Wednesday morning, owing to the strength of the gale. The gale has done more injury to the working classes in the Mofussil, than to any other class of persons. The paddy crops having been much damaged.

MEERUT, July 18.—Upwards of forty men of the 75th regiment are taking the benefit of the limited service Act; what their reasons are we cannot tell, as most of them intend re-enlisting into other regiments, nor can we tell why they so readily volunteered to leave their "service honoured" old regiment, to recruit the ranks of the half-deserted Bengal artillery. Yesterday some of the Catholics were absent from their places on the return of the party from chapel, and the roll was called to show who were the absentees, on being dismissed, groans issued from them; the groaners have not been discovered. The groaning was taken up by the Protestants, of the 75th regiment, on their return from the evening service on Sunday. A Court of Inquiry sat yesterday, but the result of it is not known outside. The "attached" officer is released and is to join another regiment; but the game of arrest is not yet played out, as another "belonging" to the regiment is now in that painful position.

THE LATE HURRICANE.—The Hurkaru states that upwards of fifty boats laden with country produce, chiefly belonging to native merchants, were wrecked in the vicinity of Cutwah, by the late gale.

A EUROPEAN REWARDED!!!—Government has given a talook, yielding Company's Rs. 10,000 a year, to Mr. Dunne, an indigo planter in the Ghazepore district, for having organized an expedition for the relief of the Azingurh Christians.

THE NUDDEA RIVERS.—Government have at length sanctioned a sum of Rs. 62,367 out of the Nuddea Toll Fund, for the improvement of the Matabangah. Of the three rivers, it is the only one that can now be used for more than five months of the year.

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.—The Englishman has been informed that the Lieutenant-governor of Bengal, before leaving Calcutta, on a tour of inspection, acting on direct instructions from England, issued an order that the appointments of Director of Public Instruction, and Inspectors of Schools, shall in future be given not to covenanted servants, but to uncovenanted servants of ability, and possessing a good knowledge of the vernacular. This is nothing but fair and just, and it is doubtless the first step in carrying out the suggestions contained in Lord Stanley's despatch.

JUSTICE BEFORE GENEROSITY.—The Government of India recommended the outlay of Rs. 1,000 per month for the establishment of female schools in Burdwan, Hooghly, and the twenty-four Pergunnahs. The home authorities replied, that during the present financial difficulties they could not sanction this outlay, and that the consideration must be deferred.

MOOLTAN KHAN.—A correspondent of the Englishman states that Mooltan Khan, who escorted Mr. Edwards and his party from Kaing, Mhow, to Shumshabad, where one of them, Gibson, was cruelly murdered, and afterwards fought against us as an officer of the ex-Nawab of Furruckabad at Gungeree and Putiali, was caught and sentenced to seven years' imprisonment. In consideration of his having accompanied Edwards' party that term was reduced to four years, but, on appeal, Government has reversed the sentence, and given him a pension of Rs. 30 a month and a house.

THE NANA'S JEWELS.—The Hurkaru states that the dress pieces, some of which are of great value, and set with pearls and precious stones, belonging to the Nana, which were brought from Allahabad last year, and deposited with the Sub-Treasurer, are now in the office of the Foreign Secretary. The jewels are still to remain with the Sub-Treasurer until further orders.

DR. WALKER has resigned the office of Superintendent of Port Blair. Captain Haughton, of the 54th N. I., has been appointed to succeed him. He is invested with full judicial and executive authority throughout the Andaman Islands.

ALL IRREGULAR CORPS, in which men provide arms at their own expense, are hereafter to be supplied on indent from the several Ordnance magazines with the authorised description of fire-arms, on payment of their value. The practice heretofore of commanding officers providing from England the arms required for their corps is prohibited.

FREE PILOTS.—The Phoenix notices the success of the free pilot system on the Hooghly. There are now twenty-one free pilots, sixteen of whom were formerly in Government service. Each has made, on an average, one and a-half as much as under the old system. Four, who were never employed by Government, have made twice as much as the salary of a regular mate.

HAVELOCK'S TOMB.—In a demi-official letter to Lieutenant-colonel Yule, secretary of the public works department, Major Crommelin says, the present Sir H. Havelock objected to the erection of a tomb over the remains of his father at the public expense. He himself is to have a design prepared in England, and sent out for execution by Major Crommelin, who has the stone and marble ready for it. At present the coffin is encased in an arched vault, and a solid brick chubootra is completed up to the ground level.

INDIGO.—The Hurkaru estimates the out-turn of indigo in the district of Purneah alone, for the present season, at 5,000 maunds.

CANDIDATES FOR THE ARMY COMMISSARIAT department will henceforth be required to read and explain in English three Hindostani papers which they have never seen before; to translate, so as to be intelligible to a native, from English into Hindostani and Hindee, a paper of instructions to a subordinate commissariat officer; to dictate with some fluency the translation into Hindostani of an English letter; and to converse with two or three natives in such a manner as to understand them, and to be understood by them.

AN IMPORTANT INQUIRY.—The Commander-in-Chief appointed a committee to assemble at Simla on the 6th July to determine how long the wicker helmet and cover now worn by European troops in India should be expected to last.

A PLEASANT TRIP.—According to the Mofussil, officers who volunteer to take command of the discharged European soldiers on their way to England will be provided with free passages home and back, and will draw full Indian pay and allowances during their absence. On reaching England they must hold themselves in readiness to return to India in charge of recruits. They will not be detained in England more than three months. Seven officers of the 2nd Europeans and several artillery officers at different stations have already applied for the duty. The chance of even three months in England will tempt many to undertake what must be a most disagreeable and difficult task.

ALLAHABAD.—The New Times states that a detachment of H.M.'s 5th Fusiliers was to relieve that of H.M.'s 53rd regiment in the fort on the 30th, and that the latter regiment will then be concentrated in the Wellington lines.

BURMESE OFFICIALS.—In the Rangoon Times we find a list of the Burmese officials engaged in the administration of justice in Pegu. There are four classes:—1st. The Tsetkai, or native judges, located at the Sudder stations, with salaries ranging from Rs. 150 to Rs. 250 a month. 2nd. The Myo Oks, or heads of districts, with jurisdiction over districts as large as an English county, and an establishment of one writer and two peons, their salaries average from Rs. 50 to Rs. 100 a month. 3rd. The Tike Thoogyees or heads of sub-districts, who are especially engaged in the collection of the revenue; and 4th. The Goungs, or heads of villages, who are subordinate to the Myo Oks. Bribery and injustice seem to revel among these officials as much as among the Bengal Amlah.

COLONEL BAIRD SMITH has been despatched to Rangoon, to select a site for a fort and make other arrangements for the defence of the town and coast. It is supposed that Monkey Point has been chosen as the spot for the erection of defences.

INDIAN MINTS.—During the month of May, 1859, the Calcutta Mint coined bullion to the value of Rs. 28,30,567; Madras, Rs. 5,10,305; and Bombay, Rs. 44,48,000.

EXPORTS (Calcutta, Aug. 8).—The produce market has assumed a better aspect since our last. New Silk and Corals have been in better request; but are in limited operation, owing to higher prices being asked. Sugar and Saltpetre, which were neglected, have lately engaged inquiry. Rice has been in active demand for Melbourne, Mauritius, Bourbon, and the Gulf, but continues neglected for Great Britain. Oil Seeds have been purchased largely, at advanced rates. Hides have met a brisk demand for Great Britain. Jute is neglected. Prices of almost all principal articles of produce have advanced to some extent in consequence of the loss of several boats by the late gale.

IMPORTS (Calcutta, Aug. 8).—The market has continued in a depressed state. The late large imports, the difficulty and delay evinced by the buyers to clear their former heavy purchases, and the continued unfavourable news from the up-country marts, have been the cause of limited business. There are at present no buyers for goods to arrive. Mule Twist has been sold to a very limited extent by importers, at somewhat lower prices. Prints are selling to a very moderate extent. Turkey Red Twills and Cambrics selling moderately. Grey Shirtings and Madapolams have been sold very moderately. Cambrics are dull of sale. Jaconets are less saleable. Mull Mulls dull of sale. Lappets moving off gradually. Woolens engaging little inquiry. Metals are still without buyers for the Upper Provinces.

SILK CULTIVATION IN THE DECCAN.

The attempt to reintroduce the cultivation of silk into the Deccan is by no means so hopeless as Dr. Buist supposes. Signor Mutti's experiments at the Kotroor Bagh, near Poona, in 1837 were with the white mulberry silkworm (Phalæna bombyx mori), obtained from Europe, although originally a native of China, having, according to the common story, been brought from that country to Constantinople by two Nestorian monks, in the reign of the Emperor Justinian. As Signor Mutti had, therefore, first to acclimatise the white mulberry and then the Italian worm, it is no wonder that his experiments were both expensive and useless. A very different result may be hoped for from any efforts that may be made to cultivate the Bengal silkworm in the Deccan. The Bombyx or Saturnia pepia, or Tusseh silkworm, is indigenous to the Deccan, and abounds in jungles of the jujube or bair tree (Zizyphus jujuba), on the leaves of which it chiefly feeds. In Bengal we have before our eyes evidence of the success with which the silk can be cultivated, and of the estimation in which its silk is held, in the fact that of 5,832,551 lbs. of raw silk imported into the United Kingdom in 1852, from every part of Europe and Asia producing silk, 1,335,486 lbs. were from Bengal. Apparel of Tusseh silk cloth, manufactured in Bengal, is worn everywhere throughout the tropics. All that is necessary to utilize the Tusseh worm in the Deccan is to protect it from the birds which prey upon it, and to gather its cocoons before the moth bursts them. This is all that is essential. If it is thought advisable to form regular nurseries of jujube trees, Bengalees accustomed to the rearing of the worms might be brought round to instruct the Mahatta in the art, as well as in the manipulation of reeling off the cocoon. It is another question altogether whether silk cloth could be manufactured in this Presidency. The Government gaois, however, afford means for effectively and cheaply diffusing through the Deccan populations a knowledge both of the production and the fabrication of silk. This perhaps is the duty not of Government but of the mercantile community represented by our Chamber of Commerce, and we trust that it will not allow itself to be sneered out of an attempt in this direction by any parties. It is a new branch of commerce open to us, and should at once be followed up. The matter is one of some moment, now that war is raging in North Italy. The best English silk is obtained from France and Italy. The bulk of the silk imported into England from France is the product of Italy, having entered France through the great canal of Languedoc. Leaving, however, the war altogether out of consideration, it is important that England should seek in India the supply of as many of her wants as possible. The Tusseh insect feeds not only on the jujube, but on the castor oil and the various terminalia and bombax trees. Besides the tusseh worm various others are common to India on both sides of the Ganges, but yield very inferior cocoons. We believe that the existence of an indigenous insect on this side of India was overlooked until attention was directed to the fact by a French gentleman engaged in the Bassein sugar-works, who, from a previous residence in Bengal, was familiar with the culture of silk. The worm abounds in the Bassein jungle, and while the faintest hope exists of successfully cultivating silk in Western India, we should be wanting in ordinary enterprise if we abandoned the experiment. We doubt if an attempt has ever yet been made to feed the worm on any leaf but that of the mulberry.—Bombay Times.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MR. MALTBY, C.S.—According to a Deccan correspondent of the Bombay Telegraph, Mr. Maltby, of the Madras Civil Service, has been removed from the Commissionership of the Hyderabad Assigned Districts. We give the paragraph as we find it in our contemporary:—"Very important Calcutta intelligence from the Residency has eked out; which is no less than the removal from the Commissionership of the Hyderabad Assigned District, of Mr. Maltby, of the Madras Civil Service. The real cause for this apparent arbitrary power being exercised by the Viceroy can only be fully known to those who are behind the scenes of the secret machinery of Government; but the report is, that the removal has arisen from the Commissioner having ignored his official superior, Colonel Davidson, and for pertinacious conduct in introducing certain measures of his own. In justice to Mr. Maltby, and his numerous friends at Madras, of high standing and position, I presume the Most Noble the Governor General has had good reasons to be thus strict in the discharge of an unpalatable duty. It was, however, patent to those on the Commission that Mr. Maltby lamentably failed to carry out reforms in the delicate manner all innovation needed. The arbitrary resumption of Inams and Jagheers led to a costly Commission for inquiry into the merits of each claimant. The introduction of a penal code placed the Government in a dilemma, and, in fact, it is now a dubious and serious question if the past sentences in criminal cases are legal, or all vitiated. The universal rumour is, that some of the noted 'Qui Hies will be the successor of the ex-commissioner.'"

A SAD ACCIDENT.—The Vizagapatam Chronicle records a melancholy circumstance which occurred there recently. Several Europeans were returning to the shore from the steamer Sydney, whither they had gone to see some of their friends. The vessel was anchored at a considerable distance from the land. The weather towards evening changed, and the sea became boisterous. As the boat containing these unfortunate individuals neared the bar, it was literally divided into two, and the whole party, with the exception of an infant of a few months old, which was saved by one of the boatmen, was drowned.

CHRISTIAN JURORS.—Sir Charles Trevelyan has answered the statements made in the resolutions of the Madras meeting on the jury question. He did not make any general imputation against juries composed of Englishmen and East Indians. "In cases in which Europeans are placed upon their trial for misconduct to natives, juries composed as above described are so frequently influenced by the prejudice of race, that impartial justice cannot be relied on." Juries, like all other bodies, require to be looked after. With suspicions in the native mind that our justice is partial, with the increase of uneducated Europeans in the country, with the fact that no sovereign people situated as we are has administered equal justice between themselves and the subject race, we must rise to a higher standard and exercise a more disinterested self-control than the world has yet seen. No unconstitutional power was claimed, for the judges were consulted in the regular manner. The object of the new rule was not to procure the conviction of British subjects by race hatred, but to return to the original arrangement of having some natives in the jury. Natives are disposed to err on the side of leniency, and six persons of British birth are enough to see fair play done to a countryman. Till Parliament is convinced that Europeans in India can be trusted to administer impartial justice between themselves and the natives there will be no possibility of representative Government.—Friend of India.

THE INDIAN PRESS.—The Madras Times gives credit to that Presidency for the superior economy of its newspaper management. At Rs. 3 a month it considers itself the cheapest daily paper in India. The Spectator costs Rs. 34. In Bombay the daily papers cost Rs. 6 a month. In Calcutta the Phoenix is 4, the Hurkaru 5, and the Englishman Rs. 8 a month. The price of the daily papers in Madras is in keeping with the whole style of living and scale of expenditure in that Presidency.

SIR C. TREVELYAN.—The Madras Times hears that Sir Charles Trevelyan intends to make a tour into the provinces at the end of the rainy season. His first visit will be paid to Coconada and Dowlaisheram. We shall then get at the truth about the capabilities of the Godavery.

PUBLIC WORKS.—Notwithstanding the state of the finances, and the orders consequent thereon, Madras managed during the year 1857-58 to spend about 82 lakhs on public works:—

	New Works.	Repairs.	Total.
Irrigation Works..	4,38,108	12,70,556	17,08,764
Communications..	4,96,080	5,34,757	10,30,837
Buildings .....	11,38,607	2,08,807	13,47,424

Total Rs. 20,72,795 20,14,230 40,87,025

The cost of a first class road per mile is:—In Bengal, Rs. 17,172; Madras, Rs. 5,303; Bombay, Rs. 7,835; Punjab, Rs. 8,410; Scinde, Rs. —; average Rs. 9,680. The cost per mile of a canal is:—In Bengal, Rs. 6,631; Madras, Rs. 5,023; Scinde, Rs. 2,292; total, Rs. 12,646, which, divided by three, gives an average of Rs. 4,215. But the cost of a second or third class road in Madras slightly exceeds that in Bengal.

JACKATALLA BARRACKS.—The Jackatalla correspondent of the Madras Daily Times states that the building of the barracks at that station has been progressing with great rapidity; the fourth side of the quadrangle has been far advanced, the addition of the racket-court, Commissariat godowns, and suitable dwellings for the married men, have given an air of finish to the station. The sloping bank of the Conoor river has been cleared of the jungle.

THE HARRIS TESTIMONIAL.—The amount subscribed in Madras for a Testimonial to Lord Harris is Rs. 6,049. The lists are still open. Rs. 29,604 have been raised as a Thank Offering Memorial Fund for the close of the rebellion.

SALT MONOPOLY.—The Governor of Madras has directed his attention to plans for increasing the monopoly price of salt, evidently without reference to the Bill on the subject of salt in the Madras Presidency now passing through the Legislative Council. It has been resolved to appoint deputy collectors to the immediate charge of this branch of revenue, to re-open some of the pans closed in 1856, to develop the trade by the formation of depots on the Godavery, and to form inland depots in Ganjam, to save the brinjaries the journey to and from the coast.

MYSORE.—The Bangalore Herald describes the festivities in Mysore on the 22nd June, when the Maha Rajah Khristna Rajah Wadyur completed a Hindoo cycle, or sixty years of his reign. He was placed on the musnud in 1799 after the fall of Seringapatam. The old man is still hale, and able to sit for hours at a time on his golden and jewelled throne in presence of the crowds, estimated at 50,000, who throng his palace. Three priests use, in their idolatrous ceremonies, water brought from the Ganges, Srerungum, and Ramaswaram. Thousands of the poor are feasted daily. While rich gifts are bestowed on the Brahmins, donations of Rs. 100 have been sent to the Protestant church, Rs. 70 to the Romish chapel, and Rs. 20 to each of the Mahomedan mosques.

L'HABIT NE FAIT PAS LE MOINE.—The Madras Times says the senate of the Madras University have resolved to recommend that academic and official robes be adopted by the University, and worn on all occasions of ceremony. The native members of the senate approved highly of the proposed change.

AGITATION IN THE HINDOO COMMUNITY.

There is at present no inconsiderable amount of excitement among the Hindoo population of Bombay. The numerous and opulent caste of the Bhattiyas, for instance, are greatly moved by certain pamphlets that have been written and published concerning their Maharaja or pontifical head. This man, by virtue of his office, claims to be the incarnation of Vishnool, and to possess the same liberty to indulge his passions, in contempt of ordinary rules of morality, that was always enjoyed by the incarnations of Vishnoo. What right has he to set himself up as holier than Krishna, and to bring suspicion upon those ancient avatars by affecting a purity of life never exhibited by them? So from time immemorial it has been held among the Bhattiyas that that which would, if done by ordinary men, bring ruin and disgrace upon their families, is to be regarded as an honour and advantage when the Maharaja is the agent. New views of morality and religion, and of the strict relation between the two, are beginning, however, to pervade the native community, and we need not wonder that there should be among the Bhattiyas some dawning of a desire for better things. Hence the pamphlets of which we have spoken. They expose in unsparing language and with a fidelity that would not admit of translation into English, the enormities to which we have referred. One of these brochures, published within a few months, has specially awakened the wrath of those who abhor innovation and reformation. The incarnation of Vishnoo has obtained a caste sentence excommunicating everyone that shall venture to take the hated book in hand. The man who exposes these abuses and denounces them, is held up to universal scorn as an arch-heretic, a traitor to his caste. A great effort must be made for the preservation of the privileges and dignity of the caste, brought into danger by such publications. A lakh of rupees is to be raised; agents despatched to Calcutta, and, if need be, to England, in order to secure for the high priest exemption from the liability to appear in English courts of law. What a frightful confusion of ideas is manifest in all this. The caste is implored, by the most sacred and moving of all considerations, to put away from them the foul reproach arising from the practices of their gooroo avatar; and their response to this is, "at whatsoever sacrifice, we must secure for the person of our high priest protection from the action of English law, so that he shall not be compelled to appear in courts of justice, and as regards his relations to our wives and daughters let him be anathema who speaks against them or hears aught against them." Thus the caste rises up in its strength and says, "Light shall not be. But in vain. When they can gather up from the sky and the atmosphere and the hills and plains the rays of the breaking morn, and send them back to the sun, and subject the dawning day once more to night, then may they flatter themselves that by a caste vote they shall subdue the new convictions that are obtaining possession of many minds.

Another great cause of agitation in the Hindoo community is the book lately published by the Brahmachari Bawa, entitled "Light of the Vedic Religion." The Bawa professes to have supplied what has long been a great desideratum among Hindoos, namely, a standard of Hinduism. The suggestion made a few years ago that there should be an overhauling of the various sacred books, and a compilation made embodying what was essential and discarding whatever was inconsistent with modern discoveries and ideas, was met by the objection that such a work, being uninspired, would be unauthoritative. The Bawa, however, pretends to have furnished what all demanded and no man hoped to obtain, namely, an inspired exposition of Hinduism, teaching what Hindoos are really to believe, and in what sense they are to take the various articles of faith. The Bawa wishes to have this book translated into all the languages of India, and adopted as the universal and final standard. It must not, however, for a moment be supposed that the Bawa comes forward in this book as a reformer of Hinduism. He endorses the greatest absurdities, and shows the influence of modern ideas and of western light chiefly in the way in which he presents some of these absurdities. He gives up nothing, but he assigns new meanings to the old utterances, for which meanings he draws simply upon his own fertile imagination. He defends and commends idolatry, lauds the avatars, and while admitting that Krishna performed the innumerable licentious acts attributed to him, declares that no reproach can possibly accrue to him therefrom, seeing that he was by his nature above the laws to which common men are subject. He gives a theory of caste that has only excited ridicule among the different castes of Hindoos. He pretends that Brahminism consists really in the possession of certain qualifications; and holds that any one possessing such qualifications may be raised to the ranks of Brahminism from an inferior caste. Letters addressed to the Bawa, calling upon him to name a day for the examination of certain candidates for the Brahminical office, have appeared in the native papers; for everybody knows that it is sheer nonsense to pretend that Brahminism can be lost or obtained by the want or acquisition of any qualities whatever. A Brahmin is a Brahmin because his father was; and so with the several other castes.

It is with reference to the excitement caused in the native community by the publication of this book that we now refer to it. The native journals are inundated with letters concerning the various dogmas taught in it. The Bawa himself comes forward to answer, as he best can, the various criticisms and assaults made upon it. There is a famous muntra called the gayatri muntra, which no lips but those of Brahmins should ever dare to utter, and which they even are not allowed to utter, except on certain occasions, and in certain well defined states. To publish and explain this sacred god-compelling muntra, so that even the loathed Mahar may utter it, is a great crime. To this the Bawa replies that he is not such a hypocrite as to ignore the fact that this muntra has been already published by Europeans. He goes on further to admit that by far the largest portions of the Vedas are lost; of some only the thousandth part remains.

Finally, it has been decided by many of the leading Hindoos that the Bawa must come into court, and give an account of himself in connection with this book. So there was a meeting convened in the Thakoordwar temple last Sunday. A large company of natives assembled, but the Brahmachari Bawa, though specially summoned, was not forthcoming. Krishna Shastri, who some years ago delivered a course of lectures on Hinduism in that temple, presided at the meeting, and stated at length the objections entertained to the Bawa's book.

The attempt of the Bawa to give a new life to Hinduism by constituting himself its authoritative expounder, reminds us of the attempts made to save the religion of ancient Greece by tardy and partial reformatations, after the introduction of the Gospel. It is impossible by galvanism to give more than a momentary semblance of life to a dead corpse. The more you handle a dead thing the more will its putridity fly up into your face. When we speak of Hinduism as dead, we do not mean that it has lost its power over the minds of men. We could not conscientiously say so. In some respects Hinduism is giving greater proof of its power over the minds of men than it ever gave before. Notwithstanding the damage it has sustained through the revelations of modern science and the preaching of the Gospel, it holds its votaries in an unflinching embrace. The number of Christian converts, the number even of those who openly disavow caste, is but a mere drop in the bucket. If we see a cable of ten strands, nine of which have parted, still holding a ship to her anchor in the face of a furious storm, we get a new idea of the strength of that cable. But as the nine have parted so the tenth may. There is an affinity between the mind of man and falsehood; but the falsehood must be suited to the age; and it is generally felt among educated Hindus that the Hindoo system is not adapted to the present age, and that it is in great danger.

We are told that in one mind at least the Bawa's account of Krishna's immoralities has awakened the consciousness of the need of a purer faith. The wonder is, not that one or ten should lose their confidence in Hinduism, but that thousands who make pretensions to enlightenment should be still found upholding that soul-destroying system.

To complete this picture of the present state of beal was visible over the ramparts; and this, although the gunboats were all only from 500 to 700 yards distant, and were all at sixes and sevens from some getting aground, while others had to haul them off, and the space in which they had to move being too confined to allow of their manœuvring.

Dinner having been finished, about half past one o'clock the signal was run up to prepare for action, and the Opossum (Lieut.-Commander Balfour), with Captain Willes, R.N., and the Plover, with our brave old admiral, pushed in close up to the first barrier. No sooner did they arrive there, than suddenly, and as if by magic, the mats that screened the guns in all the curtain batteries were triced up, and the whole of the guns opened fire. Our vessels being all well prepared, however, the fire was immediately returned, and the action became general.

It was at once evident, though, that we had no ordinary Chinese artillery to contend against. Their fire, both in weight and precision, was such as few men, and I feel certain no Chinese campaigners, ever before experienced. In a very few minutes the Opossum had several of her crew killed or wounded. In the Plover the Admiral was severely hit; her gallant commander, Rason, and Captain McKenna, of the 1st royals (doing duty on the Admiral's staff), were killed, and almost every man of the crew disabled; while the Haughty (Lieutenant Commander Broad), Lee (Lieutenant Commander Jones), Kestrel (Lieutenant Commander Bevan), and Cormorant (Commander Wodehouse), were so severely crippled that they were in a sinking state. The Lee, indeed, would have gone down at once but for Lieut. Broad, in the Haughty, dashing in to her rescue, and towing her out under a heavy fire. Nevertheless, the bombardment was kept up with unabated vigour, and in about two hours the enemy's fire began sensibly to slacken; and (although they had got our range so exactly that almost every shot told, while ours, though admirably directed, did comparatively little damage to their mud walls) shortly after four o'clock it became almost silenced.

At about five o'clock the anxiously-expected signal was accordingly made for the troops to land and assault, which was briskly answered by them; every boat containing them striving to be the first to reach the shore. Not a soul in the squadron at that moment, I believe, doubted our obtaining a speedy victory. Just as the first boat touched the shore, however, bang went a gun again from the forts, immediately followed by a perfect hurricane of shot, shell, gingall balls, and rockets from all the southern batteries, which mowed down our men by tens as they landed. Nevertheless, out of the boats they all leaped with undiminished ardour (many into water so deep that they had to swim to the shore), and dashed forward through the mud, while the ships threw in as heavy a covering fire as they possibly could.

The enemy's fire, however, continued to be so deadly, and the mud proved so deep (in most places reaching up to the men's knees, at least, often up to their waists) that out of the thousand men who landed barely one hundred reached the first of the three deep and wide ditches, which, after some five hundred yards of wading through the mud, presented themselves before the gallant few who got so far, and out of that small number scarcely twenty had been able to keep their rifles or their ammunition dry. Nevertheless, they boldly faced those new difficulties, and some fifty of them, with a crowd of officers (among whom were conspicuous the commanding officer of the French contingent, Commanders Commerell and Heath, R.N., Major Parke, and Lieut. Hawkey, of the Marines, Major Fisher and Lieut. Maitland, of the Engineers), succeeded in getting as far as the furthest bank of the third ditch, from which they would certainly have made a good attempt to scale the walls, had ladders been forthcoming; but, out of the number that were landed, all but one had either been broken by shot, or had stuck in the mud. With the remaining one, however, ten devoted men sprang forward, three of whom were immediately shot dead, and five wounded severely.

A vertical fire of arrows, as well as a constant fusillade, was kept up on the select band who now crouched in the ditch, waiting, but in vain, for reinforcements; and that any of them afterwards escaped alive is miraculous. Seeing what insurmountable difficulties presented themselves, the order was at last given to retire; the lion-hearted commander of the troops, Colonel Lemon, of the Royal Marines (who was one of the first into the furthest ditch); Captain Vansittart, of the Magicienne; and Captain Shadwell, of the Highflyer, all having been severely wounded. The latter was badly shot through the foot shortly after landing, but nevertheless managed to struggle manfully forward, even to the advanced trench. Poor Captain Vansittart had his leg shot off. Lieutenant Graves, of the Assistance, Lieutenant Clutterbuck, of the Coromandel, young Herbert, of the Chesapeake, and Lieutenants Inglis and Woolridge, of the Royal Marines, were all killed while gallantly cheering on their men; and at least three-fourths of the officers who landed were more or less severely hit. In effecting the retreat even more lives were lost, perhaps, than in advancing, as the Chinese, by lighting blue lights, were enabled to discover the exact position of our then reeling and thoroughly exhausted men, and so to shoot them down like birds. Even on arriving at the water's edge matters were not improved, as so many of the boats had been smashed to pieces by round shot that there were not enough remaining to take off the surviving men. Several were drowned in attempting to get off, while many had to remain for more than an hour up to their necks in water before they could get a place in a boat; and even then their dangers were not past, as the fire from the forts continued so heavy that several boats full of wounded were struck and swamped while pulling off to the ships. The Coromandel was made the temporary hospital ship, and the scene on her upper deck was truly horrible. It was nearly one o'clock before the last boat load of wounded was brought off to her, and long ere that hour she was crowded with the mutilated and the dying. Every exertion, however, was made by the medical staff (to whom, and especially to Dr. Little, of the Marines, great credit is due), and long ere daybreak every sufferer had his wounds tended. Every operation (and their number was sickening) I was gratified to hear was performed under the influence of chloroform.

Our proportionate loss has, indeed, been frightful—434 killed and wounded. The 1st battalion of Marines alone, which landed barely 400 strong, has lost altogether 172 killed and wounded; the Chesapeake 26 killed or missing, and 34 wounded; and the gunboats 90 killed and wounded. No expectation whatever is entertained of those who are returned missing being still alive. With such enemies as the Chinese, and under the peculiar circumstances of the case, all such hope is out of the question.

The belief is universal throughout the squadron that Europeans manned the batteries as well as Chinese. Men in grey coats, with closely cropped hair, and with Russian features, were distinctly visible in the batteries, and the whole of the fortifications were evidently of European designing. Some of those who advanced near to the wall even go so far as to declare that they heard men calling for "more powder," in Russian; and this morning it is reported that two dead bodies floated out of the river, dressed in Chinese clothes, but having incontestably European faces. The damaged forts have already been repaired, and have never ceased to fire upon the boats that are still engaged under Captain Willes and Commanders Commerell, Heath, and Wynniatt, in struggling to rescue the stranded vessels. I should have stated that the Plover, Lee, and Kestrel, all sunk in the course of the evening of the 25th, and the Haughty and Cormorant (despatch vessel) early next morning. Thanks to the untiring efforts of our gallant tars, however, the Haughty and Kestrel have, under a heavy fire from the forts, been floated again, and are in comparative safety, while all the valuable contents of the Cormorant, Lee, and Plover have been either saved or effectually destroyed. All who have witnessed the operations are loud in their praises of the gunboat officers, who have all done duty like heroes. It has undoubtedly been a most unfortunate affair; but, whatever befell, no one can deny that the men did all that mortal men could do. The point selected for landing certainly appears to have been ill chosen; but yet, as we could not get past even the first barrier, it seems that after all it was as good as any that was accessible; and, as to the expediency of the attack being made at all, I would only ask—what would they have said in England, what would the world have said, had we declined the attack when, as far as we knew, we had only rascally Chinese to contend with?

Time, I am confident, will prove that Europeans were our principal opponents, and that to have succeeded in our attempt we should have had at least five times, if not ten times, the force we had.

Lieut. Peard, of the Cormorant, is particularly worthy of mention for his conduct. Besides being in action all day with his vessel, he landed, was first in the ditches, took back a message to the boats, and returned again to the advanced trench. Lieutenant Peard had served in the trenches during the whole of the siege of Sebastopol.

The great majority of the men hit are either dangerously or severely wounded; but I am happy to say they are almost all doing well. The weather is very favourable for them, being cool, with fresh breezes from the north and north-east.

The French, out of their small landing party of 60 men, had 15 killed or wounded. The Americans assisted us considerably by means of a small steamer, with which they towed up several of our boats into action from the large ships, and also after the action, by taking out to their respective ships a number of our men, to whom they showed every kindness. They were loud in their praises of the daring our men showed, and have sent large presents of fresh meat and vegetables for the benefit of our wounded.

The following vessels were actually engaged:—Coromandel, 2 guns, tender to flag-ship, Clutterbuck, lieutenant-commanding; Cormorant, 4 guns, gun vessel, Wodehouse, commander; Nimrod, 6 guns, gun vessel, Wynniatt, acting commander; Plover, 2 guns, gunboat, Rason, lieutenant-commanding; Opossum, 2 guns, gunboat, Balfour, lieutenant-commanding; Haughty, 2 guns, gunboat, Broad, lieutenant-commanding; Lee, 2 guns, gunboat, Jones, lieutenant-commanding; Kestrel, 2 guns, gunboat, Bevan, lieutenant-commanding; Janus, 2 guns, gunboat, Knewitt, lieutenant-commanding; Banterer, 2 guns, gunboat, Jenkins, lieutenant-commanding; Starling, 2 guns, gunboat, Whitshed, lieutenant-commanding; Forester, 2 guns, gunboat, Innes, lieutenant-commanding. Also a small French gunboat with one bow gun.

Casualties before the Pailho Forts on the 25th of June, 1859:—

Killed.—Lieut. Graves, R.N., Assistance, killed on shore; Lieut. Clutterbuck, R.N., Coromandel, do.; Lieut. Rason, R.N., Plover, killed on board; Capt. McKenna, Royal Regiment, do. Plover; Mr. Herbert, mid., Chesapeake, killed on shore; Lieut. Woolridge, R. M. Brigade, do., do.; Lieut. Inglis, R. M., Highflyer, killed in boat.

Wounded.—Admiral Hope, severely; Captain Vansittart, Magicienne, loss of left leg below knee; Captain Shadwell, Highflyer, severe wound of foot; Captain Willes, Chesapeake, slightly; Colonel Lemon, R. M. Brigade, severely; Lieut. Purvis, R. N., Highflyer, slightly; Lieut. Buckle, Magicienne, slightly; Mr. Burniston, Master, Banterer, slightly; Mr. Armitage, midshipman, Cruiser, severely; Mr. Pewlett, midshipman, Cambrian, severely; Mr. N. B. Smith, mate, Chesapeake, severely; Mr. Phillips, second master, Plover, slightly; Lieut. Longley, R. Eng., Plover, severely; Rev. H. Huleat, chaplain, R. M. Brigade, severely; Captain Masters, Chesapeake; Captain Slaughter, R. M. Brigade; Lieut. Wil-Liams, R. M. Artillery; Lieut. Crawford, R. M. Artillery; Lieut. Collier, R. M. Brigade; Lieut. Carrington, R. M. Brigade; Lieut. Smith, R. M. Brigade; Lieut. Perceval, Fury, slightly.

Total killed and wounded:—British, 464; French, 4 killed and 10 wounded, including Captain Tricault (Du Chayla), wounded in the arm. Total of marine brigade only:—Officers, 1 killed, 15 wounded; sergeants, 2 killed, 13 wounded; buglers, 2 wounded; corporals, 1 killed, 8 wounded; rank and file, 24 killed, 104 wounded; total killed and wounded, 170.

From a letter of the 10th July we learn that the troop-ship Assistance was then off Saddle Islands, near Shanghai, having brought down 150 of the worst cases of the wounded. It was to start early next morning for an anchorage near Ningpo, among the Chusan Islands, where it was expected there would be a favourable place for lying in until the hot weather should be past. Magicienne and the Cornmandel arrived at Shanghai from the Peiho on the 10th instant. Poor Captain Vansittart, we regret to say, was scarcely expected to live. His leg had been amputated beneath the knee, and it was thought that another amputation would be necessary, as affording the only chance for his life. The last accounts of the admiral were that he was doing well. There had been only three deaths on board the Assistance after she left the Peiho, and the great majority of the wounded on board were getting on wonderfully well.—Ceylon Observer.

THE SEPOY REGIMENTS IN CHINA.—The withdrawal of the 47th, 65th, and 70th Bengal N.I. from China has been postponed, and all officers belonging to those corps, not on staff employ, are to proceed at once to China, with the exception of young officers who have not yet completed six months' duty with European regiments.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.—We, China Mail, have to note the following departures to Great Britain with tea, for season 1859-60.—From Shanghai, the Woodville, with 257,500 lbs. From Fuhchau, the Julia, with 542,100 lbs, and the Glenclune, with 559,300 lbs. From Canton, none. Giving a total of 1,358,900 lbs. for the season. The Aramingo has sailed from Macao to the United States with 226,300 lbs. of tea. Of silk, the steamer Singapore took 1,774 bales for Great Britain, the Woodville, from Shanghai, 30; or a total of 1,804 bales. The Pekin takes 2,188 bales for Southampton. For Marseilles the Singapore took 70 bales, and the Pekin takes about 55 bales.

COLONIAL IMPROVEMENTS.—We (China Mail) understand that great improvements are likely to take place soon in the colony. General Straubenzie has proposed to carry a road along the side of the hill to Happy Valley, in continuation of the one behind Head-quarter's-house we presume. A Chinaman has also offered to erect a Joss-house on the top of the road leading to Aberdeen, should Government allow it. This we have no doubt will meet with general approbation, as it will form an excellent resting-place, or half-way house, to parties either going to or coming from Aberdeen, besides rendering it imperative to improve the road, and tending to give greater security to Chinamen travelling that way. It is also said that it is in contemplation to erect two large reservoirs, so that we may not experience the same dearth of water as has been done lately. The best place for getting a supply of water is from the water-course beside the Albany, where it has frequently been running in the night time into the sea during the scarcity; but as it belongs to the military authorities, probably objections might be raised to the erection of a reservoir there.

GROWTH OF OPIUM IN CHINA.—There seems to be no ground for doubting any longer that the cultivation of the poppy is rapidly extending in China. A correspondent of the North China Herald states that opium is becoming the winter crop of several provinces, especially of Yunnan, Honan, and Che-keang, and that the growers are yearly bringing it to greater perfection. This year it can be used without a mixture of Bengal or Malwa; and the native drug already, we are told, supersedes Turkey and the inferior classes of Malwa. It is grown in a fine light soil, on a slope, where the moisture can easily drain off. In cultivating, the Chinese look more to quantity than quality, and therefore force the poppy, till the heads are truly enormous. In April the juice is ready for gathering. On the head four broad delicate cuts upwards are made, leaving the wound covered by the overhanging skin, as a protection against the dews and heat. Early in the morning each wound is scraped by a piece of blunt bamboo, the juice being deposited in a hollow bamboo at the gatherer's side, a process repeated every morning till the flow ceases. The juice has a very acrid taste, and at present is chiefly used for mixing with the dearer Patna and Malwa. A field of poppies standing on the hill-side, seven feet high, and flaunting its gaudy blossoms in contrast with the rich green of the leaves and stalks, is, we may well believe, a beautiful sight. Pity is it that death lurks in every flower, and that the misdirected art of man contrives to develop its presence! Whether the home growth of the poppy will exercise an appreciable influence upon the demand for the Indian drug, will depend upon the quality of the Chinese product. The opium trade is of far more moment to India than most persons imagine, and it is with unfeigned satisfaction that we recognise, in the rapid growth of our general export trade, the promise of our future independence of the opium duty for meeting our expenditure.—Bombay Times.

THE STRAITS.

BORNEO.—By advices from Sarawak, dated July 23, we are informed of a melancholy tragedy which had just taken place at Kanawit. It may be proper to mention that some years ago a fort was erected about 100 miles up the Rejang river, at a place where the Kanawit river falls into it, for the purpose of preventing the piratical Dyaks living on these rivers passing out to sea. This fort was about 200 miles from Sarawak by water. It was under the charge of Messrs Fox and Steele, the former of whom had been for two years on the Rejang and the latter nine. Two Kanawit chiefs, named Kalai and Sawing, who live just opposite to the junction of the Kanawit with Rejang, had long been ill-disposed towards the Sarawak government, and two years ago they were fined, having been detected in a conspiracy to take the fort. Since that time they had remained quiet, and it would seem that Messrs. Fox and Steele had latterly ceased to mistrust them and their followers, and they had been allowed free ingress and egress to and from the fort. Taking advantage of the confidence reposed in them, it appears that on the 6th July some of the followers of these chiefs entered the fort with their krisses on, and finding a favourable opportunity, one of them with a long kris stabbed Mr. Steele, who was sitting in his room. Immediately afterwards another of the band cut down Mr. Fox, who was running to his friend's assistance. As neither of these unfortunate gentlemen were armed at the time, they could make no resistance. The garrison of the fort (Sarawak Malays) immediately seized their arms, and one of the band of murderers was killed, the rest flying under a fire of musketry from the fort. The Chinese shopkeepers then went into the fort for safety, only one Chinese (a servant in the fort) losing his life.

Two days after these occurrences, the garrison of the fort (whether through cowardice or treachery is unknown) vacated the place, and Kalai and Sawing took possession of it and burnt it to the ground. Most of the arms were saved, and are in the hands of the Malay population. The whole of the Dyak population of Kanawit (who were formerly strongly piratical) are reported to have turned out to revenge these murders, and are waiting permission to follow the Kanawits (Proper), who have attempted to get up the river, but have been stopped by the other Dyaks, who refuse to allow them to pass to the Kyan country, where they intended taking shelter. The Malay chiefs of Serikei, which is situated nearer the mouth of the Rejang, are said to be showing the utmost good-will. They were collecting the arms of the Kanawit Fort, and had seized a number of persons suspected of participating in the murders. One of the actual murderers was tried by them and put to death, and there seems little doubt that all those implicated in this atrocious affair will be ultimately captured. The Kanawits form a very small tribe, and have always had the reputation of being treacherous. They are tattooed, and entirely distinct and separate from the Serebas and Sakarran Dyaks who live on the Kanawit. Mr. Johnson, who is administering the Sarawak Government in the absence of his relatives, Sir James Brooke and Captain Brooke, left Sarawak on the 23rd ult. with a force to restore order, and to establish a fort and town in a more central and convenient position than Kanawit, which is at too great a distance from the sea. In Sarawak matters are flourishing, and the trade increasing steadily. Muka is now quiet, and numbers of Sarawak prahus were there loading sago.—Singapore Free Press.

REPORTED MASSACRE AT KUTEI.—It is reported that five Europeans have been murdered by the natives at the Dutch establishment at Kutei (Coti) on the east of Borneo. There is no mention of this in the Java papers received by the last mail, except in the Sourabaya Oostpost, which states that such a rumour prevailed, but that no confirmation of it had yet been received. It is not improbable, however, that the agitation amongst the native population of Banjer-massing may have spread to Kutei.

DUTCH ENTERPRISE.—A Dutch man-of-war is shortly expected at Singapore. After carrying the ratified treaty to Siam, she will proceed to Japan, to negotiate a treaty similar to that of the other European powers. Several Dutch subjects have applied for permission to bring into cultivation the Obie islands, lying to the east of Java. They are represented as peculiarly adapted for the cultivation of spices.

DUTCH PROHIBITIONS.—From W. N. Ward, Esq., to the Earl of Malmesbury, dated the Hague, 21st May, 1859. By the last India Mail information was received from Batavia that the Governor-general of the Netherland possessions in the Eastern Archipelago had published a declaration that the importation of woollen and cotton goods manufactured in countries to the westward of the Cape of Good Hope, and coming from places in Netherland India, or from free ports within the same possessions, into the nineteen harbours intended to be opened to foreign trade on the 31st of this month, was to be prohibited until further orders.

OFFICIAL CHANGES AT SINGAPORE.—Messrs. T. Dunman, commissioner of police, and W. Willans, magistrate of police, have been sworn in as commissioners of the Court of Requests. The last Government Gazette informs us that, in consequence of the departure of H. S. Mackenzie, Esq., resident councillor, Singapore, on leave of absence on furlough for three years, on sick certificate, the following removals and postings have been ordered:—Capt. Henry Mann, resident councillor at Malacca, to be resident councillor at Singapore, vice Mr. Mackenzie; Capt. R. Macpherson, assistant to the resident councillor at Malacca, to be resident councillor at Malacca; Capt. F. L. Playfair to be assistant to the resident councillor at Malacca.

SHIPWRECK.—The Dutch ship Hoop van Capelle, Capt. Bok, which left Batavia on July 16 for Rotterdam, with a cargo on account of the Dutch Trading Society, consisting of 5,000 piculs coffee, 5,300 piculs sugar, and 100 piculs rattans, struck on a rock in the Straits of Sunda, on the 19th, and filled with water.

DEATH OF SIR WILLIAM NORRIS.—We have to record the death of Sir Wm. Norris, late Recorder of Penang. He was admitted to the bar by the Hon. Society of the Middle Temple in 1827, and two years afterwards proceeded to India, where he practised with considerable success. In 1835 he was appointed Chief Justice of Ceylon, having previously acted as puisne judge there. His death took place on Wednesday, the 7th, at Ashurst Lodge, near Sunningdale, in his 66th year.

Organisation of the Artillery and Engineer Corps.

Military Department, Fort William, July 23.

No. 1,070.—H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following extract, paragraphs 1 to 4, from a military letter from the Right Hon. Secretary of State for India, to H.E. the Right Hon. the Gov. gen. of India in Council, No. 199, dated 14th June.

1. In reference to the despatch now under reply, I have reconsidered in Council the previous correspondence on the subject of inconveniences which have arisen from the operation of that part of the measure ordered by the late Court of Directors, for altering the organisation of the Artillery and Engineer Corps by which the commissions of the majors of those regiments who were made Lieut. colonels as well as those of existing Lieut. colonels were ante dated to the dates respectively on which they originally became majors.

2. By my despatch No. 97, dated March 24, you were informed that the special consideration of the adjustment of rank in the Artillery and Engineer Corps would be deferred until the full effects of the application to H.M.'s Indian forces, of the royal warrant of the 14th October, 1858, shall have been reported.

3. In consideration, however, of your further communications on this subject, and of your strong

* * As a remedy, and the only one which in our opinion will be effectual, we strongly recommend that as suggested by recommendation coinciding with that of H.E. the C. in C., that a remedy should be provided for these inconveniences and for the general supercession of officers of cavalry and infantry of the three Presidencies, which has been occasioned by the antedating of the commissions of majors and Lieut. cols., when introducing the recent changes in the organisation of the Artillery and Engineer Corps, H.M.'s Government have determined to cancel the back rank given under the orders of the late Court of Directors, dated July 8, 1858, No. 183, to the Lieut. cols. of Artillery and Engineers of the three Presidencies, and to the Lieutenants of these corps, respectively, and to direct that following the rule which was adopted when the rank of major was abolished in the Royal Artillery, their promotion shall take effect only from the date of the new organisation coming into operation.

4. You are accordingly authorised to carry this decision into immediate effect.

With reference to the authority conveyed in the above communication, H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to declare that the rank assigned to the several Lieut. cols., and Lieutenants of Artillery and Engineers at the three Presidencies, under the operation of the G.G.O. No. 1,238, of the 27th August, 1858, shall be considered as cancelled, and that the commissions of the several Lieut. cols. and Lieuts. promoted in consequence of the abolition of the grades of major and 2nd Lieut., shall bear date 27th August, 1858.

THE MUSEUM AT THE INDIA HOUSE.—The Grand Duke Constantine visited the museum at the India House on Saturday, the 3rd inst. His Imperial Highness was accompanied by Colonel Greig and Mr. Sabouloff, of the Russian Embassy. Mr. Prinsep and Captain Eastwick, members of the Indian Council; Mr. Baring, M.P., and Mr. J. C. Melvill, Under Secretaries of State, received the Grand Duke, and conducted him over the various departments of the museum. A number of most costly articles and rare gems were shown by the curator of the establishment; but his Imperial Highness evinced the greatest interest in the magnificent collection of specimens of the native timber of India, which was formed a short time since by the brothers Schlagentweit, one of whom fell a victim to the cruelty of some wild tribes of natives in Thibet.

MR. GREGOR GRANT has been permitted to resign the Bombay Civil Service from the 20th July, 1859.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

WEDNESDAY, Sept. 14, 1859.

HINDOO MORALITY.

THE Bombay papers received by the last Mail report a case of female infanticide, attended with circumstances of such peculiar atrocity that it becomes our painful duty to give it a place in these columns. A woman named Muckty, a Marathi Hindoo, deposed before a coroner's inquest that she was a widow cohabiting with a Purdesee named Gungaram Chittoo. On the 29th July, on her way to a wool warehouse where she was daily employed, she stopped at the house of Suckoo, a midwife, the door of which was opened to her by Gunnoo Narayan, a lad standing in the verandah, and evidently stationed there to keep away all obnoxious intruders. Entering the house she observed, as well as the darkness of the room would permit, a woman lying on a mat, and on the point of being delivered. Having obtained some water to drink the witness wished to proceed to her work, but was told by Suckoo to sit down and stay where she was. Whether through intimidation or a womanly love of gossip she did as she was desired, and about three in the afternoon the sick woman, Rukma, gave birth to a female child. The monster Suckoo then took up a razor, and having first deliberately cut off the left arm of the newborn babe at the shoulder-blade, severed the head from the trunk. This horrible crime was perpetrated in silence, which was only broken when Suckoo told the wretched mother "not to cry out," for she "appeared to be in great pain." The marks of blood on the mat were next removed by ashes being sprinkled over them, and the remains of the murdered infant were placed in a basket and covered over with a cloth. The door was then opened, and Gunnoo walked in. "Is it done?" he asked. "Yes," replied Suckoo; and she gave him the basket, which he carried away with him, merely remarking, "I'll take it to a room in my house which is empty." This Gunnoo, it may be here stated, has no occupation, but lives on the wages of his sister's intimacy. The witness further deposed that she was so frightened at what she had seen that she did not mention a word on the subject to anyone until the police officer went to her house.

Govind Suttoo was next examined, and stated that Gunnoo Narayan lived with him, and had desired him on the day above named to prepare dinner for five or six persons. In the early part of the day Gunnoo drank freely, and became partially intoxicated, and a little after three came in from the street with a basket on his arm, covered with a blood-stained cloth. The guests soon after assembled. There were present the two women Suckoo and Muckty, Gunnoo, Dowluttia, an intimate friend, and Krishna Dunsjee, the barber from whom the razor had been purchased. The dinner occupied two or three hours, for a good deal of liquor was drank, and finally Gunnoo became quarrelsome, and accused the witness of stealing some pots. A row ensued and the police interfered. On his way to the station-house Govind told the officer what he had seen, and the remains of the child were accordingly dug up in a room on the ground floor. A verdict of Wilful Murder was of course returned against Suckoo as the principal, and against Rukma and Gunnoo as "being feloniously present aiding and assisting." Strangely enough, nothing is said about the woman Muckty, who was also present both at the murder and at the subsequent debauch. The crime was clearly premeditated, and was perpetrated with a cold-blooded determination that could only proceed from an utter disregard of human life. There is little doubt that all the persons present at the orgie were cognizant of the circumstances, but not one of them would ever have given notice to the police had it not been for the drunken brawl between Gunnoo and Govind. Truly a pleasant picture of Hindoo civilization, and not to be matched in the very worst purloins of London. The mild Hindoo here appears in his true colours, capable of any atrocity, and steeled against the natural feelings of humanity.

A ROUND PEG FOR A ROUND HOLE.

To trust the experienced has ever been the advice of the wise. We English are acknowledged to be the most practical people under the sun, and accordingly in the ordinary affairs of life we find this maxim invariably followed. No banker or merchant who had any desire to be looked upon as other than a lunatic, would entrust the management of his business to a man who knew nothing about accounts. No railway company would think of confiding its property, in the shape of a locomotive and a long string of carriages—to say nothing of the lives of the passengers seated therein—to the chance guidance of a ploughboy, or carter—no matter how many prizes he might have carried off at the county show—who had never before driven an engine. The same rule obtains in every department of commercial or industrial enterprise, in which private interests are at stake. In all such cases the first questions put to the candidate for employment refer to his past experience of what he undertakes to perform. In matters of State, however, the very smallest amount of sagacity or knowledge is held sufficient for the conduct of the most delicate and difficult affairs. The same persons who would hesitate to place their private property, to the value of sixpence, at the disposal of an individual in whose wisdom and probity they had not perfect confidence, would not pause for a moment in ratifying his appointment—especially if he happened to be a lord, or even to know one—to the almost irresponsible administration of a vast dependency. In their eyes a coroneted noodle immediately on being gazetted Governor becomes sublimated, through some extraordinary process, to a higher order of being. By a species of inspiration he is at once imbued with the political sagacity of a Bolingbroke or a Peel, the administrative qualities of a Warren Hastings or a Wellesley, and the military genius of a Marlborough or a Wellington. How are these contradictions to be reconciled, except at the expense of the character we are so fond of assuming, of being the most manly, independent and sensible people on the face of the earth? We can understand a clique thrusting forward one of their tools into an office of importance to further their own ends. We can comprehend an unprincipled minister so blinded by the claims of party and so deaf to the remonstrances of patriotism as to hand over a colony to one of his followers, regardless of the fitness of his nominee for the performance of the duties devolving on him. But it is far less easy to account for the apathy, or infatuation, of the nation that tamely acquiesces in the unworthy selection of a public servant, and endorses without examination the statements of its stewards. Not the least remarkable examples of this culpable indifference on the part both of the ministry and the people may be gathered from the history of British India. It is unnecessary to look far for an instance—there is one ready to our hand. When Lord Dalhousie laid down the reins held so long in his firm uncompromising grasp, Indian affairs were in a difficult and even critical position. A rich and extensive country, inhabited by a turbulent and warlike race, had just been annexed; the finances were in anything but a satisfactory condition, and everything indicated the necessity of appointing as Governor-general a man fertile in expedients, prompt and resolute in action, and possessed of a large experience. And who was the man selected by the Ministry from the brilliant phalanx of British statesmen and legislators? The son of George Canning was chosen—not because Indian affairs had long engrossed his mind, not because he himself had given evidence of any extraordinary aptitude for such a post, but because his father almost went out to India. From cutting out postage-stamps and superintending penny postmen, the noble viscount was inducted into the vice-regal seat at Calcutta, and set over millions of men instead of millions of letters. The consequences are patent to the world. But will this dearly-bought experience be turned to good account hereafter? It is morally impossible that Lord Canning can be permitted any further to imperil our hold upon Hindostan. He has been fairly weighed in the balance and found wanting, and now his power must depart from him and be given to another. But who shall be that coming man? For whom has a wise Providence reserved the honourable task of reconciling two races of men, and restoring prosperity and happiness to a country for so many centuries a prey to foreign conquest and internal oppression? There are, in truth, three men, any one of whom is eligible for this distinguished honour. If it be really essential to the welfare of India that its viceroy should be a nobleman, there is one every way worthy of the rank and title he enjoys. The present Governor of Bombay has displayed administrative abilities of the highest order. He has acted at a most trying emergency with promptitude, prudence, and decision. There has been no indecent haste, no vacillation, no inconsistency in his acts or counsels. Calm and self-possessed, he has guided the vessel of the State safely and with certainty through rocks and shoals. His knowledge of India, too, is neither of recent date nor limited in extent. Whether as Governor of Madras or as Governor of Bombay, he has ever acquitted himself with ability, and in both capacities has won the respect of the many millions entrusted to his sway. If, then, a lord be wanted, in the Lord's name take this one.

Next, but scarcely second on the list, stands a name of which all Englishmen are justly proud. If the appointment of Governor-general were decided by universal suffrage, without any doubt the choice of the nation would fall upon Sir John Lawrence. No man, perhaps, ever united in himself more of the essential attributes that constitute a "hero." Thoroughly self-reliant, Sir John has displayed in the most trying circumstances a resolution and a readiness to accept the entire responsibility for which we can find no parallel but that of Nelson. His capacity for taking a wide and comprehensive view, his talent for analysing character and selecting his subordinates—a gift of the highest value in a ruler—and his vast practical experience of public affairs, pre-eminently fit him for undertaking the government of India at a most critical period. There is only one point, indeed, on which any misgiving can be entertained, but that is an important one. Sir John has been, perhaps accidentally, drawn in to identify himself with the Exeter-hall party, and to lend the influence of his name to the sectarian zeal of the proselytisers. This is a serious drawback, and, therefore, we should prefer to see him in the first instance in the Government House at Bombay, and, perchance, it might not be without advantage to the public interests if every Governor-general served his apprenticeship in one of the minor Presidencies.

There is yet another able man whose antecedents peculiarly qualify him for the vice-regal seat. We allude, of course, to Sir H. B. Frere, Chief Commissioner of Scinde, so well known as a talented, hardworking, firm yet considerate ruler. No man has ever served under him without becoming his attached friend, and in this he resembles the late lamented Sir Henry Lawrence. Like Sir John, he possesses an almost intuitive insight into men's characters, and is thus seldom mistaken in his distribution of patronage. Such a man as this must not be allowed to rest on the shelf. He was born to govern, and must not be thrown away on any minor occupation.

Here, then, is an ample choice. Three excellent and unexceptionable rulers, any one of whom is equal to the highest office that can be imposed upon him. No other man, be he viscount, marquis, or duke, can enter the lists against them, or stand up before them for a single moment. One of these must inevitably be the next Governor-general, and, whoever it be, his appointment will be hailed in India with loud acclamations and exceeding great joy. Only, if we would preserve that vast dependency, let there be no unnecessary delay in making the selection. Our Eastern empire is on the very verge of the declivity,—whose shall be the powerful hand to draw it back from certain destruction, and impel the wheel of fortune to a yet loftier eminence?

LINE UPON LINE.

BETWEEN the years 1837 and 1840 the Government of India, with a view to bring into cultivation the lands of the Deyrah Dhoon and Saharanpore, conferred in perpetuity on covenanted officers in the Company's service grants of certain estates to the extent of nearly 50,000 acres. All at once everybody was seized with the desire to become a landowner in the Dhoon, and applications for choice allotments poured in thick and fast. Lord Auckland, who in those days was Governor-gen., complained that all the best land was being monopolised, one farm alone extending in a narrow slip for five or six miles upon the banks of a stream, and containing some thousands of acres ready for the plough. These well-selected settlements, again, were generally appropriated by the public officers of the district, though not in their own name, and an engineer officer at Mussooree, of only two years' standing in the army, sent in an application for 4,000 acres. Much of this the Governor-general condemned as utterly wrong. "Public officers ought not," he wrote, "perhaps at all, to enter into speculations of this nature, and least of all ought they to do so in districts which they are appointed to manage." Notwithstanding this Minute the grantees were permitted to retain their estates, and some of them laid out considerable sums of money in clearing the land and preparing it for the plough. One of the most enterprising of these colonists was Mr. G. H. Smith, of the Civil Service, a gentleman well known in the Upper Provinces for his aptitude for business. In conjunction with his partners Mr. Smith erected factories and mills, reclaimed a vast extent of waste land, and imported machinery from Europe. Suddenly, in the midst of their brightening prospects, a public Notification was issued by the Lieut.-governor, on the 15th August, 1843, recommending all covenanted servants of the Government to dispose of their interest in private farms whenever an opportunity presented itself. A few months later, or, to speak more accurately, on the 17th April, 1844, there appeared a second Notification no longer recommending but "imperatively requiring all covenanted officers of Government either to relinquish all concern with the management of lands, or to resign the Company's service." But to effect a sale it is necessary that there should be not only a vendor but also a purchaser, and the Government had no power to create the latter. The natives were not likely to embark in undertakings producing no immediate results, and Europeans there were none possessed of sufficient capital beyond the pale of the Services. The estates in question were consequently disposed of at really an "alarming sacrifice," and the unfortunate speculators learnt to their cost how dangerous it is to confide in princes, even though they be only merchant princes. The Indian Services, however, have always been famous for wielding the pen of a ready writer, and a correspondence accordingly now commenced between the Government and its servants, which had not terminated on the 1st September, 1858. We have seen that a Minute on the subject of these grants was penned by Lord Auckland, and we shall find the strife still raging under the administration of Lord Can-ning.

The first memorial to the Court of Directors was submitted after the promulgation of the peremptory order to sell off. Of this no direct notice seems to have been taken, but further Government Orders were published on the 28th December, 1844, and the 3rd January, 1846,

"the first extending the period for Government servants retaining their interests, the second giving to the local Government a discretion to grant some special indulgences." The war of words, however, fairly commenced with a memorial from Mr. G. H. Smith, claiming compensation for his losses. In forwarding this document to the Supreme Government the Lieut.-governor observed that his opinions on the subject had already been "so fully expressed on former occasions that further observations were unnecessary." This was on the 15th October, 1847, but the memorial had been actually transmitted to Leadenhall-street by the Governor-general on the 5th June. On the 3rd October, 1849, the Court require a full report on the merits of the case, and abstain, in the meantime, from taking it into consideration. That was a skilful move, and secured a considerable period of repose from further annoyance, and gave Mr. Smith an opportunity of dying before his claims could be investigated, but the ungrateful man declined to avail himself of it. On the 25th January, 1851, three distinguished members of the Calcutta Council "have the honour to reply to the honourable Court's despatch," and to transmit the correspondence which had taken place with the Lieut.-governor of the North West Provinces, together with a note on the case prepared by the Under Secretary in the Revenue Department, and the minutes recorded by the members of the Government. Mr. Smith is pronounced to have "a very strong claim to some compensation," and a certain arrangement is proposed of an equitable and satisfactory nature. The "note on the case" occupies upwards of sixteen printed folio pages, and recapitulates all the arguments on both sides the question, including the Board of Revenue's objection to Mr. Smith's "anticipative incubation of profits," in ordering out from England a threshing mill and a sugar pressing mill. The meaning of the Johnsonian phraseology quoted above is not, perhaps, very intelligible, but, certainly, they be "prave 'orts," as Fluellin would say. Incubation, we believe, is usually an anticipative operation, and never applied after the eggs are hatched; and without some sort of metaphorical incubation we suspect that profits would not oftentimes be very large. Fortified by this "note" and the minutes of Government, and undaunted by the verbose objections of the Revenue Board, the Court of Directors, on the 2nd July, 1851, sanctioned, with a slight alteration, the arrangement proposed by the so-called Supreme Government. On the 31st Dec. the Lieut.-governor, acting on these instructions, authorises the payment of nearly £11,000 by way of compensation to Mr. Smith and his co-memorialists, but not until some further correspondence to the extent of two and a-half folio pages has been gone through between the Secretary of the Government of India with the Governor-general and the Secretary to the Government North-Western Provinces. Thus, in about four years and a-half from his first application, and after a voluminous correspondence between the different departments of Government, Mr. Smith duly received his share—7 14-24ths in 40 parts of the allotted compensation.

But the unfortunate Court was not yet clear of the annoyances produced by the ill-advised issue of grants, and their subsequent peremp-tory supercession. Captain William Barnett, a retired officer on the Bengal establishment, but then residing at Notting-hill, was the next to send in a petition, dated 22nd January, 1852. On the 14th February the petitioner is informed that his case has been "referred for the consideration and determination of the Government of India." "Our Governor-general," Lord Dalhousie, of course requests "that his Honour the Lieut.-governor will take Captain Barnett's memorial into consideration, and adjust his claim, if established." On the 21st May, 1852, the Officiating Assistant Secretary to the Government North West Provinces incloses to the Under Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department, Fort William, a copy of a letter from the Secretary, Sudder Board of Revenue, to be laid before the Most Noble the Governor-general of India in Council, previous to its transmission to the Honourable Court of Directors for consideration, before it is submitted in the last place to the President of the Board of Control. If any of our readers can follow this meandering channel of communication it must be owing to their familiarity with the wandering talk of Edwards, the engineer, as introduced to the public by Mr. Albert Smith. Captain Barnett's claim is pronounced inadmissible on certain grounds, which we need not recapitulate, for on the 20th October the gallant petitioner returned to the charge and challenged the decision of the authorities in India. The Court had consequently no choice but to send another despatch on the same subject to the Governor-general, dated the 26th January, 1853. A reply was forwarded on the 5th August following, to the effect that Captain Barnett's application was in principle similar to those which had already been conceded, and that consequently it was deserving of equally generous treatment. It is needless to remark that the correspondence on this subject extends to seven folio pages of printed matter.

This affair being settled, a third claimant arose in the person of Mr. Colin Lindsay, formerly of the Bengal Civil Service. His first application appears to have been sent in early in 1854, and straightway secretaries and officiating secretaries are all on the qui vive, being "directed to request," or "directed to call your attention," or "directed to forward for submission," the regular series of papers called into being on such occasions. The correspondence on this question runs through twelve folio pages, occupying the attention of Secretaries, and members of Council, and the Governor-general himself, and the Court of Directors from January, 1854, to September, 1858, and the last letter states that a warrant has been "made out in Mr. Lindsay's favour conditionally on his giving a receipt in acquittance of all demands; but he has not yet accepted these terms."

"But this is the old system," it may be said. "All this has been changed since Parliament took the government of India into its own hands, and appointed a Secretary of State to rule that department and be responsible for it." Your pardon, gentle reader. Such is still the system, and such will continue to be the system until the Governor-general of India be really a Viceroy, and not only in name. Choose the best man for the office to be found in all England; but having selected him give him power and trust him. The ruler of India must necessarily be a despot, because the people he has to govern are too object to govern themselves. He must, therefore, be in a position to act on his own judgment and responsibility, and not be compelled to write home for instructions concerning every trifling affair. The quantula sapientia required for the government of men is now a very stale joke, but at least that minute ingredient would go much farther than it does if it were used in conjunction with simplicity of details. No empire was ever yet established, or maintained, by a multitude of letter-writers.

SCINDE RAILWAY.

The report of the directors states that the remainder of the rolling stock has been shipped for Kurrachee, and a further portion of the line had been opened for the purposes of the railway. The general progress of the works along the line had been somewhat impeded by the difficulty in obtaining labour, and still more by the defective arrangements of the contractor; but as the officers of the company in India had, with the sanction of Government, taken possession of the line, with a view to its construction departmentally, the directors were assured that no time would be lost in bringing the works to a satisfactory completion, and that they had every expectation of seeing the entire line opened for traffic before the end of next year, as originally contemplated. The railway from Kotree (Port Hyderabad) to Kurrachee would naturally supersede the tedious, uncertain, and dangerous delays inseparable from the navigation of the Delta of the Indus, and a steam ferry was now in course of construction, in order to connect the upper terminus of the line at Kotree with Hyderabad on the opposite bank of the Indus, so as to secure to the railway the cross traffic of the country, which converged at Hyderabad. The trade of the port and the population of the town of Kurrachee continued to increase in the most satisfactory manner, and its commercial relations with England were every year becoming more direct and important. With regard to the Indus steam flotilla, the directors state that the large passenger steamer, after having undergone further trial, and served as a model for the construction of the remaining six passenger steamers, was taken to pieces and despatched to India on the second of July last. The seven accommodation flats had recently been shipped, and the six passenger steamers were rapidly approaching completion. Six towing steamers and twenty-five cargo barges, with the necessary artisans and appliances, left the port of Liverpool for Kurrachee on the 17th of July last, and eight additional cargo barges were now ready for shipment. There was every expectation of having in the course of next year the whole flotilla of fifty-three vessels in efficient operation on the Indus. The steamers had been severely tested, and pronounced admirably adapted to the work for which they were intended. The directors state, with regard to the Punjab Railway, that they have every reason to be satisfied with the progress of the undertaking. The conduct of the native contractors continued to be most satisfactory, and it was fully expected that the section from Lahore to Umritsir, thirty-two miles in length, would be completed before the end of next year. In conclusion, the directors state that they continue to receive every facility from the home Government as well as from the local authorities in Scinde and the Punjab for the furtherance of the important works intrusted to them.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CHINA AND JAPAN.—The correspondence relative to the Earl of Elgin's special missions to China and Japan, 1857—1859, was published on the 9th, in a bulky Blue-book of 400 pages, presented to the House of Commons by command of her Majesty, in pursuance of their address, dated July 15, 1859. The dates of the correspondence extend from the 20th of April, 1857, to May 19, 1859. The correspondence is chiefly confined to matters of detail, and its interest has, in a great measure, been superseded by the publication of news from China, arriving in the ordinary course. The Earl of Elgin in his last despatch, dated April 19th last, announces that the "secret edict" attributed to the Emperor of China is a forgery, and alludes to the publication of the consequent Imperial decree, which is regarded as a most important document, proclaiming to the whole empire the Imperial intention to abide by the terms of the peace of Tien-tsin. The Earl of Elgin's language to Count Poutiatine, the Russian envoy, was approved by the Foreign-office. The Count was very decided in the expression of his opinion that nothing could be done with the Chinese Government unless pressure were brought to bear upon Peking itself, and that the use of vessels drawing but little water would be the best means of making such pressure effective. The Earl of Elgin told his excellency that the English were pretty strong in such craft, that they had a quarrel of their own to settle in the neighbourhood of Hong Kong, but that when that affair was concluded they should be prepared to go northwards in force, and very glad to be accompanied by the flags of other European nations actuated by the same interests. This was in November, 1857. The state of the public prisons at Canton was considered so disgraceful (June, 1858) as to warrant a strong expression of opinion from the Earl of Malmesbury. The official report sent to his lordship appears fully to confirm the statement of our late special correspondent.

DEATH OF THE RIGHT REV. BISHOP CARR.—The Right Rev. Bishop Carr, rector of Bath, and formerly Bishop of Bombay, died on the morning of the 5th instant, at a quarter to eight o'clock, at his residence in Lansdown-crescent, Bath. About three weeks ago the right rev. gentleman, who was then in good health, was seized with paralysis, and he has since remained in a very precarious state, bulletins of the state of his health having been issued daily. He gradually sunk under the attack, and died as stated on Monday morning. He succeeded a few years ago the Right Hon. and Rev. W. J. Brodric upon that gentleman becoming a resident canon at Wells; and by his piety, charity, and freedom from intolerance, gained the good will of the whole city.

THE VICTORIA CROSS.—The Victoria Cross has been conferred upon Capt. A. Boyle, of H.M.'s 78th foot, and Private H. Addison, of the 43rd foot, for distinguished services performed in India.

BOOKS.

A Companion to the New Rifle Musket. By S. Bertram Browne. Second Edition. London: W. H. Allen and Co.

We know not that we can better describe the purport of this useful little manual than in Mr. Browne's own words. "The object of this little book," he says, "is to make the soldier acquainted with an easy and effectual mode of cleaning his rifle, and of keeping it in a proper state, so that it may always be ready for immediate use. Some further information is given, which, if properly attended to, will enable the soldier to become perfectly familiar with his weapon and with its various parts; and, this being accomplished, he may always feel sure that in his rifle he possesses not only an intimate acquaintance, but a trusty friend in time of need." The "further information" to which Mr. Browne so modestly alludes, refers to the making of gunpowder, cartridges, and percussion powder. It should also be mentioned that the text is illustrated throughout by numerous excellent engravings, so that to see is to understand.

Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine. No. DXXVII. Wm. Blackwood and Sons.

There are two articles in the current number of Blackwood which will be read by Anglo-Indian readers with considerable interest. The most important is a journal kept by Captain Speke, of the 46th B.N.I., while exploring the Tanganyika Lake, in Central Africa. It having been stated that there was an immense inland sea extending from the equator to 14 degrees S., with a breadth of two to three hundred miles, lying about seven hundred miles west of Zanzibar, the Royal Geographical Society sent out Captain Burton, the well-known traveller, with Captain Speke as his assistant, to ascertain the fact. The result of their explorations established the existence of a lake of delicious water between 3 and 8 degrees S., and in 29 degrees E., having a length of three hundred miles, and about thirty to forty miles across in the broadest part. It lies in the bosom of lofty mountains, is apparently of volcanic origin, and drains the surrounding district on all sides. "Its shores are thickly inhabited by numerous tribes of the true Negro breed, amongst which the most conspicuous are the Wabembe cannibals, into whose territory no Arabs durst ever venture."

The other article which we would recommend to the attention of our readers is the first part of a very amusing paper on Horse-dealing in Syria. The writer, a cavalry officer in the British service, was commissioned by the authorities to purchase horses for the army in the Crimea, and his proceedings are here related in a very lively and entertaining manner. It is thus he describes the horses of "the great Anazeh nation":

"The horses are small, not rising in general above fourteen hands one inch; but they are fine; and have great power and size for their height. I do not suppose that they would be much admired by a purely English horseman; in fact, we see every day that Arabs brought into England don't faire fortune, and experience teaches one that the English and the Arab horse look each absurd by turns, as the eye has grown accustomed to the other. But to my eye, used for some time to rest on nothing but the Eastern horse, they seemed to exceed all that I had yet seen in point of beauty. Stallions used to be led into our camp looking like horses in a picture; the limbs flat, broad, and powerful; deep below the knee, small and fine about the fetlock, of a cleanness and beauty of outline enough alone to stamp blood on their possessor; the neck light but yet arched; the flanks closely ribbed up; the tail carried out with a sweep like the curve of a palm branch; and the small head terminating in large nostrils always snorting and neighing. It was a beautiful sight to see one of them when he got wind of another stallion, draw himself up, with his neck arched, his ears pointed, and his eyes almost starting out of his head; his almost rigid stillness for the instant contrasting curiously with his evident readiness to break out into furious action."

• • • Grey of various shades, bay, chestnut, and brown are the ordinary, and it may almost be said the only colours of the Arab horse. The commonest of all colours is one which I recollect as being very frequent amongst the Arabs met with in India, a dark uniform nutmeg grey. Light grey, verging upon white, is neither rare nor peculiar to old horses. Next to grey in frequency come bay and chestnut, both fine and rich in quality, and the latter so prized above all other colours by the Arabs that they have a saying that if ever you hear of a horse performing any remarkable feats you will be sure to find on inquiry that he is a chestnut. Browns are not unfrequent; and in my register of horses bought from the Anazeh I find one black. But so rare is that colour, that if I had merely trusted to my recollection I should have said that I never saw a black horse in the desert. Of other colours I saw none, except in the solitary instance of a skew bald, and I cannot, at this moment, undertake to say whether he was an Anazeh, or belonged to some of the tribes where the purity of the breed can less be depended on."

THE INDUS and its PROVINCES: their Political and Commercial Importance considered in connection with Improved Means of Communication. Illustrated by Statistical Tables and Maps.

By W. P. ANDREW, F.R.G.S.

Chairman of the Scinde and Punjab Railways, and Indus Steam Flotilla; Author of "Indian Railways as connected with the Power and Stability of the British Empire in the East," &c., &c., &c.

"The Indus and its Provinces" is really as interesting to the general reader as it is essential to the merchant, the trader, the politician, and the historian."—Morning Chronicle, May 27, 1858.

"Not contented to repose on his laurels as the early advocate for the construction of Railways in India, Mr. Andrew has steadily persevered in developing his original idea, and now, after twelve years of incessant application, we find him concentrating his energies on the improvement of land and river communication in Scinde and the Punjab, though with ulterior views, extending far beyond the immediate benefit of those Provinces."—Allen's Indian Mail, June 13, 1858.

JAMS, JELLIES, and MARMALADE, PRESERVED IN TINS.

By BARNES, MORGAN, and Co.

(the Originators of this method of preserving), Upper Thames-street, London, E.C. This mode of Preserving is now acknowledged to be far superior to any yet invented. The contents will keep good for any number of years without the Tin imparting any metallic taste to the Preserve, and never candy or ferment. To Regimental Messes they are peculiarly adapted, being more portable than jars, and not liable to breakage. B. M. and Co. would also recommend their Pickles, Sauces, Fruit Nuts, &c., and their large stock of York and Cumberland Hams, Cheese, and Bacon.

THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS,
A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF BRITISH AND FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

This Newspaper presents a comprehensive and perfect view of British and Foreign affairs, with special reference to those subjects in any way interesting to residents in India, or those at home living connections there. The Intelligence is brought down to the latest possible moment prior to the departure of the Mail. The various departments are so arranged, and the intelligence analysed, as to form a weekly register of permanent interest and value, which subscribers will be glad to preserve.

The weekly issue of "THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS" renders it as eligible a newspaper for Anglo-Indians resident at home as abroad.

Families should send it to their friends abroad. Parties proceeding to India or China should not fail to order a year's subscription.

THE MELTON RIDING BELT.—Important to those who are suffering from Weakness in the Back and General Debility. The following is printed by permission:

"Sir,—You ask for my opinion of your Melton Riding Belt; I give it. Having resided for a long time in India, my constitution is very much debilitated, and for a long time I was suffering from a weakness in the back and the lower part of the body, which no internal remedy could reach, and the slightest exertion completely overpowered me. I was ordered by my medical man to wear a support, and seeing your advertisement I obtained one of your Melton Riding Belts, which I have worn for the last five months. It gives me great support. I can take riding or other exercise without feeling that extreme lassitude and weariness afterwards. My general health is much improved. You have my best thanks. You will secure my best support.—Yours truly, "Torquay, July 30, 1859. "J. PRATT MATTHEWS.
"To Wm. Elstah, 12, Avery-row, Bond-street."

The Melton Belt is sold by A. WHITBURN, Chemist, 174, Regent-street; of J. G. SHIPLEY, 179 and 181, Regent-street, London, price 21s.

Circulars and every information sent on receipt of address, and the Belt sent free on the size of the waist and hip, being sent to Wm. ELSTAH, the Sole Maker and Inventor, 12, Avery-row, Brook-street, Bond-street.

Gentlemen waited on if preferred.

ROWLANDS' ODONTO,

or PEARL DENTIFRICE, a White Powder, is composed of the choicest and most recherche ingredients of the Oriental herbal. It extricates all tortuous adhesions to the Teeth, and insures a pearl-like whiteness to the enamelled surface. Its anti-septic and anti-scorbutic properties exercise a highly beneficial and salutary influence; they arrest the further progress of decay of the Teeth, induce a healthy action of the gums, and cause them to assume the brightness and colour indicative of perfect soundness. The breath, also, from the salubrious and disinfecting qualities of the ODMONTO, attains a purity and fragrance truly grateful to its possessor.

PRICE 2s. 9d. PER BOX.

CAUTION.—The words "ROWLANDS' ODONTO, &c.," are on the Label, and "A. ROWLAND and SONS, 20, Hatton-garden," on the Government Stamp.

Sold by them, and by Chemists and Perfumers.

No. 9, LOWER GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.—Newly-invented and Patented application of chemically prepared WHITE and GUM-COLOURED INDIA-RUBBER in the construction of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, GUMS, and PALATES.

Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon-Dentist, No. 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee.

A new, original, and invaluable invention, consisting in the adaptation, with the most absolute perfection and success, of chemically prepared White and Gum-coloured India-rubber, as a lining to the ordinary gold or bone frame. The extraordinary results of this application may be briefly noted in a few of their most prominent features.

All sharp edges are avoided; no springs, wires, or fastenings, are required; a greatly increased freedom of suction is supplied, a natural elasticity, hitherto wholly unattainable; and a fit, perfected with the most unerring accuracy, is secured; while, from the softness and flexibility of the agents employed, the greatest support is given to the adjoining teeth when loose, or rendered tender by the absorption of the gums.

The acids of the mouth exert no agency on the chemically prepared India-rubber, and, as it is a non-conductor, fluids of any temperature may with thorough comfort be imbibed and retained in the mouth, all unpleasantness of smell and taste being, at the same time, wholly provided against by the peculiar nature of its preparation.

To be obtained only at 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, London; 14, Gay-street, Bath; and 10, Eldon-square, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

TEETH WITHOUT SPRINGS.

110, REGENT-STREET, and 33, LUDGATE-HILL, Are the Dental Establishments of

MESSRS. GABRIEL, the old-established DENTISTS, Patentees of the System for Insuring Perfect ARTICULATION and MASTICATION, without the impediments usually attendant upon the ordinary plans. In their IMPROVED MINERAL TEETH and FLEXIBLE GUMS there are no springs or wires, no extraction of roots; the fit is of the most unerring accuracy, while, from the flexibility of the agent employed, pressure upon the gums or remaining teeth is entirely avoided. It is permanent, wholesome, and congenial to the mouth, and, when in use, defies the notice of the closest observer. It is only necessary to see them to be convinced of their superiority; and unless every satisfaction is given, no fee is accepted.

The best materials are used, which Messrs. GABRIEL are enabled to supply at prices lower than are usually charged for common qualities, they having on the premises extensive laboratories for the manufacture of every speciality appertaining to the profession. Consultation gratis. Established 1804; and at 134, Duke-street, Liverpool.

GABRIEL'S TREATISE fully explains the system, and may be had gratis, for stamped envelope. The Patent White Enamel, which effectually restores decayed front teeth, can only be obtained as above.—OBSERVE THE NUMBERS.

PREPARED WHITE GUTTA PERCHA ENAMEL, the best Stopping for Decayed Teeth or Toothache, 1s. 6d. per box, obtainable through any Chemist in town or country, or direct Twenty Stamps.

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY.

20, Lombard-street, London, and Royal Insurance Buildings, Liverpool.

CHAIRMAN IN LIVERPOOL.—CHARLES TURNER, Esq.
CHAIRMAN OF LONDON BOARD.—SAMUEL BAKER, Esq.
The Royal Insurance Company is one of the largest Fire Offices in the Kingdom.

At the Annual Meeting of the 5th August, the following highly satisfactory results were shown:—
FIRE DEPARTMENT.
The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact—that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing, and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this Kingdom.

The Premiums for the year 1855 being... £130,000
While the Premiums for the year 1858 are... 196,148
Showing an actual increase of... 66,088
or upwards of 50 per cent. in three years.

The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1858) again show the Royal as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London Insurance Offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the moiety of its advance.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

The amount of new life premiums received this year is by far the largest received in any similar period since the commencement of the business, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful offices in the Kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 8,226, the sum assured £37,752, 6s. 8d., and the premium £12,354 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension of business during the last ten years. Thus:—

No. of Policies.	Sum Assured.	New Premiums.
1848 ... 98	£48,764 17 0	£1,380 9 1
1850 ... 190	98,650 9 11	2,627 4 7
1852 ... 422	181,594 10 6	5,829 5 10
1854 ... 408	161,848 13 4	4,694 16 0
1856 ... 703	297,540 16 8	8,850 3 11
1858 ... 832	587,752 6 8	12,354 3 4

The remarkable increase in the business of the last four years is mainly consequent upon the large bonus declared in 1855, which amounted to no less than 22 per cent. per annum on the sums assured, and averaged 80 per cent. upon the premiums paid.

PERCY M. DOVE, Manager and Actuary.
JOHN B. JOHNSTON, Secretary to the London Board.

JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228, Piccadilly, London.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—CHEERFULNESS.

Every resident in a town will remark the wonderful flow of good spirits always experienced from a visit to the country. The fact is the purer air renders the blood better fitted for its duties, which, in its turn, revives each drooping organ till its healthy action is established, and the result is the renewal of that energy, vivacity, and self-contentment, which too frequently fly with youth. Holloway's Pills will effect this happy change in all who cannot leave home, either from their straitened circumstances or daily occupation. The artist, student, merchant, and tradesman will alike derive benefit from these digestive and purifying Pills, which never fail to produce perfect action in stomach, liver, heart, lungs, and kidneys.

DR. JAMES'S POWDER for FEVERS.

INFLUENZA, MEASLES, RHEUMATISM, and all Inflammatory Disorders. No Medicine Chest is complete without it. So simple and certain, so mild and peculiar, is its action, that it is fitted alike for domestic or professional use. The genuine has "F. NEWBERRY, No. 45, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD," London, engraved on the Government Stamp. Packets, 2s. 9d. each; Bottles, 11s. Be careful to ask for "NEWBERRY'S," the Original Preparation. Established A.D. 1746.

PROPRIETOR OF THE COD LIVER OIL CAKES.

THE MAGNESIAN EFFERVESCENT is

the most agreeable and effective remedy in all cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Acidity, Heartburn, Indigestion, and Biliary Affection, Nausea, Fever, Thirst, and Sea-sickness. It is highly recommended by the profession, and will be found especially valuable to those going to India or travelling in warm climates; as a mild and efficacious saline aperient it stands unequalled, and will be found peculiarly adapted for delicate females and children. To be obtained through all respectable chemists, and wholesale from Messrs. BACCLAY, Farringdon-street (put up in stoppered bottles at 4s. 6d. for India), and smaller size at 1s. 10d. and 2s. 9d.

Prepared only by EDWARD PRICHARD, Chemist, 10, Vigo-street, Regent-street, W.

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

The Mails for China are despatched at the same rate of postage as those to India; but must be pre-paid.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

It is stated in the Overland Summary of the Bombay Gazette, August the 20th—the latest date from India—that the Hon. Mr. Bruce, British Ambassador to the Court of Peking, has applied to the Governor-general of India for reinforcements. The troops originally intended for China were in no small degree instrumental in the suppression of the Indian rebellion, and thus an opportunity is afforded of rendering to Mr. Bruce a requital of the assistance received from his brother, Lord Elgin. But, unfortunately, Lord Canning has deprived himself of the means of doing as he has been done by. If the discharged Europeans can be prevailed upon to re-enlist for special duty in China, a considerable force might at once be despatched. But there is the rub. Will those men prove sufficiently magnanimous to forget their grievance against the Governor-general in their desire to serve their country? We confess that we are not sanguine as to the result of such an appeal to their better feelings. It is more likely that they will insist upon returning to England before they again take military service. At present their bitterness is at its height, for they have learned that soldiers from the Queen's regiments are offered a bounty for enlisting for the local corps. Forty-four men of H.M.'s 14th Light Dragoons are said to have been transferred to the Indian Artillery, and more would have followed their example had not the Commander-in-Chief prohibited any further recruiting from that distinguished regiment. The number of men for whom passages will have to be provided is estimated at 10,200, of whom 5,800 are from Bengal, 2,300 from Madras, and 2,100 from Bombay. According to the Mofussilite, however, 6,020 men have already claimed their discharge from the Bengal army, distributed as follows through the different regiments:—

1st Light Cavalry .. ..	330
2nd Ditto .. ..	470
3rd Ditto .. ..	220
4th Ditto .. ..	450
5th Ditto .. ..	450
1st European Infantry .. ..	230
2nd Ditto .. ..	420
3rd Ditto .. ..	650
4th Ditto .. ..	475
5th Ditto .. ..	700
6th Ditto .. ..	225
Artillery .. ..	2,700
Sappers, Town Major's List, &c. ..	1,300
Total of all arms .. ..	6,020

With regard to the China expedition, it is whispered that it is not the intention of H.M.'s Ministers to do more than inflict a prompt and severe chastisement, and for this purpose no very large force will be required. "The age of conquests is passed,"—at least, such is the expressed opinion of his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of the French, whose fleet and army are to co-operate with our own. It is not improbable, therefore, that all idea of communicating direct with the Court of Peking will be given up as useless and inexpedient, and that certain "material guarantees," in the shape of seaport towns, will be taken possession of in the name of Christianity, civilisation, and commerce.

H.M. the Queen has notified her gracious intention to appoint Major-general Sir Hugh Rose, G.C.B., to the chief command of the Indian armies, as successor to Lord Clyde, who has tendered his resignation—chafing under viceregal interference. Major-general Sir William Mansfield, K.C.B., will also succeed to the command of the Bombay army, vice Lieut.-general Sir H. Somerset, K.C.B.

Our Madras correspondent, it will be seen, was only too accurate in his information regarding the issue of greased cartridges to the 5th regiment light cavalry at Secunderabad. The blame, we presume, will, as usual, be laid to "the system," that convenient scapegoat for official carelessness and presumption.

BENGAL.

AHITHOPHEL.

If the rebellion was not fertile in great men on the native side it developed an amount and a kind of character the full extent and nature of which we cannot understand or sympathise with. For a short time it afforded a career to men who, under the Moguls, would have ruled courts, filled thrones, and commanded victorious armies, but whose restless longing for the kind of activity dear to the Asiatic had found vent only in litigation and debauchery. Rajahs, whose warlike tastes had manifested themselves only in the glitter of a liveried troop of servants; Zemindars, who had never been able to claim a more honourable victory than a triumph over latials; poor adventurers, who had found Dacoitee, Thuggee, and other forms of violence and murder the only means for the exercise of their talents; even traders and menial servants, who had wasted their warlike vis in deception and chicanery, suddenly found a field for the exercise of their various powers in the revolt of 1857. We, whose whole nature and training unfit us to judge of the Asiatic, looked at the insurgent mass from the outside, and did not stop to fathom their varied motives, to understand their different temptations to rise up against us, to observe the play of their passion and the direction of their hate. We had suffered—suffered as no nation before us ever did, our power had to be re-established, our wrongs avenged, and there was little time. But now that the storm is over and the rebel fleet has been shattered to pieces by its fury, we can calmly watch the wrecked fragments, as the ocean, no longer troubled, casts them up upon the shore. Many, now beyond the frontier, will no doubt escape us, though disease and starvation will have them sooner or later. There are Nana Sahib, and Azimoolah Khan, his minister, once a khitmutgar. There are Mummoo Khan, the Begum's paramour, and Dabee Bux, the Rajah of Gonda, and Bala Rao reported as recently dead, and a score of Talookdars with their retainers like feudal barons of old. The Central India leaders, Furzund Ali, Runmust Singh, Burjore Singh, Feroze Shah, and Rao Sahib have yet to be hunted down. The trials of the last of the Moguls and the Nawab of Furruckabad have revealed facts of which a skilful novelist might well avail himself. If we could have looked at the rebel forces from within when they were at the height of their triumph, we might have found materials of which to form an epic as varied in its characters as the Iliad, and as dark in its gloom as the Inferno.

One who may with truth be called the Ahithophel of the Rebellion was tried in March last, before Mr. George Campbell, the judicial commissioner of Oude, and Major Barrow, and the papers have just been made public. Moulvie Fuzul Huk, not to be confounded with another notable scoundrel of the same name, who was a chukladar and leader of the rebel troops, was a leading adviser of the rebel Court of Delhi in 1857, and of the rebel chiefs in Oude in 1858. He was born in Oude, of a family which owed everything to the British, and he himself occupied a good position in their service. Leaving it he filled offices of some honour and importance in Oude, Rampore, and Ulwar, so that he became well known among the natives all over Upper India. Leaving the Court of Ulwar, when the mutiny began he went to Delhi. His time had come. He threw himself and his fortunes at once boldly into the vortex of revolt and took his chance. Of his conduct in Delhi, in the eventful months of its siege, clear evidence was not produced. When the city fell he seems to have attached himself to the Oude party, and especially to Mummoo Khan. A sort of rebel council, termed by themselves "Urbab Shora," or Masters of Consultations, and known by the English as the "Cutcherry Parliament," was held at Bondee, and Moulvie Fuzul Huk was its leading spirit. He was high in the confidence of the chiefs, and at once ambitious, wise, and bigoted, was always consulted by them. It was this class of men who prolonged the contest and increased its cruelties. It was this class who began the struggle, as in the case of Ahmed Alee Shah, the Fyzabad Moulvie, who, from Arcot, his native place, regularly preached a crusade against the Christian, a Jihad, a holy war, from city to city, and station to station, till he reached Fyzabad, in February, 1857, and offered armed resistance to the magistrate. Of this class also were the Moulvie at Allahabad, and the fanatics of Hyderabad, who even yet keep the city in commotion. If the actual soldier, caught with arms in his hands reeking with Christian blood, deserved death, doubly so did the class who used the soldier as a machine for their own ends. This Fuzul Huk "quoted and perverted texts from the Koran, insisted that the persons who had served the English were apostates, and their death was required by the law, and even went so far as to tell the rebel chief that if he spared them he was himself a criminal in the eye of God." Found guilty of having been an instigator of rebellion and a propounder of doctrines calculated to encourage murder, he was sentenced as a State prisoner to be transported for life, and to the confiscation of his property. Considering his advanced age, his position in life, and his character as an Oude subject, and for many years past a servant of native states, he was not treated as an ordinary convict.

The teaching of the Koran can produce only one kind of fruit, and we see it in Fuzul Huk. Like the Papacy, circumstances may seem to modify and pretences to cloak its unsparing and blood-thirsty exclusiveness. But it will change only when it perishes. Well for us if the rebellion, which has disclosed a plot against Christianity extending from Cairo to Borneo, have the same effect in leading us manfully to declare the truth as the Armada had, when with its broken timbers it shattered the Papal League.—Friend of India.

MUSINGS ON THE INDIAN APOSTOLATE.

If there is any difference in the people, it is in favour of the missionary: the people are not so rich, and the Brahmin priests have not altogether so much influence as they once possessed. Caste is still all powerful, and there is in many parts a high sense of personal and family honour. In the Southern Maratta Country, Dharwar and Belgaum for example, in general the men are brave and energetic, and the women virtuous: the rule is proved by the exceptions. When a murder takes place, it is invariably traceable to some domestic injury, the disgrace attaching to which is not to be borne. The murderer confesses his crime, and will often refuse to plead the provocation, and mounts the scaffold unquailing to meet death, his life being no longer bearable on the destruction of his honour. Heaven forbid that we should approve the conduct of the murderer! but we will maintain that such a character offers far more hope to the missionary than one which will calculate the precise value of his domestic happiness in pounds, shillings, and pence, and sue the destroyer of it for compensation. There you will see these men turn aside and prostrate themselves towards the water as you meet them on the bund or embankment of a tank, and your curiosity being excited, you look and see a temple on a pretty island opposite in the lake nearly half a mile off, and you find the man who has prostrated himself is in a direct line to the object of his mistaken adoration. If you happen to pitch your tent near a temple in one of these villages, you will hear the tinkle of the bell almost continuously sounding from daybreak till the time of the early meal; each devotee who comes to visit the idol touching the bell in token of his purpose. They will turn a European, even an officer of Government, into a new idol, so to speak, if they are convinced of his earnest intentions for their good. This was the case in a district of the Poona Collectorate some years ago. The people had been sorely oppressed by their Brahmin officials, and they could get no redress. The young officer we speak of had immense energy, a large heart, and much talent. He soon broke through the official barrier which usually screens the European magistrate from the ryot. He could speak Maratta as fluently as English, could read the reports of his mamledars, and write orders thereon. During the cool hours of the morning and evening he was about the villages, either in the fields or in the chourree, seeing how his orders had been carried out, and checking the accounts of the collecting of the revenue to make sure no one had been overcharged. He found the assessment too heavy, and, by his influence and energy, got Government to reduce it. This is eighteen years ago, but still the pet name by which he laughed to hear himself called by the natives, "Nana Sahib" (not then disgraced as it is now), is remembered with affection to this day in numbers of Coonbee houses. He affected something of the Maratta customs, but not to a degree which would shock even a fastidious European of the present day. In his village tours he read his papers and transacted his business sitting on a cushion on the carpet of his tent, leaning against red bolsters, in the style of Brahmin carkoons. He would leave his Maratta shoes at the tent door, sitting barefoot. He wore pajamas of red silk and a loose muslin feiran over a flannel jacket; a white-covered, broad-brimmed hat was his head covering. This dress was only assumed as a comfortable morning costume, and in the afternoon his usual European costume was resumed; but the Coonbees liked to be able to come and say a word from time to time to the sahib in his tent, and this they could always do. Depend upon it the natives of the interior are more amenable to the influences of Europeans whose object is their good, (and this they will soon see,) than is generally supposed. The blood of European women and children was shed by a far different class of men to those we have in the interior of this Presidency—a set of high caste Brahmin soldiers, pampered and spoilt by bad management, drawn from disaffected provinces, the inhabitants of which have been traditionally adventurers and reckless, and these supported again by camp followers, and the scum of towns, generally dissipated spendthrifts, gamblers, and thieves. Even in Bengal, where the people are far inferior in moral characteristics, it was found, during the mutinies, that the cultivators and village communities were neutral, and would generally help the Europeans, unless where they were afraid of the rebel soldiery. Believe it, there is much to interest the Christian missionary in these people. In what country in Europe, save, perhaps, Croatia, will you see a family consisting of a father, his two or three sons, and two or three nephews, all married and with children growing up, living in peace and contentment in the same menage, the widowed grandmother, probably, directing the entire economy of the establishment, even to preparing the kists or instalments of the Government revenue, keeping the receipt book, and deciding the alternations of crop in the several lands? This one may often see among these simple people. You may often see the old dole administered in any of the up-country towns as you pass through of a morning. You may see a dozen objects of commiseration or disgust, according to the education of the beholder, awaiting with satchels or baskets to receive alms in, at the gateway of a large quadrangular mansion, resembling in arrangement the old family houses of the Continent. It is, perhaps, the house of a rich Brahmin trader, whose houndees are exchanged with wealthy bankers of Benares, Allahabad or Delhi. Presently a young woman of some beauty, and jewelled as well as richly dressed, will appear at the gate with a large basket of uncooked rice, and from this she doles out, by handfuls, alms to each of these unfortunates in his turn. Your curiosity is excited, and you watch narrowly without being rude; the beggars are evidently quite accustomed to it, and each walks off without more ado as he gets his allotted share; they do not press a bit about the lady. When the alms are all given, the giver leaves as quietly as she came; and it will probably strike you, that from the time she came till she went back, her modest eye has not wandered from the work she had in hand. The more one sees of the interior of this heathen country and its people in this simple state, the more one is obliged to admit the truth of the saying, Corruptio optimi pessima est.—Catholic Examiner.

MISCELLANEOUS.

PUBLIC WORKS.—Government had occasion to remark lately on the practice of certain executive engineers in Bengal to submit estimates for sanctioned works after they had been commenced upon, and were well nigh completed. The Government declared that it could not receive these as estimates; they were, in fact, bills, which, as a matter of course, had only to be passed for audit.

FIREPROOF BUILDINGS.—Mr. Clark, engineer to the municipal commissioners at Calcutta, has taken out a patent for a new method of constructing roofs and floors, at once light, cheap, and durable. It consists of a brick arch secured by iron ties, and as the ties are susceptible of any variety of ornamentation, the appearance of a room is improved when this plan is substituted for the usual one of beams and burgals. Buildings so constructed will also have the advantage of being fireproof, as no timber is used in their construction.

GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.—It is said that the troops in Oude are to take the field in October next against the Nana. The North-West journals complain of the stoppage of all public works of an expensive nature in Oude. The Delhi Gazette states that Burjoye Sing's party has entirely broken up, owing to the activity of Swiney's police. We hear from Mhow that 1,600 Europeans from the Bengal provinces, and about seven hundred from that station, are to be despatched to Bombay as early as possible. The Commissioner in Rohilcund has been directed to try, experimentally, the manufacture of date sugar, as the date tree is abundant there. The Mofussilite believes that the number of discharged soldiers for whom passages will have to be provided is: from Bengal, 5,800; Madras, 2,800; and Bombay, 2,100; total, 10,200. The same journal states that orders have been issued that all telegraphic messages, whether on service or private, shall be paid for. Government servants have remonstrated against this, because they have to send messages late at night, and early in the morning when money is not procurable. We learn from the New Times that the permanent way of the railway between Cawnpore and Agra has been completed, and would have been opened shortly but for the want of rails, which have not as yet arrived. The artillery brigade of the Saugor field division has been broken up. The corps of Sikh volunteers has also been broken up and the men transferred to the Allypore levy.

THE HOMEWARD BOUND.—We observe that the officers of the army are volunteering after all to escort the retiring troops home. It is reported in the Punjab journals that the officers of the left wing of Fusiliers at Rawul Pindee, about half a dozen cavalry officers of Campbellpore, four of artillery, and several of H. M.'s 94th at Peshawar, have volunteered to take charge of the troops who have taken their discharge.

THE SEABOARD CORPS being reported fit for service, have been directed to proceed to the Andamans, with their women and children.

FEROZE SHAH.—A letter from Augur to the Delhi Gazette, under date July 25th, says that a force, consisting of a portion of Mayne's horse, 100 of the 1st Mahratta cavalry, and other troops, left Beorah on the 22nd for a dour after Feroze Shah and other rebels in the direction of Narsinghur. The authorities have good information of their whereabouts, as the force had been collecting for some days previously, and it is reported that a capital plan has been arranged for capturing them. Feroze Shah, with some 500 followers, has joined Adil Mahomed near Garispore, on the Indore road. A detachment was in orders to move from Saugor immediately, to Ratghur it was supposed, to co-operate with troops at Seronj and Bilsa, against the rebels. The Rao Sahib is said to have left these parts, and with twenty followers has travelled west, to hide till he can collect enough of followers, after the rains, to escape altogether.

CASHMERE.—The Hurkaru has been informed that the few remaining delinquents who were implicated in the late plot against the life of the Maharajah of Cashmere have been arrested and punished. All family dissensions in his highness's darbar are now at an end, and everything is quiet at present. The revision of the tariff recently made by the Maharajah seems to have given general satisfaction to the ryots; but there is a general cry for a reduction in the export duty, which is very exorbitant. Several European visitors have arrived, and some of them have had an interview with the Maharajah.

ROADS AND RAILWAY STATIONS.—The Governor General has called for a report on the subject of the completion of all existing roads, and on the construction of all new ones, leading to the present and proposed railway stations throughout India, from the towns and villages adjoining them, by which means traffic will be greatly increased. Reports have also been called for as to the fortifying of railway stations, and some are now before the Government for orders. It is not decided whether the expense of these will be borne by the railway companies or by the State.

PROGRESS OF DISARMAMENT.—From an official list of arms surrendered in Oude, we find that the total amount collected up to the 2nd of July has been,—656 cannons, 172,761 fire arms, 535,129 swords, 47,727 spears, and 626,485 miscellaneous weapons.

THE NEW CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, as settled by the Legislative Council in Committee on the 30th July, will operate upon British subjects who commit crimes in the Mofussil only so far as to enable them to be sent down for trial in the Supreme Courts. The Code, as it will now stand, does not give the Mofussil Courts any more jurisdiction over British subjects than they at present have.

RAILWAY WORKS.—We have much pleasure in announcing the completion of a further portion of the East India railway works. The line is ready as far as the River More, forty-eight miles from Birdwan, and will be opened for traffic very shortly. The magnitude of the works on this portion must be taken to be appreciated, and the result is highly creditable to the engineers engaged in the work. All the bridges, including the immense bridge across the Adjai, are completed for a single line of rails, and there is little doubt but that the bridge across the More will be open for traffic in four months, if the same activity is displayed in its completion as in that over the Adjai.

RAJA OF SATASSEE.—It was mentioned some time ago that the Raja of Satassee had committed suicide. His brother, now a prisoner at Alipore, under sentence of ten years' transportation, has memorialised Government, through Mr. Theobald, that the sentence may not be carried into effect at present—the grounds for applying for pardon being, that his mother-in-law saved the families of Mr. Cook, an indigo planter, and Mr. Osborne, a deputy opium agent at Goruckpore.

PLOT AND PASSION.—The Delhi Gazette, alluding to the recent plot in the Punjab, states:—"We, too, have had our plot at Agra, and it was discovered curiously enough on the thanksgiving day. As far as we have been informed as yet, it appears to have been on this wise: A havildar of the old 18th N.I. was apprehended in consequence of information given to the magistrate, and papers were found in his possession proving him to have been in correspondence with rebels in some part of the country, where we do not know, as the letter had no address. It is supposed that it was intended for Feroze Shah. However, the document in question was to the effect that an attack on Agra could not fail to be successful, as the fort could easily be captured by a thousand men; after which the usual ceremonies were to be gone through, slaughtering of the Christian inhabitants, and sundry mild demonstrations of a similar kind. The affair came to light by what is usually called accident. The havildar had a daughter—was there ever anything in which one of the fair sex was not concerned?—who was betrothed; but the father, for some reason, broke off the match, and the disappointed bridegroom took his revenge by reporting the havildar."

OUDE.—The truth is gradually oozing out that Oude is to be gradually reduced to a simple division of the North-Western Provinces. It is fully believed that we can do without a Judicial Commissioner, and the experiment is going to be tried; and we also hear that the appointments of Chief of Police and Military Secretary to the Chief Commissioner are to be amalgamated, and that in all probability Major Bruce, C.B.—the fittest man certainly in Oude or elsewhere—will be the first incumbent under the new arrangement, under the designation of, we believe, Judicial Assistant to the Chief Commissioner, the pomp and vanity of which latter office, too, being expected to settle down in course of time to a respectable ordinary Commissionership. A saving of nearly half a lac a year will be effected by the first arrangement.—Lucknow Herald.

CAMP SEPREE, Aug. 5, 1859.—During the last fortnight the weather has been very unpropitious; incessant raining and dense masses of clouds continually drifting from S.W., obscuring the sun. The consequence was the tumbling down of newly-built houses and the walls of the entrenchment; crash after crash in succession were heard. To-day, however, the weather has cleared up, and the workmen have set about to remedy the damage done. We were all falling into a state of lethargy for want of change, when a roaring of cannons was heard, announcing the approach of some Big-wigs. Each one strained his eyes to make out the colours as to who this new comer could be; and as the smoke cleared up the true colours appeared; it was that of his highness the Sindia, returning from Goonah. Soon after the Political Agent for Central India came in, and another political gentleman. Amongst these was another personage of importance, the ex-Dewan of Sindia, Jeketrow. All collected and held a certain debate, and each one went his way. His highness showed himself a rare exception to the Indian royalty in doing away with the horde of attendants and useless followers, who did nothing more than make noise at the top of their voices, and kept time with the ear-sore music of tum-tum. His highness, whenever out, took a small body guard, mounted, who kept a respectable distance from their master. By this, it would seem, his highness is casting off his national notions, and is fast imbibing European tastes. Among the arrivals is a gentleman from Jhansi, who in one of the villages was seriously warned by the head man, in a mysterious tone, to beware of koothas and bilkees.—Bombay Times.

THE LOSS OF THE "CHINSURAH."—The following is an authentic report of the loss of the Chinsurah, a bark of 461 tons, Capt. Eastaway, from London to Calcutta, with a very valuable cargo, which was lost on the Gaspar on the 1st August. On the 24th July the pilot took charge of the ship and found the captain in a dying state. Owing to a violent gale coming on, he was obliged to put to sea. The gale continued from the 24th to the 27th, when it moderated. On the 26th the ship seriously damaged her rudder. On the 30th anchored in the Gaspar Channel.

On the 1st the wind came round to the South West, and as there was too heavy a sea to ride in the Gaspar Channel, weighed and endeavoured to get into Saugor roads, engaging the Sestos tug steamer to take the ship in tow. On approaching the centre buoy of the Gaspar, the vessel became unmanageable. Signalled the Sestos for immediate assistance, as the rudder was damaged. The steamer took no further notice, except hoisting the signal, steer N.N.W. At 2.30 struck heavily in nineteen feet six inches, steamer Sestos still keeping a long distance off. At 3.30 ship had seven feet water in her hold, her white paint being then half under water. To the astonishment of those on board, the steamer left them, making the best of her way for Saugor roads, although they must have seen that there were no boats at the quarters. At 4.30 they succeeded in launching two of the boats, and the ship being nearly under water, the crew proceeded on board the Floating Light. Capt. Shilstone behaved most kindly to all. On Tuesday morning made a signal to the Gertrude; Capt. Adley sent his boats, and brought the crew of the Chinsurah up to town. On approaching Saugor roads saw the steamer Sestos going down to the Gaspar, on seeing the Chinsurah's crew on board the Gertrude she returned, without even asking whether they were all safe or not.

CAMP NEAR SERONGE, August 2.—From information received by the authorities at this station, it appears the rebels are not yet totally dispersed from this locality, as a party consisting of 75 men H.M.'s 89th regiment, 75 of 10th regiment N.I., and 50 of Mayne's horse, was despatched from this at 4 P.M. yesterday, en route to Agra Bukara (under command of Captain Holmes, H.M.'s 89th regiment), where it is rumoured a party of them is still lurking. The time they are to remain from quarters is not known. The monsoon has set in here in downright earnest. There has been a constant fall of water for the last ten days, which has poured in torrents through the temporary huts, much to the detriment of the men's arms and accoutrements, besides causing them great annoyance. The station looks quite gloomy at present. There is nothing else going on at present worth your notice.

August 5.—The field force which left this on the 1st instant, under command of Capt. Holmes, H. M.'s 89th regiment, returned last night highly elated with their success at having surprised a body of rebels, about 100, in a jungle about fifteen miles from Leteria and six north of Agra Bukara, after marching from 11 P.M. on the 2nd till 3½ A.M. on the 3rd. The force was obliged to halt in consequence of the intense darkness that prevailed, owing to the incessant fall of rain during the night, and not being able to discover where the rebels were encamped before the daylight appeared, immediately after which a sentry was discovered on the slope of an adjacent hill, who did not perceive the force till quite close to him, they being screened by the brushwood through which they were quickly advancing. As soon as he perceived them he ran for the purpose of giving the alarm, but half a dozen Enfield bullets from the 89th sent him to give an account of his misdeeds in another world. Mayne's horse were despatched in skirmishing order to surround the hill, to prevent their escape; while the 89th advanced up the hill in double time, the 10th N.I. being on the right. The 89th being anxious for a go in at the rebels only fired a few rounds, when they charged through their tents, leaving over forty of them weltering in their gore; the remainder rushed madly down the hill, in the hopes of escaping by means of a great nullah, but met with no very friendly reception from Mayne's horse, which their blood-stained sabres proved. The 10th N.I. had little or no opportunity of displaying their gallantry, for which they have been characteristic during the campaign, but they certainly minded the main point, as most of the loot fell to their share; being old campaigners they knew where to look for it. They seized fifteen most excellent horses; there were a number of muskets, matchlocks, pistols, sabres, cutlasses, &c., found on the plateau where their rowties were pitched. The 89th had two men wounded one by a sabre cut in the hand in a close encounter with a fierce, robust looking fellow, who delivered his cut after being pierced with the bayonet, and was in the act of repeating the blow when his head was severed from his body by Lieut. Burton, interpreter to H.M.'s 89th regiment, thereby saving the life of the 89th man, who was unable to withdraw his bayonet, having driven it right through his opponent's body. There were very few of them left to tell the tale; there were three women with them, one of whom was wounded before her sex was discovered. I hope this will be a salutary lesson for the remainder of them who are still lurking about this district. They were all fine specimens of native troops, and are supposed to belong to the Gwalior Contingent.

OVERTAKEN BY JUSTICE.—Major Waterfield was, as our readers will remember, murdered by a party of rebel horsemen under the command of Ruheem Ali of Boolundshuhur. This happened on the road from Mynpoorie to Agra, in May, 1858. Up to the present time no one has been brought to justice for the crime. A few months back Ruheem Ali himself surrendered in the Jyepoor State, under the terms of the amnesty, and has since been living in his old quarters at Boolundshuhur. A new light seems to have now broken in upon the authorities. Three or four nights ago he was brought into Agra under charge of a strong escort, and lodged in gaol preparatory to trial.

SAUGOR, August 4th.—Two detachments were sent from Saugor after rebels the day of the public thanksgiving for the restoration of tranquillity. It was said that Feroze Shah had joined Adil Mahomed about sixty miles from this in or near the Indore road, and one detachment was ordered off to co-operate with others now in those parts belonging either to Gwalior or Mhow, I know not which. During the day it was ascertained that a large body of mutineers were passing through the district, and her Majesty's 12th lancers and some irregular cavalry started at noon in pursuit, but the state of the roads and a heavy storm at night prevented their doing anything, and they had difficulty in getting back after a night of great exposure. The rebels are gone either to Shahgurd or to the jungles on the banks of the Betwa. Whether Feroze Shah was with them seems doubtful. There are other rebels around, but they had suffered some loss lately, and the villagers who aid them had in some instances been seized.

DELHI.—A letter appears in one of the Calcutta papers, which mentions that although it was confidently stated some time ago that steps would be taken to strengthen the Fort of Delhi, so as to make it a place of refuge, nothing has yet been done to effect this object. Heavy guns were to be placed at the Delhi and Lahore gates of the palace, and everything done to render it complete. There are no signs of the project being carried out, and for the present it is allowed to be shelved. As it was proposed some time ago, the magazine ought to be removed into the fort at once, and the writer has no doubt of the policy of the arrangement, and says if it is to be done it were best done quickly. He thinks there are stronger claims for compensation in the case of those who have lost property in Delhi, and receive no pay from Government, than in that of officers. He despairs, however, of getting compensation for the losses sustained during the mutiny. "As for compensation, that seems as far off as ever, and I begin to think we shall see none of it; for what with delay in the commissioner's office, delay at the head-quarters, and a decided disinclination to pay at all, I doubt if our claims will ever meet the eyes of those who can acknowledge them. But in Delhi it strikes me that we can demand full compensation for our losses; for, independent of the precedent established in Hissar, where the sufferers by the mutiny have received full compensation, we were supposed to be under the guardianship of Government chowkedars, the entertainment of whom was compulsory, and the authorities were answerable for losses by fire and theft. Would not this fact go far toward the recovery of our property by an action at law?"

DUMOH, July 29.—You will be glad to learn that a band of 400 rebels who had plundered many villages in this district was surprised and completely defeated by a detachment of the Jubulpore divisional police battalion under Local Lieut. Watts on the 18th, by whose energy and bravery forty-five of the enemy were killed. Lokpal, a brother of the Ajiagurh Raja, is said to have been killed; also Colonel Khooman Sing, who commanded the rebels, consisting of men of the 42nd B.N.I., 3rd irregular cavalry, and Gwalior contingent. This success reflects the greatest credit on Lieut. Watts, who much distinguished himself during the rebellion, and a few months ago took possession of Mangurh, the rebel Raja having fled on his approach; he has thus performed important services. His present success was mainly owing to his having marched fifty-six miles to the village of Murmah, in the Punna territory, in twenty-four hours. These rebels have actually plundered villages within a few miles of Hutta, notwithstanding the presence of two or three companies of Madras native infantry, and committed a dacoitee on Ghysabad, on the 12th June, at the very time a detachment of police sowars were there under a European officer!—Delhi Gazette.

TREASON AND LOYALTY.—The Englishman had a remark about what the descendant of the rebel Napper Tandy got from Pitt's Government, compared to the returns for the loyalty of one of that family of the third generation is to receive from the Indian Government, merely showing at what premium rebellion is against loyalty. We have something like it in one of the generals of the ex-Nawaub of Furruckabad, to wit, Mooltan Khan. This man escorted one Edwards from Ranigunj Mhow to Shumshabad, where one of the party was killed, poor Gibson. They then returned under Mooltan's escort to Mhow, to Nawaub Mahomed Yar Khan's house—June 1857. Mooltan Khan was one of the most noted chiefs and leaders of the rebellion under Tuffuzzul Hussain Khan, ex-Nawaub of Furruckabad, and had a command at the fights of Gungeree and Putiali. He came in, or was caught, and was tried and sentenced to nine years' imprisonment, and got off some three years of his punishment for having escorted Edwards' party. On appeal, the Government has been pleased in its bountiful mercy to let this man off, with a pension of Rs. 30 a month, and house to live in. Is not this another case of Napper Tandy, and a premium for rebellion?—Lahore Chronicle.

PLEASANT TRAVELLING.—Last Sunday, (July 31st) an officer of the 17th Lancers returning from Agra to Gwalior had his baggage-cart looted about nine koss from this; the loss being to the extent of about 500 rupees. The robbery took place at a serai, where the Chokeedars were in charge, and these men have been sent in to the magistrate. An attempt to rob another traveller took place the same night between Jhansi and Gwalior, when one of his bhanganj-burdars was pounced upon by a party of thieves, one of whom was immediately himself pounced upon by a thannah burkundauze, who though just behind (on escort duty) was not seen by the fellow, the night being very dark. The captured thief was duly put into the stocks at the next thannah station.

THE MOUNTAINEER.—The Commercial Gazette regrets much to notice in the Government notification the resignation, by Mr. F. Wilson, of his appointment of Deputy Superintendent of Vaccination in the hills. This gentleman is the celebrated mountaineer who has spent so large a period of his life among the snows of the Himalayas. It was he who sent the beautiful collection of hill birds as a present to her Majesty. We suspect that his age is beginning to tell on him, and that he wishes once more to see his native land.

ROY BAREILLY, July 28.—Meer Haddee Hossein Sumshoddee and another, who killed Major Gall, have been hanged, and three others, who were also in the gang, have been transported, but Hoormut Khan, the leader of the above party, has not as yet been captured; he is supposed to be with the rebels. Rajah Hindpall Sing, Talookdar of Konee Sodhowlee, has been found to have been hiding gunpowder and arms in his fort, and has therefore lost half his estates and had his fort destroyed.

ROHILCUND.—The Commercial Gazette states "that the Commander-in-Chief has abandoned his original intention of maintaining Rohilcund as a military division, and it is henceforth to be considered as a field force. The consequence is that our military friends at Bareilly are in a state of commotion. Many of the officers had commenced building and settling down, and among them was Brigadier-General Walpole. The Commander-in-Chief's dictum has completely upset all their plans, and each man is now as busy in preparations for a move at a moment's notice."

OUDE POLICE.—Very considerable changes and reductions in the Oude police are, we understand, at present under the contemplation of the authorities. The expenditure under this head is to be reduced some ten lacs annually. The question is, not what is the best possible police, but what is the best we can possibly have for the money available. It is a case of cutting our coat according to our cloth. The Government is bankrupt, and so we must put up with the consequences of State insolvency. Efficiency must yield to expediency.

STEAMERS ON THE GOGRA.—The Lucknow Herald draws attention to an advertisement notifying that "steam communication is about to be established between Dinapore and Fyzabad. Steamers will leave the former station on the 15th of each month, and proceed direct to Fyzabad, thus bringing one of our frontier stations in direct communication with Calcutta. Immediately a metalled road is completed from Lucknow to Fyzabad we may expect to receive packages in much less time than is now occupied in their transmission via Allahabad. The waggon trains will thus be relieved of all merchandise for Oude, as most of our military stations will be placed in a position to ensure the delivery of packages one week earlier than we receive them through the agencies at Allahabad."

JEYPORE, July 25.—A few days ago a dispute arose between the officers of the Rajah of Jeypore and the Ranees, the widow of the Rajah Shareenath Sing of Khaterree. The latter, it appears, is led by her courtiers, who are oppressing the people residing on her jaghire, and their tyranny has at last aroused the indignation of the soldiery, who have turned against the Raj and demanded their pay for the whole year. Through fear, the Ranees of Khaterree, with her son, have concealed themselves within the walls of the fort, which is situated on a hill. The refractory troops are encamped outside the walls. It is said that some troops sent by the Rajah of Jeypore, with two field pieces, have reached the scene of action, and intend paying the rebel army their dues, and then forming arrangements for the future government of the Khaterree, according to the rules of the Jeypore Raj. In former times Khaterree was a portion of the Raj of Jeypore, but it was bestowed on the late Rajah for some good services rendered by him to the Jeypore Raj. The Ranees has broken the treaty made between her and the Jeypore Raj, and would not pay the stipulated tax to the Rajah, but considered that her's was an independent province.—Commercial Gazette.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL (THEN MAJOR) H. E. S. ABBOTT, of the 74th N.I., left the Department of Public Works in March 1856, having been Executive Engineer in charge of the 24 Pergunnahs embankment division. In the December following, report was made to Government of the existence of serious confusion in the Lieutenant Colonel's office accounts, and of a large amount of money in the hands of native overseers, either advanced to them for carrying on works or paid to them in excess of their just dues. The accounts could not, for various reasons, be immediately subjected to scrutiny, but they have of late undergone thorough sifting at the hands of the chief engineer of Bengal, whose report is before the Supreme Government. There is, of course, no personal imputation against Lieut.-col. Abbott, but it is asserted that through his remissness, a lac and thirty-one thousand rupees of the public money have gone into the hands of parties who have not given value for it, and endeavour is being made to procure restitution, either wholly or in part. The chief engineer shows that of the whole sum, Rs. 30,000 only should be made directly chargeable to Lieut.-col. Abbott, recommending that the remainder, if possible, be recovered from certain native overseers, who have no doubt long ere this placed themselves in a position to defeat every attempt on the part of the Government to cause them to disgorge. The Government was advised to prosecute them; but then it was considered that even were it possible in each case to obtain a decree, the execution of those decrees would be extremely difficult, and that it was problematical whether if they were executed the money would be forthcoming. So that after all the lac and thirty thousand, minus the moiety for which Lieut.-col. Abbott is to be made personally responsible, is to be written off to profit and loss.—Phanix.

THE "HURKARU" PROPERTY was brought to the hammer the other day. A Jew bought the buildings for Rs. 161,500, but no bidder could be found for the paper, burdened as it is with an annuity of Rs. 500 a month to Mr. S. Smith.

MAHARAJAH OF GWALIOR.—A letter from Central India, of the 27th of July, says that the Maharajah of Gwalior has been at Bujrunghur, on a visit to Sir R. Shakspear, to settle the affair regarding Maun Sing, of Murwar, who has been reinstated, as a reward for betraying Tantia Toppe. Sir Richmond is expected at Seepree on the 30th, from whence he proceeds into Bundelcund. Major-General Michel is in a bad state of health, and it is thought he will have to go home to recruit it.

THE FIVE AND A-HALF PER CENT. LOAN.—It is stated that loan operations are progressing very slowly in Calcutta, and the amount of contributions to the five and a-half per cent. paper, received during the month of July, has been exceedingly small, and even that income was owing chiefly to some limited transactions made by the agents of subscribers residing in England. Why not close this loan at once, and keep to the five per cent., which will give the public confidence?

THE COMMISSARIAT.—There has been some unpleasant proceedings lately in the Commissariat at Bareilly. The Deputy Commissary General and his head assistant have had a serious dispute. The latter in his zeal for the service of Government wrote an anonymous letter to the Commissary General, to the effect that a number of bags of sugar had been taken away secretly from the godowns, and that Gomashta, on whom suspicions had fallen, and against whom, it is reported, there was some evidence, as he has since been made over to the Session Judge, was allowed to resign. The Deputy Commissary at Bareilly was called upon for an explanation. He re-opened the case by lodging a complaint in the Cantonment Joint Magistrate's Court, and ultimately finds he has evidence sufficient to make him over to the tender mercies of the Session Judge. Meanwhile, he (the Deputy Commissary) has a few allegations against his head assistant, and reports him to the Commissary General. The result is suspension of the head assistant, and the appointment of a court of inquiry. The court has sat and closed its proceedings, which have been submitted to the Commissary General. Rumour has it that nothing can be brought home to the head assistant, though the court cannot but condemn his insubordinate conduct.—Commercial Gazette.

EXCISE.—A source of some additional revenue has been hit upon. It is the intention of Government to increase the duty on country spirits. Doasta, which now pays eight annas per gallon, is to pay one rupee eight annas, while Bengal rum, which has hitherto paid only one rupee per gallon, is to have the duty on it raised to Rs. 2-4-0 per gallon.

GOVERNMENT CONSIGNMENTS.—The Phanix hears that Lieut. Heathcote, Indian Navy, is likely to be appointed agent for Government Consignments. This is the new appointment recommended to be created by Captain Dickens, for the reception and charge of Government stores from England.

THE LAST OF THE MOGULS.—An officer is to be appointed as Superintendent of the ex-King of Delhi and his relatives and other adherents, now prisoners at Tounghoo, on a salary of Rs. 200 per mensem.

NATIVE HOLIDAYS.—It is expected that the Legislative Council will pass an Act for making the payment of bills which fall due on native holidays compulsory on the preceding day. A Calcutta contemporary believes that the native holiday, as it at present exists, is an imposition and a nuisance. Only a minute portion of those who take them employ them in religious observances. They escape work and get pay, and therefore they pretend that their observance is necessary.

TREASURY BILLS.—The sum of about five lakhs of rupees has been paid into the general treasury by a private banking corporation, as a subscription to the open loan of treasury bills number 2, at three months' date.

ALLAHABAD, August 6.—The steamer Madras, which is now at the Ghat, has been detained here by Government, it is said, for the purpose of taking the Commander in Chief and his staff down to Calcutta. They have not yet arrived, however. Speculation is busily employed in divining, or trying to guess, what can be the urgent necessity which brings his lordship down from his cool retreat in the hills, at the most unpleasant season of the year. It is supposed that Lord Canning has experienced a horrible surprise at finding that the policy of the Home Government in regard to the demands of the European soldiers is quite at variance with that avowed in his recent notification. Lord Clyde has, therefore, been called in to help the Viceroy out of some present or prospective difficulty on the subject. His excellency the Viceroy's choice is said now to be divided between Allahabad and Lucknow. Some specious nonsense could, I dare say, be written to justify the removal of head-quarters to Lucknow, and the amalgamation of the two provinces. I suppose there are some who will consider it an excellent idea, on account of the saving of salaries of the chief commissioner and his staff. But more thoughtful people will not admire the policy of extending the lieutenant-governor's jurisdiction, which is already quite large enough to engage his whole time and attention, without burdening him with the administration of a newly acquired and unsettled province. The 53rd regiment will leave Allahabad in October next, on their way home. The 3rd Buffs, it is said, will take their place here.

THE RAJAH OF LANDOUR, a minor, has been taken to Benares for education.

BANK OF BENGAL.—At a recent meeting of the directors of the Bank of Bengal, seven of the candidates were selected for the secretaryship. A majority of the directors, however, evincing a desire to get a man from England, it was moved that a committee be appointed in London, consisting of Messrs. J. A. Dorin, James Church, and some other gentlemen of Indian experience, who may be requested to select an English financier for the new post. We also hear that the Government directors present were unwilling to throw open this appointment to the civil service against the spirit of Lord Dalhousie's minute.

THE SUDDER JUDGES.—Some of the Judges of the Calcutta Sudder Court have applied to the Governor-general in Council to be exempted from the new rule which proposes the deductions of salaries of all civil appointments made after the 30th April, 1859. The application has been forwarded to England for final disposal.

MR. RICKETTS, C.S.—The home authorities have approved of the Governor-general's proceedings in removing Mr. Ricketts, of the Civil Service, from the appointment of magistrate and collector of Moradabad.

ON WHAT GROUNDS?—The Government of the Punjab has decided that no demand shall be made for rent from officers occupying confiscated houses in the city of Delhi.

UNCLAIMED ESTATES.—From a statement furnished by the Sub-treasurer, Calcutta, it appears that Rs. 21,854 are in deposit at the General Treasury on account of the unclaimed estates of deceased native officers and men of the Bengal army, from the 1st January to 31st December, 1858, inclusive.

A NICE QUESTION.—The Hurkaru mentioned some time ago that a native Sircar robbed Government of Rs. 600, which he received from the general Treasury on an accredited bill of Captain Hodgson, that had some how or other been abstracted from the Civil Auditor's office. A question has now been raised as to who is to make good the loss, as the words "received payment" at the foot of a salary or pension bill or other instruments not negotiable, is only necessary. The Advocate general, we hear, is of opinion that a disbursing officer may be considered justified in paying the amount of such bills to anyone who presents the same, provided they are receipted and signed by the drawer. Should the disbursing officer, however, refuse to pay the party presenting the bill, he may be liable to bear all the costs of a suit in a court of law. The question is now before the Governor-general in Council.

RAWUL PINDEE, August 1. "Sir Sydney Cotton arrived here yesterday from Murree, and left for Jhelum this morning, to investigate the circumstances connected with a "fracas" that is said to have occurred at the head-quarters of the 7th Royal Fusiliers at Jhelum. I do not feel myself justified in giving you the particulars of the "row" among the 7th at Jhelum; as there are several versions of the "affair" going round the station, and it is impossible to say which of the stories is the correct one. However, the matter must be a grave one to induce Sir Sydney Cotton to go to Jhelum, and inquire personally into it himself." A correspondent writing on the 6th denies the fact of a fracas having taken place. There was some dissatisfaction expressed in one company about the promotion of a particular individual to the rank of lance corporal, and it is said that his clothes were scattered about in his compound—"only that and nothing more."

SIR C. TREVELYAN.—"There has been," says the Madras Times, "such a vigour breathed into the administration as Madras never knew before. Whether it be the system of examinations, or the administration of justice, the fortifications of the Presidency, or the People's Park, revenue establishments or impressment,—in the carrying out of every scheme we have exhibited the predominance of one powerful mind. Each matter is taken up in all its bearings, argued out fully, and disposed of in a masterly style. The consistent progress policy of a man like Sir Charles Trevelyan, while by the straight forward publicity of his measures he courts criticism, can well defy the shafts of petty cavillers; for the magnitude of his aims, and the resolution and energy which he brings to bear on their execution, secure for him the hearty sympathy and support of all who desire to see our Government established on a basis of wisdom, justice and power."

THE GOVERNOR.—A native correspondent, a warm admirer of Sir Charles Trevelyan, writes to the Madras Times that his Excellency has recently been cultivating the good graces of the poorer classes of the native community, by several acts of condescension and courtesy. A few days since his Excellency visited the garden of a poor native, and proceeded to pluck some of the flowers. Observing that the owner was attentively watching his motions, he interrogated him whether his act amounted to trespass, and was assured in reply that the distinguished honour which he had conferred upon the poor man's flowers would cause them to bloom earlier and blush redder for all time to come. His Excellency then showered a handful of coins upon the delighted Hindoo, and went on his way. Another instance is related by our correspondent of our model Governor's good nature. Riding down Popham's Broadway with his body guard, he was graciously pleased to pause and witness "the antic sports" of a "tiger," who, with attendant tom-toms, had been for some hours delighting the neighbourhood by his performances. Sir Charles, with his accustomed liberality, showered on another handful of coins. "It is needless to add," says the correspondent, "that his Excellency left the spot with the blessings of the multitude."

ter of the debts of the late Nabob of Arcot. The Chief Justice observed that "on a former occasion, in Act 18, of 1857, the Legislative Council contented itself with reciting doubts as to the correctness of a decision of this Court, and with giving time to appeal against it. The Imperial Parliament never expresses any doubt as to the correctness of the judgment of a court of law. Whenever, in consequence of a recent judgment, the Imperial Parliament recites doubts as to the law, it merely takes up the doubts either actually expressed by the judges themselves or necessarily to be implied from a difference of opinion between them, and then interposes by settling the law for the future, and whenever the Imperial Parliament conceives that the judgment of a Court of Law is likely to lead to inconvenience, it does not question the correctness of the judgment; it accepts the law as expounded, recites that it is expedient to alter the law, and alters it accordingly. It is for the Legislature to make Acts and not to interpret them. I have not dwelt upon this usurpation of our province for the purpose of setting right the relations between the Legislative Council and this Court; for it must be manifest that this Court cannot satisfactorily exercise its functions under the supervision and correction of the Legislative Council, but because the matter has a direct bearing upon the matter now before us. That which this Court has declared to be the meaning of Act 30 of 1858—though the law was not so declared until the end of May last—has of course always been the meaning of the Act; and the applicant and other claimants may well have supposed this to be its meaning. This brings me to the examination of his particular grounds of complaint."

SIR ALEXANDER GRANT, BART.—The steamer Nemesis brought among its passengers Sir Alexander Grant, Bart. This gentleman, late a Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford, has come out to join the educational department of this presidency. From the report which has preceded him, there is reason to believe that he will prove a valuable acquisition to that branch of the public service. The Gazette of August 9th contains Sir Alexander's appointment to the head mastership of "a Government provincial school," at present in nubibus, and pending its localization, he is to act as inspector of the North Telegu division, where, we submit, his attainments and abilities will be all but thrown away.

JURY RULES.—The meeting of the native community of Madras, held on the 5th August, for the purpose of adopting an address to the Judges of the Supreme Court on the subject of the Jury Rules, was very largely attended. The prayer of the address was, that their lordships would be pleased to extend the modifications of the Jury Rules, recently introduced, in such a manner that the native community might in future constitute a moiety of both the Grand and Petty Juries. Resolutions embodying the thanks of the native community to Sir Charles Trevelyan and to the Advocate-general at Madras were also proposed and carried unanimously—to the former for having so speedily and efficaciously communicated with her Majesty's Judges of the Supreme Court with reference to the amendment in the constitution of Petty Juries, and to Mr. Sydney Smith for having officially brought to the knowledge of Government the subject out of which that amendment arose.

NEW HOSPITAL.—Sir C. Trevelyan has ordered a plan and estimates for a general hospital at Madras. Every important improvement which has been established by the labours of Miss Nightingale, Mr. Sidney Herbert, and the members of the Army Sanitary Commission, is to be adopted in the proposed new building.

FAITHFUL STEWARDS.—The Madras Spectator understands that Salar Jung, the Minister at Hyderabad, has requested from the British Government an account of their stewardship of the Ceded Districts during the past five years. The account for 1858-59 in West Berar is most favourable, exhibiting a balance of revenue of Rs. 11,33,554 after the payment of charges to the extent of Rs. 3,31,063.

GREASED CARTRIDGES AGAIN.—A rumour reached us a few days ago to the effect that the troopers of the 5th cavalry, now stationed at Secunderabad, had posted placards in the neighbourhood of their lines, in which they complained that greased cartridges had been served out to the regiment. We had hoped to learn that the report was untrue, and we therefore abstained from giving currency to it, but, although we have not had any direct intelligence from Hyderabad on the subject, we think we may safely affirm that in this instance the smoke of rumour does not exist without the fire of fact. It would, of course, be premature to offer any comments upon the matter until we are in possession of all the facts; but we may say, that if the commanding officer of the 5th, and those who have the charge of the ammunition, distributed greased cartridges to a native regiment, after the awful lesson taught us in '57 and '58, it will behove the authorities to replace those gentlemen by officers who profit by experience; and that if the Government permit themselves to be dictated to by a class of men who gave evidence of the sincerity of their scruples in the recent mutiny by employing ammunition against us which they refused to use for us, the results which must follow are so obvious that they need not be indicated. In short, if the whole story be not untrue, the officers have incurred a grave responsibility, and the men have yet to learn—and should certainly be taught—the first duty of a soldier.—Madras Times, Aug. 3.

THE RAILWAY FARES at Madras have been considerably reduced; the first class passenger fare to one anna, and the third class to two pies per mile.

REMOVAL OF THE HYDERABAD RESIDENCY.—The Madras Times has heard that an order has been received to remove the Hyderabad Residency to Tringalgherry, and that the Commander-in-Chief has decided that this latter station shall be the locality for the entire Hyderabad subsidiary force.

THE QUILON GRAIN RIOTS.—Nine men of the 45th regiment at Quilon were convicted of taking part in the late riot in the bazaar at that place, and sentenced each to one year's imprisonment with hard labour. They were sent over to the gaol at Cochin to undergo their sentence.

A LIMITED LIABILITY.—The discharged men of the 3rd Madras Europeans, we are told, want to leave their dark wives behind them, as they say the English climate will not suit them. This, a friend remarks, is marriage with limited liability! Difficulty is anticipated in getting the men away from Bundelcund during the rains.

THE "SIR GEORGE ANDERSON," which left Madras in February last for London, with a general cargo, was abandoned at sea, dismasted, and in a sinking state in latitude 36° S., longitude 39° E., on the 6th of June. Most tempestuous weather was experienced when on the Cape Bank, from the 20th to the 30th May, on which latter day the commander, Captain Green, bore up for the Mauritius with loss of sails, and the ship otherwise greatly disabled. The gale continued with such violence that on the following day the decks were entirely swept, and on the 1st June the main and mizen masts went, doing so much damage, and causing the ship to make so much water, the pumps having been broken by the fall of the masts, that it was resolved to throw some of the cargo overboard. But no good resulted from this measure; the ship became more and more shattered each day until the 6th of June, when the American ship Argonaut, from New York to Hong Kong, came up with her, and finding it would be impossible to save the ship, the captain was forced to abandon her. He and his crew were conveyed to Anjer, at which place they were transferred to the ship Captain Cook, from Melbourne to Galle, where they arrived on the 27th July.—Spectator.

THE COMMISSION ON MR. PRENDERGAST sat again on Thursday, the 11th, according to appointment, and the inquiry has been brought to a close. The defence was put in, and the witnesses in support of it have all been examined. The Court rose shortly after six o'clock, the Advocate-general having been heard in reply, and it was arranged to sit again on Tuesday, the 16th, before the proceedings are forwarded to Government. With the permission of the Commissioners, Mr. Walter Elliot was examined in support of the charge before the case for the defence was entered into, Mr. Smyth stating that he applied for permission to call Mr. Elliot, under instructions from Government, and he found that he had somewhat misapprehended Mr. Elliot's feeling with respect to the interview Mr. Prendergast had with him, portions of which only Mr. Elliot regarded as confidential, while other portions which he had felt it to be his duty to mention subsequently in council he did not look upon in that light. The application was granted, but Mr. Norton did not avail himself of the liberty allowed him by the Act, of asking for an adjournment to reconsider the defence, the introduction of a new witness after the closing the case for the prosecution giving him that right. The defence already agreed upon was slightly altered, and the inquiry was proceeded with without further interruption.—Spectator.

THE SHIP *Atalanta will convey 428 discharged soldiers of H.M.'s Indian army to England.

MAJOR E. E. MILLER.—We (Bangalore Herald) understand that a telegram has been received at Madras from the supreme Government, directing the immediate removal of Major E. E. Miller, deputy assistant commissary general and superintendent of police, from his appointment in the Mysore Division. We presume this order to be the final result of the exposures which took place a short time ago relative to the system in which the civil and criminal administration of the Bangalore cantonment police office were conducted, and which led to the conviction and punishment of two of the arch-confederates in iniquity and oppression, to wit, Tiliiah Pillay and Saib Ally, as well as, in the formation of a separate moonsiff's court for the disposal of civil suits. Major Miller has been a good number of years among us. We are bound to acknowledge that he has always evinced a kindly disposition, both in public and private life. But, we fear, his bane has been trusting too implicitly in native subordinates and procrastinating in passing judgment in the numerous cases which came before him from time to time. It is very desirable indeed that the office of superintendent of police of this cantonment should be completely severed from the commissariat department. There would not be much difficulty in selecting a proper officer from among the assistants to the commissioner to fill the post, and the allowance from the Mysore state of Rs. 350 a month, in addition to his other salary, would, we think, be an adequate remuneration for the responsibilities that are incurred. We commend the foregoing for the serious consideration of the military and civil authorities.

THE REV. WILLIAM MOFFAT, of the Madras Free Church Mission, died at his house on the morning of the 4th of August, aged 36 years. Mr. Moffat was ordained a missionary to India in 1854, and seemed to have before him a long course of usefulness in the vineyard, possessing good talents carefully cultivated, much experience in teaching, and sincere piety, he seemed eminently fitted to advance the interests of Missions and of Bible education in India. But in less than two years after his arrival at Madras, symptoms of that disease began to appear, which at last carried him off in the full vigour of manhood.

IMPORTANT TO RETIRED OFFICERS.—Government have decided that no retired officer permanently residing in India, civil or military, has any claim to gratuitous medical assistance either for himself or his family. The question was submitted to Government for decision by the Superintending Surgeon Presidency. Dr. M'Kenna said that his own impression was that pensioned officers were not entitled to any such attendance. If they resided in Europe and wanted medical aid they had to pay for it as private individuals. If they made India their permanent residence it was for private reasons of their own, with which the Government had no concern. A short time since, the superintending surgeon said a complaint was made by a retired officer that an apothecary refused to supply him with medicines in bulk from the Government stores for the use of his family, the officer evidently labouring under the impression that he had a right, not only to the medicines, but to the services of the apothecary whenever he chose to demand them. Government have minuted that the view taken by Dr. M'Kenna is correct.—Spectator.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MR. H. NEWTON has been confirmed in the appointment of sub-treasurer, general paymaster, superintendent of stamps, and secretary to the government savings' bank.

AMERICAN CONSUL.—The Right Hon. the Governor in Council has been pleased to recognise Mr. L. H. Hatfield as consul at Bombay, for the United States of America.

CAPTAIN THOMAS BARRETT.—We regret to announce the death of Captain Thomas Barrett, H.M.'s 14th (King's) light dragoons, which melancholy event occurred at Kirkee, Poona, on the 12th Aug. The deceased was buried with military honours due to his rank. The late Captain Barrett served throughout the Punjab campaign of 1848-9, including the action of Ramnuggur, (with the charging squadrons,) passage of the Chenab, battles of Chillianwallah, and Goozerat, pursuit of the enemy across the Jhelum, and of the Affghans over the Indus through the Khyber Pass. (Medal and Clasp). The deceased also went through the Persian expedition, and was with his regiment from the time it left Kirkee for field service in June, 1857, till its return in May this year. A brother of the deceased in the same regiment, died shortly after the arrival of the corps in India.

A MERCANTILE FAILURE.—The Scindian announces the failure of Messrs. Warwick, Waller, and Co., of Kurrachee, who have been compelled to suspend payment, with liabilities variously estimated at about Rs. 80,000. The cause of their failure is attributed to losses sustained by the charter of vessels, a branch of trade in which they seem to have speculated rather too sanguinely, and, we may add, precipitately.

market now closes with an advance of about Rs. 6 to 7 on our last quotations. In consequence of the heavy transactions the market has been almost cleared of stock. Accounts from the interior speak very favourably of the coming crop, so that we have prospects of a large supply in a few months. Wool.—The market continues firm, with higher prices, superior qualities being very scarce. Oil Seeds.—Seeds generally are in but limited demand. Rapeseed is out of inquiry. Rapeseed is in slight request, at previous rates. Telseed is selling at advanced prices, in consequence of low stocks. Ground Nuts are slightly inquired for. Poppyseed is quiet. Oils.—Castor Oil is scarce, and higher in price. Teelseed Oil is well supplied, and can be had at Rs. 2-6 to Rs. 2-10 per maund. Coffee.—Both Mocha and Malabar are out of stock; but supplies are shortly expected. Pepper.—The supply is limited, with a steady demand. Saltpetre.—Stocks very scanty, and prices nominal. Madder Root.—Superior kinds are not to be had. There is only a small quantity on hand of inferior sort, for which Rs. 2-12-0 to Rs. 3 are asked. Opium.—The market remained stationary from the date of our last report until the sad intelligence was received of the reverses of the British arms at the Peiho, which caused considerable uneasiness among the China merchants, who showed no inclination to enter into fresh transactions. The prices of opium have receded, and will most probably continue to do so if our affairs in China do not improve. The quotations of the day are Rs. 1,335 per chest. The P. and O. Co.'s str. Malabar sailed for China on the 17th inst. with about 935 chests.

IMPORTS (Bombay, Aug. 20).—Cotton Manufactures.—The market has exhibited a further improvement, and a large business has been done in Pieces Goods. Almost all descriptions of Grey Goods are actively inquired for at advanced rates. Bleached Goods have improved in demand; common to middling descriptions of Shirtings, Madapolams, and Jacons meet a ready sale at higher prices. Glasgow Goods have also met with more attention, and a fair amount of business has been done. A slightly improved inquiry has begun to prevail for Turkey Red Goods, and there has been some disposition to purchase during the fortnight, holders having submitted to lower rates. Woolens.—These continue steady, with but little alteration in price. Yarns.—The market has remained firm, and the business done during the fortnight has been very small. Counts 20 and 30 of Mule have undergone a slight decline, but the rest of the numbers maintain previous rates. There has been very little doing in Water Twist, and prices are steady. Dyed Yarns are largely supplied, and continue in slight request at former prices. Metals.—With the exception of Copper, Iron, and Spelter, the market has been quiet. Copper has risen in demand and value since our last. A renewed inquiry has sprung up for Iron, and a few sales have taken place. Spelter is scarce and dearer. There has been nothing doing in other metals. Cockinial.—Owing to a large supply on hand a reduction in price has been looked for; holders, however, show but little inclination to submit to reduced rates, and consequently there has been very little business done. Saffron.—Stocks are light at market, and the consequent enhanced prices have checked operations. Beer.—The market is pretty steady, the inquiry for Beer, both in wood and in bottle being slack. Coal.—In consequence of supplies having been received, prices have fallen, and sales have been effected at the reduced quotations.

CEYLON.

COLOMBO, August 18.—The weather during the fortnight has been exceedingly unsettled, and during the last few days torrents of continuous rain have fallen, which have resulted in a rapid rise of water and the flooding of houses and stores in the low lying parts in and around Colombo. Persons have told us that they never saw the waters rise so rapidly in so short a time, and the influence of the railway embankments has been suggested as a cause. The exports of coffee have been considerable. Four ships, all for England, have sailed, taking 17,723 cwts. of plantation, and 5,540 of native; in all 23,263. Our total exports are now very large, no less than 557,816 cwts., in the proportions of 866,678 plantation, and 191,138 native. By the end of the season the round number of 600,000 cwts.; will be closely touched. Picking has commenced in many districts, and we trust the supply of labour may be sufficient, although the Manchester, which has commenced running regularly, is not over-crowded with incoming coolies.

At a public meeting in Kandy the leading planters have declared unequivocally and unanimously against going on with the project under the agreement with the railway company, and in the face of a probable expenditure ranging from two and a-quarter to three millions sterling. If the merchants and inhabitants of Colombo have not followed this example, that circumstance does not show any divergence of opinion between them and the planters. The merchants as a body have ever been opposed to the company scheme, and those of them who have been examined before the Select Committee of Council, now sitting, are understood to have adhered to £1,200,000 as the very utmost limit of expenditure which the colony can afford for a railway.

The next great topic of discussion has been the proposal to alter the constitution of the Planters' Association, and we are glad to say that this question has been disposed of almost unanimously, and in a manner which ought to prove satisfactory to all concerned. The constitution of the association remains as previously: superintendents are equally admissible with proprietors, and their privileges on a par, except in the one matter of voting burdens on property. In the decision of such questions, as far as the association can decide them, only the actual owners, lessees, or attorneys of properties are to vote. The promotion of Colonel Braybrooke to the rank of Major General calls him away from the command of the Ceylon rifle regiment and from the colony where he has so long resided. Another respected member of our community, though he does not quit Ceylon, has retired from active duties, on account of failing health. We refer to Captain Higgs, R.N., late Master Attendant of Colombo, in which position he has been succeeded by Captain Pritchard, late of the gunboat Insolent.

We regret to say that death has been busy amongst the European community since we last wrote. To the obituary of this very fatal year must now be added the names of Messrs. Callaghan, Brownrigg, Huxham, O'Sullivan, and J. MacPherson.

There is almost nothing doing in exports, although the Ouvah native coffee is coming in, with a little plantation from the early districts. Coconut oil is a little better, and so is cinnamon. Freights are low, and exchange in favour of drawers. The import market is dull for all articles save rice. The import since the commencement of the season is 2,780,000, but the demand and the price keep up.—Ceylon Observer.

INTOLERANCE OF CASTE.—Serious disturbances have recently occurred in the neighbourhood of Galle. The cause originated from the people of the Jaggraro caste (a quiet and industrious class of men) having taken to wearing combs, which so irritated the Willalus and Fishers that they on two occasions attacked some members of the former caste who were observed with combs on their heads. Such is the intolerance of caste that the mere circumstance of one caste of people wearing an ornament which another had worn for time immemorial has produced a serious row and some bloodshed. We might with equal reason maltreat those natives who have assumed our dress and manners.

THE "SINGING FISH" is thus noticed by Sir Henry Ward, Governor of Ceylon, in a minute on Batticaloa:—

"I ought not to take my leave of Batticaloa, which I may not have an opportunity of revisiting, without mentioning the natural phenomenon for which its Lake is remarkable—the Singing Fish. I was too ill, during my stay in 1857, to expose myself in the night air upon the water, and I confess that, in spite of the impression then made upon my fellow travellers, amongst whom were Major general Lockyer, and Captain Gossett, I went out, upon the present occasion, with a considerable amount of incredulity, and was the last to believe the evidence of my own senses, Dr. Johnston being satisfied as to the existence of a sound apparently proceeding from the water, long before I could realise it. But after changing the position of the boat, once or twice, there could be no doubt about the matter. The sound rose and swelled, and absolutely vibrated about us in a manner that left no question as to the fact, whatever may be the causes. Its character is indescribable. It is not like any other sound. It is only heard at night. It has nothing harmonious or musical about it. There are no modulations—no variety of notes—except what the increase and decrease in strength produce. As to its origin nobody knows anything. It may be the Fish to whom it is popularly attributed. It may be the rush of air through rocks partially hollowed. There is nothing but conjecture to guide us in this respect. The results all can vouch for. And those results are certainly most distinct within a limited distance from the shore, though heard occasionally in deep water. I am no naturalist. I can only state what I personally saw and experienced. Others must explain it. Something similar, it is said, occurs in the Bay of Naples. It is strange that between Naples and Batticaloa there should be this one point of resemblance."

AGAIN!—The Governor-general has granted Company's Rs. 10,000 to Mr. Pestonjee Sorabjee, the enterprising mail contractor between Poona and Nagpore, for his services during the mutiny.

No. 1,073.—H. E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct that all irregular corps, in which the men provide arms at their own expense, shall hereafter be supplied on indent from the several ordnance magazines with the authorized description of fire arms on payment of their value.

Arms so supplied are to be considered as belonging to the corps, and are not to be taken away by discharged men and others. The value of such arms according to their condition, and the time they have been in use, will, on men becoming casualties, be paid to them or to their estates as the case may be, and the amount recovered from the recruits enlisted to fill up the vacancies. In the case of a reduction in the strength of a regiment, the surplus arms will be returned to the nearest magazine, and their value recovered in a contingent bill.

The practice, heretofore, of commanding officers providing from England the fire-arms required for their corps is prohibited.

The Inspector General of Ordnance will inform commanding officers when arms become available for issue in the several magazines stating their cost.

Indian Allowances.

Fort William, Aug. 2.—No. 1,104.—H. E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to notify that an officer of any of H.M.'s British regts., whose prom. may be announced in the London Gazette, shall receive Indian allowances of the higher grade from the day following the casualty by which he is promoted, if the casualty occurred in Europe, and in a corps on the Indian establishment.

2. But in any other case the officer promoted will receive the allowances of the higher grade from the following date, viz.:—

1st. If promoted in the room of an officer serving in India, who may be transferred to, or promoted in a corps on the home establishment, or promoted to the rank of general officer, or transferred to the unattached list; from the day after the notification of the latter officer's transfer, or promotion, at the station where he may be serving.

2nd. If promoted by an increase of the prescribed complement of officers in British regiments in India; from the date of arrival in Calcutta of the mail steamer which may convey to India, the London Gazette announcing his promotion. And all the promotions, in succession to him, will carry superior allowances from the same date, though they may be notified in a subsequent London Gazette.

3rd. If promoted by a casualty occurring in India, to which another officer on the strength of a corps in India had been promoted, ad interim, by the Commander-in-Chief in India; from the day following the date of announcement of the promotion in General Orders in this country.

Allowances for late Services of Officers in Retirement.

Financial Dept., Fort William, July 22.—Read paragraphs 14 to 16 of the despatch from the right hon. the Sec. of State for India, No. 33 of 1859, dated April 21.

Notifications.—In conformity with the instructions of the right hon. the Sec. of State for India, H.E. the right hon. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct, that the rule laid down by the late Hon. the Court of Directors in the 2nd paragraph of the Despatch, cited in the margin,* shall not be held to * Para. 2nd of Despatch from the Hon. the Court of Directors, No. 24 of 1844, dated Aug. 28:—"We consider it objectionable in principle to grant allowances appointed as the remuneration for actual service, and to meet expenses necessarily attendant thereon, to an officer in retirement. In the case, however, of individuals displaced by the abolition or the consolidation with others of the offices they held, we shall not object to the continuance to the officer while he remains entirely unemployed of such portion of his former salary as the circumstances of his case may appear to you to justify, to an extent not exceeding two-thirds of its amount. The earliest opportunity must be embraced of appointing such officer to a permanent situation. On succeeding to it the allowance now authorised will cease; but if the emolument of the new appointment be inferior to that of the office previously held, you are at liberty to grant, if you think fit, the difference between the salaries of the two situations, or any portion of it, as an extraordinary allowance." be applicable to offices sanctioned only for a limited term.

Privilege Leave to Officers in Civil Employ.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Financial Department, dated July 12, 1859.

Extract from a despatch from the right hon. the Secretary of State for India, No. 45 of 1859, dated the 19th May.

Para. 7.—As stated in paragraph 8 of my despatch* in this department, dated the 21st April 1859, No. 33, you had rightly decided that the admission of military officers holding civil appointments, to "the indulgence of three months' cumulative leave after thirty-three months' continuous service," had reference only to the period for which leave might be granted, and not to the allowances of the absentee. This rule must be adhered to.

The full period of three months' absence may, however, count as service for pension; but if an extension of leave be applied for by a military officer who has taken privilege leave under the civil rules, it must be subject to the military rules in regard to reduction of salary after the first two months' absence.

Examination Tests in Native Languages.

No. 1,059 of 1859.—In modification of G.O. No. 207 of 1831, which prohibits the appointment of any officer to the commissariat department, who has not passed the interpreter's examination in native languages, H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct that the following shall be the tests in the native languages for all future candidates for admission into the army commissariat department.

1. The candidate must read aloud, correctly, and without great difficulty, three Oordoo Hindoostanee papers, which he has never seen before. These papers are to be taken from official records, very much at hazard, and written in the Persian character by different persons, in fairly legible running hands. After having read them aloud, the candidate must explain their contents in English correctly.

2. He must translate without assistance from English into Oordoo and Hindoo an instruction to a subordinate commissariat officer, or other official paper, to be furnished by the examining committee. The translation must be precise and correct in meaning, and perfectly intelligible to a native, tolerably correct in grammar and spelling, and free from any very bad errors of idiom.

3. He must dictate, with some fluency, the translation into Hindoostanee of an English letter, or other official paper, also to be furnished by the examining committee, whereof the translation will be written down exactly as dictated. The dictated paper must be intelligible and correct in meaning.

4. The candidate must finally be thoroughly and carefully tested in conversation with two or three natives, in such manner, and to such extent as shall suffice completely to satisfy the committee as to the degree of his power of understanding natives of different classes, and of making himself understood by them, both in common conversation, and in the usual course of departmental business.

Volunteers for the New Regiment of Cavalry.

Hd. Qrs., Simla, July 13.

The home authorities having signified their approval of the permission granted by the C. in C., in the G.O. to H.M.'s forces, marginally noted, to men of the 9th Lancers, 2nd battalion Military Train, and 1st battalion 10th Foot, to volunteer provisionally for the newly-raised regiments of Bengal Light Cavalry, H.E. is, with the sanction of the Government, pleased to announce that the soldiers in question may now be considered as permanently transferred to the Bengal cavalry Regiments.

Bengal N.I. Regiments withdrawn from China.

The withdrawal from China of the Bengal N.I. regiments, marginally noted, having been postponed, H.E. the C. in C. directs all officers now in India belonging to those corps not on staff employ, or on leave on m. c. (with the exception of young officers who have not yet completed six months' duty with European regiments), to proceed at once to China to join their respective corps.

* Letter dated 18th January, 1859, No. 6. Transmit, in continuation of despatch dated 20th December, 18-8, No. 30, copy of an office memo., requesting further information in regard to privilege leave to military officers in civil employ.

† No. 16, dated 28th January, 1859, p. 43. No. 17, dated 1st Feb., 1859, p. 44.

Privileged Leave.

Fort William, July 19.

Financial Department.—Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, in the Financial Department, dated 27th June, 1859.—Extract from a Despatch from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, No. 32 of 1859, Dated 24th April.

Para. 64. The Civil Auditor's interpretation of the orders conveyed on the Despatch in this Department, No. 28 of 1857, dated 17th April,* which forbid incapacity from sickness being admitted as a ground for granting special leave on private affairs, is incorrect. Those orders are applicable only to leave to be granted under Section XIV., Cap. 3 of the Civil Absentee Rules, and not to the privilege leave which Government are empowered to grant under Section XII., Cap. 8.

65. The sole restriction on the grant to Civil Servants of leave under the last-named Section is, that no inconvenience whatever must arise from the departure of the officer seeking it.

Ordered, with reference to the orders passed in this department, under date the 5th June, 1858, that a copy of the above be forwarded to the Government of Bengal for information and guidance.

Ordered also, that a copy be forwarded to the other subordinate governments† and authorities‡ noted in the margin, for information and guidance and to the respective departments § for information, and likewise to the respective civil auditors in Bengal, Madras, Bombay, North-Western Provinces and the Punjab, for their information and guidance.

Ordered also that a copy be published in the Calcutta Gazette, for general information.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, in the Financial Department, dated 27th June, 1859.

Medals to Representatives of Officers, &c.

No. 1,050.—With reference to Government General Order No. 733, of the 20th May, 1859, his Excellency the Governor general in Council is pleased to publish for general information the following extract of a military letter from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, No. 192, of the 9th ult.:

Referring to my letter, No. 127, dated April 7, 1859, I have to inform you that H.M. has been pleased to signify her intention that the practice under which medals, granted for service in India, have been presented to the representatives of the officers and soldiers who fell in action, or died, should be adopted with regard to the medal and clasps, the grant of which H.M. has been graciously pleased to sanction in commendation of the late military operations in India.

Donations to Widows and Families.

Financial Department, Fort William, July 19.—Extract from a Despatch from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for India, No. 32 of 1859, dated April 14.—Para. 48.—It appears from these papers that during the residence of the Governor general in the North Western Provinces, several instances of widows whose cases were not fully met by the grant of pensions under the Notification No. 938,* dated December 29 last, were brought to the notice of his lordship.

49. The Government of the North West Provinces thereupon proposed that, where a widow had been left destitute by the death of her husband and the destruction of the whole, or the greater part, of his property, the pension, though reasonable as a means of future support, would not afford the means of meeting immediate necessities, or of removal to a distance, a donation should also be granted not exceeding one year's pension, under the notification above referred to.

50. This proposition was sanctioned by your Government and has my approval; but I consider that, in cases where claims have been preferred on account of the loss of their husband's property, by widows, to whom, on the principle here laid down, donations have been granted, the amount of such donation should be deducted from any sum awarded as compensation.*

* Letter dated 10th December, 1858, No. 23.

Paras. 199 to 204. Report orders on a reference from the Government of Bengal, as to whether privilege leave should be refused in cases in which the applicant was suffering from ill-health, the Civil Auditor having recently refused to grant privilege leave for fifteen days which was applied for on that ground.

† Governments of Fort Saint George, Bombay, North-Western Provinces, Eastern Settlements and Punjab.

§ Foreign, Home, Military and Public Works Departments.

† Letter dated December 10, 1858, No. 23. Para. 153. Has a proposed proposal of the Government of the North-Western Provinces to grant in certain cases to destitute widows of persons killed in the mutinies a donation as well as a pension.

* Paras. 228 to 236.—With reference to the case of Mrs. J. Bell, the widow of an uncovenanted servant, have directed

71. The rule here laid down by your Government is as follows, viz.: "Grants of money will be given to the destitute families of persons who, though they did not lose their lives in consequence of the mutinies, have died after the loss of all or nearly all their property by the mutinies; such grants will be regulated on the same principle as those allowed to European and native officers of the Government."

72. I have no objection to this rule; but, as in the case of the donations of an eleemosynary nature, referred to in para. 50 of this despatch, I consider that grants made under this rule should be deducted from the amount which may be hereafter awarded as compensation for loss of property.

The Victoria Cross.

By THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

The C. in C. has much gratification in making known to this army that he has received the commands of her Most Gracious Majesty for the presentation of the Victoria Cross to Brev. maj. Henneage, Sergt. J. Ward, farrier, George Hollis, and Private J. Pearson, H.M.'s 8th hussars, in commemoration of the acts of bravery performed by them in India, as recorded against their names in the London Gazette, of the 26th January, 1859, as follows:—

Date of act of bravery, June 17, 1858. Selected for the Victoria Cross by their companions, in the gallant charge made by a squadron of the regt. at Gwalior, on the 17th of June, 1858, when, supported by a division of the Bombay horse artillery, and H.M.'s 95th regt., they routed the enemy who were advancing against Brigdr. Smith's position, charged through the rebel camp into two batteries, capturing and bringing into their camp two of the enemy's guns under a heavy and converging fire from the fort and town.—(Field force orders by Maj. gen. Sir H. H. Rose, G.C.B., comd'g Central F.F., dated Camp Gwalior, June 28, 1858.)

As the absence from England of this officer and the non-commissioned officer and soldiers renders it impossible for them to receive this mark of H.M.'s favour at her own hands, the Queen has been pleased to command that the decoration be bestowed on them in India in the manner best adapted to evince H.M.'s sense of the noble daring displayed by them before the enemy, and to testify her wish that a distinction in which the officer or private soldier can equally share may be highly prized and eagerly sought after by all, of whatever rank and degree in H.M.'s naval and military services.

As the 8th Hussars are now serving in Rajpootana, Lieut. gen. Sir H. Somerset is unable personally to carry out her Majesty's commands, and has therefore been pleased to depute to Brigdr. Honnor, C.B., the duty of presenting the Victoria Cross to the aforesaid officer, non-commissioned officer and men respectively, in the most formal and public manner, omitting nothing which may tend to redound to their honour, and to enhance the value of this decoration.

On the completion of this duty, the brigadier will be good enough to report his proceedings fully to army head-quarters, in order that the C. in C. may represent the manner in which he has been able to give effect to her most gracious Majesty's commands.

Control of the Medical Departments.

Bombay Castle, Aug. 6.

No. 694.—With reference to G.O. No. 964, published in Bombay G.O. No. 806, dated Sept. 2, 1857, the Right Hon. the Gov. in Council, in accordance with the instructions of H. E. the Gov. gen. in Council directs the establishment of the following rule.

The entire control of the medical department will be exercised by the director-general, and his opinion and advice will be taken regarding all medical appts. whether of medical officers or of subordinates, but the responsibility of the several appointments will rest with the Government or the C. in C. by whom they will be made.

The director-general, inspector-general, superintending surgeons, political and civil medical officers, and presidency medical staff officers, will be appointed by the Governor in Council, the appointments of surgeons and asst. surgeons to corps, deputy medical storekeepers, and assistant surgeons of irregular corps, in the military department and all appointments of medical subordinates except those in civil employ will be made by the C. in C.

The Hostilities in China.

REAR-ADMIRAL HOPE'S DESPATCH.

ADMIRALTY, Sept. 16.

A despatch, of which the following is a copy, has been received by the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty from Rear-Admiral James Hope, C.B., Commander in chief of her Majesty's ships and vessels on the East India and China station—

Chesapeake, Gulf of Pechili, July 5, 1859.

Sir,—I request you will inform the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty that, having on the 17th ult. arrived off the island of Shalui-tien, in the Gulf of Pechili, where I reported in my letter, No. 66, of the 11th ult., the squadron had been directed to rendezvous, I proceeded on the following day to the mouth of the Peiho river, with the object of intimating to the local authorities the intended arrival of the Hon. Frederick Bruce, her Majesty's Plenipotentiary and Envoy Extraordinary, and Monsieur de Bourboulon, Minister of his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of the French, and of reconnoitring the existing state of the defences of the river.

These last appeared to consist principally of the reconstruction, in earth, and in an improved form, of the works destroyed last year, strengthened by additional ditches and abattis, as well as an increased number of booms of very much more formidable nature, a description of all of which will be found on the next plan, furnished by Major Fisher, of the Royal Engineers. Very few guns were seen, but a considerable number of embrasures were masked with matting, evidently with a view of concealing others.

Having sent an officer on shore to communicate with the authorities, he was met by a guard, apparently of country people, who prevented him from landing, informed him that there were no officials nearer than Tientsin, and on his acquainting them with my wish that the obstructions at the mouth of the river should be removed, in order to enable the Ministers to proceed to Tientsin, a promise was given that a commencement should be made for this purpose within the next forty-eight hours.

On the following day I moved the whole of the squadron up to the anchorage off the mouth of the river, placing the gunboats inside the bar. On proceeding to examine the entrance, on the 20th, and finding that nothing had been done towards removing the obstructions before referred to, I addressed a letter to the Tantai, at Tientsin, acquainting him with the object of my arrival, and requesting free communication with the shore. To this an evasive answer was received two days subsequently.

On the 21st, I received a letter from Mr. Bruce, acquainting me that M. de Bourboulon and himself had come to the conclusion to place the matter in my hands, and requesting me to take any measures I might deem expedient for clearing away the obstructions in the river, so as to allow them to proceed at once to Tientsin; in consequence of which I acquainted the Tantai, that the Ministers having arrived and the obstructions still existing at the mouth of the river, I should proceed to remove them, using force if necessary, the responsibility of the consequences resting with those by whom I might be opposed. To this communication no reply was received, and consequently on the 24th I took the force inside the bar to prepare for operations, and gave further intimation that after eight o'clock in the evening, if I received no satisfactory reply, I should feel myself at liberty to take my own course.

On the same night the parties named in the margin,* under the direction of Captain G. O. Willes, cut one of the cables of the boom, marked D in the plan, and blew two away with powder. These last, however, were found re-unioned the following day, the supporting logs of wood to which they were cross-lashed being probably moored head and stern. Captain Willes availed himself of this opportunity to examine closely the construction of the inner boom (plan E), and he found it to consist of large baulks, well cross-lashed together, forming a mass of timber not less than 120 feet wide, and about three feet in depth. The opening shown in the plan might have admitted of the passage of a gunboat, but the strength of the current would at any time have rendered such a passage a matter of exceeding difficulty and doubt. Under these circumstances it was clear that no other mode of attack was left open to me, except that on the front of the works, and a subsequent endeavour to carry them by storm, should I succeed in silencing their fire.

The morning of the 25th was occupied in placing the vessels in position (see plan), the Starling, Janus, Plover (flag), Cormorant, Lee, Kestrel, and Banterer being on a line parallel to the works on the South fort, and the Nimrod in the rear of the line, with her fire bearing on the North fort. The Opossum, under Capt. Willes, was placed in advance, close up to the stakes, and the Forester and Haughty in reserve, in rear of the line, the former having directions to move up into the Plover's position, should that vessel advance in support of the Opossum.

The vessels on the right were under the direction of Capt. C. F. A. Shadwell; those on the left under Capt. N. Vansittart. The strength of the tide and the narrowness of the channel (about 200 yards) had rendered it a matter of extreme difficulty to take up the position above detailed; and the Banterer and Starling, the vessels on the extreme right and left of the line, had both taken the ground, the former, however, in a good position, the latter in one which incapacitated her from taking much share in the action.

At 2 p.m. I directed the Opossum to open a passage through the first barrier, which being effected by 2.30, she moved up to the second barrier, supported by the Plover, closely followed by the Lee and Haughty, which vessels I ordered in for that purpose.

On the arrival of the Opossum at the second barrier the forts opened a simultaneous fire of not less than between thirty and forty guns, of calibres from 32-pounders to 8-inch, on which I directed the ships to engage. The Plover took up a position close to the barrier. The Opossum, Lee, and Haughty, in succession, astern of her.

At 3 p.m., finding that the ships inside the barrier, especially the Plover and Opossum, were becoming disabled by the enemy's fire, they were dropped out into fresh positions outside of it, where, having received assistance in men, they renewed the action.

In consequence of the Plover's disabled state, I shifted my flag to the Cormorant; and at 4.20 a severe wound I had received about an hour previously compelled me to call Capt. Shadwell on board the Cormorant, and entrust to him the more immediate command of the squadron.

At 5.40 the Kestrel sunk in her position; and it became necessary to put the Lee on the ground to avoid the like result.

At 6.30 the fire from the north forts ceased altogether, and half-an-hour later that on the south side was silenced, with the exception of that proceeding from one gun in the outer or south bastion, one in the curtain on each side of it, and one in the flank of the centre bastion, also one in the detached fort to the south.

At 7.20 a landing was effected opposite the outer bastion of the south fort, the portion which appeared most injured by the fire of the squadron, and where the attack could be best supported by the guns of the vessels. The force consisted of a detachment of sappers and miners, under Major Fisher, Royal Engineers; a brigade of marines, under Col. Thomas Lemon; a division of seamen, under Capt. Vansittart, assisted by Commanders J. E. Commerell and W. J. A. Heath, the whole under Capt. Shadwell's direction, accompanied by a small detachment of French seamen, under the command of Commandant Tricault.

* At this time Lieut. Rason, of the Plover, was killed, and I placed Lieut. George A. Douglas, my flag lieutenant, in temporary command of her.

They were encountered by a heavy fire proceeding from those guns I have already named as not completely silenced, as well as from gingalls and rifles; but notwithstanding these and other serious obstacles presented by the character of the ground to be crossed, and the nature of the defences, 150 officers and men having reached the second ditch, and about 50 having arrived close under the walls, had the opposition they experienced been that usual in Chinese warfare, there is little doubt that the place would have been successfully carried at the point of the bayonet.

Captains Shadwell and Vansittart and Colonel Lemon, R.M., having been disabled in the advance, the command in front devolved on Commander Commerell, who, after consultation with Majors Fisher, R.E., and Richard Parke, R.M., and Commandant Tricault, having reported to Captain Shadwell that they could hold their present position, but that it was impossible to storm without reinforcements, received from that officer the order to retire.

This operation was effected with a deliberation and coolness equal to the gallantry of the advance, under cover of the night, which had now closed in, the force being sent down to the boats by detachments, carrying the wounded with them, and eventually the whole were brought off by 1.30 A.M. of the 26th, Commanders Commerell and Heath being the last on shore.

I have already stated that the Lee and Kestrel had sunk in their positions from the effect of the enemy's fire; and I regret to add that, in proceeding down the river after the termination of the action, the Plover was grounded within range of the forts, and the Cormorant, in endeavouring to remove, was also found to have taken the ground. Under these circumstances I desired the officers and men to be removed from them for the time, in order to obviate the loss which might occur should the enemy be enabled to re-open their fire.

The Kestrel, I am happy to say, has since been recovered; but, notwithstanding every exertion which was subsequently made, under the direction of Captain Willes, to recover the three other vessels, the Plover and Lee proved to be so hopelessly aground that it was impossible to move them; while the Cormorant, which got afloat comparatively uninjured on the night of the 27th, was again unfortunately grounded, within range of the forts on moving down; and on the following day such a heavy fire was opened on her that, although again afloat, she sunk at her anchors, and the officers and men employed in removing her were withdrawn as she went down.

The fire of the enemy being remarkably well directed and sustained, occasioned the squadron considerable loss, amounting to 25 officers and men killed, and 93 wounded, of which 54 are slight. Amongst the former I have to regret the loss of Lieut. W. H. Rason, commanding the Plover, a very promising young officer, and Capt. Theo. McKenna, of the 1st royals, who was attached to me by the Major general commanding the forces in China.

In the subsequent attack on shore, 64 officers and men were killed, and 252 wounded, of which 90 are slight. Amongst the former I have to regret the loss of Lieut. A. Graves, of the Assistance, Lieut. C. H. Clutterbuck, and Mr. T. H. Herbert, Midshipman, both of this ship; of Lieut. Hamilton Wolrige, of the Royal Marine Brigade, and Lieut. H. L. T. Inglis, Royal Marines, of the Highflyer, attached to the 2nd Battalion.

Amongst the severely wounded are:—Capt. Shadwell, C.B., of her Majesty's ship Highflyer; Capt. Vansittart, C.B., of her Majesty's ship Magicienne; Acting Lieut. C. E. Buckle, of her Majesty's ship Magicienne; Mr. A. J. Burniston, Master of the Banterer; Mr. N. B. Smith, Acting Mate of the Chesapeake; Mr. A. Powlett, Midshipman of the Fury; Mr. George Armytage, Midshipman of the Cruiser; Mr. W. Ryan, Gunner of the Plover; Lieut. George Longley, Royal Engineers; Col. Lemou, Royal Marines; Capt. W. G. R. Masters, Royal Marines, her Majesty's ship Chesapeake; Lieut. J. C. Crawford, Royal Marine Artillery, and the Rev. H. Huleatt, Chaplain to the Forces.

The loss on the part of the French amounted to four men killed and ten wounded, including two officers, one of the latter, I regret to state, being Commandant Tricault.

My warmest thanks are due to Staff surg. Walter Dickson (b) of this ship, Dr. John Little, of the Royal Marine Brigade, and the medical officers of the force generally, to whose unwearied exertions I have to attribute the present satisfactory state of our wounded; and I avail myself of this opportunity of bringing under their lordships' special notice the very high terms in which Col. Lemon speaks of the services of Dr. W. J. Baird, senior asst. surg. of the brigade.

It is a more grateful duty to request you will bring under their lordships' notice the valuable assistance I received from Capt. Shadwell and Vansittart, in command of the respective divisions of gunboats. Lieut. John Jenkins is highly recommended by Capt. Shadwell for the way in which he fought the Banterer.

Capt. Vansittart speaks highly of Acting Commander R. J. Wynniatt, of the Nimrod, Lieut. A. J. Innes, of the Forester, Lieut. J. D. Bevan, of the Kestrel, and Lieut. W. H. Jones, of the Lee, whose able conduct in covering the landing, after he had been obliged to put his vessel on the ground to prevent her sinking, had also attracted my notice.

To Commander A. Wodehouse, of the Cormorant, Lieut. C. J. Balfour, of the Opossum, J. D. Broad, of the Haughty, and H. P. Kneivt, of the Janus, my thanks are also due for the manner in which their vessels were fought and handled.

My thanks are also due to Major Fisher, Royal Engineers, whose men being distributed as riflemen in the gun vessels and gunboats, was himself present on board the Plover.

The Nozigavy, French gunboat, not being armed in a manner which enabled her to share in the attack, Mons. Tricault, commandant of the Duchayla, did me the honour to attach himself to me from the commencement of the action till he landed.

Mr. J. W. M. Ashby, my secretary, besides being on duty with me, took charge of the signal duty when my flag lieutenant took command of the Plover.

To Commander J. E. Commerell, and W. A. J. Heath, for their conduct during the operations on shore, my warmest acknowledgments are due. Commander Commerell brings under my notice Lieutenants George Parsons and John C. Wilson, of the Chesapeake, and C. E. Buckle, Acting, of the Magicienne, Messrs. George S. Peard, John Shortt, and Viscount Kilcourse, Mates, and Messrs. George Armytage, and C. L. Oxley, midshipmen.

To Colonel Lemon my warmest acknowledgments are also due for the way in which he led the brigade. That officer strongly recommends Maj. Parke, who commanded the 1st, and Capt. Masters, who commanded the 2nd Battalion; and brings under my notice the assistance he received from Capt. P. M. C. Croker, Brig. maj.; Lieut. L. Rokeby, acting as his aide-de-camp; Lieuts. and Adjts. John F. Hawkey and H. L. Evans; and Lieut. John Straghan. The conspicuous gallantry of Sergt.-maj. Woon and Quartermaster-sergt. Halling also attracted his notice.

Major Fisher, Royal Engineer, speaks highly of the gallantry of Lieut. J. N. Maitland, R.E., in endeavouring to get the scaling ladders up, a service in which Lieutenant Longley, R.E., was also engaged, and unfortunately wounded.

To Capt. J. O. Willes my warmest thanks are due for his exertions in re-embarking the force when it became evident that the attack had failed, on which service he remained till Com. Commerell reported to him that the last man was re-embarked.

He speaks highly of Lieut. J. C. Wilson and M. J. St. J. Wagstaffe, assist. paymr., on that occasion (the latter of whom accompanied him throughout the day). Upon Capt. Willes also devolved the arduous duty of directing the gallant attempts which were subsequently made to recover the Plover, Lee, and Cormorant, and when that became hopeless to effect their destruction; and to his unwearied zeal I am indebted for carrying out the repairs of the gunboats, all of which have been placed on the ground for that purpose.

He speaks highly of all the officers and men employed on this service, and especially of the gallantry of Lieut. N. P. Kneivt, of the Janus, in laying out an anchor for the recovery of the Cormorant, under a heavy fire, and of that of Mr. O. Samson, second master of the Starling, who recovered that vessel under a sharp fire from the enemy, on her floating; of the efforts made by Lieut. Wilson and Mr. S. R. Broome, gunner of the Chesapeake, to destroy the vessels which were no longer recoverable; and of the energy displayed by Mr. W. D. Strong, master of the Cruiser, in raising the Haughty, which had sunk.

He further calls my attention to the exertions of the carpenters of the Assistance, Cruiser, and Magicienne, under the direction of Mr. R. Pickard, of this ship, who, in effecting the repairs of the gunboats, with the artificers of the squadron, had many difficulties to surmount.

From what has preceded, their lordships will be well able to appreciate the devoted gallantry displayed by the officers and men on this occasion; and although it has not pleased God to crown our efforts in the execution of our duty with success, I yet feel entire confidence that those efforts will obtain from their lordships that full measure of approbation they have so well deserved.—I have, &c.,

Lieutenant Roome in the Field.

No. 1,039 of 1859.—H. E. the Gov.-gen. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following letter from Brigdr.-gen. Sir R. Napier, K.C.B., comdg. Gwalior division, forwarding a report of a successful action against the rebels under Adil Mahomed Khan, in the Basoda district, by a detach. under Lieut. Roome, 10th By.N.I.

H.E. in council desires to record his appreciation of the spirit and gallantry on this occasion of Lieut. Roome, who commanded, and of Lieut. Bradford, of Mayne's horse; and his approval of the conduct of all concerned in this affair.

From Brigdr.-gen. Sir R. Napier, K.C.B., comdg. Gwalior div., to the chief of the staff.

Hd.-qrs., Simla, Morar, 15th June, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to forward, for the information of the rt. hon. the C. in C., a report of a success gained over the rebels, under Adil Mahomed Khan, in the Basoda district, by Lieut. Roome, of the 10th By.N.I., whom I had sent out in command of a small column.

I beg to recommend Lieut. Roome to his lordship's favourable notice, as a most promising officer, of much spirit and intelligence. His exertions in the field were continued when he should have been in sick quarters, and I regret to learn that he has suffered severely in consequence.

Lieut. Bradford, in charge of the detach. Mayne's horse, has, on several previous occasions, been very favourably reported to me.

I have called on Lieut. Roome for a more particular report of the services of the native officers, with a view to bring them to his lordship's notice.

Although the regiment has been so lately raised, the men have never lost an opportunity of distinguishing themselves.

R. NAPIER, Brigdr. gen.,
Comdg. Gwalior div.

From Lieut. F. Roome, 10th regt. By. N.I., comdg. F.F., to Maj. Todd, Adj. gen., Gwalior div.

Camp Reechea, May 16, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to report, for the information of General Sir R. Napier, K.C.B., comdg. Gwalior div., that having heard that Adil Mahomed Khan was collecting a force in this neighbourhood for the purpose of attacking Basoda, I left Mungrowlie for this place with force as per margin.*

To deceive the enemy as to my intentions, I had already ordered supplies, &c., to be collected at Nataran and Aijdah, giving out that I was going that way.

I started yesterday at 1 A.M., halting during the heat of the day at Bhoraso, which I left again at 4 P.M.

Adil Mahomed Khan having influential friends in the Koorwae district, it was necessary to take a circuitous route to avoid villages supposed to be friendly to him. On the same account we had to refrain from crossing the Betwa till we reached Bhairkairie. This lengthened our route so considerably that we did not reach this place till about half an hour after daybreak, when we found that the enemy had left a few hours before.

Not being able to get any information from the villagers, I divided the cavalry into three parties to seek for the enemy's tracks. The party which I accompanied, consisting of 40 of Mayne's horse, under Lieut. Bradford, came upon some fresh footprints on a jungle path leading toward Konda.

We proceeded along this road at a canter, and when we had gone about four miles came suddenly upon a strong body of the enemy's cavalry, which we at once charged, cutting up many. They then fled in the Daumurie direction. We pursued for some miles, killing some thirty-five and taking three or four prisoners. The remainder, only about twenty, then dispersed in the jungles in every direction, and our horses being too tired to pursue further we returned to this place. The enemy were well mounted and well dressed (some in the scarlet of the late Gwalior contingent) and armed with percussion carbines and pistols.

Our prisoners report that Adil Mahomed Khan, Surferar Khan, and other chiefs of note were with this party. I very much fear, however, that the former effected his escape, as a personage of apparently some importance managed to get away in spite of our endeavours to prevent him. He was exceedingly well mounted, yet I am confident that had our horses been a little fresher we would have succeeded in catching him.

I cannot speak too highly of the behaviour of Mayne's horse. These men had marched since yesterday morning a distance of sixty-four miles before coming upon the enemy, and yet they could not have charged with greater dash had their horses been fresh from the stables: this may partly be accounted for by the gallant manner in which they were led by Lieut. Bradford, of whose excellent soldier-like qualities the general is no doubt aware, and whom I beg to bring again to his favourable notice. The following native officers particularly distinguished themselves by their gallantry in hand-to-hand conflicts, Ressaldar Indur Sing, Jemadar Gujur Sing, and Duffadar Luximon Sing. Gujur Sing was wounded by a carbine bullet in the breast, but, nothing daunted, cut down the man who fired at him. I am happy to say the wound is slight and he is doing well.

I regret exceedingly that circumstances prevented me from bringing into action and thus rewarding the men of the 10th N.I. for the fatigues and privations they had undergone. I cannot say too much in favour of the cheerfulness with which they, and, indeed, the whole force, bore every hardship, marching day and night till the object for which we set out was accomplished.

The valuable services rendered to Government during this mutiny by Sir Soobah Ram Chunder Bajee Row are well known to the General, but not only were his exertions on this occasion as untiring as ever, but his gallantry in action was most conspicuous, he having been closely engaged several times.

Waman Row Mhadow, Tehsildar of Basoda, deserves great credit for the accuracy of the information he procured.

Action near Banpore Thannah.

No. 848 of 1859.—H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following letter from Brigdr. Rowcroft, c.b., commanding the Goruckpore district, forwarding a report from Maj. Murray, comdg. Jat horse, of an action with the rebels near Banpore Thannah, on the 26th April, 1859 :—

2. H.E. in Council concurs in the approbation expressed by the right hon. the C. in C. of the conduct of Maj. Murray, and the troops under his command.

From Brigdr. F. Rowcroft, comdg. Goruckpore district, to Maj. H. W. Norman, Offg. Adj. gen. of the army, Army Hd. Qrs.

Goruckpore, 14th May, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to transmit for submission to H.E. the C. in C. the accompanying report, dated Camp Banpore, the 27th ult., from Maj. J. Murray, comdg. Jat horse, and the troops at Doomureeagunge on the River Raptée.

2. From the information I had received I was apprehensive that the rebels would push from the borders of Oude eastward, between Doomureeagunge and Banpore Thannah. I therefore immediately ordered Maj. Murray, with a detach. from Lotun, to move and take post at Doomureeagunge, where he arrived on the 24th April, and I reinforced him with a party of 100 men of the 9th and 20th Punj. inf. from Bustee; and on the 26th idem Major Murray came across the body of rebels, some 1,500 strong, still called the Nusseerabad brigade; and though they were very superior in numbers he immediately most gallantly attacked them, defeating and routing them with considerable loss, driving them westward, to the borders of Oude, over the Koanee River, as detailed in his report.

3. I would beg to recommend to the particular notice of H.E. Lord Clyde the zeal, gallantry, and steadiness of the officers and men in this action under the immediate command of Major Murray.

F. ROWCROFT, Brigdr.,
Comdg. Goruckpore district.

From Brev. Maj. J. J. Murray, comdg. troops at Doomureeagunge, to the Brig. maj., Goruckpore.

Camp Banpore, the 27th April, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to report for the information of Brig. Rowcroft, c.b., that I marched from Bhowaneeegunge Bazar with the force, as per margin,* yesterday morning skirting the jungle on the left bank of the Khoanee Nuddee, with the intention of co-operating with Capt. Renny's column in an attack on the Nusseerabad brig., and other rebels concealed in the heavy jungle on the right bank of the river. On reaching Sunkerpore it was reported that a foraging party of rebel sowars were plundering the adjacent villages. I immediately detached a troop of Jat horse, under Ensign Hennessy, who killed seven sepoy mounted on horses and ponies, a few others escaping into the jungle which was close at hand.

I now moved on to Durriapore, where I was fortunately reinforced with the detachments as per margin† from Bustee. Here I intended halting until I could learn something of Capt. Renny's movements.

At 1 o'clock my videttes reported that the rebels had crossed the Khoanee Nuddee, and were marching down in great numbers on my camp. I at once advanced and found them drawn up in a very formidable position, their centre division in a village, supported by a column of inf. in the rear, at least 1,000 strong, with divisions of cav. and inf. about 300 yards on either flanks, and a dense jungle immediately in their rear and flanks; the whole under the command of Gungna Singh and Dabee Dean. The inf. were dressed in Khakee and manœuvred with much precision, throwing out skirmishers, &c.

† 9th Punj. inf., 2 native officers, 62 R. and F.; 20th Punj. inf., 1 native officer, 44 R. and F.

After reconnoitring I feigned a retreat, in the hope of drawing them away from the jungle, to enable my cav. to act, but this movement not having the desired effect, I determined upon an attack, and formed the inf. into two divisions, covered by a line of skirmishers, with cav. on either flank and 25 sabres in reserve.

The enemy opened a heavy fire from their three divisions as I advanced, and at the same time made a bold attempt to run my right flank, which was promptly checked by the cav. under Ensign Hennessy. When within fifty yards of the village, the skirmishers, gallantly led by Lieut. Sadlier, 20th Punj. inf., carried the place with a rush, on which a panic seized the main body, who fled precipitately into the jungle. Their right division was at the same time dispersed by the cav. and a com. of inf. On our left I immediately pursued with all my inf., driving them across the river, and only desisted, when from the thickness of the jungle, and their having fled in three different directions, all traces of them had disappeared.

It is impossible to form anything like a correct estimate of their loss, as they suffered most in the pursuit, but it must have been considerable. Many threw away their arms and ammunition, and twenty men and several horses were drowned in re-crossing the river. I am glad to say our loss was only 20th Punj. inf., three men wounded.

Jat horse, one horse killed and two wounded.

I am particularly indebted to Lieut. Currie, second in command 20th Punj. inf., for his able management of the inf., and my best thanks are also due to Lieut. Sadlier, and Ensign Hennessy, the two other officers in the field, for their good and gallant services.

I cannot speak too highly of the steadiness and bravery of my small detach., all young soldiers, and who were opposed to a disciplined force at least five times their number and holding a very strong position.

There are now no rebels in this side the Khoanee Nuddee.

J. J. MURRAY, Brev. maj.,
Comdg. troops at Doomureeagunge.

ROYAL SPORTS IN PERSIA.—Accounts have been received from Teheran to the 17th July. A letter of that date says :—"On the 10th, the Shah, who, with all his court, is still at the camp of Sultanieh, his ordinary summer residence, gave a magnificent fete, to celebrate the anniversary of his accession to the throne. The amusements consisted of a grand tournament, exercises of jugglers, and in the evening splendid illuminations and a display of fireworks in the Indian manner. On the following morning there commenced a tiger hunt on the mountain, which lasted three days. The Shah, who is very partial to those sports, in which he displays great courage and address, killed a tiger with his lance, just after the animal had crushed the skull of one of the guards and wounded a grand officer of the household."

A CASHMERE SHAWL MANUFACTORY.—Mookti Shah then took me to his manufactory, a miserable dirty building, the working department one large room, about sixty by thirty. Here were some forty men and boys, of all ages, from six up to fifty, arranged in twos and threes, at different looms, each one a loom to himself, for all the most valuable shawls are made in looms, in small pieces according to the pattern, and then sewn together. The pattern is not put in colours and squares, like our patterns of worsted work for chair-backs, seats, or slippers, but the directions written. When the patterns are made they are all sewn together. At some looms where they were working there appeared to be four or five hundred small pins of wood with rolls of different shades of woollen thread, to be used in the different parts of the pattern. It was astonishing to see the dexterity with which the small children worked these handlooms, and understood their written directions. Most of the people were at work on a magnificent shawl for the Empress Eugénie of France, a white ground or centre, and it will be the most elegant one he has ever made. He says thirty men have been steadily at work on it for six months, and it will require three more months to finish it. The price, when finished, will be about 1,800 rupees or 650 dollars, and is such a shawl as would sell for about 4,000 dollars in London or New York—so you see the shopkeepers, even if they don't come out here to make money, are enabled to realise a little when they stay at home. My shawl took fifteen men seven months to make. The workmen only receive one and a-half annas (4½ cents.) a day.—Wall street to Cashmere, by John B. Ireland.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

WEDNESDAY, Sept. 21, 1859.

THE ANDAMAN ISLANDS.

Among the recent "Selections from the Records of the Government of India" is a remarkably interesting series of papers on the Andamans. In obedience to instructions from the Court of Directors, the Indian Government appointed a Committee on the 20th November, 1857, to examine the above-named group of islands, "with a view to the selection of a site for the establishment of a penal settlement." The Commissioners were Dr. Mouat, Inspector of Jails, Dr. Playfair, and Lieutenant Heathcote, L.N., and the result proved that better men could not have been selected for the purpose. Though "placed in the track of one of the greatest commercial highways of the world," these islands have only been known as the fabled haunts of cannibals, and as a statu male fida carinis. It now appears that there is every reason to question the man-eating propensities of the poor savages, though there is no doubt as to their having massacred all shipwrecked mariners who fell into their hands, and, perhaps, burnt their bodies. A party of islanders was, indeed, once seen gathered about a fire, over which a human body was being consumed—but it was already too much charred to be fit for food. The inhabitants are actually dwarf negroes, though how they came there cannot be ascertained, and few of them exceed five feet in stature. For the most part they are a sturdy and well-built race, and ready to do battle against all comers. It has been suggested, and with much probability, that their extreme ferocity towards strangers arises rather from desperation than from natural barbarism, as the Burmese and others have frequently been in the habit of landing on the islands and carrying off the wretched savages into captivity. The natives are too ignorant to distinguish between different nations, and thus regard all foreigners as their sworn foes. They are, moreover, an indolent and improvident people. They know nothing of agriculture, and live chiefly on shell-fish. Sometimes they secure a few fish by shooting them with a bow and arrows, but they seem to have no idea of catching them with a hook and line. Nets, however, are occasionally used, and in stormy weather they have recourse to rats and wild pigs, the only animals found in the Islands. Even birds are rare, owing to the scarcity of fresh water, though it may be found at a very short depth below the surface. There is no trace of agricultural operations, and the primeval forest remains in a state of nature. "Their huts," we are told, "are rude and open on all sides. In general they consist of four posts, the two anterior being much higher than the two posterior ones, which are close to the ground. The former varied from three or four to about ten feet in height. The thatch generally consisted of a few palm leaves lightly bound together and overlapping each other. In every village there were one or two huts of larger dimensions, some twelve or fourteen feet square, with well-thatched roofs plaited on a rattan frame. One quadrangular hut was seen, supported on corner posts, with the eaves of the thatch within a foot and a-half of the ground. Most of the others were quite open in front and at the sides, the rear being protected by the thatch reaching nearly to the ground." These huts are often decorated with skulls of pigs, tortoises, and fish. But neither men nor women were half so much adorned. With the exception of a coating of red clay daubed on the top of the head and the anterior part of the chest they were entirely naked, even to every hair being shaved off. To such a degree do they carry their horror of hirsute appendages, that a deserter, having fallen into their hands, had his head shaven with a piece of bottle glass, but was otherwise well treated. Their only weapons are bows and arrows, the latter barbed with iron, and going straight to a mark at forty yards' distance, but in no instance has poison been discovered. Their canoes are laboriously excavated by means of a small adze with a wooden head, in which is fixed a semicircular blade of iron beaten out. The nautilus-shell serves these simple islanders as a drinking-cup, and all their household implements are of the most primitive kind. The only vegetable food found in their huts was the fruit of the mangrove, a large leguminous bean sliced in shreds and soaked in fresh water in a small closely-woven net and wild spinach. As to their numbers, nothing could be ascertained, but in all likelihood they do not exceed a few hundreds. It is painful to think that utter extermination almost certainly awaits these wretched barbarians. Off Interview Island one was captured by the expedition, and taken to Calcutta, but as he almost immediately sickened he was sent back with an ample supply of carpenters tools, knives, cotton cloth, thread, cords, axes, metal pots and pans, beads, looking glasses, and objects of savage finery. It is not stated, however, if anything has since been heard of this messenger of peace, or even if he survived to reach his native shores. At present a penal settlement has been established at Port Blair, in South Andaman, and, according to Dr. Walker, with every prospect of success. It must be acknowledged, however, that that gentleman appears to entertain peculiar notions on the subject of convict treatment. His "unequalled experience of the management of Hindostani prisoners," as he himself modestly says, encouraged him to undertake to provide for 10,000 convicts per annum for, at least, five consecutive years. But a little further on our wonder is abated by the significant statement that out of 773 convicts landed between the 10th of March and the 12th of June, 1858, there remained in custody on the 16th June no more than 481. Of the others, 64 died in hospital, 140 effected their escape, one committed suicide, and 87 were executed. We observe, however, that the Calcutta papers received by the last mail report Dr. Walker's "resignation"—the Government having failed to appreciate his "unequalled experience."

THE BRITISH SOLDIER IN INDIA.*

THE military events of the last few years having disabused the authorities of their deeply

rooted notion that a soldier was nothing more than a piece of machinery, the current of public opinion has set almost as strongly in the opposite direction, and there is now some danger of his being considered the most valuable citizen of the State. This remark, however, is scarcely applicable to the very sensible and practical suggestions of Dr. Mouat, whose object is simply to render the soldier in India thoroughly efficient for the discharge of the duties belonging to his vocation. A long experience has enabled this gentleman to go to the very bottom of the question, and, in a great degree, to solve the mystery of the preservation of health in hot climates. One of the first considerations, of course, relates to clothing and equipments. The result of numerous and careful experiments has shown that the nearer the colour approaches to white the cooler will the dress be, whatever the fabric. "The very worst, hottest, and most uncomfortable colours that could have been selected are the dark-blue of the Artillery, and the dark-green of the Rifles." "The sad, quaker, stone colours, light iron-greys, and neutral tints of unbleached linen are the least likely to attract the attention of an enemy," or the almost equally destructive rays of the sun. With regard to underclothing there is no doubt that woollen garments, such as flannel shirts, are very desirable. "A flannel shirt of sufficiently soft texture supersedes the necessity of bunnians, cholera belts, and all superfluous articles of clothing, which the careless soldier either loses, or is too lazy to change. These shirts should be of light fast colours that will bear washing, and not show stains readily." Next to the material arises the question of form. The loose peg-top trousers worn by the Zouaves are pronounced the most serviceable, especially if made of well-shrunk flannel for cold or wet weather, and of strong duck or linen for the hot weather. Gaiters are also recommended, and socks with woollen feet woven to cotton legs. In the way of shoes, the soldier should be provided with a pair of waterproof ankle-boots, and a lighter pair, either of untanned leather or canvas, for hot and dusty roads; but the main point is to have the soles projecting beyond the upper leather, something in the manner of sandals. The present great-coat is admitted on all hands to be a failure, and the scarf worn by officers and non-commissioned officers to be useless unless applied as a cholera belt, when it would be both ornamental and conducive to health. The head-dress is perhaps the most difficult point of all. It is no longer necessary, indeed, to render it sabre-proof, but it is required to ward off the direct heat of the sun, not only from the skull, but also from the sides of the head, face, and neck. During the siege of Delhi the head-dress most in vogue was a helmet of untanned Cawnpore leather, with a white cover and curtain, and a large ventilating aperture at the crest, where the plume is usually inserted. Dr. Mouat is of opinion that the time will come when the preference will be given to aluminium over all other materials; but, in the meantime, he accords the highest praise to "a thin, flexible cane frame-work, covered with quilted cotton, with an aperture at the crest, and a neck-curtain behind." They are "built at Allahabad complete for a rupee." On the subject of accoutrements, it is stated that "all black and other glazes of dark colour are inadmissible, because they attract heat, and most of them are liable to chemical changes from the combined action of heat and moisture. The best material for the outer casing of knapsacks, cartouche-boxes, cap-pouches, bayonet-sheaths, and similar accoutrements, would be either untanned leather or fine canvas rendered waterproof." Blacking and pipe-clay are pronounced highly objectionable and altogether unwholesome.

The health of European troops in India depends, however, fully as much upon their barracks as upon all other considerations combined. Those in Fort William and some in the Punjab are stately edifices, but not nearly so healthy as some barn-like buildings raised a few feet above the ground at Moulmein. The essential point is to have the sleeping apartments on an upper floor, thoroughly ventilated and unoccupied in the day. The fever-generating malaria usually lies along the surface of the ground, and seldom rises above twelve or fifteen feet. The most extended aspects of all dwellings should face the prevailing winds, and be free from all obstructions to a full current of air. "A double roof, open at the ridge-pole, with gable ends, is the most efficient for ventilation," and if covered with well-burnt glazed tiles would be both waterproof and incombustible.

"Each barrack should contain one company, and no more, due distinction and provision being made for married and single men. It should be raised on arches to the height of, at least, twelve feet, the ground floor being occupied by bathing and washing rooms in the angles, dining, reading, fencing, and work rooms in the body, with verandahs all round for skittles, smoking, examination of arms on wet days, &c., &c. The upper floor should contain the sleeping apartments, with the quarters of the non-commissioned officers in the angles, and verandahs on all sides as below, but with no screens within ten feet of the floor. This range should be from eighteen to twenty feet in height, with pitched roofs, ventilated throughout, and double ceilings, if necessary, to prevent excessive heating during the hot winds. Each block should have its own cook-rooms and out-offices of all kinds complete, and the whole should have one great garden surrounding it, with a farm yard as well as a grand parade. The officers' quarters and hospital, as in the French army, should always be in barracks near their men, and the whole encinte, covering several acres, should be surrounded by a low ramp and ditch. These can easily be kept in repair by the men themselves, and would render every barrack a defensible position against any number of natives without artillery, an arm in the use of which, it is to be hoped, they will never again be permitted to become proficient."

Dr. Mouat is strongly in favour of the cooking being done by the men themselves, and prefers the American stoves to Capt. Grant's, because they can grill and roast in addition to boiling, baking, and stewing. A large garden is also recommended, together with workshops, fencing rooms, gymnasia, &c.

The custom of sending out growing lads and raw recruits is deservedly reprobated. The great mortality among European soldiers in India is in this class. Very young men are more susceptible of climatic influences than those whose frames are set and hardened, nor can they be taught to take the same care of themselves. At the same time it has been found that soldiers going out for the first time after the age of forty have seldom been able to preserve their health. It is also very advisable that no recruit should leave the English shores until he is thoroughly master of all his exercises and acquainted with all the duties of his profession. But when every precaution has been taken it is still impossible to fully acclimatise the European. All that can be done is to keep him employed and amused, to wean him from drinking spirituous liquors, and to protect him from the direct rays of the sun without "mollycoddling" him. With the extension of railways it will be practicable to send every regiment to the hills after two years' service in the plains, so as to invigorate the constitution before it has been materially shaken by tropical diseases. There are many other points, to which our limits will not permit us to do more than allude; but we trust that enough has been said to induce our military readers to procure for themselves a copy of Dr. Mouat's very suggestive pamphlet, and to peruse it with the consideration due to the importance of the subject it passes under review.

TRADE AND COMMERCE OF INDIA.

At the Friday meeting of the British Association, at Aberdeen, Mr. J. T. Mackenzie read a paper on the trade and commerce of India.

The paper gave a view of the exports and imports of bullion and merchandise for twenty-five years ending in 1858. The value of exports from British India amounted, in the five years from 1833-38, to £10,300,000 annually, while for the five years from 1853-58 the amount annually was £22,810,755. Imports of merchandise, exclusive of treasure, averaged £4,717,278 yearly in the first period of the same series, and £13,457,015 yearly for the last. The total bullion imports into India for the twenty-five years was £110,320,428. The number of vessels entered into India from foreign ports in 1858 was 4,300; tonnage, 1,686,558. The largest item of merchandise imported into India, consisting of cotton, twist, yarn, and piece goods, amounted, in 1858, to £4,696,400, of which £4,608,655 were supplied by the United Kingdom. The writer next alluded to the importance of the extension of this great market to every class at home, and the obvious means by which this great object is to be attained is, on the one hand, by increasing the producing power of India, and by enabling her to dispose of a larger quantity of her own productions; and on the other, by our manufacturers studying more than they do at present the habits of the people, in the manufacture of articles best suited to their real wants, tastes, and fancies. The total value of merchandise exported from British India in 1858 was £27,453,692, of which £9,100,635 was opium, none of which is entered for British consumption. Deducting this, the exports still exceeded £18,000,000, of which more than £10,500,000 came to the United Kingdom. The largest item of Indian exports, after opium, is raw cotton, which in 1858 amounted to £4,301,769, of which £3,296,698 came to the United Kingdom, and this is about £1,500,000 below the value of the manufactured cotton we sent out to her. He pointed to the importance that organised efforts should be made to promote the consumption of Indian produce, and thereby to stimulate her productive power. The whole system of banking in India requires to be changed. The means of transport and irrigation were also noticed as greatly needed and greatly important. It should be clearly understood, however, that for the real extension of the great commercial intercourse with India, it is no part of the duty of Government to aid, either directly or indirectly, by pecuniary grants, gifts of land, or guarantees of interest, any industrial or commercial undertaking of the country.

The Chairman briefly referred to the value of the paper.

Dr. Forbes Watson stated that patterns of goods used by the natives of India were to be sent to the various chambers of commerce throughout the kingdom, so that their tastes might be suited in articles manufactured and sent out to India.

Mr. Ashworth, Manchester, observed that the late mutiny had been the means of opening up the country to trade. He advocated the opening up of India to Englishmen to become owners of freeholds in India; also the improvement of the banking system, &c.

Dr. Bird remarked that improved accommodation in the country, improved land settlements, improved irrigation, and an improved banking system, the introduction of a gold coinage, the granting of freeholds to natives, were what was required by India.

Mr. Crawford maintained that the government of India was not good. He defended the opium growth.

Mr. Bazley, M.P. for Manchester, agreed that a main question relative to India was the question of government. We had rather been conquerors than benefactors to India. He referred to the fact in favour of railways in India, which he had on high authority, that with good railways India could be as well protected by 100,000 soldiers as by 300,000 without railways. He also referred to the great desirableness of developing the cotton trade of India; but let India grow that which she was most capable of producing.

Mr. Farley Leith observed, with regard to land tenures in India, that Mr. Ashworth was mistaken as to Europeans holding land; for an ordinance had existence, and was to some extent in force, for Europeans as well as natives can hold land by absolute possession of the soil, and there are cases where they do so. The condition of the land tenure has been a grievance long felt; and he was quite sure that the value of this concession could not be exaggerated. Many had gone to California, Fraser River, and Australia, in search of what was called gold. Now this association would do a great service if it directed attention to the fact that India possesses more gold than any one of those countries—in her soil and material substances there are mines of wealth if only they were developed by British enterprise. If the advantages of India in this respect were known, he believed the attractions of California, &c., would appear insignificant. We might go on to eternity in seeking palliatives for India; but let us introduce our labour and skill into that country. The foundation of all improvement in India was to raise the social condition of the people. It is in vain to send manufactures to India till you train the people to the use of them, though it is quite true that a great portion of the people have not now what they require.—Daily News.

BOOKS.

Who shall Regenerate India? By Major D. Martin. London: W. H. Allen and Co.

Major Martin has discovered a panacea for all the ills under which India is labouring, in the appointment of Lord Ellenborough to the viceregal chair. Confidence, he thinks, would at once be restored. The Europeans would obey the noble lord implicitly, partly through trust, partly through fear, and the natives would have perfect reliance on his firmness, justice, and generosity. The present position of India is admitted to be exceedingly critical. The sepoys feel that they are suspected, the Punjabees are wavering between the certainty of present well-doing and the chance of future independence, the agricultural classes are steeped in hopeless poverty, and the native princes have become aware of their real power and importance. The train being thus laid, a mere spark would suffice to produce a terrible explosion. There is need, therefore, of an experienced hand at the helm, and who more resolute to face danger than the Earl of Ellenborough? But, after all, is the gallant major quite certain that the noble earl would accept the post if offered to him? He is no longer a young man, and the lapse of years is apt to engender a fear of responsibility, and a preference of counsels to deeds.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS.

FOR INDIA AND THE COLONIES.
A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF BRITISH AND FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

This Newspaper presents a comprehensive and perfect view of British and Foreign affairs, with special reference to those subjects in any way interesting to residents in India, or those at home having connections there. The Intelligence is brought down to the latest possible moment prior to the departure of the Mail. The various departments are so arranged, and the intelligence analysed, as to form a weekly register of permanent interest and value, which subscribers will be glad to preserve.

The weekly issue of "THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS" renders it as eligible a newspaper for Anglo-Indians resident at home as abroad.

Families should send it to their friends abroad.
Parties proceeding to India or China should not fail to order a year's subscription.

THE MELTON RIDING BELT.—Importtant to those who are suffering from Weakness in the Back and General Debility. The following is printed by permission:—

"Sir,—You ask for my opinion of your Melton Riding Belt;
I give it. Having resided for a long time in India, my constitution is very much debilitated, and for a long time I was suffering from a weakness in the back and the lower part of the body, which no internal remedy could reach, and the slightest exertion completely overpowered me. I was ordered by my medical man to wear a support, and seeing your advertisement I obtained one of your Melton Riding Belts, which I have worn for the last five months. It gives me great support. I can take riding or other exercise without feeling that extreme lassitude and weariness afterwards. My general health is much improved. You have my best thanks. You will secure my best support.—Yours truly, "Torquay, July 30, 1859. "J. PRATT MATHESON.

TEETH.

No. 9, LOWER GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.—Newly-invented and Patented application of Chemically prepared WHITE and GUM-COLOURED INDIA-RUBBER in the construction of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, GUMS, and PALATES.

Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon-Dentist, No. 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee.

A new, original, and invaluable invention, consisting in the adaptation, with the most absolute perfection and success, of chemically prepared White and Gum-coloured India-rubber, as a lining to the ordinary gold or bone frame. The extraordinary results of this application may be briefly noted in a few of their most prominent features.

All sharp edges are avoided; no springs, wires, or fastenings, are required; a greatly increased freedom of suction is supplied, a natural elasticity, hitherto wholly unattainable; and a fit, perfected with the most unerring accuracy, is secured; while, from the softness and flexibility of the agents employed, the greatest support is given to the adjoining teeth when loose, or rendered tender by the absorption of the gums.

The acids of the month exert no agency on the chemically prepared India-rubber, and, as it is a non-conductor, fluids of any temperature may with thorough comfort be imbibed and retained in the mouth, all unpleasantness of smell and taste being, at the same time, wholly provided against by the peculiar nature of its preparation.

To be obtained only at 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, London; 14, Gay-street, Bath; and 10, Eldon-square, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

JAMS, JELLIES, and MARMALADE, PRESERVED IN TINS, By BARNES, MORGAN, and Co. (the Originators of this method of preserving), Upper Thames-street, London, E.C. This mode of Preserving is now acknowledged to be far superior to any yet invented. The contents will keep good for any number of years without the Tin imparting any metallic taste to the Preserve, and never candy or ferment. To Regimental Messes they are peculiarly adapted, being more portable than jars, and not liable to breakage. B. M. and Co. would also recommend their Pickles, Sauces, Fruit Jams, &c., and their large stock of York and Cumberland Hams, Cheese, and Bacon.

THE NEW MORNING DRAUGHT. HOOPER'S SELTZER POWDERS make a most agreeable, effervescent, tasteless Aperient Morning Draught, and are acknowledged by every one who try them to be infinitely superior in every respect to any Seltzer Powders, effervescent more briskly, are quite tasteless, are painless in operation, and effective in result. Mixed as suggested in the directions, even children take them with a relish. Sold by HOOPER, Chemist, London-bridge, in boxes (and in bottles for exportation), 2s. 6d. each.

Real Cognac Brandy, 53s. per dozen; curious old Cognac (vintage 1840), 84s. per dozen. Foreign Liquors of all kinds. Wynaud Forkin's Caragon, 3s. 6d. per bottle. Price Lists on application. Terms, net cash. Note.—Carriage paid by Rail to any part of Great Britain.

THE FAMILY BOOT-MAKER. BURCHETT, 71 Oxford-street, nearly opposite the Pantheon, London, and Crystal Palace, Sydenham. The best assortment of LADIES', GENTLEMEN'S, and CHILDREN'S BOOTS and SHOES in the Kingdom. EXCELLENCE—ELEGANCE—ECONOMY.

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY, 29, Lombard-street, London, and Royal Insurance Buildings, Liverpool.

At the Annual Meeting of the 5th August, the following highly satisfactory results were shown:—

FIRE DEPARTMENT. The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact—that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing, and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this Kingdom.

The Premiums for the year 1855 being... £136,060 While the Premiums for the year 1858 are... 196,148 Showing an actual increase of... 60,088 or upwards of 50 per cent. in three years.

The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1858) again show the Royal as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London Insurance Offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the moiety of its advance.

LIFE DEPARTMENT. The amount of new life premiums received this year is by far the largest received in any similar period since the commencement of the business, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful offices in the Kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 8,234, the sum assured £3,775,752. 6s. 8d., and the premium £12,354 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension of business during the last ten years. Thus:—

No. of Policies.	Sum Assured.	New Premiums.
1848 ... 98	£48,764 17 0	£1,380 9 1
1850 ... 190	95,650 9 11	2,627 4 7
1852 ... 422	181,504 10 6	5,825 5 10
1854 ... 408	161,848 13 4	4,694 16 0
1856 ... 703	297,510 16 8	8,850 3 11
1858 ... 832	587,752 6 8	12,354 3 4

The remarkable increase in the business of the last four years is mainly consequent upon the large bonus declared in 1855, which amounted to no less than £2 per cent. per annum on the sums assured, and averaged 80 per cent. upon the premiums paid.

PERCY M. DOVE, Manager and Actuary. JOHN B. JOHNSTON, Secretary to the London Board.

ACCIDENTS are of DAILY OCCURRENCE. Insurance data show that ONE PERSON in every FIFTEEN is more or less injured by Accident yearly.

An Annual Payment of £3 secures A FIXED ALLOWANCE OF £6 PER WEEK In the Event of Injury, or £1,000 IN CASE OF DEATH, from ACCIDENTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION, By a Policy in the

RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY,

Which has already paid in Compensation for Accidents £27,060.

Forms of Proposal and Prospectuses may be had at the Company's Offices, and at all the principal Railway Stations; where, also, Railway Accidents alone may be insured against by the journey or year.

NO CHARGE FOR STAMP DUTY. CAPITAL, ONE MILLION. WILLIAM J. VIAN, Secretary. Railway Passengers' Assurance Company, Offices—3, Old Broad-street, London, E.C.

RUPTURES.—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS

is allowed, by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen, to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of HERNIA. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body, two inches below the hips, being sent to the Manufacturer.

Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON. A Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d. Postage, 1s. A Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage, 1s. 8d. An Umbilical Truss, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage, 1s. 10d. Post office Orders to be made payable to JOHN WHITE Post-office, Piccadilly.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE-CAPS, &c., for VARICOSE VEINS, and all cases of WEAKNESS and SWELLING of the LEGS, SPRAINS, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 7s. 6d. to 16s. each Postage, 6d. JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228, Piccadilly, London.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—CHEERFULNESS.

Every resident in a town will remark the wonderful flow of good spirits always experienced from a visit to the country. The fact is the purer air renders the blood better fitted for its duties, which, in its turn, revives each drooping organ till its healthy action is established, and the result is the renewal of that energy, vivacity, and self-contentment, which too frequently fly with youth. Holloway's Pills will effect this happy change in all who cannot leave home, either from their straitened circumstances or daily occupation. The artist, student, merchant, and tradesman will alike derive benefit from these digestive and purifying Pills, which never fail to produce perfect action in stomach, liver, heart, lungs, and kidneys.

NEWBERRY'S COD LIVER OIL CAKES.

—We have examined a specimen of gingerbread made by Messrs. Newberry—each cake containing a teaspoonful of Cod Liver Oil. The gingerbread is extremely light and pleasant, the flavour of the oil being completely covered. This seems likely to prove a very useful mode of administering Cod Liver Oil to children, and to others who are nauseated by the offensive odour and flavour of the Oil as generally taken. —Medical Times, 12th Feb., 1859. Eight Cakes, 1s. 9d.; Sixteen (about 1lb.), 3s.—F. NEWBERRY and SONS, 45, St. Paul's-churchyard. Established A.D. 1746.

THE MAGNESIAN EFFERVESCENT is the most agreeable and effective remedy in all cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Acidity, Heartburn, Indigestion, and Biliary Affection, Nausea, Fever, Thirst, and Sickness. It is highly recommended by the profession, and will be found especially valuable to those going to India or travelling in warm climates: as a mild and efficacious saline aperient it stands unequalled, and will be found peculiarly adapted for delicate females and children. To be obtained through all respectable chemists, and wholesale from Messrs. BARCLAY, Farringdon-street (put up in stoppered bottles at 4s. 6d. for India), and smaller size at 1s. 14d. and 2s. 9d.

Prepared only by EDWARD PHILLIP, Chemist, 10, Vigo-street, Regent-street, W.

LEA'S ABERNETHY'S HOOPING COUGH

EMULSION.—From Sir W. Cubitt's Nephew. "Sir, —Your medicine cured me in ten days, after trying every remedy I heard of without success.—CHARLES HARRISON 32, Clifton-crescent, Old Kent-road."

Sold by G. LEA, 1A, South-street, Walworth, Surrey, and all Medicine Vendors, through his Agents, Messrs. Barclay's, 95, Farringdon-street, London, in bottles at 1s. 14d. and 2s. 9d. N.B.—Numerous references can be given to families who have tested the efficacy of this preparation, when every other means have entirely failed.

LENTUM, A NEW COMPOSITION

for Artificial TEETH and GUMS, recommended to Invalids and all who suffer from Indigestion. Its flexibility and lightness give the greatest power in mastication, avoiding all pain or pressure on the gums, without springs, wires, or any unsightly gold. It supports all loose and tender teeth, and does not require the extraction of stumps. Prepared only by Mr. ALFRED JONES, SURGEON-DENTIST to Her late Royal Highness the Duchess of Gloucester, Her late R.H. the Princess Augusta, the late Louis Philippe, and the ex-Royal Family of France. 61, GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE. At Home from Eleven till Five.

DEATH FROM CUTTING CORNS.—Ask for a Box of YOUNG'S CORN and BUNION PLAISTERS, which will eradicate corns or bunions in a very short time. Be careful that you have Young's—the name is printed on the label; all others are imitations. 1s. per box, or 13 postage stamps. Address H. YOUNG, 1, Shaftesbury-place, Aldersgate-street, E.C. May be had at most chemists' throughout the world. Agents wanted abroad. N.B.—A Liberal Allowance to Wholesale Dealers.

HAIR-CURLING FLUID, &c.—248, High

Holborn.—ALEX. ROSS'S Curling Fluid causes the hair to curl immediately it is used: 3s. 6d.—sent for 54 stamps. ALEX. ROSS'S Hair Destroyer, or Depilatory, removes superfluous hair from the face or hands, without injury to the skin; 3s. 6d. ALEX. ROSS'S Hair Dye; 3s. 6d. Private rooms for its use.

CHALLENGE TO THE WORLD.—The

Hair dyed perfectly natural by Mr. TAYLOR, 6, Glass-house-street, Regent-street. The dye sold at 6s. 6d. Sent to all parts. Mr. Taylor defies the world to produce a better.

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz. — Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency. Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Calcutta papers received by the mail of the 22nd August are chiefly occupied with comments on a new project of taxation introduced by Mr. Harington. This measure is denominated the Trades and Profession Licensing Bill, and applies alike to Europeans and natives, but with one noticeable exception—the Legislative Council exempt themselves and all officials from its action, finding it more easy and agreeable to devise taxes than to pay them. The agricultural classes naturally escape, as they are already subject to a land-tax; but the rest of the community is divided under ten heads, according to their amount of income. These divisions are regulated by the Collector, assisted by a Panchayat, from whose decision there lies an appeal to the Board. The following is the schedule of classes:—

1. Rs. 2,000 yearly. Any corporation or company carrying on business as bankers or banker.
2. Rs. 1,000 yearly. Any corporation or company carrying on business as bankers or banker.
3. Rs. 500 yearly. Any one carrying on trade or exercising a profession.
4. Rs. 250 ditto ditto.
5. Rs. 150 ditto ditto.
6. Rs. 50 ditto ditto.
7. Rs. 25 ditto ditto.
8. Rs. 10 ditto ditto.
9. Rs. 5 ditto ditto.
10. Rs. 2 ditto ditto.

It is estimated that this new impost will yield from a million to a million and a half—rather a wide margin—levied from upwards of 40,000,000 of people.

The Five and a Half per Cent. Loan is at a stand-still. Up to the 1st of August scarcely half a million had been received towards the five millions required by Government. A formidable vacuum thus remains, which will tax even Mr. Harington's ingenuity to supply.

Lord Canning, it is said, proposed to leave Calcutta about the middle of the present month, and to pass the cold season in travelling through the Upper Provinces. At the commencement of the hot winds his Lordship will repair to Simla, and from that elevated station calmly survey the mighty realm he governs with homœopathic doses of wisdom.

In the Madras Presidency Sir Charles Trevelyan pursues his feverish career of change. His maxim appears to be, whatever is is bad; and, consequently, the sun is never permitted to set until it has shone on a fresh innovation.

A few of these projects are mentioned elsewhere, and it will be seen that even the Athenæum begins to entertain misgivings as to the infallibility of its model Governor.

The intelligence from China is by no means satisfactory. A serious riot has taken place at Shanghai, in which several Europeans were stabbed. The disturbance is ascribed to the conduct of some Frenchmen who are accused of kidnapping coolies for Havannah. A strict investigation into the case was being instituted by the French Plenipotentiary, M. de Bourbonnol.

No steps had yet been taken to seek redress for the disaster at the Peiho. There is some reason to apprehend that the allies were not altogether justified in endeavouring to force a passage up one particular channel, when there was another one open to them. In any case, it is almost certain that the Anglo-French expedition will be on a very limited scale, and strictly confined to the infliction of a local chastisement. Admiral Hope, we regret to learn, is in a very precarious state of health, while Captain Vansittart has sunk under the effects of his wounds.

Lord Elgin appears to be unfortunate in the result of his treaties. The last China mail brought us the painful tidings of the repulse of a British squadron before the Taku forts, and now we learn that the Japanese, of whose friendliness and courtesy we have been told so much, are also endeavouring to break through the engagements entered into with his lordship. The treaty, indeed, was duly ratified on the 11th July, but attempts have ever since been systematically made to evade its true meaning and spirit. Foreigners are confined to a small island some miles from Yeddo, where they are closely watched by the native functionaries. A further difficulty has been created by the issue of a new coinage to be exclusively employed in the foreign trade, but which does not pass current among the Japanese themselves. Foreign coins, moreover, are received at their intrinsic value as metal. A protest has accordingly been issued by Mr. Alcock, the British Consul General, and for the present all trade has been suspended.

BENGAL.

THE DAY OF SMALL THINGS.

There is one hope which seems among Anglo-Indians to survive all facts. It is impossible, it is thought, that the apparent condition of affairs can be real, that a Government composed of Englishmen, however hampered by circumstances, can be so helpless, so devoid of ability as is represented. Those who entertain this soothing belief know little of past history or existing fact. There are times in the history of every nation when mental power seems to collapse, when small men creep to the top, when all broad plans are pronounced wild, when baby innovations and petty reforms occupy the little energy remaining. There is a "universal deadness in the public mind." Such a condition of affairs existed in England from 1730 to 1750, in France, despite the activity of thought, for the first fifteen years of Louis XVI., and in the petty States of Germany at the present hour. It is dominant in India now. A recent traveller in the North-West tells us that nothing strikes him like the marvellous decline in public spirit, the utter apathy of all classes except as to salary. Commissioners hear of improvements with a shrug. It would take two years to obtain a common official sanction. Magistrates smile resignedly at crime. Between Imperial legislation and the regulations the commandments are suspended. Officers will scarcely discuss reorganisation. What is the use when if a reform even comes it will be sent back, like the medical warrant, for reconsideration. The welling out of money never ceases. The local authorities will not stop it. If they suggest retrenchments they are told "not to raise questions of general policy." If they want economy or offer to dispense with levies, or sowars, or any of the tribe of quasi-military locusts who are eating up the land, they are considered theorists. They, therefore, as the alternative, sit, repeat Talleyrand's axiom about zeal, and confine energy to the expectation of a change.

All the while the routine of life goes on. Nobody can get an answer about reorganization, but an order selecting some forty officers to go home with the Europeans is signed with marvellous rapidity. No soldier can get his status fixed, but week by week native officers are rewarded with badges, decorations, prizes, all demanding minute official study. There is no broad plan of economy, but in Bombay Lord Elphinstone finds the energy to order all waste envelopes to be pulped and sold. In Bengal the Government of India inquires if it be not possible for the University Examiners who sit for entire days to dispense with tiffin, in the state of the finances. In Madras Sir Charles Trevelyan writes a minute on the cost of sacramental bread and wine, and reports that an allowance of Rs. 2 a-month ought to be amply sufficient as port at Rs. 25 a-dozen is quite good enough. A ranting congregation, preached to from a tub and collected in a barn, would disdain the meannesses to which the intellectual red-tapist can descend. The condition of the North-West urgently demands legislative reforms. They cannot be obtained, but a trumpery bill about native holidays can be passed at once. A reform in the Legislature is impossible, but a report on the Standing Orders, meaning nothing, can be prepared with marvellous promptitude and ease. It is the day of small things. Strong men are hunting gnats. Wise men are trying plans for killing fleas scientifically after they are caught. The mass are sitting open-mouthed, expecting, but with no hope, criticising, but with no energy, the action of rulers as torpid as themselves. Only the State car does not stop, and that is because it is rolling down an inclined plane.—Friend of India.

THE TRADE OF CALCUTTA.

Mr. Bonnaud's Commercial Annual is again most annoyingly late. Returns extending only to 1st May are published in August, when they have already become historical. The difficulty is said to be owing to the extreme pressure upon all printing offices, caused by the Government demand for compositors, but this evil must shortly wear itself out. If it does not, it would be better for Mr. Bonnaud to send his figures to Ceylon, or get them lithographed than destroy by delay the utility of an invaluable publication.

The nominal returns of the year exhibit a slow but progressive increase.

Year.	Imports.	Exports.	Total.
1855-56	13,87,08,627	13,75,20,947	27,62,29,574
1856-57	14,70,02,315	14,66,37,449	29,36,39,764
1857-58	15,21,45,131	14,24,07,413	29,45,52,544
1858-59	15,46,49,766	15,25,67,555	30,72,17,321

showing an increase in the total movement of trade of about a million and a quarter. The trade of Calcutta and Bombay are as nearly as possible equal, and the entire trade of India, with Rangoon, but without Singapore and Ceylon, exceeds seventy millions. In the last year of the Company's monopoly it was not five.

The figures quoted by no means, however, represent the true position of our trade. While the exports have increased from Rs. 13,38,10,495 in 1857-58 and Rs. 11,92,64,707 in 1855-56 to Rs. 14,62,98,753 in the present year, the imports have increased.

1858-59	.. ..	10,37,78,305

an increase of twenty-two per cent. within four years. The addition is almost entirely in the imports from Great Britain, which have risen from Rs. 5,29,84,514 in 1854-55 to Rupees 8,25,53,754 in 1858-59. The most important items of increase are:—

	Increase.
Cotton .. ..	Rs. 10,37,928
Haberdashery .. ..	8,18,318
Hardware .. ..	5,99,185
Copper .. ..	6,51,599
White and Grey Cottons .. ..	1,72,28,579
Alc .. ..	15,00,821

showing a new trade of two millions sterling with Manchester alone.

In exports the great fluctuations have been in

The only article in which any decrease of importance has occurred is rice, of which we exported less by half a million sterling than in the previous year. We recommend that fact to the consideration of our native friends who worry us to plead for a prohibition on the export of food. The cause of the falling off has been, we imagine, the unusual price of the grain, which has deprived it in part of its continental market.

The import of treasure has been

1855-56	.. ..	5,81,00,445

In other words, Bengal has absorbed twenty-six millions sterling in silver in five years. The whole of this money is coined, and it is the vast additions thus made to the currency which are slowly and permanently driving up all prices in Bengal. On the whole, though the development of our trade is not so rapid as it was eight years ago, the increase each year covers a wider surface, and the returns speak of a steady and increasing prosperity.—Friend of India.

"HEDGING" REWARDED.

Amongst the characters of notoriety during the rebellion was a Mahomedan deputy-collector of Agra, named Mahomed Mobeen. The outcry against him was very general, and it was supposed by a multitude of persons resident on the spot that he, having acted with sufficient duplicity to blind the eyes of the civilians to whom he was immediately subject, was not only at heart a rebel, but an active partisan of our enemies both at Agra and in Rohilkund. The military authorities were clear as to the man's guilt, and there is every reason to believe would have hanged him forthwith, but that a powerful set of civilians got him safe into their hands, held a mild investigation of their own, and pronounced him innocent. Still he was not set entirely free, but his patrons secured for him the handsome subsistence allowance of Rs. 250 per mensem, and kept him under nominal surveillance. Numbers of the Christian community, notwithstanding, believed in the guilt of Mobeen, and one allegation made against him was everywhere received as undeniably true, which was, that he justified the murder of our women and children at other stations, of which accounts were constantly reaching Agra, by quoting a couplet from Sadi, to the effect that when you kill the snake you should also destroy its brood if you wish to be safe. Even some civilians, not, however, included in the number of the patrons of Mobeen, charged him with distinct acts of disloyalty. We believe we are justified in naming Mr. Raikes and Mr. Wylly, and probably also Mr. Vansittart, as amongst those of the Covenanted Service who throughout maintained that he was guilty, and even penned charges against him. But the secret trial disappointed all expectations, and people could only wonder in what way the acquittal had been brought about. They had further to wonder that an innocent and injured individual, who enjoyed such distinguished patronage, and who was even considered meritorious in active loyalty, should not be openly declared to have been acquitted, set free, and restored to his post of deputy-collector of the Agra district. He remained, indeed, under a cloud for months and months, until the whole of this part of the country was restored to thorough order, until the proclamation had issued of the Queen's assumption of the Government of India, and until the declaration of the tranquillisation of Oude had announced the final destruction of organised opposition, without his friends finding fit opportunity to bring him forth to the light as that loyal servant of the State whom they would delight to honour. For all his good deeds in the middle of 1857 no reward other than the secret allowance of Rs. 250 per mensem is bestowed on him till the middle of 1859. But at length some measure of justice is done to him—not the full measure, or a very different final order would have been issued for execution—for the Government, in a quiet way, altogether suited to the prudent, unobtrusive character of the vindicating trial, have now (or rather as far back as May last) reviewed the proceedings, not only to confirm the acquittal on five distinct charges of rebellion, but to discover that justice (to quote the words of the Lieutenant-governor),—"that justice to this native gentleman will, in his opinion, be satisfied by reinstating him in his post and allowances from the date of the issue of this despatch."

So far we have no fault whatever to find with his honour's view of the case, as it was placed on record before him; and whether such notoriety was given to the preparation for trial, and such proceedings were taken to collect evidence as would have ensured a real ascertainment of facts, it is not our present purpose to discuss; but we must protest against the wrong done to "this native gentleman" by a further order which the Government has seen fit to pass. That second order directs that "Mahomed Mobeen, deputy-collector of Agra, be employed in some station away from his home, and not at Agra."

Why this condition? Why should Mahomed Mobeen be shut out from further distinction in the place in which his good conduct was so conspicuous—why should it be left for the world to suppose that some degree of distrust does still attach to him—why should not injured innocence be placed where its vindication would be most triumphantly displayed—why should the authorities act as if they were themselves afraid to court public opinion on the case? This treatment is obviously unjustifiable towards a man who is declared by the highest authority to have rendered (during the rebellion) “really useful services to the State,” and whose influence (among the rebels) caused the Gwalior contingent to “refrain from murdering their officers and to escort some of them safely into Agra,” and who also “saved Christians and their families.” We call upon Mr. Reade and all the members of the Committee of Investigation, and upon the Lieutenant-governor who has confirmed the verdict of that Committee, to repent of the gross injustice they have done this most loyal Mahomedan gentleman, this most faithful subject and servant of her gracious Majesty, and to reward him commensurately with his deserts. Let him have ample encouragement to act again the part he acted before—when the next and approaching opportunity offers. A jagheer, a title, and restoration to his post at Agra, with charge of the district treasury, which will give him free access to the fort daily, are the smallest benefits that ought to be conferred upon him!—Delhi Gazette.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE GANGES CANAL NAVIGATION COMPANY.—The Ganges Canal Navigation Company is now in full working order, and will soon be thoroughly capable of carrying on its operations with perfect efficiency. All the Government boats, ninety-one in number, have been made over to the company, and Government, at the same time, has entirely withdrawn in favour of the company from all traffic on the canal, both as carriers of goods and conveyers of passengers. The G.C.N. Company has started under the most auspicious circumstances. It is patronised by Government, which will (as it has already done) make great use of the facilities it offers for transporting commissariat and ordnance stores from place to place; and it has already secured the support of the agricultural and commercial community of these provinces, a very great number of whom are on the list of shareholders. The company has commenced business with 132 boats, barges, or lighters, of which seventy-eight are of iron, built at the Government workshop at Roorkee, and they are now constructing others (principally of wood) as fast as possible, in order to be prepared to meet the vast requirements for water carriage which they have reason to anticipate will be made upon them so soon as it is generally known that the navigation of the canal is in their hands. Already Soudagurs and Beparces are availing themselves of the company's boats for the conveyance of saltpetre, hides, and other produce from the district through which the canal runs to its junction with the Ganges at Cawnpore; while many native merchants of Coel, Meerut, Delhi, and other places near the banks of the canal, impressed with the advantage which arises from employing the canal boats, are overwhelming the company with solicitations for “shipping orders.” In conclusion, we have to mention that all the shares in the company (which is to be registered under the Limited Liability Act) have been taken, not a single one remaining unappropriated in the hands of the directors, and it will be easily believed that shareholders are not likely to part with any, except at a considerable premium.—Mofussilite.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.—The main line of the East Indian Railway, from Burdwan to Synthia, on the River More, about twenty-two miles beyond Beddiah (to which latter place trains now run), has been finished, and will be soon open for traffic. The bridge over the River Adjai, consisting of thirty-two arches of fifty feet span—the principal work between Calcutta and Rajmahal—is now complete; and the difficulty of constructing an immense amount of cubic feet of brickwork, in spite of frequent failures in brick-making, has been at last overcome. The traffic between Synthia and other places on the line cannot be expected to be very great, as it is but a small village. It is, however, but a few miles from Sooree, the civil station of Beerbhoom, and there are a good many villages in its neighbourhood, and experience has shown that the passengers for short distances by the third class are the main support of the railway. It was stated in 1857 that the receipts from the third class were nearly four times as much as from the two higher classes taken together, and the ratio between the receipts from the different classes continues about the same, although the profits of the line have increased 3 or 4 per cent. since that period.

SIR JOHN BARLEYCORN IN INDIA.—The comparative statement of beer and porter imported during the official years 1857–58 and 1858–59 is intelligible and curious, even to the ordinary and unmercantile reader. We learn from it that the increase in the imports of beer during the latter year was so great that whereas its value in 1857–58 was Rs. 9,30,160, in 1858–59 it rose to no less than Rs. 24,31,172. In these years no less than thirty-four different brewers sent their beer and porter to India. Allsopp, Bass, Godings, Tenants, and Hoare and Co., sent most; then came Henry Meux and Co., Abbotts, Burton Brewery, and Marrians.

THE HOUSE OF DELHI.—The Governor-general notifies in the Calcutta Gazette “that all titular distinctions appertaining to the House of Delhi, and all honours, dignities and privileges enjoyed by its members have ceased for ever.” The Home Government have approved of the whole proceedings in the trial of Mohammed Bahadoor Shah, the late King, of his transportation to Tounghoo, and of some relaxation of the restraint imposed on him in the populous town of Rangoon. A suitable provision is to be made for any members of his family who are clearly proved to be guiltless of all complicity in offences committed during the rebellion.

THE OPEN LOANS.—Government has published its periodical statement of sums paid into the various open loans during the past quarter, the first of the current official year. To the 5½ per cent. loan,—Cash, Rs. 49,43,400; transfer, Rs. 48,59,400; total, Rs. 98,02,800. To the Treasury Bills, at 2½ Pie per cent. per diem, Rs. 51,87,600. The total cash subscribed does not amount to 105 lakhs. The Treasury Bills are more popular than the 5½ per cents. The total amount subscribed to the 5 per cent loan is Rs. 20,72,52,000, of which somewhat less than half is by transfer from the 4 per cents. The amount subscribed to the Treasury Bills at 3 Pie per cent. per diem to the end of the first quarter of the year, is Rs. 16,14,600.

PRIVILEGE LEAVE.—The Commander-in-Chief has issued an order to check the abuse that has lately prevailed in granting privilege leave to officers. In a few instances regiments have been rendered almost inefficient in consequence. All applications for the grant of such leave are henceforth to be referred to officers commanding divisions. Further, it has sometimes happened, when an officer cannot obtain general leave owing to the paucity of officers with his regiment, he obtains privilege leave, makes a long journey, and then on the ground of distance and expense asks for general leave. The Commander-in-Chief will not in future yield to such solicitations. Officers who overstay their leave must submit to the penalty.

THE WILSON MEMORIAL.—A sum of Rs. 12,069 has been raised in memory of the late Bishop Wilson. The greater portion has been invested in Government securities, with the view of assisting congregations of native Christians in supporting their pastors. As a general rule, fifty rupees a month is considered a proper standard for a native pastor's income. To assist in raising it the managers of the fund will give grants-in-aid equal to the amounts subscribed monthly by congregations. The Bishop and Archdeacon of Calcutta are trustees. A portrait of Bishop Wilson is to be placed in the town hall.

COURTS MARTIAL.—From a Parliamentary Return we learn that during the past five years 6,956 courts martial were held in the three presidencies, of which 222 were on officers, European and native. Of thirty-one European officers tried in Bengal, seven were acquitted, ten convicted in full, and fourteen in part. In nearly all the cases the offence was “drunkenness, assault, and disrespectful language.” There was one case of murder and one of plundering. Of the seventy-five native officers, fifty-eight were convicted in full and five in part. The charges were chiefly desertion and mutinous conduct. Of the 1,136 native soldiers tried, 914 were for mutiny and 663 were sentenced to death.

CHOLERA.—During the week ending on the 13th August there was a sudden and severe outbreak of cholera among the European soldiers at Barrackpore and Dum-Dum. Fifteen were buried at Barrackpore on Sunday night, the 14th.

A PROPHECY.—A correspondent informs the Delhi Gazette that a prophecy has been prevailing in Muttra for the last four months of the expulsion of the English from India twenty-seven months hence. No reason is assigned for this particular time, save that it is in the shasters.

THE MAURITIUS.—The statue of Laboulaye, the founder of the colony, has arrived at the Mauritius. It is to be erected in front of the landing-place facing Government House. Now that the island belongs to the English, Bourbon would be a more suitable place for the statue of the Frenchman.

EUROPEAN LABOURERS.—According to the Hurkaru, a native, who is a commissariat contractor, has engaged eight European seamen at Rs. 60 a month each, and a superintendent at Rs. 150, to stow packages on board of boats for transmission up-country. He finds this cheaper than the lazy and inefficient labour of natives. Native labour in and around the Presidency cities has almost reached the limit of price beyond which it ceases to be profitable or fair to make use of it. The loss to all merchants and manufacturers who pay monthly salaries by the numerous native holidays is immense, and yet it is in most cases quietly submitted to. The 400 permanent European vagrants of Calcutta could be most profitably employed in all work that is done under cover.

PEGU.—The Rangoon Times calls for the publication of a new set of rules for grants of waste lands in Pegu. Those issued in 1856 are represented as hampered with conditions which deprive the grant of all value. Many are anxious to purchase public lands as freehold on fair terms. The area of Pegu contains 32,250 square miles of arable land, there are 777,458 acres, of which 686,610 are appropriated to rice cultivation alone. The nearer the sea coast, the larger is the quantity of produce. It varies from 15 to 20 baskets the acre in Prome and Tounghoo, to 80 to 100 baskets in Bassein.

HILL SCHOOLS.—On the thanksgiving day a collection was made in all the Episcopal churches for a thank-offering fund for the establishment of public schools in the hills. The amount at St. Paul's Cathedral was Rs. 15,000, of which Lord Canning gave 10,000, Lady Canning 1,000 and the Bishop of Calcutta 2,000. Collections were made in the Free and Dissenting churches in aid of the Tract Society's efforts to provide books for European soldiers. In St. Andrew's Kirk upwards of Rs. 1,000 were collected in aid of the erection of a memorial church at Sealkote, where the Rev. Thomas Hunter, his wife and child, were murdered during the revolt.

NATIVE OFFICIALS.—The question whether native officials holding appointments under Government should accept of presents from native princes has been decided by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. The deputy magistrate of a subdivision attached to the Hooghly zillah visited the Nawab of Moorsshedabad and received a handsome Cashmere shawl as a present. This functionary applied to the Lieutenant-Governor whether he should retain the present, and was informed in reply, that it should be sent to the Government toshakhana.

SHIPS OF WAR IN THE INDIAN SEAS.—The Bombay Standard gives the following as the strength of the British, French, American, and Russian fleets afloat in waters north of Singapore. I. British, under Rear Admiral Sir James Hope, C.B., in the Chesapeake: 2 sailing frigates, mounting 94 guns; 3 steam corvettes, 50 guns; 1 sailing corvette, 26 guns; 5 steam sloops, 30 guns; 2 sailing sloops, 28 guns; 22 gunboats, 88 guns; 3 steam transports, 14 guns; and 1 steam tender, 4 guns—a total of 344 guns, and say 3,900 men. II. French, under Vice Admiral Sir R. de Genouilly, K.C.B., on board the Nemesis: 1 sailing frigate, mounting 50 guns; 11 steam sloops, 104 guns; 5 gunboats, 26 guns; and 2 steam transports. Besides these there are in other ports 1 sailing frigate and 1 steam frigate, each mounting 40 guns; and 3 gunboats, mounting 8 guns. The total of the French vessels is 268 guns. III. Russian, under Commodore Popoff, in the Askold: 1 steam frigate, mounting 44 guns; 7 steam sloops, 50 guns; and 4 gunboats, 12 guns—total, 115 guns. IV. American, under Commodore Tatnall, a total of 39 guns. At Hong Kong there is the U. S. surveying screw Fenimore Cooper. The Portuguese have 2 vessels of 18 guns, and the Dutch 1 of 10. The English fleet, with the Indian navy, is equal to the French and Russian combined.

CHIEF MOULVEE OF OUDE. The Governor-general in Council, on a reference made by the Officiating Chief Commissioner of Oude, relative to the pensions granted to the Chief Moulvee and his disciples subsequent to the annexation, has decided that as the guilt of the Moulvee cannot be proved, that his pension of Rs. 885-9-6 should be still continued to him, and that the pensions of his followers should be reduced in some cases by one fourth, and in others by three fourths, as a punishment for having joined the rebels and offered prayers for their success.

PROPOSED REDUCTION OF SALARIES.—In the memorial forwarded to England against the contemplated reduction in the salaries of the Covenant Service, the following points are submitted. 1st. That the Civil Service here is less expensive than that of Ceylon, with reference to revenue and population. 2nd. That officers in India are not overpaid in comparison with similar officers in England or the colonies, and that regard being had to the labour and responsibility of other officers not admitting of such a comparison, and the disadvantages of an Indian residence, official salaries in this country are not excessive, nor are they so in comparison with situations of trust and responsibility beyond the pale of public service. Irrespective of all other considerations, a compliance with the demand of the Civil Service, in the existing state of the finances, and of public opinion at home, is simply impossible.

DELHI.—The Delhi correspondent of the Englishman states that the inhabitants of that city are in great consternation about the opening out of the new streets, and that the people are all clamorous for "compensation." The same correspondent observes that a rumour is prevalent there that in consequence of the Rajah of Jeypore having refused to compel his subjects to give up their arms, a force will be shortly sent to enforce compliance with the order. He also states that fairs abound in Delhi, and that they may be observed fraternising with the Sikhs, especially in the neighbourhood of the Jumna Mu-jid.

LALLA JOTEE PERSAUD.—The Hurkaru states that Sir Charles Wood has requested Lord Canning to adjust the accounts of Lalla Jotee Persaud as early as possible. We are rather inclined to believe that his lordship will take his own time about it.

INDIAN MUTINY MEDALS.—In accordance with long established usage, the Secretary of State for War has intimated to the Commander-in-Chief in India her Majesty's gracious intention to grant the medal and clasp to the legal representatives of the officers and soldiers who fell in action.

NEW TRUSTEES have been appointed by the Supreme Court to the Bengal Mariners' and Widows' Fund. They are Messrs. R. L. Eglinton, E. G. Dunbar, and R. S. Moncrieff.

LOSS OF THE "CITY OF CALCUTTA."—The Hurkaru reports the total loss in the Hooghly, on the 17th of August, of the British ship City of Calcutta, Captain Craig, while proceeding down the river in charge of Mr. Master Pilot Bull. On the evening of that day, about six o'clock, she anchored off Fultah. About 9 P.M., tide last quarter ebb, she suddenly gave one or two heavy sheers, and rolled over, though she had her star-board anchor down, and the helm was hard aport. Unhappily the occurrence was attended with serious loss of life; three of the crew are missing, and another, who by some means got entangled with her chains, was so severely injured that he has since died. Mr. Read, civil engineer, and well known in Calcutta, who was proceeding in her as a passenger down to the Sand Heads, for the benefit of his health, also met with a watery grave, and his fate was a most dreadful one. Being below when the vessel heeled over, he had no opportunity of rescuing himself, and although communication was held with him through a port hole, yet the aperture was too small for him to get through. His feelings must have been horrible as the water gradually rose in the vessel, and no opportunity afforded of rendering him assistance. It appears that some of the water casks had broken loose, which had detained the crew pumping her out till a later hour than usual, so that nearly all hands were on deck at the time of the accident. The boats also were on the skids, and not lashed, and on the vessel's capsizing they slid off and floated, by which means the survivors were enabled to reach the shore. At the present time not a vestige of the vessel is to be seen.

CANPORE, August 9.—At last, after long and almost hopeless waiting, Christ Church is about to be repaired. Better late than never, and it is indeed pleasant to look forward to a renewal of attendance at the fine old church, which for more than two years has remained desecrated and dishonoured. It is one of the finest churches in India. As soon as Christ Church is repaired, by which time the cold weather will be in, the troops will attend divine service there, and then the present place of worship, St. John's Chapel, which is more unlike a church inside than any sacred building probably in India, is to be taken in hand and greatly enlarged. Another great work has been for some time going on here; the uneven ground between the city and the fort, covered with the unsightly remains of bungalows and walls and outhouses is being levelled, and already the improvement in the look of the place is immense. Palmer and Co. are building some bungalows here in first-rate style, and altogether Canpoore is beginning to look up. The station owes a great deal to the untiring energy of Sir John Inglis, who does all he can to get as much done for it as possible.

SIMLA, August 4.—The Government Inspector of Schools, of the Umballah circle, Mr. Holroyd, accompanied by a native inspector, has lately visited the hill territory of Joo-bal, north of Simla, for the purpose of choosing sites for the establishment of schools for the rising population. Two villages named "Dehra" and "Chowpal," the latter the usual residence of the Rana, have been selected, and the schools are to be maintained by means of the interest accruing from a sum of money deposited in Government securities by the Rana.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.—The Lieutenant-governor of Bengal has directed three per cent. of the nett collections from Government estates to be set apart for the improvement of the condition of the estates and of the ryots occupying them. The example is excellent, and will certainly be followed by the zemindars. The rent-roll for 1855-56 on estates the property of Government amounted to Rs. 18,74,000; allowing Rs. 1,87,000 or ten per cent. for expenses of collection there remain Rs. 16,87,000, three per cent. on which would give Rs. 50,000 for the object proposed by the Lieutenant-governor.

N. W. BANK.—A statement of the North West Bank's assets and liabilities has been published by order of the directors, preparatory to the general meeting of the 20th August, convened for the winding up of the bank. The statement—which is clear and concise—proves that the existing management, true to their reports to the shareholders, have been engaged in concentrating the bank's means at the head office. The shareholders now know that they are liable for but Rs. 3,49,000, and that they have immediately available assets for Rs. 8,59,000, and contingent assets in addition to the extent of Rs. 9,33,000. Contingent assets good in a bank, "in working," do not, however, always prove realisable to their full extent in one summarily put an end to.

EXPORTS (Calcutta, Aug. 22).—The produce market has remained in the same state as before. Supplies and stocks are not large, and native dealers are still holding out for extreme prices. No inducement exists for operation at the present state of the market and in the face of late advices from home. Rice and Corals are held at extreme prices. Sugar, Benares, has been engaged by the Bombay shippers at higher prices. No good Date in the market. Saltpetre has attracted attention by a fall in price. Rice (Setta) has been in demand for Melbourne at high price. No business of any kind for Europe. Moonghy and Bullum have been in active demand for Mauritius, Bourbon, Bombay, and Persian Gulf, at higher prices. Linsed has been less inquired for, buyers having completed former engagements. Rapeseed has been in better request. In July a better feeling has been manifested; but the very light stocks of good quality have prevented better business. Hides have been in active demand for Great Britain. Safflower has been in fair request; but it is held at higher prices.

IMPORTS (Calcutta, Aug. 22).—The market has remained in the same depressed state as represented in our last. The accounts from the Upper Provinces are not yet very favourable; no orders for purchase, unless at extraordinarily low prices. Arrivals continue heavy, and deliveries are not free. Buyers are endeavouring to clear their former purchases by submitting to a sacrifice in price, to the dealers and retailers. There are scarcely any buyers for goods to arrive. Grey Cottons of all descriptions are selling to a very limited extent. Bleached Light Goods only are being taken to a very moderate extent, for the approaching of Doorga Poojah holidays. Prints and Coloured Cottons are selling very moderately. Woolens have engaged a little inquiry. Metals continue without inquiry for the Upper Provinces. A few transactions have taken place for local requirement.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

UNCOVENANTED SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.—At the last Uncovenanted Service Examination in Madras about one-third of the candidates of the first standard, and one-half of those for the second standard, passed the required tests. At the previous half-yearly examination scarcely a third were successful. The Madras Spectator expects that at this rate the service will suffer from a plethora which may destroy it.

THE MADRAS AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY is making steady progress. It consists of eighty-five members; its finances are in a satisfactory state. Its attention during the past year was directed chiefly to the cultivation of cotton. Its garden was much improved; the Manilla hemp plant, the "sorghum," West-India ginger, and "ife" (Sansivera cylindrica) were successfully introduced.

LAWRENCE ASYLUM.—The total number admitted into the Lawrence Asylum, recently established at Ootacamund, is forty-three boys and two girls, of whom thirty are of pure European and fifteen of East Indian parentage. The committee are most anxious to organise a female branch, but have no funds.

THE ROMAN CHARACTER.—Dr. Caldwell, the well-known author of the "Comparative Grammar of the Dravidian Languages," has addressed a letter to Sir Charles Trevelyan urging the substitution of the Roman alphabet for the various characters now in use in India. The ease with which he found he could represent words belonging to the Sanscrit and Dravidian languages in the Roman character, when preparing his grammar for the press, led him to change his opposition to the system into advocacy of its practicability and utility. He mentions that the Roman alphabet is the best existing representative of the primitive character used in the West by the Phœnicians and the Greeks, and in the East by the Buddhists of Behar. He says "the ability to read any printed book fluently at sight, without mistakes, has always appeared to me to be one of the rarest of native acquisitions. However clear the style of the book may be, and however familiar the subject, I have found that almost all natives will commit blunders in reading which similarly-taught English people would never commit in reading English." Five per cent. of the pupils in native schools fail to get through even the alphabet. As a proof of the ease with which one set of characters might even now be substituted for another, it is stated that the numeral characters of Europe are now winning their way to universal use in India. Dr. Caldwell urges the only plan which will succeed in gradually effecting a change—the introduction of the system by Government into all its schools as a supplementary kind of writing.

RAJAH OF TRAVANCORE.—We see from the Cochin Courier that the Rajah of Travancore has been at it again. A man of low caste accompanied by his friends carried the dead body of his father past a pagoda, without encroaching on private ground. For this offence he was sentenced, with three of his companions, to imprisonment with hard labour in irons for terms varying from one to three years. On an appeal to the Governor of Madras the order in the Tinnevely case was applied. It is not many years since a drunken madman was condemned by the Rajah's Court to death, for having broken an earthen image in a pagoda, and was freed only on the interposition of General Frazer, the former Resident. Annexation is not popular just now, but really—!

MISSIONARIES IN GAOLS.—The Rev. J. M. Lechler reported to the authorities that he had been permitted by the Subordinate Judge of Salem to visit the prison there at the request of three prisoners, one of whom is a native Christian, that he had provided other prisoners with Tamil books, and several were anxious to join his little Sunday-school in the gaol. The Government of Madras have decided according to the orders of the supreme Government in a similar case in the Punjab. They inform Mr. Lechler "that he is at liberty, at proper times and under due restrictions, to visit any Christian prisoner in the Salem Gaol, as well as any prisoner—though not a Christian—who may really desire to hold intercourse with him. But the sub-judge will satisfy himself in every such case that the prisoner does truly and bona fide wish to see Mr. Lechler, and he will be careful that that gentleman's intercourse be restricted to those whom he may go expressly to visit." Farther, they "do not approve of bibles being presented generally to the prisoners by any persons, whether in or out of the public service, nor to any prisoner unless to one who is a Christian, or who has really applied for the book. The same remark will of course apply to the presentation of Korans or of the books of any other religions."

BANGALORE.—In order to do full honour to the occasion of presenting new colours to the 20th regt. N.I., the whole of the troops in garrison were paraded in "review order" at 6.30. A.M. on Friday morning, the 29th July. Lieut.-general Beresford was saluted on his appearance upon the Parade with thirteen guns. After the usual salute of the troops was acknowledged, the following ceremony was proceeded with. The 20th regt. were formed in front of the general line. Their flanks wheeled up so as to form three sides of a square, and all present were invited to accompany the lieut.-general, who read to the regiment a short speech in Hindustani, of which the following is a translation:—"Gentlemen, sirdars, and sepoys of the 20th regiment, I have great pleasure in presenting to you your new colours. You, equally with the whole Madras army, have been true to your salt, and to the Government; and you have acquired much renown under the colours which these are to replace. You are now the soldiers of the great Queen Victoria, and have, therefore, a more dignified position to maintain. I feel full confidence that you will do equal credit to these, as to your former colours, and I therefore confide them to your loyalty and valour." The two Senior Jemadars then came forward, and the lieutenant-general requested Mrs. Bayley, the Colonel's wife, who was by his side, to hand the colours to these officers, which she did. They were then unfurled, and the usual ceremony of Trooping the Colours was performed. The 20th regiment possess a colour belonging to Hyder Ally, which was taken at Sholingur. This was lowered as the Queen's and regimental colours past. After trooping, the 20th were marched to their place in line, and the whole force marched past, saluting the general officer; the parade concluding with the Horse Artillery and Dragoons going past at a gallop.—Bangalore Herald.

DUTY ON SPICES.—Mr. J. D. Bourdillon, Secretary to the Government of Madras, in a letter of the 27th June last to the address of the Secretary to the Government of India, made the following inquiry:—"Under instructions from the Supreme Government, dated 25th January, 1820, spices imported into this Presidency from the Straits Settlements and other British possessions, are allowed exemption from duty. The concession was granted by the Supreme Government apparently with the view of encouraging the growth of such products; but as nearly forty years have passed since, I am desired to inquire whether such indulgence is still considered to be necessary." In reply, the Government of India informed the Madras Government that the concession in respect of customs duty, hitherto made under an order of 1820, in favour of spices imported from the Straits Settlements, should not be continued, and that, as a rule, no exemptions from the operations of the present Customs tariff should be admitted under orders issued previous to the enactment of the new law. The correspondence on this subject having been forwarded "for information and guidance" to the Government of Bombay, they have furnished copies to the Commissioner of Customs and the Commissioner in Scinde, for the information and guidance of the latter gentlemen.

A DELICATE INQUIRY.—Mr. Reade, of the Madras Civil Service, who holds the appointment of Agent to the Governor of Madras in the district of Vizagapatam, has been charged with some misconduct of so grave a nature that a Special Commission to inquire into the matter has been appointed. The Commissioner is Mr. Phillips, one of the judges of the Sudder Court, and the prosecutor is Mr. Holloway, of the Civil Service. The investigation is to take place on the spot. According to one of our local contemporaries the charge arose in this way. An anonymous petition was received by the Governor stating that Mr. Reade was in the habit of using the carriages of the Rajah of Vizianagram to a greater extent than was pleasing to that individual. The petition was forwarded to Mr. Reade, and in due course a reply was received from him in which a letter from the Rajah himself was enclosed. In that letter the Rajah stated that Mr. Reade had used his carriages less than any other agent had done, and that he was perfectly welcome to use them at any time. Next day another letter was received by the Governor direct from the Rajah, stating that the one which had been enclosed in Mr. Reade's letter had been extorted from him by that gentleman. Whereupon, according to our contemporary, the Commission was appointed. We need scarcely say, however, that various rumours are about as to Mr. Reade's alleged dereliction of duty, which impute much more delinquency to that gentleman than is to be found in the above statement. These rumours, as a matter of course, cannot be mentioned here, but there is no doubt as to the gravity of the charges, nor as to their having originated in transactions of some kind or other with the Vizianagrum Rajah.—Madras Athenæum.

COMMAND OF FORT ST. GEORGE.—Some changes with regard to the command of the troops in the garrison of Fort St. George are about to be made. By the present system the Governor is Commander-in-Chief of the forces stationed at the Presidency town; all orders are signed by him, and it is believed that the Commander-in-Chief has no power whatever over troops so situated. That inconveniences arise out of the present system is not to be denied, and that but little danger is to be apprehended by transferring the command of the troops to the Commander-in-Chief is, of course, beyond question. But such a thing as a Commander-in-Chief and Members of Council combining together and imprisoning the Governor has been known in this Presidency, and it is supposed that the latter was invested with the power of a Commander-in-Chief in order to guard against that or any other similar contingency. The Governor-general is evidently of opinion that it is advisable to retain the authority of Commander-in-Chief of the troops in Fort William, because in the change he recently made he did not divest himself of it. His lordship merely requested the Commander-in-Chief to see after the internal discipline of such regiments as might be stationed at the Presidency, and reserved to himself the right of appointing a first-class brigadier to act on his (the Governor-general's) behalf, but at the same time to obey the orders of the Commander-in-Chief. So that Lord Canning, while giving the troops the benefit of undivided authority, reserved to himself the right of assuming the command of the troops should circumstances, a very improbable contingency certainly, ever necessitate that step. Our governor, however, is not inclined to follow in the footsteps of the Governor-general. Sir C. Trevelyan thinks that the arrangement made by his lordship obviously fails in simplicity and undivided responsibility. His excellency has such confidence in the ability of the governor of this presidency to maintain his authority (that is to say in himself), provided he is supported by the Secretary of State and the Governor-general in the "just discretion which belongs to his office," that he has no hesitation whatever in resigning his office of Commander-in-Chief into the hands of Sir Patrick Grant, by whose ready aid, the Governor tells us, he has in all matters always been supported. To all this it is scarcely necessary to reply that a governor with less confidence in himself than Sir C. Trevelyan possesses may one day be appointed, and that all future Commanders-in-Chief may not prove such cyphers as Sir Patrick Grant, who, judging from the published proceedings of the Madras Government, never gets beyond a "I concur most fully" in the sentiments of His Excellency the Governor. In that case, and in the event of the two powers clashing, the want of a check, designed for troublous times, may be felt, and the then Governor will certainly not exclaim against the absence of "simplicity" in the arrangement made by his present Excellency.—Athenæum.

VELLORE.—The fortress of Vellore is to be converted into a ruin, and the troops, arsenal, and commissariat establishments are to be removed. With regard to this place, it is stated by a contemporary that the Commander-in-Chief, Sir P. Grant, recommended some time ago that the arsenal should be abolished. And we learn that his excellency the governor considers that since the conquest of Mysore and the removal of the reserve of the Madras army to Bangalore, Vellore has lost its importance. The fortification is, it seems, no longer required for purposes of defence. In fact, being commanded by the neighbouring heights, it is, in that respect, worthless. But his excellency considers that it is an interesting specimen of "Mahomedan military architecture," and as it contains many buildings which will be permanently useful, he has proposed that the guns and stores should be removed, that a certain portion of the wall and ditch should be levelled, and that the remainder of the fort and buildings likely to be useful should be retained. "The fort," continues Sir Charles Trevelyan, "may be handed down to after ages as an interesting monument of a by-gone state of things; and no doubt it will be visited by many a happy picnic-party from Madras, for whose accommodation one of the buildings may be appropriated." Another of the buildings is to be occupied by the new police, who will step into the place of the military at Vellore, as well as at many other disused stations. The Brigadier and the garrison staff at Vellore will consequently be abolished; and the Brigadier's "political" functions ("taking care of a few old ladies of the family of Tippoo, the youngest of whom is seventy six years old") are to be transferred to the collector. These old ladies, with their establishments of eunuchs, door-keepers, and examining women, altogether cost Rs. 1,048 per mensem, and for taking care of them the Brigadier receives Rs. 270 a month. As the garrison is to be broken up, it follows that the Commissariat establishment may be discontinued. Its monthly cost is Rs. 2,419. What is to be done with the European veterans and the sepoy regiment now stationed at Vellore has not yet been decided. The Fort of Vellore, says another contemporary has in its day been the scene of memorable events. In 1646 it was taken possession of by the Mahomedan States of Golconda and Beejapoor; in 1677 it was surprised and captured by Sevajee. In 1782 it stood a siege against Hyder, and was relieved by Sir Eyre Coote, in the presence of the whole army of that noted leader. But it is best known all over the world as the scene of the atrocious massacre on the 10th of July, 1806, when the native troops of the garrison, instigated by Tippoo's family, then prisoners within the fortress, rose upon the officers and other Europeans. The insurgents, as all the world knows, while their hands were yet red with the blood of our countrymen, were set upon by Colonel Rollo Gillespie, and a party of the 19th dragoons, and put to the sword.—Athenæum.

MALABAR COAST, July 19.—The court martial on Lieutenant Sherman is over. It was a short business. The proceedings were closed the Saturday before last. The result we may expect to hear in the course of this week. The rebels in North Canara are becoming troublesome again. A small detachment has been ordered to proceed to Mullapoor, eighteen miles distant from Sedasheghur, as in that vicinity the properties of two or three wealthy ryots were looted, and others burnt. These freebooters are now being hard pressed by detached troops from Jugglepitt, Sirey, and Dharwar. I am sorry to say that the troops there are suffering severely from fever. Cholera has broken out among the police levies raised there by Lieutenant Drever, assistant commissioner of police, North Canara. Two out of the three assistant apothecaries in medical charge of detachments there are laid up with fever; two others, and a native dresser from Cannanore, have been ordered to proceed forthwith for duty in North Canara.

HYDERABAD.—A correspondent of the Delhi Gazette writes from the Deccan: On dit, that all is not serene at Hyderabad Deccan. Colonel Davidson's energetic measures, in procuring all the disaffected to be punished either by confiscation of Jagheers or expulsion from the city, and others tried, &c., has caused an inimical feeling. It is even said that the Nizam openly abuses his gallant minister, Salaar Jung. The Arabs are becoming insolent too. A fanatical Hajee, by the name of Abdool Roosak, lost his Jagheers for some misdemeanor, he believes through the representations of the English, and, in moments of excitement, meditates revenge by seizing some British officer. All this, if true, is very lamentable. Hyderabad is a safety valve for all India. It is to be hoped that it will not go like Oude.

BOMBAY.*EXTERNAL TRADE OF SCINDE.

From a Memo on the External Trade of Scinde for the year 1858-59, ending 30th April, 1859, we find that the total value of the trade for the year mentioned is estimated at Rs. 2,58,48,784, on Imports Rs. 1,54,06,058, and Exports Rs. 104,42,726; for the year immediately preceding, the total value of the trade was Rs. 2,15,92,298; Imports 1,08,11,012, and Exports 10,781,286, thus showing an increase in the value of the trade for 1858-59, to the extent of Rs. 42,56,486; this increase is almost entirely owing to larger importations from England, direct, and from Bombay. The increase in the value of the Import Trade amounts to Rs. 45,95,040, or about 42 per cent. in excess of that of the previous year. The Imports are classified as follows:—

	Rs.
For 1858-59. Merchandise ..	143,86,874
Treasure ..	10,19,184
For 1857-58. Merchandise ..	91,47,909
Treasure ..	16,63,103

The increase, therefore, in merchandise has been Rs. 52,38,905, while there has been a decrease in treasure to the extent of Rs. 6,13,910. In the imports in the trade of Scinde there has been a great increase from England, Bombay, Concan, Goa and Demau, Guzerat, Malabar, Mekran, Moulmein, and the Persian Gulf. The principal items of increased imports from England are apparel, books and stationery, Malt liquor, military appointments, metals (manufactured), oilmen's stores, railway materials, spirits, wines, woollen piece goods, cotton piece goods, cabinet ware, saddlery, and glass ware. From Bombay, cotton piece goods, silk piece goods, manufactured metals, raw silk, spices, wines and spirits, raw metals, cotton twist and thread, and apparel. The increase in the imports from the Concan and from Goa and Demau consists simply of timber. From Guzerat, cotton seeds and timber. From Malabar, timber. Mekran, oil seeds, ghee, and salt fish. From Moulmein, timber. The Persian Gulf, dates. There has been a decrease in the value of the import trade from France, Cutch, Katiawar, and the Mauritius. Cutch shows a decrease chiefly in grain, tobacco, snuff, and treasure. Katiawar, cotton and grain. The Mauritius, solely in treasure. The export trade of the present year shows a decrease in value to the extent of Rs. 338,560; in 1857-58, the exports amounted to Rs. 107,81,286, while in 1858-59, they amount to Rs. 104,42,726, viz., merchandise in the previous year, Rs. 107,36,134; treasure, Rs. 45,152; in 1858-59, merchandise, Rs. 101,04,070; treasure, Rs. 38,656. The chief places to which there has been any increase in exports from Scinde, are England, Calcutta, France, Goa, and Demau, Guzerat, Kattia- war, Malabar, Singapore, and Ceylon, total increase to all of which is Rs. 10,74,732. The decrease in the export trade has been to Bombay, Concan, Cutch, Mauritius, Mek- ran, and Persian Gulf; the total decrease show- ing Rs. 15,13,292. The items which show an increase in the export trade are chiefly horses, drugs and dyes, excepting indigo and munjeet; grain of all sorts, excepting wheat, saltpetre, oil seeds, excepting jinjeely, Scinde salt, and cash- mere shawls. During 1857-58 the value of the direct exports from Scinde to England and France was Rs. 5,20,308, whilst for the year 1858-59 the exports have amounted to Rs. 12,74,487, or 139 per cent. in excess of those of the previous year; to England 129 per cent. and to France 10 per cent. Most of the direct shipments to England have been made by Bombay merchants through their agents here, and the same is to be said of the shipments to France. Consignments have also been forwarded by local traders on their own account. The increase in exports to Calcutta is on account of Scinde salt; the amount of duty on that shipped by private individuals is estimated at Rs. 48,711, and on that on account of the Bengal Government 1,60,850. The increase in exports to Kattiawar has been in fruit, grain, oil seeds, timber, and treasure. The trade to Malabar shows an increase in Affghan horses. According to the views entertained by Mr. Dalzell, the deputy collector of customs here, the decrease in the export trade to Bombay is attributable to the decline in the value of wood and other staples of Indian produce in the home markets. This depression has checked supplies, and the consequence has been that large quantities of wood, oil seeds, &c., have been withheld both in Kur- rachee and at Khetti, as well as in the interior. Considering that the Bombay market exercises an important influence on our own, we are inclined to think that Mr. Dalzell's opinion is not far wide of the truth. The decrease in the trade to Bombay has been in indigo, munjeet, grain, ghee, oil seed, raw silk, and wool. To Cutch, in fruit, ghee, and treasure. To the Mauritius, in grain and provisions. Mekran, fruit, grain, and silk.

It will be seen that the external trade of Scinde is now above two and a half millions sterling, and that the direct exportations to Europe are greatly increasing, and daily attracting the attention of the mercantile community. As regards the tonnage employed in the external trade of Scinde, the number of square-rigged vessels that entered this port, including steamers, during 1857-58, was 87, aggregating 49,930 tons; the departures in the same year were 75, tons 41,450. In 1858-59 the arrivals were 96 vessels, aggregating 52,926 tons; the departures 101, tons 56,554. Vessels drawing 19 feet 6 inches, have, in the past year, entered the harbour in perfect safety, and as many as 25 vessels, ranging from 500 to 1,000 tons each, have been inside at one and the same time, all swing- ing to their anchors, and not a single accident has happened in either entering or leaving the port.—Scindian, August 6.

A NEW SANATORIUM.

In March last the Commissioner called upon the Collector of Kurrachee to take early steps for the purpose of ascertaining whether there could be a spot made available on or near our Western border north of Sehwan for a sanatorium, or as an agreeable resort during the hot weather, and where the climate would be less trying to the European constitution than that of the plains of Scinde. The object, in fact, was to be made a twofold one, inasmuch as it was also designed to place within reach of the deputy collector a place where he would be able to reside and transact his business with less trial to his health and strength, and where he would be accessible to the people of his districts; the task was accordingly entrusted to Captain Lionel Dunsterville, the deputy col- lector in charge of Sehwan, and a better selection we do not think could have been made.

On the 2nd of April Captain Dunsterville left Johree for Haira Khan Lugharee, a village founded, it appears, by the great grandfather of the present headman. On the 3rd he started for Rajah Dehra, towards which there is no regular road, and he had to take a circuitous route in a north-westerly direction, until reaching the village of Meerur Lugharee, from whence a course was taken to Rajah Dehra, situated in the Mehur district. There are a great number of pukka wells here, upwards of 100, many of which, however, are choked up from having been neglected for a lengthened period. Rajah Dehra is close to the mouth of the Gaj, and at the foot of Kuchruk, the hill which Captain Dun- sterville had resolved on visiting; he, however, found great difficulty in ascertaining correct infor- mation regarding Kuchruk, or, in fact, about part of the Keerthut range. It was soon discovered that obstacles were thrown in his way through the instrumentality of the hill tribes, who had a spy at Rajah Dehra to watch his movements, and who, no doubt, were jealous of any encroachments on their boundaries. Captain Dunsterville, notwith- standing all these drawbacks and hindrances, which under ordinary circumstances might have tempted him to retrace his steps, persisted in prosecuting his journey; and when his determi- nation to proceed was made known, the spy re- ferred to actually had the audacity to warn the people to desert their villages or hamlets before Captain Dunsterville's arrival! The water of the Gaj is described as being as clear as crystal, and always cool. The stream for the greater part is narrow and shallow, but everywhere tolerably rapid. It abounds in large pools, some of considerable depth, and all literally teeming with fish, varying in length from an inch to three feet. Crocodiles are said to be numerous hereabouts, but Captain Dunsterville failed to see even one; neither did he learn of any ravages ever having been committed by the brutes. After undergoing privations and difficul- ties, Captain Dunsterville managed on the 8th April to reach the summit of the Kuchruk, which overlooked the Gaj, some thousands of feet be- low. His stay on the hill did not extend over three days, but even in this short space of time he managed to ingratiate himself into the good graces of the Belooches, who were exceedingly cross-grained and surly at first, inasmuch that they would not be prevailed upon either to render assistance of any kind, or to dispose of the veriest trifle. This feeling of diffidence, or more properly antipathy, was to be accounted for on the assumption that Captain Dunsterville's ad- vent amongst them was looked on as a sure pre- lude to their being taxed, and that he had evi- dently been sent on the express mission of mea- suring their corn fields! Such misgivings were soon dispelled, and the first symptom of a relax- ation in their feelings was manifested in a con- sent to sell the travelling party fat-tailed sheep at two rupees each, and wheat at one rupee per cassa, or sixty rupees per Khurwar! The men are described by Captain Dunsterville as being a fine, manly, independent set of fellows; many of them good-looking, tall, and upright, with a Jewish cast of countenance. To give one an idea of the primeval state of simplicity they en- joy, and the utter absence of anything approach- ing bigotry and intolerance in their religious notions, which are evidently as original as the people are themselves, Captain Dunster- ville states, "The gleam of satisfaction which brightened their countenances when they told me they had no Moolahs amongst them, showed that they regarded these gentry in somewhat the same light as Mofussilites do lawyers in India. Divested as they are of religious prejudices, they are equally so of all ideas of cleanliness, and one of the tribe told Captain Dunsterville that, as a general rule, he washed himself every tenth day!" Up this path Captain Dunsterville met strings of Belooch women, toiling with large goat skins, filled with water, carried on their backs, and secured by straps, some with children astride on their hips; others braiding goat's hair as they climbed the steep ascent with their accustomed loads. The fact of several of the women having passed the meridian of their years, and one woman in par- ticular, whose age was scarcely under the span allotted to human existence, having a grey bearded son, and she herself being in the full possession of her intellectual faculties, and strong and healthy in every respect, would favour the notion that such drudgery was by no means in- jurious. Captain Dunsterville gave up the idea of selecting a site at Kuchruk for a summer resi- dence for the Deputy Collector of Sehwan. Kuchruk, as described by him, is a large crater or basin, and the difficulty of procuring water there is great; the springs or pools on which the populace depend for their daily supplies are found in the bed of a torrent several hundreds of feet below the level of the basin, and an attempt to make the hill track traversable by donkeys heavily laden would be attended with a heavy expense; at present it is impassable by beasts carrying even ordinary loads. A stone dam, however, could be thrown across the gorge, the expenditure on which, it is calcu- lated, would amount to something near Rs. 2,000, but it would last for years. Capt. Dunsterville recommends that, as a preparatory measure, a careful survey be made of the whole basin, when it would be easy to secure the retention of a large body of water, sufficient to meet a year's con- sumption, by regulating the height of the dam by the levels taken. No obstacles to the project being carried out need be apprehended from the people living in those parts, as it is reasonable to surmise that they would gladly purchase the inestimable blessing of having a ready facility of procuring the precious liquid at the cost of a few wheat fields. Fort Hurrah is one march, or a distance of about ten miles, from Kuchruk; the route to it is circuitous, and in its present state traversable only by foot passengers, and donkeys lightly laden. The basin here is of a less area than that of Kuchruk, with which it contrasts favourably by its being irrigated by a rapid little stream, issuing from a clear spring sacred to the Punj tinn (the Five Companions—Mahommed and the Char Yar). This stream is deemed sufficient to supply four wheels in the twenty-four hours, and as it appears to be choked by fallen leaves and detritus from the hills, a removal of such obstacles, and their effectual prevention, will, no doubt, conduce to beneficial results. A portion of this ground, or all that happens to be level, is surrounded by a massive wall of stone and chunam, standing about ten feet in height. Within this inclosure Meer Ali Moorad intended to secure his harem and valuables in the event of a foreign invasion. Two round towers of stone and chunam, loop-holed and furnished with embrasures for cannon, guard the head of the pass leading towards Scinde. These towers are connected with each other by curtain walls of the same material, which, descending in steps, meet about the centre of the gorge in a doorway just large enough to admit of the ingress of a camel with a Kujawah. The whole is in excellent preservation, including the wooden framework for the door or gate.—Sindian.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ELECTRIC TELEGRAPHS IN INDIA.—In reply to a communication from the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, the Superintendent of Electric Telegraphs in India forwarded to the Chamber, about the end of July last, extracts from his annual report to the Government of India on the state and progress of the telegraph department during the official year 1858-59, with notes reporting the progress made up to the 31st July. It appears that the Malabar coast line was commenced last year, and about fifty miles constructed; but the financial difficulties of the time led to the discontinuance of the works, which can only be resumed by the renewed orders of the Government of India. Sir William O'Shaughnessy assures the Chamber of Commerce that as soon as the sanction of Government is renewed, the works shall be recommenced and completed with the utmost possible despatch. The Chamber were left at full liberty to make public use of any of the extracts furnished to them which they might deem of general interest. Although not prominently dwelt on in the report submitted to the Supreme Government, Sir William was happy to invite the attention of the Chamber to the gratifying fact that, since the commencement of this monsoon, the heaviest which had visited the west coast of India for many years, communication had been so regular and rapid between Bombay, Madras, and Galle, that the "mail news" from Galle to Bombay, and vice versa, was usually transmitted in from two to four hours. From the commencement of the next fine season Sir William confidently believed that the whole of the Indian lines now extending over 10,250 miles, and the 156 offices, would be worked with equal efficiency. Referring to the present state of the establishment, he says it was shown in his last annual report that the total monthly cost of the working establishment then entertained, was Rs. 63,427, and the amount of monthly "working" contingencies was estimated at Rs. 17,816, making a total of Rs. 81,233 per month for 7,155 miles of line, and 125 offices then open and in use. Since last report, the lines from Kurrachee to Lahore, and Hyderabad in the Deccan to Mirzapore, also those from Pondicherry to Ceylon, Calicut to Cochin, and Poona to Ahmednugger, have been completed, and offices opened for correspondence—in all about 3,000 miles of line and twenty-eight offices. The construction establishments employed and retained on these lines constitute a very heavy item of expense. Nevertheless, construction and working included, the cost of the whole establishments now entertained, with all office contingencies, amounts to Rs. 85,819 per month. Taking Rs. 35,000 per mensem as the average cash receipts for private messages during the current year, and Rs. 5,000 as the minimum cash receipt for service messages, total Rs. 40,000—there would be an excess of expenditure of Rs. 45,819 monthly; for considerably reducing which, within a reasonable time, there are stated to be two sources. We observe that the new lines sanctioned between Dacca and Akyab, Benares and Patna, Burdwan and Patna, and the branch lines on the east coast, are all in good progress, and would doubtless be completed and rendered available for public use before the end of this official year.

COCOANUT DAY was celebrated on Saturday, the 13th August, in its usually joyful manner. The offerings of the native community to the sea-god, beseeching the troubled waters for the security of those who may trust themselves to their awful power, was the observance of a superstition of most beautiful simplicity. The Esplanade, from the main road to the beach in Back Bay, presented a most animated appearance. The rustic refreshment saloons offered a variety to the assembled crowd; while the temporary cooking establishments were engaged in the preparation of more substantial fare. Little children were supplied with the usual gifts—some beautiful ornament for the child of affluence, and the home-made image for those of more moderate circumstances. Collected in motley groups might have been seen a large number of spectators, the object of their attention being an individual placed inversely to the order of nature, whose gyrations were neither those of man nor monkey. The duties incumbent upon the faithful were, however, in no wise neglected, and the absolute scarcity of the only acceptable offering, the cocoanut, was made good by the bountiful beneficence of the "god of the waves," who pleased with the first offering, restored it for second use. Whatever may be the extent of the superstition attaching to the celebration of the cocoanut-day, its innocence, as well as the very quiet nature of the proceedings, renders it the most praiseworthy holiday of any celebrated by the native community.—Bombay Gazette.

THE MOHURRUM FESTIVAL.—This great festival of the Mahomedan classes, which closed on the afternoon of the 10th August, passed off quietly, proving that the suspicions of trouble which had so long previously agitated the public mind were totally unfounded. The temporary division of the sect of Mahomedans, which is only that difference in sentiment or opinion with regard to the claims of the two Cazees respectively, may be likened to the political differences of opinion among European nations. Whatever grounds each party may advance in favour of his candidate, the mass have shown their reverence for the venerated author of the creed which they profess, and the determination that the variance existing should not interfere with their prescribed duties. The leave granted to our worthy and energetic Superintendent of Police was delayed in consequence of the supposed turbulence of some portion of the sects, which, it was apprehended, might break out in open revolt during the festival. Mr. Forjett has not been able to enjoy the pleasure he had anticipated in an escape from Bombay at this most dreary season of the year. We would regret that he had been so needlessly delayed were it not that he rendered such great service to the unfortunate men of the Natalie, who undoubtedly owe their rescue to his untiring energy in affording them assistance. The festival, from its commencement, pursued the usual tenor of its way, without any disturbances to interrupt the harmony, except such as ever attend the assemblage of great numbers of people. It could hardly be possible that the swarming of the streets would not witness some unfriendly feeling between the hangers-on,—men who are only too ready to break the peace upon any great occasion. An insignificant disturbance in the Bendy Bazar on Saturday the 6th was of this nature, but the excited populace attributed it at once to the Cazees dispute; and, as a matter of course, it was the first sign of a rising. Nothing serious, however, resulted from this first display of Cazees patriotism, which only tended to exhibit the vigilance of the guardians of the public peace, who took off to chowkey the unruly combatants. On the night of the 9th, which is the night of the festival, the taboot sheds were crowded to overflowing with the old and young of all classes,—the followers of the faithful, the wary Hindoo dreading a too near approach, the Marwaree, who appeared to be taking an account of "stock," or the likelihood of some loan in prospective, incurred by the passing festivities, and a numerous crowd of coaches containing persons well known to the Bombay public. Before the hour of twelve the Mahomedans had begun their peregrinations about town, and their vociferous howlings of "Hussein!" "Hossein!" broke the stillness of night. The 10th was the last day of the festival, and throughout the afternoon the Esplanade and adjoining sea beach was crowded with spectators of every caste, creed, and colour. The customary stripping of the taboots in Back Bay, and their submergence in the sea about the hour of 5 P.M., closed the proceedings, which had been divined by the "most knowing" as likely to terminate in a serious broil among the Cazees partisans.—Bombay Gazette.

DEATH OF A REBEL LEADER.—Lieut. Roome has supplied the Scindian with the following account of the death of Surferaz Khan, one of the leaders of the rebels on the north of Scinde:—"I have much pleasure in informing you of the death of Surferaz Khan, one of the leaders of the rebels in these parts. On the 18th July he came to within sixteen miles of us, so I moved out that night to attack him; but he halted only a few hours, and returned in the direction of Nawab Basoda, so, of course, on my arrival I found him gone. I did not pursue, as the intelligence was bad, and on account of the rain. I believe he was so disgusted at never being allowed a moment's rest that he swallowed poison. At all events, the next day the Nawab of Basoda heard he was dying in a neighbouring village, and went to take him prisoner. This he accomplished without difficulty, he having been forsaken by his men; but he died a few hours after, suffering apparently from the effects of poison. He it was whom I attacked on the 29th of June, and from whom I captured all his horses; and it is said he took that affair much to heart. He was formerly a Pathan russuldar in the employ of the Begum of Bhopal, and would not have been pardoned had he given himself up, as he murdered in cold blood the native political agent of Bhopal. It is said that he went up to the latter's house, apparently to pay him a friendly visit, and when the unfortunate man came out to welcome him, he coolly shot him. He also attacked and looted Bursee, and has been a rebel leader ever since."

GOA.—Nothing will change the folly of the Portuguese in Goa. The Governor General of Portuguese India is said to have solicited the permission of the King of Portugal to make a public show of the body of Francis Xavier in December next. It is deposited in a silver case, and placed in a sumptuous mausoleum in the convent of Bon Jesus, in Goa. Crowds of devotees are expected to flock to see it. An Exhibition of Industry is to be held at New Goa in January, 1860. The Portuguese community of Bombay have appointed a committee to collect articles for it.

VEHAR WATERWORKS.—The Government of Bombay has provisionally settled the rates for the supply of water from the Vehar works. When taken in large quantities by public companies the charge will be one rupee per 2,000 gallons. For private houses the cost will be one rupee for 1,000 gallons. The proprietors of houses will, of course, pay the expense of laying it on to the premises.

by his chief assistant, Mr. Fitzgibbon. Ere their departure, the Select Committee of Council will, no doubt, have reported on the evidence taken by them, and the Duke of Newcastle, besides the information brought by the railway engineers, will have before him the evidence and the opinions of some of the best informed and most sagacious men in the colony.—Ceylon Observer.

THE ECCLESIASTICAL SCANDAL in Colombo has ended in the strong reproof of the bishop by the supreme court. The judgment characterises the bishop's proceedings in the induction of Mr. Baly to a deanery which had no existence as "a direct usurpation of the prerogative of the Crown;" warns him and the belligerent "clerks" to keep the peace, and declares that "as long as her Majesty's courts are open alike to ecclesiastic and to layman, no person whatever can be permitted to put himself above the law." Mr. Baly did not resort to legal measures until the only proposals he could accept without ruin were declined by the bishop. Mr. Baly is likely to find employment in the Queen's College as Classical Master. He came out as an S.P.G. Missionary.

A new branch of trade seems to be springing up in Ceylon. The Examiner says an English gentleman who has visited Ceylon as the agent of some large manufacturing firms in England has discovered specimens (finer than have been exported hitherto from Aden or Southern Africa) of Lichen called Rocella, which produces a purple dye very much valued. In the present instance 4½ tons were collected in a very short time, calculated to be worth £15 to £50 per ton. His Excellency directed the collection of samples of similar Lichens at Nuera Ellia, and on the Horton plains; but these have been pronounced as of no value.

THE STRAITS.

THE WHALE TRADE OF THE INDIAN OCEAN.—Amongst the numerous American vessels which visit the harbour of Singapore in the course of the year, we observe, from time to time, not a few whalers. Whale fishing in the Indian Ocean constitutes a large and profitable trade. In this trade, however, Great Britain has no share. From Java Head to Cape Leeuwin the distance is about 1,600 miles. Far and wide along this whole line of sea, ships of the United States are constantly cruising about in search of whales, and occasionally meet with immense prizes, even within sight of the colony which Great Britain has planted on the Western Coast of the Australian Continent. England in her own waters is in this respect England no longer, and while ships of foreign nations, making light of a voyage of 13,000 miles, traverse the ocean to fish on British coasts, carrying away annual prizes of industry to the value of £1,000,000 sterling, Great Britain looks on unheeding. Is this an indication of national degeneracy? Whatever point in futurity it may betoken it cannot certainly be regarded as evincing a continuance of that universal superiority in maritime industry hitherto claimed for the Anglo Saxons of the British Isles. An American whaler is usually about 450 tons burthen, and it is supposed that in all parts of the Indian Ocean there are no less than eighty always cruising about at one time. This gives an aggregate tonnage of 36,000 tons. Dutch and French whalers are also occasionally to be met with in this region; and although, in point of number, they, perhaps, do not constitute above a tenth of the number of American vessels, yet the quantities of oil which they, too, succeed in taking, sometimes in British waters, illustrate still further the apathy of the English in regard to this source of wealth. In 1839, American and French whalers cruising in the vicinity of Cape Leeuwin captured, at one onslaught, a school of whales, which yielded about 10,000 barrels of oil, estimated in value at £25,000; not a single British or Colonial craft being present to share in the gains. In February, 1845, several American vessels encountered and captured a considerable number of whales at Champion Bay, in the 27th degree of S. lat., about ten miles from the shore—their operations being distinctly seen by some colonists from land. The yield of oil was on this occasion upwards of 6,000 barrels, estimated in value at about £16,000. In October, 1857, American, Dutch, and French whalers, cruising off King George's Sound, took prizes of oil amounting to 12,000 barrels—in value about £28,000. These various captures were exclusive of extensive ones made by the same vessels in their cruises further out at sea, and being only isolated occurrences, amongst many of a similar kind that might be named, they forcibly illustrated the anomaly that British enterprise, hitherto so active and vigilant, should permit foreigners to approach the very threshold of British territory, and carry away wealth which is so easily within its own grasp. To illustrate still further the enterprise of the Americans in connection with their cruises, it must be mentioned that the American whale captain universally conjoins the business of a merchant with his other avowed character. Scarcely an island in the Indian Archipelago but is visited by him in the course of his cruise, and in return for his plain and printed calicos, his glass decanters, his glass tumblers, his knives and forks, razors, needles, scissors, earrings, bracelets, sugar, soap, bisenits, brandy, rum, gin, guns, and gun-flints, he will accept by way of barter from his half-civilized customers whatever article of their produce he may deem likely to yield him a good profit in the States. It is thus that every whale ship on its return home after a two or three years' cruise invariably brings along with it, in addition to its oil, a goodly supply of such commodities as sandalwood, beeswax, tortoiseshell, and a large variety of other tropical and intertropical productions. In offering these brief remarks on the enterprise of the Americans in the capture of whales in the Indian Ocean, we are glad to be able to mention that Singapore herself is now about to enter the trade. A vessel of considerable dimensions is now being fitted out by a wealthy Chinese, and will shortly proceed on its first whaling cruise. It has thus been reserved for a Chinaman, living under the protection of British laws, to take away the scandal which has hitherto attached to British enterprise, in allowing so fruitful a source of wealth as that referred to to remain unexploited.—Straits Times.

SINGAPORE.—On the morning of the 6th August, Colonel Orfeur Cavenagh, who has been appointed to succeed Mr. Blundell in the government of the Straits settlements, arrived here in the steamer Lancfield. On the 8th Mr. Blundell made over charge of the government to Colonel Cavenagh, who the same day was sworn in as President of the Court of Judicature.

MR. WALLACE, the English naturalist, has arrived at Menado, with the intention of spending some months in the Minahassa districts, for the purpose of making zoological collections, the requisite help having been granted him by Government.

CONVICTS.—The total number of transported convicts at present in Singapore is 2,338. The Free Press gives the following estimate of the whole population:—Europeans, 800; Eurasians, 1,500; Armenians, 50; Chinese, 40,000; Jews, 20; natives of India, 9,000; military and followers, 1,050; on board ship and in boats, 4,000; natives and others, 18,430; total, 74,850. 60,000 Chinese are believed to be settled in Johore. Within ten years the Europeans in Singapore have been doubled, and the whole population has increased 15,000.

BURMAH.

LOSS OF THE "NEPTUNE."

The following report of the loss of the Neptune and the rescue of the troops on board has been addressed by the officer in command to the superior authorities:—

Akyab, Arracan, August 6, 1859.

Sir,—I have the honour to report for the information of H. E. Lord Clyde, the Commander-in-Chief, the wreck of the Neptune, with detachments of H. M.'s troops on board. I give the detail in the margin.* The Neptune, sailed from Calcutta on July 12, 1859, and shortly after leaving the Sand Heads fell in with very bad weather, which lasted for nine days, the last three of which it blew a furious gale; on the 28th ultimo we lost our mainmast and many important spars. I should mention that during many days we had been drifting on a lee shore, our distance from which we did not know. On the morning of the 29th, we lost our most useful, and, as it afterwards appeared, our only available boat.

During these nine days our position on the chart was not known, as neither sun, moon nor stars were visible to enable the master to take an observation; on the 29th it cleared up, and we found that we were near the Head of the Bay of Bengal. After a consultation it appeared that Akyab, a seaport in Arracan, was, in our then crippled condition, the best port to make for. On nearing it we again broke our foreyard, which had been repaired, and could then do nothing but drift before the wind. We anchored that night, the 31st ult., after narrowly striking on a reef, called the Oyster reef. On the morning of the 1st August we parted from our anchor, and drifted on to a reef. The ship first struck at about 12 o'clock (noon), and continued to strike and drift with the tide and sea till two o'clock the next morning, we expecting every moment that she would go to pieces. She finally settled at a place, I believe, about eighteen miles N.W. of Akyab. On the morning of the 2nd there was a very heavy sea and surf, and a raft could not be constructed. We were about two miles and a half from shore, and consequently had no hope of saving life, not having an available boat. It was evident that at high water the decks would be swept. We were at prayers, and had given up all hope, when the joyous sound of a steamer in sight was heard. She proved to be the Nemesis, Captain Goodwin, come out to search for us from Akyab, where our guns had been heard. Shortly after coming to anchor her boats were sent and continued to ply between the two ships, until every soul was taken out of the Neptune and put on board the Nemesis. An officer's wife, a soldier's widow, and the sick were first lowered down into the boats, and then the men slid down into the boats by a rope from the fore-castle, but latterly (the ship having sunk deeper, or the tide risen) stepped into them from the fore chains.

The behaviour of the troops was most admirable. They were stationed on the poop, until the sea washed over that part of the ship, and came forward as their names were called; there was not the slightest symptom of a disposition to rush or even to hurry to the boats, though it was perfectly evident that the ship was in momentary danger of going to pieces, and before the last of the troops left the sea washed over every part of the vessel. Moving the troops from one ship to another occupied from three to four hours. I attribute our being saved, under God, to Captain Goodwin of the Nemesis, and to those who so gallantly commanded her boats, at the imminent risk of their lives, amongst whom were Captain Porter, Marine Assistant Commissioner, and Mr. Earle, chief mate of the Nemesis, and who were both volunteers for this most dangerous service. There was a fearful sea running at the time. Nothing was saved or could be saved except life, and the things we stood in. I believe it to be my duty to call the attention of His Excellency to the extreme risk attending the despatch of troops down the Bay of Bengal in a sailing vessel at this time of the year, when it has to beat against the south-west Monsoons. On reaching Akyab everything was done for the comfort of the troops by Major Gaskin, of H. M.'s Indian Service, and commanding at the station.

In moments of danger the master of the vessel was at his post and exerting himself to the utmost; he was the last man to leave his ship. The troops will return to Calcutta in the Burmah steamer.—I have, &c.,

(Signed) CHARLES SWAFFIELD,
Major, 31st Regiment.

Indian Allowances.—H.M.'s Regiments.

Fort William, Aug.—H. E. the Governor-general in Council is pleased to notify that an officer of any of H.M.'s British regiments, whose promotion may be announced in the London Gazette, shall receive Indian allowances of the higher grade from the day following the casualty by which he is promoted, if the casualty occurred in Europe, and in a corps on the Indian establishment.

2. But in any other case the officer promoted will receive the allowances of the higher grade from the following date, viz.:—

1st. If promoted in the room of an officer serving in India, who may be transferred to, or promoted in, a corps on the home establishment, or promoted to the rank of general officer, or transferred to the unattached list; from the day after the notification of the latter officer's transfer, or promotion, at the station where he may be serving.

2nd. If promoted by an increase of the prescribed complement of officers in British regiments in India; from the date of arrival in Calcutta of the mail steamer which may convey to India, the London Gazette announcing his promotion. And all the promotions, in succession to him, will carry superior allowances from the same date, though they may be notified in a subsequent London Gazette.

3rd. If promoted by a casualty occurring in India, to which another officer on the strength of a corps in India had been promoted ad interim by the C. in C. in India; from the day following the date of announcement of the promotion in G.O. in this country.

Leave of Absence.

Hd. Qrs., Simla, July 26, 1859.

The C. in C. requests officers in command of divisions and brigades to exercise some moderation in the grant of privilege leave. In a few instances it has lately occurred that regiments have been rendered almost inefficient by the abuse of the privilege. Officers have been allowed to leave their corps when beyond all doubt their applications would have been refused at head quarters, had a reference been made. Until further orders, all applications for the grant of privilege leave are to be referred to officers commanding divisions.

Another abuse has also crept in. It sometimes happens that when general leave for an officer is impossible, owing to the paucity of officers with his regiment, he obtains privilege leave, makes a very long journey, and at the expiration of the two months asks for general leave of absence on the ground of the distance that he has had to travel, the expense to which he has been put, and the inability under which he labours to return to his regiment within the limit prescribed by his original leave of absence.

The C. in C. desires that it may be fairly understood he will not in future yield to such solicitations, and officers overstaying their privilege leave will have to submit to the penalties of such irregularity.

Qualifications in Native Languages.

Hd. Qrs., Simla, Aug. 4.

The C. in C. is pleased to announce the decision of the Gov. gen. in Council that the orders in regard to the qualifications in the languages to be acquired by officers to render them eligible for Staff employ are to be held applicable to all future appointments of aides-de-camp on personal staffs, whether officers of the line or of the Indian force.

Magistrates and Collectors of Districts.

August 5.—The officers in independent charge of the undermentioned districts, who have hitherto been designated joint magistrates and deputy collectors, will in future be designated magistrates and collectors of those districts:—

Chumpran.

Pubna.

Bograh.

Maddah.

Furreedpoor.

Noakhally.

Baraset.

Banccorah.

This order does not affect the functions or salaries of these officers.

A. R. Young,

Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Corps of Sikh Volunteers.

Hd. Qrs., Simla, July 23.

With the sanction of Government the corps of Sikh volunteers formed by G.O. 27th July, 1857, is to be broken up from the 31st proximo; and the two companies of which it is composed are from that date transferred to the Allypore levy, which will hereafter consist of six companies, each company being of the strength fixed in G.G.O. No. 844, of the 13th ultimo, viz.:—

1 subadar, 1 jemadar, 5 havildars, 5 naicks, 2 drummers, 75 sepoys.

Such men of the Sikh volunteers, however, as may prefer it, are to be allowed to go to any other corps of infantry under the orders of the C. in C. that they may select; and rolls are to be sent to head quarters showing how every man of the corps has been disposed of.

Breaking up of Artillery Brigade, Saugor Field Division.

Hd. Qrs., Simla, July 25.—With the sanction of Government, and in continuation of G.O. of 29th ult., the artillery brigade of the Saugor field division is to be broken up, from the date of receipt of this order at the head quarters of the brigade.

The C. in C. directs that, as soon as thirty days have elapsed from the date of registration of the men for discharge, who claim it under Govt. G.O. No. 833 of the 20th June last. Telegraphic reports may be sent to the qr. mr. genl., head quarters, at Simla, conveying the numbers of the men registered at the various stations for discharge.

It will be understood by officers commanding divisions, brigades, and regiments that the option remains with men till the last moment of changing their minds, although they may have registered their names for discharge when the committees assembled for that purpose under the orders of the C. in C.

As soon as the reports directed in para. 1 have been despatched, officers commanding stations in the Presidency, Dinapore, Cawnpore, and Oude divisions will take measures for despatching the men who are about to be discharged to the Presidency by the nearest routes by land or water, informing the general officer commanding the Presidency division of the date on which the detachments leave their stations respectively. They will send duplicate reports to the qr. mr. gen. of the army at Hd. Qrs., and to the qr. mr. gen.'s office at Calcutta.

The detachments from the Meerut (including Rohilund) and Gwalior divisions will receive special orders from Hd. Qrs. as to the date of their departure; the delay being necessary in order to afford time for the required tonnage to be provided and ready for the detachment by the time they arrive at Raneengunge.

As soon as the thirty days have expired, the officers commanding the Sirhind, Lahore, and Peshawar divisions, will prepare to move the detachments of men taking their discharge from their respective stations by the nearest routes to Mooltan; those proceeding from the Lahore division will have precedence of the detachments marching from the Sirhind and Peshawar divisions. Thus, the men from the Lahore division will march immediately on the conclusion of the thirty days for Mooltan; while the detachments from the Sirhind and Peshawar divisions will await instructions from the quartermr. gen. of the army.

It will be understood that, in like manner with men invalided or discharged, these detachments will leave their arms with the Hd. Qrs. of the regts.

PERSIA.—The Official Gazette of Teheran has been received to the 1st of August. It states that the Shah had undertaken a journey to Hamaden, to inquire into the conduct of the officials and the state of the population. Severe measures have been adopted against the venality of public functionaries and their habit of receiving presents. The first dragoman to the Shah, who was sent last year on a private mission to Vienna, has returned, bringing to his Majesty an autograph letter from Francis Joseph, and the decoration of the order of St. Stephen, set with diamonds. As a proof that the Persian Government is inclined to introduce the improvements of European civilisation, it may be remarked that workmen have begun to pave the streets of Teheran.

THE JHANSI JEWELS.—The Jhansi jewels still continue open for public inspection in the Town-hall. We learn that several private offers have been made for purchase, among which is one by some Marwaree merchants, who have valued the jewels at about Rs. 107,000.

DAVID SASSOON SCHOOL.—The Bombay Gazette draws attention to the unsatisfactory state of the David Sassoon School of Industry. Established in 1850, it languished until the Jewish family of the Sassoons agreed to support it on condition that the Jewish Sabbath should be made a day of rest as well as the Christian. The result has been as bad as before. The boys seldom attend; they are not taught how to work; so that which is maintained as a reformatory has become "a nursery of idleness and crime."

CAPTURED SLAVERS.—The Vice-Admiralty Court of Bombay has just confiscated two vessels. The ship Muzzook was seized in Bushire roads on the information of the King of Persia's Commissioner for the suppression of the slave trade, and one male and five female slaves, exported from the coast of Arabia, found on board of her. The ship Eranee, registered as a British ship, illegally hoisted Turkish colours on the occasion of the Jeddah massacre. She was seized by the Cyclops and sent to Bombay. As one of the two owners had reported the act of the other, the court decreed her confiscation, but waived its right to the forfeiture of his share.

BOMBAY POST-OFFICE.—Owing to the delicate health of the Deputy Postmaster-General, Mr. W. Blowers, who has been obliged to seek a change, Mr. L. Nickler, inspecting postmaster of Poona, has been temporarily appointed in charge of the general post-office here, during the absence of Mr. Blowers.

CUTCH.—We hear from Cutch that his Highness the Rao has transferred the revenue administration of the province to his heir. It is said that the judicial administration is to be conducted in future under the presidentship of the political agent, assisted by a punchayet, composed of some of the Rao's karbaries.

BOMBAY SERVANTS' LOGIC.—A lady told me two very good jokes to illustrate the way servants and tradespeople manage here (Bombay). Her husband happened to receive a higher appointment a few years since, with large pay. At once everything increased in price, to her great astonishment; on applying to the butler, who makes all the purchases, he coolly replied, "Massa have much higher pay; now servants ought to have the same." The other was, that two officers and their families were staying at her house—one a major, and the other a captain. One day a borah (the people who carry round things, like country pedlars) called and sold some things to the major's wife, afterwards to the captain's wife in another room; comparing notes, the major's wife found she had been paying much higher prices. The man returning in a few days, they accused him of it, and he replied, "That Mem Sahib" (lady), meaning the major's wife, "had more money, her husband had good pay; while the other lady's husband was only a captain, and had poor pay." The butlers meet once a week, and regulate the prices at which they are to let their masters have things, and pocket the balance. —Wall-street to Cashmere.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

"FIAT JUSTITIA."

A LETTER bearing the above signature, which appeared a short time ago in this journal, has, we rejoice to observe, attracted the attention of the provincial press. The Tralee Chronicle, among others, founds upon it a leading article earnestly advocating the justice of the claims therein set forth, and demanding immediate reparation for the consequences of an oversight that had settled into a sore grievance. The facts of the case lie in a nut-shell. Until the year 1855 the Military Pension Regulations granted full pay to retired officers according to the regimental rank held by them at the period of superannuation. Though at first sight such an arrangement may appear plausible and just, in practice it proved to be the very reverse. In the Indian service, it must be remembered, promotion goes entirely by seniority, so that it frequently happens that at the expiration of the twenty-five years' service one man may retire as Lieut.-col. on his full pay of £365 per annum, while another after upwards of thirty years' may have attained no higher rank than that of Major,—the pay of that grade being only £292 per annum. Moved by feelings of sympathy for the unfair position assigned by accident to meritorious officers, the Court of Directors, in the year above mentioned, came to the resolution that the retiring rates should be determined by length of service. So far as it went this new regulation was strictly equitable, but it was only prospective, so that a positive injustice was done to those who had already retired. At least, the new system was invidious, and liable to excite feelings of jealousy in the minds of ancient comrades. We are quite aware that such was by no means the intention of the Court, nor do we for a moment doubt that the oversight was purely accidental. But there is the more reason why the blunder should at once be remedied, and the regulation made retrospective in the comparatively few cases to which it would now apply. We cannot think that it is necessary to do more than bring this matter fairly before the Council of India in order that the existing wrong may be promptly redressed. Not only sympathy for old brother officers, but also a sense of justice, will surely have sufficient weight with that august body to induce them to turn a favourable ear to the earnest petition of the aggrieved.

THE MAURITIUS.

"In the event of a war," says Mr. Thornton, "it will be a question whether the French shall recover the Mauritius, or the English the Isle of Bourbon." At the commencement of a contest between the two great rival nations of Western Europe, we fear, there is little doubt that the tricolor flag would for a time be planted on what is now a British possession. In the first place, the French maintain a force of 5,000 men in Bourbon, while the garrison of the Mauritius rarely exceeds two regiments; and secondly, the inhabitants of the latter island are impatient of the British yoke, though light and easy to be borne. Indeed, they do not scruple to avow their Gallican tendencies, and very recently a serious disturbance was occasioned in the Opera-house at Port Louis because the band of the 5th Fusiliers, kindly permitted by the officers to play in the orchestra, gave the National Anthem precedence of that abominable "Partant pour la Syrie," the eternal repetition of which must inevitably lead to a rupture with our enraptured allies. The temporary suspension of balls and operas is the natural consequence of the disloyalty of these false-hearted British subjects, by which the feeling of estrangement is likely to be further increased and embittered. The circumstance that so large a force should be stationed in Bourbon is in itself suspicious. It is certainly not required for defensive purposes, for no Government is so little aggressive as our own where France is concerned. We have somehow acquired a habit of humouring our neighbours as if they were fractious children, which induces us to submit to their insolence to a degree that may well disturb our grandfathers in their graves. But this deferential consideration for the tetchiness of "the most amiable people in the world"—as they complacently designate themselves—need hardly be carried so far as to endanger the safety of our possessions in the Indian seas. The Island of Bourbon furnishes France with a pretext for keeping up a squadron in those waters, in addition to a garrison out of all proportion to the importance of the place. The presence of these sea and land forces is extremely prejudicial to the stability of our own position in the Mauritius under our present liberal system of government. It may safely be laid down as a rule that all military posts should be held under military jurisdiction. Had this truth been acted upon, we should have experienced none of the frequent annoyances to which we have subjected ourselves in Malta and in the Ionian islands. In all such places a military governor and military law should be established, and the absurdities of a pedantic liberalism be made to give way to the prompt and common-sense action of a responsible despotism. Owing to the slackness of our rule in the Mauritius, the people are assuming a self-importance which would be simply ludicrous were it not also an insult and a menace. A firm and steady hand is needed to hold them in subjection, backed by a sufficient force to repel all hostile demonstrations, whether from within or from without the island.

It may not be altogether out of place to remark that British merchants, who seldom lose an opportunity of vaunting their enterprise and aptitude for commerce, appear to be strangely unmindful of the Mauritius. The common necessities of life are quoted at fabulous prices, and articles of luxury or even comfort are beyond the reach of all but the very wealthy. An occasional cargo of "notions" would there find a ready market, to the advantage alike of the residents and the shippers.

PROPOSED REDUCTION OF CIVIL SALARIES IN INDIA.

So far back as the month of July, 1855, the Court of Directors instructed the Indian Government to institute a general revision of the salaries of all civil appointments throughout the British territories in Hindostan. The revision was to be conducted on the following principles:—

"First,—That whereas the duties are the same in nature and extent, the salaries should also be the same; but the raising of the lower salaries to the highest grade must be avoided. An exception to this rule, to a small extent, may be allowed at the seat of the Government of India, in consideration of the higher importance of the offices and the greater expense of living. 2nd,—That where the duties vary, the difference of salary should correspond to the difference of duty. 3rd,—That all salaries disproportionate to the duties to be performed, or which admit of reduction, should be prospectively reduced. 4th,—That the greatest reduction consistent with the efficiency of the public service shall be made in the aggregate expenditure."

In accordance with these instructions the Government appointed Mr. H. Ricketts, B.C.S., to be Commissioner for the revision of civil salaries and establishments throughout India, and on the 1st September, 1858, that gentleman submitted a report, drawn up with great care and ability, embodying the result of his delicate and laborious investigation, and containing suggestions for the future remuneration of public servants in that country. This report has been fully and fairly criticised in a despatch to Lord Stanley from the Government of India, dated 3rd June, 1859, and which has recently been published by order of the House of Commons. On the whole, we are disposed to give the preference to the Government scheme, as it is liberal without being extravagant, and economical without being niggardly. We shall, therefore, briefly state the respective amounts of the various salaries proposed to be assigned in the different departments of the administration, so far, at least, as they have yet been considered, for there is a long list of appointments still unrevised. These are as follow:—Office Establishments of the Secretaries to the Governments of Bengal, the N. W. Provinces, Madras and Bombay; Uncovenanted Deputy Collectors and Deputy Magistrates in Bengal and the N. W. Provinces; Police of Bengal; Extra Assistants in the Punjab; Uncovenanted subordinate officers of the Revenue Department, Madras and Bombay; Sheristadars and Tehseeldars of Madras; Dufterdars and Mamlutdars in Bombay; Moonsiffs' establishments in Bengal and the N. W. P.; District Police of Madras and Bombay; Survey and Settlement establishments in Bengal, Madras, and Bombay; Inam Commissions of Madras and Bombay; Governor-General's Agent in Moorshedabad; Officers of the province of Assam; Political Agent at Muneepore; the Agent and his Assistant in the Hill Tracts of Orissa; Officers in the province of Kattiawar; Political Agent in Kutch and his Assistants; Agents to the Governor of Bombay in Guzerat and Surat; Political Agents in Mahee Kanta, Rewa Kanta, and the Southern Mahratta Country; Agent for Sirdars in the Deccan; Governor's Agent at Chepauk, and Paymaster of Carnatic Stipends; Commissioner and Officers of Police for the towns of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay; Officers of the Medical Department; Office establishment of the Commissioner of the Nuddea Division; and English Department of Magistrates' Officers in Bengal. It must be admitted that this is a formidable enumeration of omissions. That there is much work yet to be done is sufficiently obvious, but that still more has already been accomplished will appear from the following tabular statements. The total saving on the Government plan amounts to Rs. 11,20,435, or about £112,000 per annum; but of this a considerable proportion will be absorbed in raising the salaries of the above-named office establishments, though even then a perceptible reduction will have been effected.

BANKING INSTITUTIONS OF INDIA.

[From a paper read by Mr. J. T. Mackenzie before the British Association at Aberdeen.]

Intimately connected with Indian trade and commerce is a sound system of banking. At present there are only three banks of importance in India—the Banks of Bengal, Bombay, and Madras. These have no branches, the absence of which constitutes one of the main defects of the system. The few other banks in India do not issue notes, and employ their capital in making advances on bills of lading, in exchange operations, and, in some instances, in loans to members of the service at high rates of interest, but afford no banking facilities for conducting the internal trade of the country.

The aggregate capital of the three banks is £1,892,500, of which Government holds shares in the Bank of Bengal to the extent of £110,000, equal to 10½ per cent. of its capital; in the Bank of Bombay to the extent of £30,000, or 5½ per cent. of its capital; and in the Bank of Madras to the extent of £30,000, or 10 per cent. of its capital. To each of these banks Government nominates some of its own servants to represent it as unpaid official directors. These banks issue notes payable on demand, which, however, are not a legal tender, although Government accepts them in payments due to itself, in an arbitrary proportion of the payments fixed by its own officers. The aggregates for the three banks by the returns for the month of June last showed:—Bullion, £2,243,034; commercial bills discounted, £278,906; Government bills discounted, £238,288; loans on security (principally Government securities), £1,741,300; accounts current, £1,855,293; bank notes in circulation, £2,241,471; bank post bills, £64,745. It is thus observable that the bullion in the coffers of the banks is in excess of their notes in circulation. Hence we have a circulating medium (exclusive of bullion) to facilitate payments of £2,241,471, and accounts current to the extent of £1,855,293, about one-sixth of some of the London banks, in a country where the gross annual revenue is £31,000,000, the export trade on an average of the last five years £24,000,000, and the import trade on the same average £23,000,000, with an internal trade to an extent impossible to estimate.

Consequent upon this system nearly all payments have to be made in India in the bulky form of silver; and it is estimated the Government now employ 30,000 troops in their treasure escorts, at a cost of some three per cent. on their revenue; while in proportion to their transactions private parties have to pay for a similar costly process—a heavy tax on trade when we recollect the great distances to which money has to be remitted and the expense of sending men both to carry and protect it en route.

It is of the utmost importance, both to the Government and to the true development of the commercial enterprise of India, that this should be immediately changed. It would occupy too much time to give details of the requirements of a banking system adapted for India, but a few broad principles may be adduced.

The Government, being shareholders in the existing banks, could easily carry out some equitable arrangement with its co-shareholders for the formation of the three into one great Bank of India, with branches at all the large commercial stations, and issuing notes payable on demand, not necessarily at the minor branches, but at great central offices. These notes should be made a legal tender, and issued on conditions somewhat analogous to those of the Bank of England. Fully admitting the inexpediency of two legal standards of bullion, still it would be very beneficial to make gold coin a legal tender up to a small amount. When the natives saw the notes received in payment for all imperial demands they would at once have entire confidence in them and quickly recognise the other great advantages of a good banking system, which would in time, with the other suggested improvements, go far to check the universal eastern practice of hoarding bullion, and induce the natives to re-employ their capital in profitable industrial channels.

SIR JOHN BOWRING ON THE OPIUM TRADE.

In the discussion on India in Section F of the British Association, on Friday, the 16th,

Colonel Edwardes defended the old Company, though he was not sorry the government had been transferred to the Crown. The Company had run an extraordinary career; and he asked—had this country come to its present position in a century? It was unmanly and un-English to blame the Government for not carrying out public works in India. Did we blame Lord Palmerston for not making railways in this country? There had been no more jobbery in India than in Great Britain. In conclusion, if we would confer benefits on India we must Christianise her—(cheers).

Sir John Bowring said he did not mean to enter into the general question which had been under discussion, but on one subject as to which he had peculiar means of information he would mention a few facts; and the interests of truth are always served by fact. That subject was the opium monopoly. He went to China impregnated with the feelings which one found to exist largely in this country. It had been constantly affirmed that the Chinese felt the introduction of opium to their country to be a great grievance. Now, in all his intercourse with the Mandarins the opium question was never introduced except by himself, though all questions connected with free trade were discussed; he never heard it used as a reproach; he never heard that they were violating their laws, or poisoning their people. There was, indeed, a time when the Chinese were in excitement regarding the exportation of silver, and then they blamed the importation of opium as being the cause of this unprecedented exportation. But in the change that had taken place in the emancipation of silver, from the enormous importation of gold to Europe, and almost all the silver let loose in the Western world being sent to the East, the old arguments were uttered no longer. Many present would be surprised to hear that, for the last twenty years, questions, such as the introduction of opium, had been discussed in the Peking gazettes. For a long time there was a class of men who felt that the introduction of opium should not be allowed; but at last the good sense of the people had seen that it should be legalised. It had been said that we were introducing opium in violation of treaties; now in none of our treaties with China was there any mention of opium. Though they referred to a number of commodities, in none of them was opium named. No doubt the introduction of opium had produced a great change in the habits of the people. He was the last man to justify excess, and he would be the first to acknowledge that the use of opium was most deleterious; but compared with the social evils, and the crimes resulting from intoxicating liquors in this country, the results even of the abuse of opium in China are as nothing. There is not the slightest impediment to any one there consuming opium, if he pleases. Some use it in excess, all consume it, yet the number of deaths—and he had taken some trouble to collect statistics—was only four per annum out of 90,000. The proportion of deaths from delirium tremens alone in this country, then, was three or four times as great. It would be a very great calamity to China itself if the importation of opium were stopped, because, if opium were successfully shut out, land now devoted to the growth of rice would be used for the cultivation of the poppy. It is very extraordinary how completely the habit of intoxication has been extirpated in China. He had scarcely ever seen a drunken Chinaman, yet the edicts of the Emperors a hundred years ago were filled with all sorts of threats of punishment, in consequence of the numerous crimes arising from intoxication. Certainly the effects of opium are very pernicious, but it does not lead to crime or to acts of violence. The opium smoker dreams, and fancies delightful visions; but the man who is intoxicated with drink often becomes a perfect ruffian. The introduction of opium has undoubtedly produced a moral change among the Chinese people, and although he agreed that opium in excess is most deleterious, he had come to the conclusion that its moderate use is scarcely pernicious.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BRITISH TRADE WITH INDIA.—On Tuesday, the 20th, a paper, "On the British Trade with India," prepared by Mr. R. Valpy, was read by the Secretary to the British Association. It stated that in the year 1858 the exports of British produce from England to India amounted to £16,782,515, and exceeded those to the United States, which were not more than £14,510,616—a low amount, it was true, for the United States. In the first six months of 1859 the value of British produce exported had been £11,783,790 to the United States, and £10,109,563 to India. In 1815, the first year after the opening of the Indian trade to British merchants, the total value of the imports and exports of this country from and to India amounted to £10,701,000. In 1858 the amount was £31,751,000. In 1858, therefore, the value of the British trade with India was three times more than it was in 1815. The computed real value of the total imports from India in each year since 1854, when the real value of imports was first ascertained at the Custom-house, was:—

1855	..	..	12,688,000
1856	..	..	17,262,000
1857	..	..	18,650,000
1858	..	..	14,972,000

This increase was not so striking as that of the exports of British produce to India, the totals, on a comparison of similar periods—viz., from 1855 to 1858 over 1815 to 1819—for the respective periods being about £11,600,000 against £2,800,000. In 1850 there was a large increase in the imports of Indian cotton, the quantity being 118,872,742lb., which since had steadily increased. The paper noticed the various articles of imports and exports, showing that India is the best customer we have for the most important of our industrial productions. For example, in 1854 the quantity of cotton manufactured goods exported was only 39,000,000 yards, and in 1858 it rose to 728,000,000 yards. The total value of our exports of cotton stuffs and yarns to India in 1858 was £10,240,826. Machinery has been exported to India since 1855 to the extent of £500,000 annually.

A TROPHY FROM LUCKNOW.—An Indian gun, one of the trophies taken from the rebels at the final siege and capture of Lucknow, has just been deposited in the museum attached to the Royal Engineer Establishment, Brompton-barracks, Chatham. The gun, which appears to be of very rude construction, was taken from one of the forts in Lucknow, and, from its appearance, had been put to severe use in the defence of that stronghold. It is mounted on a four-wheeled gun carriage, and, although not so large as our light-field pieces, is of great weight. This trophy was deposited in the Royal Engineers' museum by order of the Government.

EAST INDIA AND CHINA STATION.—Rear-Admiral Lewis Tobias Jones, C.B., has been appointed second in command on the East India and China station. He entered the navy at an early age, and was engaged in the Walcheren expedition in 1809. He captured the American sloop of war Syren. He served in the Granicus at the memorable battle of Algiers, in which he was wounded in both knees. He became Lieutenant in 1816, Commander in 1838, and as such commanded the Princess Charlotte at the bombardment of St. Jean d'Acre, and for his excellent services on that occasion he was rewarded with a post commission. He was appointed captain of the Penelope, and personally commanded the boats of that ship at the destruction of slave baracoons at the Gallinas, under Sir C. Hotham, in 1849. He was appointed to the Sampson in December, 1850, and commanded the expedition at the destruction of Lagos in 1851. In consideration of his eminent services he was honourably mentioned in the Gazetted despatches. He commanded the same vessel at the bombardment of Odessa, operations on the coast of Circassia, and at the attack on Sebastopol, for which services he was repeatedly thanked by admirals Dundas and the late Lord Lyons, and was likewise created a Companion of the Bath, an officer of the Legion of Honour, and of the Medjidie of the third class. He obtained his flag rank in June, 1859.

THE CABUL AND AFGHANISTAN DESPATCHES.—The papers moved for by Mr. Hadfield a year ago, showing the extent to which the correspondence of Sir A. Burnes with the Indian Government during his mission to Cabul in 1837 and 1838, and of Lord Auckland with the Board of Control and the Secret Committee of the East India Company, relative to the Afghan expedition, were mutilated in their original publication, have at length been printed. The omissions commence in a letter from Sir A. Burnes to the Indian Government at Calcutta, wherein several short passages relating to presents made by the Russian Government to the Candahar chiefs were omitted, as well as three whole paragraphs at the end of the letter respecting the intrigues of Russia to extend her influence in Persia, Afghanistan, and the neighbouring States. Many of the mutilations in this and succeeding despatches seem of little or no importance, and the object of their suppression not very clear, supposing the papers now to be produced in their integrity. The longer suppressions are, however, of considerable importance, as they relate mostly to the ramifications of Russian intrigue in Central Asia, the friendly disposition of Dost Mahomed towards England, and the pecuniary considerations by which Russia prevailed upon some of the chiefs to assist the Persians against Herat. It seems that Dost Mahomed became opposed to Great Britain solely from the rejection of his offers of friendship, which threw him into the arms of Russia, whose intrigues had long been directed to that end, as was known to Lord Palmerston, from a letter from Count Simonich to the Ameer, which fell into the hands of Mr. Macneil.

THE CHINESE INVASION OF AMERICA.—The persistent influx of the Chinese peasantry to the United States is a fact which presses itself upon the attention alike of the political economist and the statesman. Three thousand Celestials are stated to be at this moment on their way to San Francisco. California already has a large Chinese population. Notwithstanding their characteristic vices, the Chinamen, although not popular, are found to be useful members of society. They perform, with alacrity and intelligence, the ruder kinds of labour, are marvellously frugal in their habits, and are consequently enabled to work for very low wages. Indeed, it is not improbable that the poorer inhabitants of that vast empire, which contains within its limits nearly a moiety of the human race, may be destined to work great changes in the industrial if not in the social and political condition of America. The most obvious immediate effect of Chinese immigration, for instance, is its tendency to supplant the negro. The coolie in California has already made the African impossible. There, as in the West India Islands, the Malay labourer is found to be, in all respects, preferable to his darker cousin. The voluntary immigration from Canton and Shanghai into our Pacific States bids fair soon to be enormous. Hitherto it has mainly been directed to California, but it will manifestly soon extend to Oregon also. Nor is there reason to doubt that it will soon reach the Atlantic States as well. Assuming that these natives of China may one day become as numerous among us as those of Europe, what shall their social and political status be? Are they to be regarded as whites, or as people of colour? Shall they, equally with immigrants from Ireland and Germany, be admitted to the benefits of our naturalisation laws? These are questions which flit and flicker now along the political horizon. But the march of events with us is rapid, and all signs conspire to prove that we have seen only the beginning of that profound strife of races and of principles by which the institutions of the United States are before long to be tried in the fire.—New York Times.

THE MILITARY ENCYCLOPEDIA; a

Technical, Biographical, and Historical Dictionary, referring exclusively to the Military Sciences, the Memoirs of distinguished Soldiers, and the Narratives of Remarkable Battles. By J. H. STOCQUER, Esq.

* Mr. Stocquer's former works, and his well-known proficiency in the military sciences, will insure a favourable reception for this very useful book, which possesses the advantage of compressing into one portable volume a vast mass of information on military subjects, arranged especially for reference. No one could be better qualified than Mr. Stocquer for such a task, and certainly he has accomplished it in a very able manner. In a volume which occupies but little room, the officer and soldier may here command at a glance the cream of many valuable works, and obtain information on almost any point of interest. This work, indeed, forms for the camp and barracks what Maundrell's 'Treasury of Knowledge' represents in the counting-house; and we cannot doubt that it will obtain corresponding success."—United Service Magazine.

JAMS, JELLIES, and MARMALADE, PRESERVED IN TINS,

By BARNES, MORGAN, and Co.

(the Originators of this method of preserving), Upper Thames-street, London, E.C. This mode of Preserving is now acknowledged to be far superior to any yet invented. The contents will keep good for any number of years without the Tin imparting any metallic taste to the Preserve, and never candy or ferment. To Regimental Messes they are peculiarly adapted, being more portable than jams, and not liable to breakage. B. M. and Co. would also recommend their Pickles, Sauces, Fruit Sweets, &c., and their large stock of York and Cumberland Hams, Cheese, and Bacon.

GENTLEMEN, if you want a Treat, try FAMEN'S PATENT TROUSERS, a perfect and elegant fit, falling gracefully over the instep, with or without straps, giving that freedom and comfort so necessary in walking or riding. If you try them once, you will soon change your tailor. The texture and pattern are the best the market can produce. The price, 17s. 6d. to 25s. What a luxury to have perfection in a Coat—to fit easy, and without a crease! Try FAMEN'S, Practical Tailor, 10, VERNON-PLACE, Brompton-square, W.C. You will be pleased with the fit, style, and price.

THE MELTON RIDING BELT.—Import-

tant to those who are suffering from Weakness in the Back and General Debility. The following is printed by permission:—

"Sir,—You ask for my opinion of your Melton Riding Belt; I give it. Having resided for a long time in India, my constitution is very much debilitated, and for a long time I was suffering from a weakness in the back and the lower part of the body, which no internal remedy could reach, and the slightest exertion completely overpowered me. I was ordered by my medical man to wear a support, and seeing your advertisement I obtained one of your Melton Riding Belts, which I have worn for the last five months. It gives me great support. I can take riding or other exercise without feeling that extreme lassitude and weariness afterwards. My general health is much improved. You have my best thanks. You will secure my best support.—Yours truly,

"Torquay, July 30, 1859. "J. PRATT MATHFSON.

"To Wm. Elstah, 12, Avery-row, Bond-street."

The Melton Belt is sold by A. WHITBURN, Chemist, 174, Regent-street; of J. G. SHIPLEY, 179 and 181, Regent-street, London, price 21s.

Circulars and every information sent on receipt of address, and the Belt sent free on the size of the waist and hips; being sent to WM. ELSTAH, the Sole Maker and Inventor, 12, Avery-row, Brook-street, Bond-street.

Gentlemen waited on if preferred.

Post-office Orders payable to WILLIAM ELSTAH, at Cavendish-street.

SIXTY YEARS OF SUCCESS HAVE PROVED BEYOND QUESTION THAT

ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL possesses extraordinary properties for promoting the growth and improving and beautifying the human Hair. It prevents Hair from falling off or turning grey, strengthens weak Hair, cleanses it from Scurf and Dandruff, and makes it beautifully soft, pliable, and glossy. Its operation in cases of baldness is peculiarly active; and in the growth of Whiskers, the Beard, and Mustaches, it is unfailing in its stimulative operation. For CHILDREN it is especially recommended as forming the basis of A BEAUTIFUL HEAD OF HAIR, while its introduction into the Nursery of Royalty, and the numerous Testimonials constantly received of its efficacy, afford the best and surest proofs of its merits.—Price 3s. 6d. and 7s.; Family Bottles (equal to four small), 10s. 6d.; and double that size, 21s.

TEETH.

No. 2, LOWER GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.—Newly-invented and Patented application of chemically prepared WHITE and GUM-COLOURED INDIA-RUBBER in the construction of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, GUMS, and PALATES.

Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon-Dentist, No. 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee.

A new, original, and invaluable invention, consisting in the adaptation, with the most absolute perfection and success, of chemically prepared White and Gum-coloured India-rubber, as a lining to the ordinary gold or bone frame. The extraordinary results of this application may be briefly noted in a few of their most prominent features.

All sharp edges are avoided; no springs, wires, or fastenings, are required; a greatly increased freedom of suction is supplied, a natural elasticity, hitherto wholly unobtainable; and a fit, perfected with the most unerring accuracy, is secured; while, from the softness and flexibility of the agents employed, the greatest support is given to the adjoining teeth when loose, or rendered tender by the absorption of the gums.

The acids of the mouth exert no agency on the chemically prepared India-rubber, and, as it is a non-conductor, fluids of any temperature may with thorough comfort be imbibed and retained in the mouth, all unpleasantness of smell and taste being, at the same time, wholly provided against by the peculiar nature of its preparation.

To be obtained only at 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, London; 11, Gay-street, Bath; and 10, Eldon-square, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

TEETH WITHOUT SPRINGS.—By Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent.

Improper mastication and the evils attendant thereon may be avoided by wearing Artificial Teeth properly constructed and of pure Materials.

Messrs. GABRIEL, the Old-Established Dentists' Treatise on the Loss and best means of Restoring the Teeth, explains their System of supplying Artificial Masticators with Vulcanised Gum-coloured India Rubber as a base; no metal whatsoever is used—springs and wires are entirely dispensed with, while a greatly-increased amount of suction is obtained, together with the best materials and first-class workmanship, at less than half the ordinary cost.

"Gabriels' Treatise is of importance to all requiring the dentist's aid, and, emanating from such a source, it may be confidently relied on."—United Service Gazette.

"Thousands requiring artificial teeth are deterred from consulting a dentist fearing the anticipated cost, or dread of failure—to all such we say peruse 'Gabriels' Treatise.'"—Civil Service Gazette.

Published by Messrs. GABRIEL (gratis on application, or sent on receipt of three postage stamps), at their Establishments—33, Ludgate-hill, and 110, Regent street, London (observe name and numbers particularly); and 134, Duke-street, Liverpool.

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY, 29, Lombard-street, London, and Royal Insurance Buildings, Liverpool.

At the Annual Meeting of the 5th August, the following highly satisfactory results were shown:—

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact—that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this kingdom.

The Premiums for the year 1855 being... £130,060

While the Premiums for the year 1858 are... 196,118

Showing an actual increase of... 66,058

or upwards of 50 per cent. in three years.

The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1858) again show the Royal as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London Insurance Offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the moiety of its advance.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

The amount of new life premiums received this year is by far the largest received in any similar period since the commencement of the business, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful offices in the Kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 5,232, the sum assured £387,752, 6s. 8d., and the premium £12,354, 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension of business during the last ten years. Thus:—

No. of Policies.	Sum Assured.	New Premiums.
1848 ... 95	£48,764 17 0	£1,380 9 1
1850 ... 190	95,650 9 11	2,627 4 7
1852 ... 422	181,501 10 6	5,825 5 10
1854 ... 408	161,848 13 4	4,694 16 0
1856 ... 703	297,560 16 8	8,850 3 11
1858 ... 832	387,752 6 8	12,354 3 4

The remarkable increase in the business of the last four years is mainly consequent upon the large bonus declared in 1855, which amounted to no less than £2 per cent. per annum on the sums assured, and averaged 80 per cent. upon the premiums paid.

PERCY M. DOVE, Manager and Actuary. JOHN R. JOHNSTON, Secretary to the London Board.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.

—In these two preparations are found reliable remedies for all complaints caused by climate, irregularity, over exertion, or accident. Internal or external disorders are subjugated by these incomparable medicines, which never fail to relieve if cure be impossible. They act physically by removing impurities and establishing regularity of functions, extracting all impurities from the blood, stimulating every secretion, and causing each organ to act healthfully. No diseases in the body can long resist the combined action of these remedies, which invariably harmonise every corporeal function, and on the brain reflect a happy state of mind, removing low spirits, lassitude, and hypochondriacism, for which they substitute cheerfulness and contentment, and render pure our physical and moral being.

BENGAL.

THE PERSIAN WAR AND THE INDIAN MUTINY.

In an article on the Blue Book recently issued by the House of Commons, giving the evidence on the King of Delhi's trial, the Indian Field notices the strong ground which is supplied for believing that Russia and Persia were not inactive in instigating the mutiny in the North West Provinces. A resildar named Everet told Sir T. Metcalfe before the outbreak that the King of Delhi had sent an emissary to Russia. Sir T. Metcalfe states, "The subject of the advance of the Persians upon Herat was much discussed among natives, and frequently in connection with the idea of Russian aggression upon India. Every native newspaper had at this time its correspondent in Kabul, and there was a constant communication kept up with the north; every newspaper having its weekly quota of information from thence. About five or six weeks before the outbreak it was currently reported in the lines of the sepoys, and much discussed among them, that 100,000 Russians were coming from the north, and that the Company's Government would be destroyed—in fact, the idea of a Russian invasion was universally prevalent."

For some time previous to the revolt, the Urdu papers noticed the fact that the King of Delhi was holding a correspondence with the Shah of Persia, and that a large force was preparing for an advance on India. In January, 1857, a Delhi native newspaper stated:—"It may be said that the Russians are virtually the cause of this Persian war, and that using the Persians as a cloak, they intend to consummate their own designs regarding the conquest of Hindoostan. It is to be believed that the Russians will very soon take the field in great force."

It appears from the evidence of Sir Theophilus Metcalfe that just before the mutiny numerous copies of the famous Persian proclamation, found by Sir James Outram in the Shahzada's tent at Mohumra, were posted up at the Jumma Musjid at Delhi; and others of a similar character were found all over Hindoostan, down as far as Raneeunge, in May, 1857. The people, in fact, generally believed that a Western invasion was certain. Dost Mahomed was to spend his Eed at Peshawar, and the King of Persia was to visit the Great Mogul at Delhi at the same time.

The letters produced on the trial of the King of Delhi have thrown a good deal of light on some features of the Indian rebellion. There is one letter from the King of Persia to the Great Mogul, calling upon him to raise the Mahomedans of India in a Jihad against the English, and a letter from the Delhi Potentate asking for Persian aid in this great work.

From all these facts it is natural to conclude that Persian influence was the means of stirring up the mutinous elements already existing in India into the general conflagrations that have wasted some of the fairest portions of our empire. But it may be said—this is all very well. Persia might intrigue for ever without success had the elements of rebellion not been here already. Just so. They were here and are here, and always will be here, so long as we have a population of uneducated fanatics spread over the country.

There are reasons to believe that the mutiny would have taken place if the Enfield rifle and the greased cartridges had never been given to the sepoys. The greased cartridge was just introduced at the time when misleading men were trying to drive the soldiery into revolt, and precipitated the event which sooner or later must have followed. What we assume is, that the greased cartridge was an instrument in the hands of designing men, who could have found some other had not that presented itself. Look at the other expedient of "bone-dust."

Would such an expedient have suggested itself to any but men whose minds were debased by superstition and ignorance? Yet the "bone-dust" was as generally regarded as calculated to injure their caste as the greased cartridge. The latter was intended to alienate the sepoy, while the former was meant to have a similar effect upon the masses of the people. The chuppatty movement was one of the signals whereby the conspirators could test the progress of their schemes among the people; while the fraternity of caste in the army was sufficient to insure a unanimity there. The denouement somewhat disconcerted the plans of the rebels, but we have fearful evidence of the extent to which the conspiracy had spread.

Our object in the above remarks is not so much the implication of Persia—who could blame her for endeavouring to create a diversion in her favour against the enemy that had invaded her soil?—as it is the ascertaining of the truth on this important subject. It is just possible that Persia was acting under Russian influence, though we are rather inclined to think that the war undertaken for the expulsion of her troops from Herat led her to plan the revolt of the Indian army.—Bombay Gazette.

MISCELLANEOUS.

M. D'ORGONI.—The Rangoon Times, we perceive, has been honoured with the name of Prince Napoleon as a subscriber. Our contemporary is of opinion that he owes this distinction to the Chevalier D'Orgoni, regarding whose movements he conceives the Prince desires to be informed. It appears that this adventurer has reached Amarapoor, where he was received with great pomp and honour. His progress up the Irrawaddy in his steamer the Alon Prah, we are told, was more like a triumph than a voyage. The Alon Prah is a screw steamer, built on very elegant lines, and as she steamed gracefully up the river, the banks were lined by hundreds of natives all anxious to have a glance at the Imperial present from France. Of course D'Orgoni was a wonderful man in their estimation, and their behaviour to him was not only civil but ceremonious, having doubtless been instructed as to their behaviour from the Court of Amarapoor. The general and the officers of the Alon Prah disembarked every evening to honour with their presence the village poovays, or to complete their study of Burmah and the Burmese. The most extravagant stories were nightly circulated throughout the length and breadth of the villages by the industrious myrmidons of D'Orgoni on these occasions. The natives were particularly taught that though of the same colour and creed with their conquerors, their present visitors were from a country that had little fellow-feeling with the English, and it was this circumstance more than any other which invested the Alon Prah's trip in the eyes of the Burmese with an extraordinary degree of importance. At least such is the report which has been brought to Rangoon by a native from Upper Burmah.—Madras Times.

INFATUATION.—According to the Hurkaru, the Governor-general, in recognition of the valuable services rendered in Oude by the Rajah of Kupurthalah during the late rebellion, has sanctioned the payment of about two lakhs and a half to the contingents of the said rajah, the bestowal on him of the estates of Bunde and Bithotowe at a perpetual half jumma, and a khelut of ten thousand and five thousand rupees on him and his brother, and as an addition to the promotion of his rank and title, eleven salutes have been assigned to him as a mark of honour. His excellency has been further pleased to direct the bestowal of kheluts of five hundred rupees value to each of the native officers attached to the contingents while in Oude.

THE MAURITIUS.—The Legislative Council recently voted £200 in order to allow Dr. Payne, Medical Examiner in Calcutta, to visit the Mauritius in charge of an emigrant ship, for the purpose of seeing what improvement may be effected. The governor stated "that he had it in contemplation to recommend sending a special agent to the three presidencies to look into the operations in force, and to establish an agency at Bombay, for which sanction had been received, similar to that at Calcutta. These papers he had proposed to lay before the Council, but the visit of Dr. Payne would afford opportunities of obtaining information which should first be considered." Her Majesty's Government has conferred on the civil service of the Mauritius, in common with the other Crown colonies, the right to wear the civil uniform prescribed for her Majesty's servants in Great Britain, under the prescribed regulations. Her Majesty's Government has decided that the system of Government note currency introduced by Earl Grey shall be continued with notes of a more convenient character, in preference to adopting the system of issues by the banks as proposed in the Treasury Minute of the 25th February, 1858. In consequence of this determination the Commercial Bank has been called upon to repay a loan of £100,000.

THE COMMISSARIAT.—We hear that the Government have expressed great satisfaction at the estimate of Commissariat expenditure for the year 1859-60 prepared by the Commissary-General, which amounts to Rs. 1,19,11,000 for the British troops, and Rs. 1,38,17,000 for the Indian forces, including the local European regiments, against Rs. 1,73,60,160 for the British troops, and Rs. 1,75,65,800 for the Indian forces, for the year 1858-59. The expected decrease in the annual commissariat outlay, it will be seen, will exceed nine-tenths of a crore of rupees; and with corresponding decrease, in the outlay of the ordnance, the clothing and other public departments, Indian finance will be much improved.—Englishman.

FYZABAD, Aug. 14.—"From a conversation that I had with one of the priests of the Rane of Toolseepore, I learnt that her father, a certain Rajah in the Nepal Territory, has contrived to procure a letter of recommendation from his Highness the King of Nepal, recommending the British Government to restore to her the forfeited estates of her late husband. How far this is correct I cannot say, but the priest said to me that she is waiting to see the result of it, failing which, she will submit a petition to the Supreme Government, assisted by all English counsellors. A bazaar report is rife among the native population of this place, which I think has not yet reached the ears of our authorities. It is, they say, that a great battle will be fought here on the month of Coar, or September coming, such is the prophecy of their Shasters! I think either some of the emissaries of the arch-fiend Nana, or some wicked and designing Mahomedans must have given birth to this report at the time of the late Taziah festival, when hundreds of the Mahomedans had come here from the adjacent villages to witness it."

THE DISARMAMENT MOVEMENT.—The result of the disarmament of Oude in one month has been the collection of 22 cannon, 12,504 fire-arms, 26,131 swords, 2,315 spears, and 6,629 miscellaneous, showing a total of 47,601 weapons. There have been collected in all, including the above, from the districts of Lucknow, Oonaon, Roy Bareilly, Fyzabad, Sultanpore, Pertabgurb, Seetapore, Hurdin, Durriabad, Gondah, Baraitch, Mohumdee, and some others not specified, 671 cannon, 182,718 fire-arms, 555,924 swords, 49,445 spears, and 631,402 miscellaneous—showing a grand total of 1,420,160 weapons. Of the forts destroyed and under demolition the statistics are also interesting. The number of forts in the various districts is as follows:—Lucknow, 258 (including 106 fortified houses); Oonaon, 182; Roy Bareilly, 66; Fyzabad, 327; Sultanpore, 141; Pertabgurb, 90; Seetapore, 146; Hurdin, 124; Durriabad, 90; Gondah, 53; Baraitch, 66; Mohumdee, 26; total, 1,569. Of these, 28 were destroyed during the week ending July 23rd, and 1,299 had been previously reported as destroyed; total, 1,327. There remained in course of demolition 198, and retained for public purposes 44. The total number of mutinous sepoys who had surrendered in Oude was 1,090, and of mutineers 5,618.

MAHOMEDAN AGITATION.—A correspondent of the Delhi Gazette writes as follows:—That there has been for some time past a considerable degree of agitation among the Mahomedans in all parts of the world where the religion of the Prophet has taken root is apparent to everyone who has regarded with attention the nature of the events which have been taking place both in Asia and nearer Europe. There can be little doubt that the mutiny and rebellion in this country, and the recent plot discovered in the Punjab, were more or less connected with this unquiet spirit: we believe that we are destined to see more of it before tranquillity is restored. Meantime, anything that throws light on the subject should not be neglected, and at the same time the Government should be on its guard. The following letter will be read with interest:—“Some time since a disturbance took place in Lahore, occasioned by the supposed appearance of the Imam Mehndi. The whole affair seems to have been passed over rather lightly; but a few authentic particulars with regard to the advent of the Imam make the expectations of the Mussulman world respecting him of some importance. I will first refer your readers to the Friend of India of June 10th of this year, and in page 554 of that number they will find an article headed ‘A Native Leader on the Mutinies.’ This article contains the substance of several conversations held between one of the late leading rebels and a European, and the evidence it affords is all the stronger for being undesigned. I quote the following passage from that evidence:—‘The minds of the people are still very unsettled, and will remain so for five years, till 1280 Hijree, when it is predicted there will be great changes. What changes? I endeavoured in vain to draw out any explicit information from Mussulmans on this point, until I asked a certain Munshi, ‘who the Imam Mehndi was?’ He replied that ‘the Imam was lost at the age of four years, and was supposed by the Shiahhs to be concealed in a cave, whence he would in due time come forth, and first appear on the roof of the Caaba at Mecca. At the same time Christ would come, and destroy Anti-Christ, who should appear as a vast beast, and melt away at Christ’s presence. The Shiahhs believe that the Moolvies deny this. However, all are agreed that when the Imam shall appear, there shall be but one Din on the earth.’ So far the Munshi said. Now turn to the preliminary discourse to Sale’s Koran, and in Section IV. you will find the various events mentioned, which all Mussulmans regard as the signs of the last day. Of these read No. 10, ‘the coming of the Mehndi, or director; concerning whom Mahomet prophesied that the world should not have an end till one of his own family should govern the Arabians . . . and who should fill the earth with righteousness. This person the Shiites believe to be now alive, and concealed in some secret place until the time of his manifestation. For they suppose him to be no other than the last of the twelve Imams named Mahomed Abu’l-kasem, as their prophet was . . . He was born at Termanrai in the 255th Hijree.’ The inference I would draw from this testimony and from late events is as follows:—1. The Mussulmans are looking for the advent of the Imam Mehndi? 2. They expect he will make their religion universal at his coming. 3. Notwithstanding late events, the Mussulmans of Lahore were violently agitated at a mere report of his appearance. What, then, if some impostor should rise in India or elsewhere and declare himself to be the Imam? The whole Mussulman world would rise as one man to receive him. Ought not Government, then, to put down any impostor at once, and with a strong hand?”

THE MAHARAJAH OF CASHMERE has received presents to the value of a lakh of rupees from the Supreme Government. They were made over to him by Mr. R. S. Davies, the Secretary to the Hon. the Lieutenant-governor. They are intended as a reward for the valuable assistance rendered by him to the British Government during the late disturbances. According to the Lahore

Chronicle, they consisted of four Arab horses, jewels, and the usual number of trays of shawls, brocaded fabrics, &c. Of the horses, three had been selected by Sir John Lawrence at Bombay; a fourth was also chosen by him; but the most valuable of the batch unfortunately died at Kurra-choe: but the presence of an Arab merchant at Lahore facilitated the purchase of a substitute. The jewels procured consisted of—

A pearl necklace ..	Value Rs. 35,500
Diamond Durbar ornaments ..	18,000
Emerald ditto ..	1,520
A brilliant ring ..	11,050
A pearl “Torrah” ..	6,500
A pair of diamond armlets ..	4,300
A diamond “Nowrutten” necklace ..	3,500
A pair of diamond-studded bangles ..	2,400
Emerald ring ..	3,575

Commission for purchase ..	1,922

The price of the horses was altogether 9,937. In addition to the foregoing, an ordinary khillut was given, which with the horse trappings amounted to Rs. 2,844. The Maharajah expressed himself highly honoured and gratified by these tokens of the distinguished consideration of the British Government, and several times repeated that he and his family owed everything to its friendship and protection. His Highness, as perhaps our readers are aware, has often expressed a wish regarding the issue, in his name, of letters patent, under the sign manual of the Queen, recognising his position of Sovereign of Cashmere and Jum-moo, and his services to the British Government during the crisis of 1857. The subject was again alluded to by him on the occasion of his meeting Mr. Davies at Jum-moo. The Government have been addressed on the subject.

A STANCH REGIMENT.—We are glad to learn that the 3rd Bombay Europeans at Mhow have to a man stood firm in their refusal to accept their discharge. To those who have witnessed the high state of discipline, the soldierlike bearing, and the spirit of respectful obedience to their officers, the course adopted by the discharged soldiers of the late Company’s army is painful to reflect upon. Its esprit de corps was not surpassed by any army in the world. Its officers were looked up to by the men with feelings of affectionate confidence, and its prestige was such that we challenge the oldest Indian to bring forward a single instance of defection, open insubordination, or cowardice in that army from the first formation of the nucleus upon which it rose to command the admiration of successive Commanders-in-Chief. On the other hand, have we not a host of living witnesses who can testify to its conduct at Ghazni, at Marajpore, Punnear, Ferozahuhar, Sobraon, Chillianwallah, and Goojrat, to which we may add its share in the forlorn hope which captured Delhi, and swept the rebels before it like a whirlwind? It is impossible to contemplate the spectacle of several thousands of brave men leaving their colours upon the mere impulse of the moment—these colours, too, having emblazoned upon them all the battle-fields in which many have fought and bled to secure imperishable renown. We sympathise with commanding officers from whose regiments men who were decorated for heroic conduct in half a dozen battles have availed themselves of the offer of discharge, for if there be a position in which an officer may be justly proud, it is that of commanding a regiment distinguished for having a body of brave men in its ranks.—Lucknow Herald.

DHERA GHAZEE KHAN.—The encroachments of the River Indus, in the vicinity of Dhera Ghazee Khan, have assumed a fresh aspect during the last season. In the latter part of last month the whole of the village of Chandia was washed away by a sudden and unexpected diversion of the main stream, but by thus cutting a new channel the fears for the safety of the city have been in a great measure reduced. The director of canals has been called upon for a full and complete report on the subject, and has been requested to suggest some remedial measures for the permanent safety of the city and cantonment.

THE OUDE FRONTIER.—The notorious rebel Mummoo Khan has disappeared suddenly, in consequence of violent threats made by the sepoy. These heartless wretches, who in Lucknow declared Burges Kuddhur King of Oude, and threatened the Begum with instant death, unless she acted in accordance with their wishes, have now turned upon Mummoo Khan, from whom they demand arrears of pay. They are in want of money and supplies, and of late have caused the Begum much anxiety. Ranees Chund Konwur, of Lahore, who fled to Nepal some years since, arrived in camp on the 8th of August. Her Highness is the mother of Dhulleep Sing, now in England, and is admitted to be one of the most intriguing women in Asia. Gungah Singh, a rebel of some note, died in camp on the 18th. We have no news of the Nana, who is said to be in position some miles from the Begum’s camp. We know that he has never been on the best terms with the mutineers since his breach of good faith at Cawnpore. The sepoy expected golden ornaments for the massacre, whereas Nana only gave them a trifling advance. We can, however, assure all who have any anxiety about matters on the frontier that the rebels are in a state of extreme privation, and are not likely to prove formidable enemies again.

SIMLA, August 10.—Strange reports constantly come down to us from the wild and savage territory lying to the north of Simla, and bordering on Ladak and Thibet, called Bissahir. A collection of arms of every description to be found in the country, such as matchlocks, spears, kookries, and tulwars, is being made at Serohun, the summer residence of the Rajah; there they are being repaired and placed in serviceable order. A fair takes place annually at Rampore, on the Sutlej (where the Rajah passes the winter), in the month of November, and is attended by traders from different parts of the hills, some coming from great distances to barter and exchange goods and produce; among others, numbers come from Kunawur, bringing with them sulphur, which is found in large quantities in that district. Futeh Sing, an illegitimate brother of the Rajah, it is said, has made arrangements that the whole of this sulphur, which pays a duty in crossing the Sutlej into Bissahir, shall be monopolised by himself. He can compel the disposal according to his pleasure, or force the traders to deviate hundreds of miles out of the direct route, holding as he does the power of permitting transit or not. It is also said he has threatened, in case of non-compliance, to prevent the Kunawurees from trading at the fair for the future, without the payment of a certain fine. Sulphur is a forbidden article, and can only be procured in the bazaars on receipt of an order from the magistrate. Thus Futeh Sing evidently contemplates possessing himself of a large amount of the contraband article, which forms so large a component of gunpowder. Nitre, another component, abounds in the district of Bissahir—thus the manufacture of gunpowder is far from difficult. Orders have been issued to the ryots and zemindars of Bissahir by Futeh Sing and the Wuzeers, in the name of the rajah (who is a drunken, dissolute man, and a mere puppet in their hands), to assemble at Serohun, at the festival of the Dussarah, under severe penalties in case of disobedience. It is a matter of conjecture to what these warlike preparations tend, but evidently for no good purpose, and the authorities should lose no time in making themselves acquainted with the true state of the country. This Futeh Sing, who has for years shown a most restless and ambitious spirit, during the year 1857, when the whole of India was in a state of rebellion, thinking our power was irretrievably gone, attempted, it is said, to stir up disaffection in the minds of the people of Bissahir. The Superintendent, Lord W. M. Hay, sent requisitions to the Rajah to have him sent into Simlah. These requisitions were not complied with, and notices were sent to the several hill chieftains, prohibiting them to harbour Futeh Sing. He remained a fugitive, and managed to conceal himself till Mr. Barnes, the Commissioner Cis-

Sutlej States, by the orders of Government visited Bissahir in the early part of this year, when he presented himself before the Commissioner, armed, and at the head of a body of two or three thousand armed followers, whom he had collected through delusive promises of exemption from payment of their tribute. Though found in open defiance, Mr. Barnes restored him to favour, and placed him at the head of the Bissahir Government, the Rajah, its nominal head, being almost a nonentity. His coadjutors, the Wuzeers, were also favourably noticed, and re-instated in power, while the functionaries who had up to this time attempted to stem the disaffection, and carry out the orders of the British Government, Mr. Barnes dismissed with ignominy, and apparently countenanced the plundering of their property by Futteh Singh, and his followers; he banished them from their native country, and they appealed to him for redress in vain. The territory is still in a disorganised state, and jealousy has crept in among the two Wuzeers and Futteh Sing. The ambition of the latter is unbounded; he wishes to be the supreme ruler, and cunningly made the others his tools for his own ends. The three loudly boast that they have each spent very large sums of money in endeavouring to re-instate themselves in power, and gain their present position; these boasts are no doubt mendacious, but still they throw discredit on Mr. Barnes' administration in the minds of the natives generally, and it behoves the commissioner not to rest satisfied with a cursory inquiry, lest he may find he has in restoring Futteh Sing to power been fostering an adder to his own eventual harm.—Delhi Gazette, August 20.

MUTINY AT MUNDLAISIR.—There has been a serious emete at Mundlaisir amongst the convicts, resulting in the death of Major Hawes, of the Bengal army, the political agent. The convict guard, it appears, consisted of eight men of the 19th regiment N.I., who were suddenly attacked and overpowered by the prisoners, about twelve o'clock on the 22nd August. One of the sepoys was killed on the spot. Upon hearing the noise, Captain Hawes, with a party of the 19th N.I., hastened to the gaol, which they found in possession of the convicts. They commenced shooting them down as fast as they could fire and load, but the prisoners were too numerous. They seized one of the bastions, and commenced firing upon Captain Hawes and his men. The former was soon hit, two bullets having entered his body. Six guns, and some sowars belonging to Holkar, fortunately arrived, or the whole detachment would have been cut to pieces. Three or four of Holkar's men were killed, and a number of the convicts. Before leaving Mundlaisir, they plundered the treasury. A force was despatched from Mhow to operate against the convicts, but after proceeding a few miles the commanding officer received intelligence that they had exhibited some prudence; had evacuated the gaol, and had all quitted Mundlaisir; the European portion of the force, therefore, returned to camp. The troop of Irregulars, called the Aden troop, however, went on to their destination; and Lieutenant Moore, who was in command, was desired by the General to endeavour to put up the runaways. The convicts numbered altogether 350 men, but a number of them were shot, and several of them had been captured and brought back to Mundlaisir. One of the causes of the outbreak is said to have been the fact of Major Hawes having lately introduced some alteration in the scale and materials of the prisoners' rations, as well as hours of work; in fact, making the gaol a place of punishment, instead of permitting the old incumbents to amuse and enjoy themselves as they had done previously.—Telegraph and Courier.

JEYPORE.—The people of Jeypore refuse to be disarmed. The demand has been made by the British authorities, and the answer of the Maharajah has been, that he is ready to give up his own sword, but that he is unable to enforce his people to comply with the disarming order. Native rumour runs, therefore, that a force will enter Jeypore and convince the Maharajah that it is quite as practicable for him to disarm his subjects as it has been for the Nawab of Rampore and others to disarm theirs. The Jeypore Prince has, however, good grounds for objecting to disarming. He may, with a great deal of truth and force, say to the British authorities: You ask me to disarm my people when you have only disarmed a very small portion of your own. You have disarmed Oude and one or two other districts, but you have left the people of the other provinces theirs! How can you expect my rough, untamed lieges will consent to give up their swords and matchlocks and cannons, when you have not similarly deprived your own people?—Phoenix.

THE "INDIAN LANCET" contains much matter that is interesting to the medical profession, and is, as far as circumstances will permit, what its name imports. There is a report on the sanitary condition of Indian gaols, an epitome of medical news from the English medical journals, and original accounts of several cases in this country. The Indian Lancet is a bi-monthly publication, and deserves the support of the medical profession.

AUGUR, August 9.—Capture of the rebel Heera Sing.—Major Phillips, on the principle of setting a thief to catch a thief, has had spies out for some days past, and yesterday morning, receiving information of the whereabouts of the rebel leader, started off some of his Mahratta horse, who, after a few hours' absence, returned with their prize mortally wounded. Heera Sing was determined to sell his life dearly, apparently unaware of the title to favour which the fact of his being an active rebel would have given him. He refused to give up his arms, and inflicted a severe wound on the wrist of one of his pursuers, who afterwards cut him down. He is under medical care, but there is little chance of his recovery. His movements have been very uncertain, as he never remained two days in one place, passing his days like a wild beast in the depths of the jungles, and returning to his home after nightfall—sometimes to one village, and sometimes to another. He is an immense man, and certainly, from his appearance, would seem to have been living on the fat of the land. The surprise was fortunately a sudden one, as had he reached the cultivated districts, his detection would have been impossible.

THE VICEROY'S MOVEMENTS.—Lord Canning intends, or at least did intend at the time the China news arrived, to pay Allahabad a last visit. His lordship's intention was, and we believe still is, to be at Cawnpore early in November, and after settling affairs in Oude and taking a run through the North West and the Punjab, returning to Calcutta or to England, as the case may be, by way of Bombay. That this was his lordship's intention a week ago is certain; but doubtless the state of our relations with John Chinaman will alter his movements. The body-guard start from Calcutta for Cawnpore about the 2nd of September, to be in readiness for the Viceroy.

DEATH OF DR. WINDUS.—On Wednesday morning, the 10th August, a telegram was received here from Chicacole, applying for the immediate services of a medical man to attend Dr. Windus, who, it was stated, had received a gun-shot wound. No further particulars were given, but this requisition was soon followed by another telegram intimating that Dr. Windus was dead. Later in the day further intelligence was received mentioning that Dr. Windus with others were out shooting bears in the neighbourhood of Chicacole on the previous evening, and that on moving, as it is supposed, from the spot where he was stationed on the look out for Bruin, he himself was taken for a cheetah by one of the party, who instantly fired, when the contents of the gun lodged in the body of the unfortunate gentleman. Dr. Windus was immediately conveyed to his house, and lingered till the next morning (Wednesday), when he breathed his last at about 5 A.M. A more melancholy event has seldom occurred, and everyone must indeed sympathise with the unhappy officer who has been the innocent instrument of his friend's death. It was Lieut. Cunliffe, of the 3rd L.I., who was, we believe, residing with the deceased.—Vizagapatam Chronicle.

NIZAM'S DOMINIONS.—The Madras Spectator hears from Hyderabad that a retired officer, formerly in the old Nizam's contingent, has, with the sanction of the Resident, been expelled H.H. the Nizam's territories by order of the Minister. This person has made himself obnoxious to the Nizam's Government by his political intrigues, more especially by addressing a telegram direct to Lord Canning to the effect that the Minister had given shelter in his own house to a son of the King of Delhi. The Minister is busy taking measures to restrain the Rohillas from ravaging the country. He proposes to divide the kingdom into seven military divisions, each to be under a native field officer. A body both of horse and foot is to be placed under these officers, who are to be armed with ample powers to act against the marauders, who have so long been the curse of the country.

MARRIAGE IN HIGH LIFE AT HYDERABAD.—On Tuesday, July 26, a marriage was celebrated according to the rites of the Mahomedan faith, and with extraordinary pomp and splendour, between Servare Tej Jung, alias Shibley Sahib, the grandson of the Nawab Shumsoot Oomrah Ameer Kubeer Bahadoor, and the eldest natural daughter of his Highness the Nizam of Hyderabad. The bridegroom is otherwise connected with the sovereign dynasty of Hyderabad, being the son of a natural daughter of Sekundur Jah, the grandfather of the present Nizam.

THE CADETS' ESTABLISHMENT.—We learn that the cadets' establishment at Palaveram is to be removed to Arcot.

2ND REGIMENT N.I.—The head quarters of the 2nd regt. N.I. was to embark for Rangoon, in the steamer Sydney, on or about September 6.

THE BARQUE *Ararat, from Singapore and Penang, arrived in Bombay harbour on the 31st of August. Two days after the vessel left Singapore the convicts, with which she was laden, rose, and a more narrow escape from destruction no British shipmaster ever experienced. The following is an extract from the captain's log:—"At midnight on the 27th of June, dark, gloomy weather, with heavy gusts of wind. At 2.10 chief officer heard a heavy rush forward, followed by a shout from the convicts. He instantly went and called the guard, hailing the sentry at the same time; but receiving no answer, he remained by the guards' muskets until they came for them. He then heard firing; on turning round he saw the captain firing amongst the crowd by the main-mast. He was then aware that all the convicts were on deck, armed with whatever they could lay their hands on; the Captain and the guard kept on firing, as the convicts seemed determined to gain the poop. They at length gave way before the heavy fire, and rushed on to the fore-castle. From there several were shot, and others jumped overboard, taking a topmast studding sail with them; several were shot in the water, and the remainder ran below. The hatches were then secured until day-light, when ten convicts were found lying shot on the main-deck and fore-castle. The European sentry was found stabbed through the heart, and the ship's cook was also discovered dead, having been shot in the dark. The decks were then cleared, and the remnant of the convicts secured with double irons. Fortunately, there were fourteen Madras artillerymen on board sailing from Singapore; or the captain and crew would have all been massacred. The wife and child of the captain were also on board; and at one period she prepared herself to jump overboard. The convicts were Chinese pirates; and twenty-eight of them were either shot down or drowned."

His LORDSHIP THE GOVERNOR arrived at his residence in the Cantonment at Poona on the evening of the 30th Aug. It is now very generally understood that he will retire from the scene of his gubernatorial labours before the hot season sets in, and he will then have exceeded by nearly a year and a half the time usually assigned a governor. It has for some time past been rumoured that he would be succeeded by Sir H. Bartle Frere, Commissioner in Scinde, and a more popular nomination could not well be made.

DESTRUCTION BY FIRE OF THE SHIP "CHARLES BUCK."—On the morning of Monday, the 22nd August, between the hours of twelve and one o'clock, Captain Smalley, master of the ship Charles Buck, was aroused from his sleep by a cry of "Fire! Fire!" Upon going on deck, he discovered a thick volume of smoke issuing from the main hatchways, and the men being all called upon deck, the alarm became general. Several men-of-war boats went to her assistance, but the fire was evidently very low down in the hold, and had made such headway that it was impossible to check it in the least. About seven A.M., no hope of extinguishing the fire being left, she was towed off Gibbet Island by the steamer Victoria, by order of Captain Young. Several engines were then set to work, but did not avail in putting out the fire. Captain Young, Capt. Parker, and Mr. Atkinson and his establishment, went on board the burning vessel, but all assistance proved useless. The men were constantly at work until 2 P.M., when the falling of the masts betokened the fearful degree to which the fire had spread in her hold. She was then beached upon the sands, and scuttled, where she continued burning during the whole of the following night. The fire, we are informed, is supposed to have originated in the carelessness of some of the Seedees, many of whom were on board at the time, and who were employed in stowing the cargo. The Charles Buck was an American vessel, built at New York, of about 1,400 tons burthen, the master being part owner. She had already stowed about 4,000 bales of cotton, being portion of a cargo belonging to merchants in Bombay, and which was intended for Liverpool. The remains of the hull and cargo were sold by public auction by Messrs. Menesse and Co., by order of Captain Smalley, as they lay at Mazagon Bunder, and were purchased by a number of Borah traders for the sum of Rs. 13,000.

KATTYAWAR.—We (Bombay Times) learn through native sources, concerning the recent disturbance in Kattyawar, that the Waghers, by a preconcerted plan with the Gaikwad's men, became in one day masters of Dwarka, Vervada, and the island adjoining. The Gaikwad's soldiers, who were allowed to leave with all their property, instead of proceeding to Baroda, stopped in the territory of the Jam of Nuggur. The Waghers are under the leadership of one Jodho Maneck. They have plundered Dwarka and the adjoining island, and several coasting craft, including vessels under the English flag. It is said that the islanders are actually starving, the Waghers having robbed them of everything. As the island is the resort of coasting vessels from Bombay to Kurrachee, many of our native merchants have suffered considerable loss.

WRECK.—Intelligence has been received of the wreck of the ship Admiral Boxer off the Petty, north of the Indus, fourteen miles from Kurrachee. All the hands saved. The captain of the Admiral Boxer reports another ship dismantled, apparently abandoned, ashore close to where she was wrecked. Steamers have been sent off to assist and obtain further information.

CAPTAIN BARR has fully recovered from the injuries he received some weeks ago by a fall from his horse. He is about to proceed to Europe on furlough, having left Rajkote, en route for Bombay, on the 18th August, after giving over charge of the political agency to his assistant, Captain Black.

THE MONSOON.—The total fall of rain at Bombay up to the 3rd Sept. is as follows:—At By-culla, 76 in. 14 cts.; in Fort, 73 in. 79 cts.; and at Colaba, 70 in. 70 cts.

RETIREMENTS.—It is rumoured that the following gentlemen are about to retire from the public service about March next:—Sir Henry Somerset, the Hon. Mr. Malet, the Hon. Mr. Reeves, Mr. Chief Secretary Young, Mr. Secretary Anderson, and Dr. Leith.

ONE GOSHIA SUTPAL, a member of the household of the Rance of Sattara, was quietly apprehended at Poona, and marched off to Bejapoor under surveillance, early on the morning of the 25th August.

Ens. E. D. Smith, June 20.

Ens. H. C. Greenaway, Ens. A. W. Parker, Ens. J. E. Waller, July 4.

Ens. E. M. L. Marriott (not arr.), July 9.

No. 1,191.—Rank is assigned to the undermentioned ens. from the dates specified opposite to their respective names:—

Infantry.—Ens. V. W. Tregear and H. F. Leighton, June 11, 1859, and will stand immediately below Mr. H. F. Bunbury of list of cadets.

No. 1,193.—The following promotion is made:—43rd N.L.I.—Ens. A. G. Handcock, to be lieutenant from Aug. 20, v. Powell, dec.

Foreign Dept., Aug. 24.—The services of Capt. E. F. Waterman, 25th Madras N.I., 2nd in com., and offic. comm. of the Malwa Bheel corps, are placed at the disposal of the Madras Government, for regimental duty.

Capt. W. Gordon G. Cumming, Bheel agent and political assistant at Bhopawur, to be also commandant of Malwa Bheel corps.

Lieut. G. S. Dysart, deputy Bheel agent and political asst. at Maunpore, to be also 2nd in com. of Malwa Bheel corps.

Lieut. G. F. Blower, 23rd Bombay N.I., to offic. as adj. of the Malwa Bheel corps.

Lieut. J. T. Newall, 2nd Bombay N.I., is app. asst. to agent to Gov. gen. for the States of Rajpootana.

MR. ELLIS, REVENUE SECRETARY to Government, has succeeded in obtaining a clue to the person who gave a copy of the Governor's Minute on the Inam Commission to the editor of the Bombay Times. He is stated to be a Purvoo, employed as a clerk in the General Department of the Secretariat.

INDIAN NAVY.—The name of Captain George Borlase Kempthorne having been struck out of the Indian Navy List, in accordance with the orders of H.M.'s Principal Secretary of State for India in Council, the following promotions will take place in the Indian navy:—Commander William Charles Barker will obtain his Captaincy; Senior Lieutenant Charles Golding Constable his rank of Commander; and Senior Mate Gideon Colquhoun Sconce his Lieutenantcy.

SCINDE RAILWAY.—We are informed that there has been a strike among the working classes employed on the Scinde Railway works, consequent on a rate of wages having been determined upon by Mr. Brunton, the chief resident engineer. The rates are fair and moderate, and, what is more, Mr. Brunton has made up his mind not to advance one fraction beyond the rates of payment he has now laid down. We cannot but commend the measure, and the public spirit evinced by Mr. Brunton in this matter deserves much from the Kurrachee community.

COMMANDER FREDERICK ERSKINE MANNERS, of H.M.'s Indian Navy, has sent in his papers, previous to retiring from the service on the pension of his rank.

NARO PUNT MARNA KURRUMEE KUR, the uncle of the Nana's wife, has been arrested, and brought to Bombay for trial.

MR. SPENCER, Uncovenanted Assistant Secretary to Government in the Military and Marine Departments (in consideration of his long and meritorious service under Government), has been granted a personal allowance of 100 rupees per mensem by her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for India in Council.

IMPORTS (Bombay, Sept. 11).—Cotton Piece Goods.—Owing to the continuance of the wet weather, the business of our import market has not been fully and freely entered upon, and there is no material change in the tone of the market since our last. For Grey Longcloths there is less inquiry; Grey Shirtings are in active demand; and Grey Madapollams are firm. Bleached and Fancy Goods.—Bleached Shirtings, low, are in demand; and Bleached Jaconets are not inquired for yet. Bleached Longcloths are in less inquiry than before. Yarns.—These, although less in demand, show signs of an approaching improvement in prices. Some counts have, however, declined from ½ to ¾ anna. Dyed Yarns are rather dull and declined. Metals.—Prices have little altered, and the market has been quiet during the fortnight. Spelter is in fair demand; Iron is unchanged; Copper has advanced, and is in request.

EXPORTS (Bombay, Sept. 11).—Cotton.—The transaction of business has been to no great extent, the staple is scarce, and a slight advance in prices is to be noted. We have no Compta on the spot; and the stocks of Broach and Dholler are moderate. European firms are willing to make purchases for delivery in November and December next, but the dealers ask for more than the rates offered. Oil Seeds.—Lined is in good inquiry, though not many transactions have been reported. Rape has slightly yielded in price; and Niger is dull. Teel Seed commands a good inquiry for France.

A commission of the peace was issued from the Supreme Court of Bengal on the 8th inst., directed to the undermentioned officers serving in the province of Nagpore:—

LORD CANNING AND THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE.

MINUTE OF THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF INDIA REGARDING THE SERVICES OF CIVIL OFFICERS AND OTHERS DURING THE MUTINY AND REBELLION.

1. The bloodshed, strife, and general disorganisation consequent upon the mutiny of the Bengal army, which declared itself two years ago, are drawing to a close.

Here and there a few bands of turbulent and disaffected marauders still remain in arms; but there is no unity among the enemies of the State, and, although the complete and universal security which prevailed before the outbreak has not in all places returned, there is no part of the Queen's Indian possessions to which civil government has not been ordered.

A day of solemn thanksgiving for this happy result has been appointed.

2. This being so, it becomes my grateful duty to bring to the notice of her Majesty's Secretary of State the names of those earnest devoted men by whose abilities, sound judgment, and unexampled labours the civil authority of the British Government has been upheld or re-established.

3. Although civilians by profession, or holding for the time civil offices, the duties which they have performed have been, for the most part, full of peril and toil.

Only some few of them have been called on occasionally to take part in the operations of the army, and have thereby had the satisfaction of seeing honour done to their names in the Gazettes of the day; but there are others who have been distinguished by conduct in front of an enemy which would make any army proud of them.

They have organised levies and led them; defended stations; kept in check large disaffected communities; reassured the wavering, and given confidence to the loyal.

Many of them have, in the service of the State, carried their lives in their hands for months together.

Their position has been such as to try not only their physical courage, but the judgment, intelligence, and self-reliance of each individual, and to keep these qualities unceasingly on the strain.

4. The most anxious part of their long task is now at an end, and I confidently claim for them from her Majesty's Government the same respect, admiration, and gratitude, as have been so deservedly bestowed upon their fellow-labourers of the army.

5. The return which accompanies this minute shows some of the services of those who have been most actively engaged, but very briefly and imperfectly.

6. I will speak first of Bengal.

The value of the services rendered by the late Lieutenant-governor, Mr. Halliday, is as well known to the Home Government as to myself. With a charge of enormous extent and responsibility, and called upon to take a large share of the work by which troops and munitions of war were forwarded from Calcutta to other local governments, Mr. Halliday was the right-hand of the Government of India for many months. The efficient aid given by Mr. Halliday to the Government, the watchfulness and sound judgment which marked his advice in regard to affairs within his own jurisdiction, and the promptitude and completeness with which he carried out all the precautionary and defensive measures sanctioned by the Government of India, effectually checked the spread of rebellion in Bengal. And although in this province the people are for the most part less warlike and turbulent than those of Upper India, there are in it many dangerous centres of fanaticism, and many wide, and not easily accessible, tracts where an outburst of rebellion would have sorely crippled the small means at the disposal of Government, and where peace was to be maintained more by good management than by show of force.

As the head of the Government, I feel myself deeply indebted to Mr. Halliday for his most useful aid, and I confidently trust that the Secretary of State will not be forgetful of his services.

7. Of the officers of the Bengal Government who have been brought to notice by Mr. Halliday, I wish to recommend to the favourable consideration of her Majesty's Government Mr. G. Yule, the Commissioner of Bhagulpoore; Mr. A. Money, Magistrate of Shahabad and Gya, whose good service has already attracted the notice of the Home Government; Mr. S. Wauchope, Commissioner of Police in Calcutta, who has had a most irksome and difficult post, and has discharged the duties of it fearlessly and excellently; Mr. E. A. Samuells, the late Commissioner of Patna; and Mr. H. C. Wake, Magistrate of Shahabad.

8. The following officers have also well deserved the notice of her Majesty's Government:—Mr. W. J. Allen, Member of the Board of Revenue, on Deputation at Cheera Poonjee; Mr. G. F. Cockburn, Commissioner of Cuttack; Mr. R. L. Mangles, Assistant in Shahabad; Mr. E. Jackson, the Superintendent of Supplies on the Trunk Road; Mr. C. Hollings, Sub-Deputy Opium Agent at Gya; Mr. F. B. Drummond, Magistrate of Purneah; Mr. E. McDonnell, Sub-Deputy Opium Agent in Sarun; Mr. E. Baker, Deputy-Magistrate of Sasseram; Mr. C. Carnae, Magistrate of Dacca; Mr. W. McDonnell, Magistrate of Sarun, and attached to Sir E. Lugard's column; Mr. J. D. Gordon, Assistant-Magistrate of Jelpigoree; Mr. W. Brodthurst, Magistrate of Shahabad; Mr. Garstin, Deputy-Magistrate of Sasseram; Mr. Boyle, Mr. R. de Courcy, Mr. J. Cockburn, and Mr. J. Wemyss, gentlemen not connected with the Government, but who have given to it valuable aid; and Mr. J. Todhunter, and Mr. W. McIntyre, both of the Telegraph Department.

9. In respect of military officers in civil employ, I have to call to notice the excellent services of Captain Dalton, Commissioner at Chota Nagpore; of Lieutenant J. Graham, Assistant-Commissioner in Palamew; of Lieutenant Birch, Assistant-Commissioner of Chota Nagpore; Lieutenant R. Stuart, Superintendent of Cachar; and Lieutenant Stanton, Executive Engineer of the grand Trunk road at Shergotty.

10. Of the value of the assistance received from Mr. A. R. Young, Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Mr. Halliday has spoken forcibly. I can add nothing to what he has said on this head, but I have pleasure in confirming it.

11. I proceed to mention the services of the officers of the North-West Provinces.

The lamented death of the late Lieutenant-Governor, Mr. Colvin, under the weight of his great and anxious labours, was not only a heavy loss to the Government of India, but the cause of throwing upon many of its officers an unusual but unavoidable responsibility.

12. In the Central Provinces, the Government for some months availed itself most beneficially of the ability and energy of the Hon. Mr. J. P. Grant, then a member of the Supreme Council, and now Lieutenant-governor of Bengal, whose exertions contributed greatly to recall things to order.

13. In the Upper Provinces at Agra, the Government was long cut off from regular communication with the Government of India, and, during that time, and subsequently, the experience and public spirit of Mr. E. A. Reade, senior member of the board of revenue, and, when military authority became necessary, the zealous services of Colonel Fraser, who unhappily has not survived, were of great value.

14. The Central and Upper Provinces were reunited from the beginning of February, 1858, when I assumed the government of the North-West Provinces at Allahabad.

15. The pressure of the revolt upon these provinces was severer and longer than in any other part of India, Oude alone excepted; but while in Oude our Government was entirely swept away, in the North-West Provinces it retained its hold of many chief points of the country. These were held single and isolated in a sea of rebellion, and that this was possible is due to the indomitable courage, devotion to duty, and fertility of resource which have marked the conduct of the officers of the Civil Service of India throughout this terrible time.

They have been worthily aided and rivalled by military officers on detached employ, and by many gentlemen not connected with the Government; but it is due primarily to the officers of the civil service that the landmarks of British authority throughout the districts of the North-West Provinces were not overborne in the flood.

16. It is now my duty to recommend to the favourable consideration of her Majesty's Government the following officers:—

Mr. J. Cracroft Wilson, Judge of Moradabad. I name this gentleman first, because he has the enviable distinction of having, by his own obstinate courage and perseverance, saved more Christian lives than any man in India. He did this at the repeatedly imminent peril of his own life. He has since left the service of the Indian Government, and is retired to New Zealand, whither I respectfully hope that the favour of the Crown may follow him.

Mr. Henry Carre Tucker, late Commissioner, and Mr. Frederick B. Gubbins, judge (now Commissioner) of Benares. The firmness, calmness, and excellent judgment of Mr. F. Gubbins in dealing with the great dangers which beset that city were most remarkable. Mr. C. J. Wingfield, Commissioner of Goruckpoore, since raised to the Chief Commissionership in Oude, where there is a wider field for the exercise of his high qualities; M. A. H. Cocks, Judge of Mynpoorie; Mr. B. Sapte, magistrate of Bolundshuhur; Mr. R. Alexander, Commissioner of Rohilcund; Mr. R. H. Dunlop, magistrate of Meerut; Mr. F. O. Mayne, magistrate of Banda; Mr. A. O. Hume, magistrate of Etawah; Mr. J. H. Bax, joint magistrate of Ghazee-pore; Major Erskine, Commissioner of Saugor; Major G. Williams, commanding the Volunteers, and afterwards head of the whole Police of the North-Western Provinces; Major H. Ramsay, Commissioner of Kumaon; and Captain Pinckney, Commissioner of Jhansi.

17. I would also invite the notice of her Majesty's Government to the excellent services of Mr. C. Chester, Commissioner of Allahabad; Mr. M. H. Court, magistrate of Allahabad; Mr. G. F. Harvey, Commissioner of Agra; Mr. C. Raikes, Civil Commissioner in the camp of the Commander-in-Chief; Mr. F. Williams, Commissioner of Meerut; Mr. C. Daniell, assistant magistrate of Etah; Mr. A. Lyall, assistant magistrate at Bolundshuhur; Mr. A. Shakespear, magistrate of Bijnour; Mr. G. D. Turnbull, judge of Meerut; Mr. M. B. Thornhill, magistrate of Muttra; Mr. F. M. Lind, magistrate of Benares; Mr. St. George Tucker, magistrate of Mirzapore; Mr. H. Vansittart, officiating judge of Agra, the Honourable R. J. Drummond, magistrate of Agra; Mr. J. Power, magistrate of Mynpoorie; Mr. R. H. Davies, magistrate of Azimghur; Mr. R. Spankie, magistrate of Saharunpoore; Mr. A. R. Pollock, joint magistrate of Benares; Mr. W. Probyn, officiating magistrate of Furruckabad; Sir T. Metcalfe, assistant magistrate at Delhi; Mr. R. M. Edwards, joint magistrate of Mozuffurnuggur; Mr. G. Palmer, joint magistrate of Bijnour; Mr. F. Bird, joint magistrate of Goruckpoore; Mr. H. Robertson, assistant magistrate at Saharunpoore; Mr. H. Wilcock, assistant magistrate at Allahabad; Mr. L. Probyn, assistant magistrate at Ghazee-pore; Mr. S. S. Melville, assistant magistrate at Bolundshuhur; Mr. A. L. Phillips, joint magistrate of Etah; Mr. C. Jenkinson, assistant magistrate of Jounpore; Mr. G. Freeling, joint magistrate of Azimghur; Mr. J. Simson, joint magistrate of Mirzapore; Mr. C. Grant, joint magistrate of Mozuffurnuggur; Mr. G. Lane, acting magistrate at Etawah; Mr. W. M. Low, assistant magistrate at Bareilly; and Mr. H. G. Ross, assistant magistrate at Azimghur.

18. Of the military officers in civil employ notice is first due to Lieutenant-colonel Baird Smith, superintendent of Roorkee; but this officer's most signal services were rendered in a military capacity, and are already known and appreciated by her Majesty's Government.

There are, besides, Captain Waddington, deputy commissioner of Mundla; Captain Teran, deputy commissioner of Jaloun; Captain Drummond, superintendent of the Ganges canal; Captain Read, superintendent of forest agency; Captain Maclean, deputy commissioner of Baitool; Lieutenant Fenton, deputy commissioner of Chanderee; and Lieutenant Brownlow, deputy superintendent of the Jumna canal; Lieutenant Eckford, of the Mynpoorie Levy; and Lieutenant de Kantzow, whose service in the field has been partly under civil, partly under military authority.

19. Of gentlemen not in the covenanted service of the Indian Government, notice is claimed especially for Mr. P. Carnegie, deputy collector of Jounpore; Mr. P. Saunders, and Mr. A. Tonnochy.

20. The valuable services rendered by Mr. Dunne, Mr. Walewski, Mr. A. Walewski, Mr. Legge, Mr. D. Churcher, and Mr. G. Jones, gentlemen upon whose aid the Government had no claim, are also deserving of the notice of her Majesty's Government.

21. If it be thought that the number of officers whom I have brought to the attention of her Majesty's Government for distinguished services in the North-West Provinces is large, I beg that it may be remembered that the services have been rendered over a country of 73,000 square miles in area and peopled by 30,000,000 of inhabitants, nearly every corner of which has been searched out by rebellion.

22. It only remains for me, as regards the North-West Provinces, to bring before the Secretary of State the able and indefatigable services of the secretary to the Government, Mr. W. Muir; I cannot speak too highly of them.

The services of Mr. C. B. Thornhill, who acted as secretary to the Government at Agra, during the first nine months of the mutiny, and subsequently as commissioner of Allahabad, also claim notice.

23. In Central India the officers of Government were tried by great and long-continued difficulties and dangers.

I desire to bring prominently before her Majesty's Government the very important services of the two distinguished men who have had charge of the affairs of Central India during that time.

24. The first thanks of the Government are due to Lieutenant-colonel Durand, c.b., who, at the time of the outbreak, was officiating as the Agent of the Governor-General. Colonel Durand's conduct was marked by great foresight and the soundest judgment, as well in military as in civil matters. He had many points to guard, and the trustworthy force at his disposal was almost hopelessly small; but, by a judicious use of it, and the closest personal supervision of its movements, Colonel Durand saved our interests in Central India until support could arrive.

25. In December, 1857, Sir Robert Hamilton returned to Indore, and Colonel Durand resigned his charge. At the same time Sir Hugh Rose moved into Central India.

Throughout the campaign in that country, and through the hot season of 1858, Sir Robert Hamilton accompanied Sir Hugh Rose's force to the Jumna and Gwalior, and was present in several actions. By his thorough knowledge of the chiefs and people with whom he had to deal, and by the personal influence which he has known how to establish with them, he contributed largely to the rapid movements and signal successes of the troops, and laid the groundwork of the general pacification of that part of India.

26. I recommend to the favourable consideration of her Majesty's Government the services of Major Macpherson, the political agent at Gwalior. Holding a post of great importance, far removed from his immediate superior at Indore, and often struggling against sickness, he has discharged his difficult duties with complete success.

As also the very remarkable services of Captain Willoughby Osborne, Political Agent in Rewah. Few servants of the Government have laboured more courageously or successfully against difficulties of every kind to maintain the influence of the British Government, and to repress disloyalty, than this distinguished young officer.

27. Of other political officers whose services in Central India deserve notice, there are Major Ellis, Political Agent in Bundelcund; Major Nixon, Political Agent at Bhurtpore; Major Keatinge, Political Agent in Nimar; Lieutenant Hutchinson, lately Bheel Agent; Captain Gordon Cumming, Deputy Bheel Agent; Captain Shakespear, First Assistant at Indore; and Mr. G. Coles, Assistant to the Political Agent in Rewah.

28. In Rajpootana I have to recommend to the favourable consideration of the Secretary of State the claims of Colonel George Lawrence, who has acted as Agent for the Governor-General throughout the disturbed times.

29. The services in those States of Major Eden, Political Agent in Jeypore, and now officiating for Colonel Lawrence; of Captain Lloyd, the Superintendent at Neemuch; and of Major Brooke, commanding the Meywar Corps, well deserve the notice of her Majesty's Government.

30. The difficulty of the position which the Resident at Hyderabad, Lieutenant-colonel Davidson, has had to maintain is well known to the Home Government. I trust that favourable consideration may be given to the merits of this able officer, whose courage and good judgment have been conspicuously shown on more than one critical occasion during the last two years.

31. He has been most efficiently aided by Major Briggs, the military secretary, and Captain Thornhill, the first assistant; to the former of whom the successful defence of the Residency was mainly due in 1857, when its fall would have led to the rising of the whole Deccan.

I beg to ask that the merits of these officers may not pass without notice.

32. To Sir Richmond Shakespear the Government of India is indebted for the perfectly good understanding maintained with the Guicowar and the Baroda Durbar, at a time when the disaffection and intrigues of the Mahrattas in Western India threatened to be most dangerous to our hold of that part of the country. It has given me pleasure to advance Sir R. Shakespear from his late post of resident at Baroda to the more important charge of Central India; but I would further ask that his good service may receive favourable consideration from the Queen's Government.

33. Of the respective claims of the officers in Nagpore I am unable to speak with sufficient certainty. The Commissioner has not yet furnished me with satisfactory means of doing so.

34. There remains the large and important province of the Punjab.

The merits of the officers to whose courage and ability the preservation of that country is due have been set forth by the distinguished chief, Sir John Lawrence, with a fulness which leaves little to be added.

Of what is due to Sir John Lawrence himself no man is ignorant. Through him Delhi fell, and the Punjab, no longer a weakness, became a source of strength; and but for him the hold of England over Upper India would have had to be recovered at a cost of English blood and treasure which defies calculation. It is difficult to exaggerate the value of such ability, vigilance, and energy at such a time.

35. Next, but not inferior to any man in his claim to the gratitude of his country, is Mr. Montgomery, the present Lieutenant-governor of the Punjab. I know but one opinion of the value of his prompt and courageous counsels, tempered as they always have been with the soundest and most generous judgment. Before he received charge of the great government of the Punjab, I claimed the benefit of his experience and ability in the reorganization of Oude. I shall have to speak elsewhere of his services as Chief Commissioner of that province; here it is sufficient to say that they have largely enhanced his high reputation, and his claim to the favour of the Government.

36. The officers for whose services I solicit the favourable consideration of her Majesty's Government are Mr. Macleod, the financial commissioner; Lieutenant-Colonel Herbert Edwardes, the able and fearless commissioner of Peshawur; General Van Courtland, who, with a small force of police, recovered and held Hurrianah; Captain James, the deputy commissioner of Peshawur; Major Becher, the deputy commissioner of Hazarah; Captain Henderson, in Kohat; Mr. G. C. Barnes, the experienced commissioner of the Cis-Sutlej States; Mr. G. H. M. Ricketts, deputy commissioner at Loodianah, for whom I earnestly request that an error committed elsewhere, in quieter times, may not be an obstacle to the acknowledgment of his remarkable service in the crisis of the Punjab's danger; Mr. A. Roberts, the commissioner of Lahore; Mr. F. Cooper, the deputy commissioner of Umritsir, who, I hope, will be judged by his acts done under stern necessity rather than by the narrative of them; Lieutenant-Colonel Macpherson, military secretary; and Lieutenant-Colonel R. Lawrence, at first captain of the Lahore police, and afterwards commanding the Cashmere contingent; Mr. T. Forsyth, deputy commissioner of Umballa; and Major Marsden, deputy commissioner at Ferozepore.

37. Sir John Lawrence has borne grateful testimony to the manner in which the officers of the Punjab of all grades did their duty.

Major Hamilton, commissioner of Mooltan, Captain Briggs, Captain Lewis, and Lieutenant Dobbin, rendered service in the transport of troops and stores which deserves special notice.

38. There is one department of the Civil Government which, though established in Calcutta, has concern with all parts of Bengal where troops are in the field or in movement, the department of the Superintendent of Marine.

The calls for exertion and watchfulness in this department have been constant, from the time when the transports of English troops began to arrive in the river, up to the present moment, when the despatch of supplies and stores by the inland steamers is only just slackening.

To Mr. Howe, in the first instance, and to Captain Rennie, from the time when he took up his appointment at the beginning of 1858, great praise is due for the manner in which the duties of the office have been discharged.

I trust that the services of these two officers will receive notice from her Majesty's Government.

39. Lastly, I must request that due acknowledgment and honour be given to the gentlemen who, during these times of difficulty and anxiety, have discharged the onerous duties of the Secretariat of the Government of India.

40. As might be expected, the heaviest burden has, perhaps, fallen upon the Secretary to Government in the Military Department, Major-General Birch, c.b. I cannot speak too highly of the ability and assiduity with which his work has been performed. For the clearness and precision with which he has conducted very complicated duties, and the hearty zeal with which he has given his days and nights to the extraordinary press of labour that has come upon, and still rests upon, his department, he has my warmest thanks.

Major Atkinson, the under-secretary in the same department, had responsibilities thrown upon him, during this year, when his superior was absent with me from Calcutta, which were much beyond the ordinary scope of his duties; and he discharged them in a manner which has given great satisfaction to the Government of India.

41. The post of Secretary to the Foreign Department was filled, up to the 20th of January, 1859, by Mr. G. F. Edmonstone, now the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-West Provinces. I can give to this valuable servant of the Government no higher praise than to say that the performance of the duties which fell upon him, and which were heavily increased by the state of affairs that has prevailed in the many large and important districts superintended through the Foreign-office, has been exactly what might have been expected from those who knew the character of his former service. It has been admirable, and I rejoice to have been able to mark my own sense of it and my confidence in him by naming him to the highest office which the Governor-General of India in Council can bestow.

Mr. Edmonstone has been zealously and indefatigably seconded by Mr. Robert Simson, the under-secretary of the department, whose thorough knowledge of his work has been of great value to the Government.

42. The labour of the secretary of the home department, Mr. Cecil Beadon, has been rendered unusually heavy and anxious from the very commencement of the mutinies; much work connected with transport by land and water and with the despatch of the naval brigades, beginning with that under the late Sir W. Peel, was thrown upon his department, and the efficiency with which it was done, although for the most part of a very novel nature, has been most creditable to him.

I desire to record my very high appreciation of the value of Mr. Beadon's services.

43. In the office of the Financial Secretary, Mr. Lushington, the pressure of the times has been felt, especially of late. In his own department, and in those under its control, particularly in that of the Accountant-General, the Hon. Mr. Drummond, the business of Government has been zealously discharged.

44. There remains the office of Secretary in the department of Public Works.

From the moment that it became certain that a vast increase of accommodation, temporary and permanent, for the English troops, would be necessary, the labours of this office in prescribing the work, and in directing and controlling the Staff of Engineers engaged upon it, have been greatly augmented.

The Staff has, for various reasons, been short-handed, and there is no branch of the duties of the Government in which rapid and judicious action has been more necessary, and in which we have been compelled so constantly to have recourse to makeshifts, and to make the best of imperfect means, both in agency and materials. In surmounting these difficulties the intelligence and earnestness of Lieutenant Yule have been the main help of the Government; and the thanks, not only of the Governor General in Council, but of the English army in Bengal, are well deserved by him.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

SCINDE RAILWAY COMPANY.

Tria juncta in uno appears to be Mr. Andrew's motto. That gentleman's untiring but well-directed energy has brought three important undertakings to bear upon one point. Everybody is ready to acknowledge the immense advantage of a rapid communication between all parts of our Indian empire, and still more so between Calcutta and this country. The old postmaster, however, was not satisfied with the mere recognition of the want, but stedfastly applied himself to supplying at least one huge link in the chain that was to bind together the widely-scattered members of the British empire. The Scinde Railway, the Indus flotilla, and the Punjab Railway, all co-operate to that great end, and will do so yet more effectually when a telegraphic communication is established between Aden and Kurachee. Eventually, no doubt, a more direct line will be opened from Constantinople to the head of the Persian Gulf, and thence to the above-mentioned rising seaport in Scinde. The more frequent and immediate the correspondence becomes between Europe and Eastern Asia, the more urgent will be the demand for a still greater acceleration. Besides, one line will scarcely suffice for the many interests that will call for its services. It is not only India—in itself a vast empire—but China, Australia, and the Indian Archipelago that will be placed in close correspondence with the western world. Every year a marked increase is observable in the trade between those countries and our own, nor is it possible to affix any limits to its future expansion. In every way satisfactory, then, is it to learn that Mr. Andrew's projects are making steady and certain progress, and to perceive that he himself has no intention of seeking repose from his labours until he has completed at all points a line of direct communication between the producers of the eastern and the manufacturers of the western world.

THE LATE RAJAH OF COORG.*

As the tyrant Nero found some one to regret him in death and to scatter flowers upon his tomb, it is not surprising that a minor criminal should have secured while alive warm eulogies from a dependant. Like the faithful admirer of the Roman despot, the pamphleteer of the Indian Rajah modestly shuns publicity, and withholds from the world the knowledge of his name. As usually happens in such cases, the anonymous champion protests a great deal too much; and in his zealous efforts to wash the blackamoor white, rubs off both skin and flesh, and exposes the grim skeleton within. It is almost amusing to observe the clumsy manner in which he fences with awkward accusations, and his eagerness to turn off a palpable hit as a graze or miss. One of the most disgusting allegations brought against the late Rajah was to the effect that he entertained a criminal passion for his own sister, the Princess Dewa Ammajee, who in consequence fled with her husband, Chen Buswah, into the British territory and demanded protection. Against this horrible charge no defence whatever is set up, except the casual remark, in noticing some of the peculiarities of the Coorg people, that "they have a strange and, to us, disgusting custom, a kind of marriage communism within the family. The wives of the brothers of one house are considered as common property; and as the juniors successively marry their wives in turn, these are common also to all their brothers." A judicious advocate, in truth, did the poor Rajah meet with in his "most obedient and most grateful servant, the Author." Why, this statement is an acknowledgment of the head and front of the Rajah's first offence. His brother-in-law, in defence of his wife's chastity, took the lives of two or three of the Rajah's servants who opposed his flight; and, under these circumstances, the British Government was perfectly justified in refusing to give up the fugitives. Upon this point turned all the subsequent differences between the Sircar and the Ruler of Coorg. Wrong in the outset, the Rajah went further astray at every step he took.

With equal feebleness does the pamphleteer endeavour to brush away the accusation of tyranny and murder. An eminent physician from Bombay passed three delightful weeks at Mercara, hunting, shooting, and enjoying himself, and so became quite convinced that his Highness Veer Rajunder Wadeer was a model prince, adored and revered by his subjects. This gentleman, it seems, had been particularly requested by some natives at Bombay to ascertain the truth of certain reports announcing the death of their relatives in a cruel and unjustifiable manner; but, lo and behold! the very persons about whom he was inquiring stood before him in the flesh. Now, as it does not appear that he was personally acquainted with the individuals whose untimely end he had been asked to investigate, nothing was easier than to pass off upon him a number of the Rajah's servants as the supposed victims. In fact, the entire letter is the stilted and bombastic effusion of a vain, credulous man, whose head was completely turned by the attentions shown to him.

During his residence in this country the ex-Rajah instituted a suit in Chancery for the recovery of the Government paper which he had forfeited on his deposition, together with his dominions. A fixed allowance of £6,000 per annum was bestowed upon him, but his own property of every kind was taken from him as a punishment for violating his allegiance to his suzerain. It must be remembered that the Company did not wage war upon him as an independent prince, but as a refractory vassal whose measure of iniquities was full and running over. At the same time, the authorities are clearly blameable for their carelessness in permitting the stock to remain in the name of the Princess Dewa Ammajee, instead of at once effacing it from the records of the public debt. Nor can we praise the Court of Directors for stopping the pension of the Prince after the expiration of his leave of absence. It is true that he did not merit much consideration at their hands, and that he was evading an implied engagement to return to India within twelve months of his departure from Benares. But the conduct they pursued towards him was scarcely magnanimous, even though it may have been intended for his own benefit. Those unfortunate princes who come to this country with a grievance, backed by an abundant supply of coin—or its equivalent, a large credit—almost invariably fall into the hands of artful and designing men, who never relinquish their hold till the last ounce of gold has been extracted. For this reason the Court systematically set their faces against the residence in England of their numerous pensionaries, though otherwise these would have been as well removed to a distance from the sphere of their former influence. We know not how far this may have been the case with the late Rajah, nor do we now care to inquire, for his Highness closed his troubled career at 20, Clifton-villas, Maida-hill, on Saturday, the 24th of September, and on the following day was interred in unconsecrated ground in the Kensal-green Cemetery. His daughter, the Princess Victoria of Coorg, is now in her eighteenth year, and was baptised in the private chapel of Buckingham Palace on the 30th June, 1852, by the Archbishop of Canterbury, her Majesty in person acting as sponsor. The Rajah himself, however, lived and died in the faith of his forefathers.

pupils of a civil or mechanical engineer, or not less than two years as students in an engineering school or college approved by the Secretary of State in Council, and, in addition, not less than one year in practice under a civil or mechanical engineer." The usual certificates as to health, moral character, and ability will be required, and must be deposited with the Department of Public Works, India-house, some time in the course of next May. A day for examination will be appointed hereafter, and the subjects, together with the maximum number of marks to be awarded for proficiency in each, will be the following:—

Algebra—Elementary Principles, Simple and Quadratic Equation, Surds, Ratios, and Proportion; Arithmetical and Geometrical Progression . . . 80

Euclid—1st, 2nd, 3rd, 6th, and first 21 propositions of the 11th Book . . . 80

Statics—Composition and Resolution of Forces, the Centre of Gravity, the Mechanical Powers; Roofs, Arches, and Bridges; Strength of Materials . . . 260

Dynamics—Collision of Bodies, Uniformly Accelerated Motion, Circular Motion, and Centrifugal Force . . . 260

Hydrostatics and Hydraulics—Pressure of Fluids, Specific Gravity, and Equilibrium of Floating Bodies; Elastic Fluids, and Atmospheric Pressure; Hydrostatic Machines . . . 120

Land Surveying with Compass and Chain, and Plotting from a Field Book . . . 60

Levelling and Use of the Instruments employed . . . 60

Every candidate obtaining 600 marks, 140 being for mathematics, will be considered as having passed, and will be appointed to the public service in order according to their respective number of marks. Within a month of his nomination, every "probationer of the first class"—as the successful candidates are designated—will be called upon to sign a covenant, and to hold himself ready for embarkation whenever he may be instructed to do so by the Secretary of State for India, who will pay the expenses of his passage. Pay at the rate of £17 a-month will be awarded from the date of embarkation. On his arrival in India he will be placed at one of the local educational institutions, to acquire a colloquial knowledge of at least one native language, and during this period he will enjoy the advantage of free quarters. When deemed eligible for active employment, he will be transferred to the effective establishment of the Public Works Department, with the rank, &c., to which his merits may entitle him.

"Candidates for appointment to the Upper Subordinate Establishment must produce certificates of having passed not less than three years under civil or mechanical engineers, or in some trade connected with engineering, together with certificates of being not more than twenty-three years of age, and of moral character and conduct, and of constitutional fitness for service in India, corresponding with those required from candidates for the Engineer Establishment." These also must apply at the Public Works Department, India-house, in the course of the ensuing month of May, and will be expected to pass an examination in the following subjects:—

Writing English correctly and legibly from dictation . . . 25

Arithmetic . . . 50

Mensuration of Planes and Solids . . . 90

Framing of Estimates, on given data, from Plans and Sections of buildings of simple form . . . 80

Drawing Plans, and Elevations of Buildings of simple construction, and Diagrams of ordinary Mechanical Appliances . . . 90

Levelling with the Y level . . . 75

Land Surveying with Compass and Chain, and Plotting . . . 90

The minimum number of marks will be 300, but those who obtain that number will be re-

CORRESPONDENCE.

SECOND CAPTAINS OF ARTILLERY.

TO THE EDITOR OF ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

Sir,—Upwards of a year has elapsed since the Artilleries of India were assimilated to the Royal Artillery, as far as introducing into the former Second Captains and abolishing the rank of Regimental Major. But the question as to what rate of pension a Second Captain would be entitled to in the event of his being unable to serve in India on account of ill health, wounds, &c., has not yet been decided.

Will you permit me, through the medium of your columns, to draw the attention of the authorities at the India House to this subject, in the hope that the Second Captains may at all events know what income they are to expect in the event of their being compelled to retire before they have served their time for full pension? I would most respectfully submit, for the consideration of "the powers that be," that the same rate of pension be granted to the Second Captains that is now given to Regimental Captains, and chiefly on account of their length of service. In my corps, for instance, the date of first commission of the Senior Second Captain is December, 1841, that of the Junior, December, 1848; making the Senior upwards of seventeen years, and the Junior upwards of ten years in the service. I enclose my name for your information but not for publication, and remain, sir, yours obediently,

GUNNER.

E. I. U. S. Club, 14, St. James's-square.

Oct. 4, 1859.

ENGINEER ESTABLISHMENT.

In the ensuing year there will be open to public competition a certain number of junior appointments in the Engineer Establishment, and in the upper subordinate establishment of the department of Public Works in India. Candidates for the former service must not exceed twenty-three years of age, of which they "must have passed either not less than three years as articulated garded as "probationers of the second class," and will be appointed according as they stand on the examiner's list. These likewise will have to sign a covenant, and to embark when required to do so by the Secretary of State. In addition to a free passage, they will receive £8. 10s. per mensem from the date of their embarkation. On reaching their destination they will be placed where they can acquire one of the native languages for colloquial purposes, and in proportion to their general proficiency will be the rank they first attain.

TRADE WITH INDIA AND CHINA.—The East India and China Association have published their comparative statement of the number and tonnage of vessels, both British and foreign, entered inwards and cleared outwards, with cargoes from and to places within the limits of the East India Company's charter, from the 1st of January to the 30th of September, 1858 and 1859. According to the statistics of vessels entered inwards, the increase in the case of the port of London has been 66 vessels, and 78,957 tons; the difference between 579 vessels, with a capacity of 358,673 tons, in 1858, and 645 vessels, with a capacity of 437,504 tons, in 1859. The port of Liverpool shows a decrease of 5 vessels, but an increase of 3,708 tons, the difference between 207 vessels with a capacity of 184,416 tons, and 202 vessels, with a capacity of 188,124 tons. The increase in the case of Bristol has been 6 vessels, and 4,183 tons; the number of vessels entered inwards in 1858 having been 14, with a capacity of 5,477 tons, and in 1859 20 vessels, with a capacity of 9,660 tons. The return from the Clyde shows an increase of 2 vessels and 2,185 tons, the difference between 16 vessels, with a capacity of 7,129 tons in 1858, and 18 vessels, with a capacity of 9,314 tons in 1859. The total net increase thus presented is 69 vessels, and 89,033 tons; the vessels entered inwards in 1858 having been 816, with a capacity of 555,659 tons, and in 1859 885 vessels, with a capacity of 644,692 tons. The great increase has been in the arrival of vessels from Bombay, Australia, Singapore, and Penang, and Java, and Sumatra; while on the other hand, a decline has occurred in those from Calcutta, Madras, China, and the Cape of Good Hope. The statistics of vessels cleared outwards show an increase in the case of the Port of London of 12 vessels, and a decrease of 5,216 tonnage; the departures in 1858 having been 625 vessels, with a capacity of 420,877 tons; and in 1859, 637 vessels, with a capacity of 415,661 tons. The return from Liverpool presents an increase of 2 vessels, and a decline of 486 tons; the departures having been 372 vessels, with a capacity of 220,103 tons in the former period, and 374 vessels, with a capacity of 319,617 tons in the latter period. The statistics of Bristol indicate a decline of 5 vessels and 4,341 tons—the difference between 7 vessels, with a capacity of 5,789 tons in 1858, and 2 vessels, with a capacity of 1,448 tons in 1859. In the case of the Clyde there has been an increase of 5 vessels and 4,759 tons; the difference in 1858 having been 77 vessels, with a capacity of 49,075 tons, and in 1859 82 vessels, with a capacity of 53,834 tons. The total net increase, nevertheless, does not exceed 14 vessels; while there has been a decrease of 5,284 tons, the difference between 1,081 vessels, with a capacity of 795,804 tons, and 1,095 vessels with a capacity of 790,560 tons. The principal increase has been in the clearances for Madras, Bombay, and China, while on the other side a decline has occurred in clearances for Australia, Calcutta, the Mauritius, Java, and Sumatra.

INDIAN MUTINY MEDALS.—We have been favoured with a sight of one of the medals now in process of striking at the Mint, and intended as rewards for the valour displayed by our forces in suppressing the sepoy insurrection in India. It is a fine work of art. The size of the new Indian medal is precisely that of the well-known Crimean decoration, and, in fact, the obverse—the head of her Majesty, with the legend Victoria Regina—seems to be the product of the identical die used for those too lavishly dispensed discs of silver. The reverse, however, presents a totally different device. The British lion, or a lion, is shown standing in all his natural dignity beside an erect figure of Britannia, who, with an oval quartered shield on her left arm, and a reserve of wreaths in her left hand, is extending her right hand as if in the act of bestowing upon a brave, but so far as the medal goes, invisible warrior, one of the leafy chaplets. The word India surmounts the head of Britannia, who it is really refreshing to see represented on her legs after so long a sitting on our expiring coinage of copper, whilst the dates 1857-1858 placed below the frieze declare the period when the immortal deeds of arms for which the medals are to be awarded were performed. The material of which the medals are composed is fine silver, the weight of each precisely one ounce, and the number to be produced, as we are informed, something like 100,000. Mr. L. C. Wyon designed—as his name under the frieze denotes—the reverse of the Indian medal; whilst the late W. Wyon was the artist for the obverse.—Mechanics' Magazine.

APPOINTMENT, CEYLON.—(Downing street, Oct. 1.)—The Queen has been pleased to appoint Thomas Rust, Esq., to be a member of the Legislative Council of the Island of Ceylon.

BOOKS.

Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine. No. DXXXVIII. Wm. Blackwood and Sons.

Though now advanced in years the venerable Maga has lost nothing of her pristine vigour. Fresh as on the day she started to run her appointed course, she still keeps easily ahead of all competitors. In the present number, independently of several other interesting and well-written articles, we find the conclusion of the very entertaining paper on "Horse Dealing in Syria," which we have already commended to the attention of our readers; and also a continuation of Captain Speke's narrative of his explorations in the interior of Eastern Africa. The instalment now before us describes the discovery of the supposed source of the Nile in the Victoria Nyanza, an immense lake, or rather inland sea, the southern extremity of which lies in the second degree of south longitude. The honour of solving this important geographical mystery has thus been reserved for a "Sepoy officer," one of the many who have illustrated that service as much by their enterprise in time of peace as by their approved valour in time of war.

The Universal Review No. VIII. London: Wm. H. Allen and Co.

The youngest of the "Monthlies" is steadily acquiring strength and maturity, and already bids fair to occupy a high position among the periodical literature of the day. To our military readers we would especially commend an excellent paper on "Rifled Arms," evidently written by a master of the subject of which he treats. There is also a brief memorandum by Captain Hutton, of the Bengal Establishment, on the practicability of introducing into this country the Himalayan silkworm and mulberry tree, with a view to render our manufacturers independent of other nations for their supplies of the raw material. But the article of the greatest general interest to the Anglo-Indian community is an able review of the various works called into being by the late rebellion, from which we extract the following sensible remarks on the subject of proselytism:—

"A word more on the religious side of the Indian question. We must earnestly deprecate any marked change in this respect from the old 'traditional policy' of the East India Company. It is one thing to act as a Christian Government, but quite another to force our religion down the throats of our neighbours. Colonels preaching in the bazaars, and civil functionaries requesting subscriptions to the missionary schools from unwilling but fearful natives, have really nothing to do with a frank assertion of our Christianity. We have no right to make the Bible a class-book in our government schools and colleges, however justified we may be in putting down suttee, infanticide, and many other practices abhorrent alike from the spirit of our religion and the requirements of an advanced morality. Nuisances of any sort must not be allowed, nor any show of intolerance, be it that of the Brahmin or of the missionary. The latter should abstain from preaching in front of a Hindoo temple; the former should be punished for any outrage offered to converts from his creed. Leaving the work of conversion entirely to the missionaries, the Government will have enough to do in aiding the progress of sound English education among its native subjects, and supplying the spiritual wants of their European brethren. Let us not long have to complain with Major Hodson, that while the outward signs and tokens of other creeds abound, 'Christianity alone is thrust out of sight.' In India, even now, any sort of building—a barrack-room, a ball room, a dining room, perhaps a court of justice,—seems good enough for our needs, and in the midst of mosques and temples perhaps half-a-dozen churches really worthy of the name stand forth to remind the people that their conquerors, too, have a religion. Pride, alone, if there were no higher motive, should shame us into making swift atonement for our long neglect of those outward appliances and helps to faith, which none but those who have been removed from their influence for years can feel or appreciate thoroughly.' By steadily increasing the number of English schools, by building handsome churches and chapels in every European station, by seeing that English chaplains do their duty by the soldiers entrusted to them, and by doing all we can to raise the tone of barrack morality, and improve the condition of our soldiers' children, we may in time succeed in convincing the natives of India that our superior enlightenment consists of other things than railways, telegraphs, preserved salmon, and bottled ale."

THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS.

A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF BRITISH AND FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

This Newspaper presents a comprehensive and perfect view of British and Foreign affairs, with special reference to those subjects in any way interesting to residents in India, or those at home having connections there. The Intelligence is brought down to the latest possible moment prior to the departure of the Mail. The various departments are so arranged, and the intelligence analysed, as to form a weekly register of permanent interest and value, which subscribers will be glad to preserve.

The weekly issue of "THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS" renders it as eligible a newspaper for Anglo-Indians resident at home as abroad.

Families should send it to their friends abroad.

THE MILITARY ENCYCLOPEDIA; &amp;

Technical, Biographical, and Historical Dictionary, referring exclusively to the Military Sciences, the Memoirs of distinguished Soldiers, and the Narratives of Remarkable Battles. By J. H. STOCQUELER, Esq.

"Mr. Stocqueler's former works, and his well-known proficiency in the military sciences, will insure a favourable reception for this very useful book, which possesses the advantage of compressing into one portable volume a vast mass of information on military subjects, arranged especially for reference. No one could be better qualified than Mr. Stocqueler for such a task, and certainly he has accomplished it in a very able manner. In a volume which occupies but little room, the officer and soldier may here command at a glance the cream of many valuable works, and obtain information on almost any point of interest. This work, indeed, forms for the camp and barracks what Maundrell's 'Treasury of Knowledge' represents in the counting-house; and we cannot doubt that it will obtain corresponding success."—United Service Magazine.

TEETH.

No. 9, LOWER GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS

PATENT.—Newly-invented and Patented application of chemically prepared WHITE and GUM-COLOURED INDIA-RUBBER in the construction of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, GUMS, and PALATES.

Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon-Dentist, No. 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee.

A new, original, and invaluable invention, consisting in the adaptation, with the most absolute perfection and success, of chemically prepared White and Gum-coloured India-rubber, as a lining to the ordinary gold or bone frame. The extraordinary results of this application may be briefly noted in a few of their most prominent features.

All sharp edges are avoided; no springs, wires, or fastenings, are required; a greatly increased freedom of suction is supplied, a natural elasticity, hitherto wholly unattainable; and a fit, perfected with the most unerring accuracy, is secured; while, from the softness and flexibility of the agents employed, the greatest support is given to the adjoining teeth when loose, or rendered tender by the absorption of the gums.

The acids of the mouth exert no agency on the chemically prepared India-rubber, and, as it is a non-conductor, fluids of any temperature may with thorough comfort be imbibed and retained in the mouth, all unpleasantness of smell and taste being, at the same time, wholly provided against by the peculiar nature of its preparation.

To be obtained only at 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, London; 14, Gay-street, Bath; and 10, Eldon-square, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

JAMS, JELLIES, and MARMALADE,

By BARNES, MORGAN, and Co.

(the Originators of this method of preserving), Upper Thames-street, London, E.C. This mode of Preserving is now acknowledged to be far superior to any yet invented. The contents will keep good for any number of years without the Tin imparting any metallic taste to the Preserve, and never candor or ferment. To Regimental Messes they are peculiarly adapted, being more portable than jars, and not liable to breakage. B. M. and Co. would also recommend their Pickles, Sauces, Tart Fruits, &c., and their large stock of York and Cumberland Hams, Cheese, and Bacon.

GENTLEMEN, if you want a Treat, try FAMES'S PATENT TROUSERS, a perfect and elegant fit, falling gracefully over the instep, with or without straps, giving that freedom and comfort so necessary in walking or riding. If you try them once, you will soon change your tailor. The texture and pattern are the best the market can produce. The price, 17s. 6d. to 25s. What a luxury to have perfection in a Coat—to fit easy, and without a crease! Try FAMES'S, Practical Tailor, 10, VERNON-PLACE, Bloomsbury-square, W.C. You will be pleased with the fit, style, and price.

THE MELTON RIDING BELT.—Important to those who are suffering from Weakness in the Back and General Debility. The following is printed by permission.

"Sir,—You ask for my opinion of your Melton Riding Belt; I give it. Having resided for a long time in India, my constitution is very much debilitated, and for a long time I was suffering from a weakness in the back and the lower part of the body, which no internal remedy could reach, and the slightest exertion completely overpowered me. I was ordered by my medical man to wear a support, and seeing your advertisement I obtained one of your Melton Riding Belts, which I have worn for the last five months. It gives me great support. I can take riding or other exercise without feeling that extreme lassitude and weariness afterwards. My general health is much improved. You have my best thanks. You will secure my best support.—Yours truly,

"Torquay, July 30, 1859. "J. PRATT MATHEWSON.

"To Wm. Elstah, 12, Avery-row, Bond-street."

The Melton Belt is sold by A. WHITEBURN, Chemist, 174, Regent-street; of J. G. SHIPLEY, 179 and 181, Regent-street, London, price 21s.

Circulars and every information sent on receipt of address, and the Belt sent free on the size of the waist and hips being sent to Wm. ELSTAH, the Sole Maker and Inventor, 12, Avery-row, Brook-street, Bond-street.

Gentlemen waited on if preferred.

Post-office Orders payable to WILLIAM ELSTAH, at Cavendish-street.

MAGIC HORSE TAMING NOSE

PINCHERS. (GUYEIN'S PATENT.)

Warranted to subdue the most vicious horse at the instant. Kicking, rearing, plunging, and running away rendered impossible. It is simple, ornamental, and can be fixed to any bridle.

Sold only by W. H. KENNEDY, Agent, 462, Oxford-street, London, W.C. Price £1. 1s. each.

THE UNIVERSAL GAS BURNERS' REGULATOR (GUYEIN'S PATENT).

The only one in the world by which the flame from Argand, fish tail, and all other burners remains invariably under all variations of pressure, and the cost of each light is less than one farthing per hour.

Can be fixed horizontal, close to, or distant from, the burner; is ornamental, simple in construction, consisting of a double chamber, the inner perforated, covered with a diaphragm, giving action to a spherical valve.

Price 3s. each. One sent on receipt of 3s. 6d. in postage stamps.

W. H. KENNEDY, Agent, 462, Oxford-street, London, W.C.

PATENT ENDLESS BRICK, TILE, and SOCKET PIPE MACHINE.

The most perfect, compact, and portable ever invented. Sold by W. H. KENNEDY, Agent, 462, Oxford-street, London, W.C.

THE HYGIENIC SPRING LATHS BEDSTEAD (GUYEIN'S PATENT).

Combining the advantages of metallic bedsteads with the comfort of a spring mattress at less than half the cost. Certified by medical men as the best and most comfortable bedstead ever invented; invaluable for hot climates; cannot possibly harbour vermin.

Sold by W. H. KENNEDY, Agent, 462, Oxford-street, London, W.C.

RUPTURES.—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS is allowed, by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen, to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of HERNIA. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body, two inches below the hips, being sent to the Manufacturer.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

—JAUNDICE.—DISORDERED LIVER.—A good free flow of bile is absolutely necessary for digestion; when this secretion is interrupted or depraved, disease immediately sets in, and sallowiness or jaundice marks the cause to be in the liver. This important organ, so liable to disorder, can always be regulated by Holloway's Ointment and Pills. The former, rubbed on the skin, penetrates directly to the liver, over which it exercises the most salutary influence without harassing the stomach or the bowels—a matter frequently of vital importance, and which confers on this remedy an advantage over every other form of medicine in the "Pharmacopoeia;" when assisted by the Pills, every disease is speedily subjected and effectually banished.

NEWBERRY'S COD LIVER OIL CAKES.

—"We have examined a specimen of gingerbread made by Messrs. Newberry—each cake containing a teaspoonful of Cod Liver Oil. The gingerbread is extremely light and pleasant, the flavour of the oil being completely covered. This seems likely to prove a very useful mode of administering Cod Liver Oil to children, and to others who are nauseated by the offensive odour and flavour of the Oil as generally taken."—Medical Times, 12th Feb., 1859. Eight Cakes, 1s. 9d.; Sixteen (about 1lb.), 3s.—F. NEWBERRY and SONS, 45, St. Paul's-churchyard. Established A.D. 1746.

THE MAGNESIAN EFFERVESCENT is

the most agreeable and effective remedy in all cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Acidity, Heartburn, Indigestion, and Biliary Affection, Nausea, Fever, Thirst, and Sensitiveness. It is highly recommended by the profession, and will be found especially valuable to those going to India or travelling in warm climates; as a mild and efficacious saline aperient it stands unequalled, and will be found peculiarly adapted for delicate females and children. To be obtained through all respectable chemists, and wholesale from Messrs. BARCLAY, Farringdon-street (put up in stoppered bottles at 4s. 6d. for India), and smaller size at 1s. 1d. and 2s. 9d.

Prepared only by EDWARD PRICHARD, Chemist, 10, Vigo-street, Regent-street, W.

LEA'S ABERNETHY'S WHOOPING COUGH

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.:—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE burden of the news brought by the Calcutta Mail of the 9th September relates to Mr. Harington's Income-tax. After a stormy discussion the Legislative Council passed the second reading of that sweeping measure, and referred its details to a Select Committee. It was then adjourned for two months; but, according to the Englishman, the adjournment is likely to be very indefinite. As the provisions of the new Bill will not come into force before the beginning of the ensuing year, it is not impossible that circumstances may arise to cause several important modifications to be introduced. On the merits of this startling innovation we forbear to make any comments for the moment, though we may take occasion hereafter to discuss them fully and freely. At present it must suffice to describe the Bill as an Income-tax of three per cent. on all persons carrying on any trade, business, or profession, whether private individuals or Government servants. The exceptions are in favour of artisans; incomes derived from land or Government securities; fixed salaries under Rs. 100 per mensem; military officers not on the staff; and the high officials whose salaries are guaranteed by Act of Parliament.

It is gratifying to learn that the objectionable provision of the Criminal Procedure Bill, which would have rendered Europeans subject to a preliminary investigation before a native magistrate, has been at length withdrawn. We trust that this is the last we shall hear of the odious Black Act.

The last act of the Legislative Council, preparatory to its two months' slumber, was to empower the Governor-General to absent himself from Calcutta for seven months, but retaining the functions of Governor-General in Council, excepting only the legislative. His lordship proposes to visit Lucknow, Delhi, Lahore, and Peshawur, and to hold personal conferences with the Lieutenant-Governors of the North-west Provinces and the Punjab, and the Chief Commissioner of Oude. Stately receptions will also be accorded to native chiefs of influence, and public recognition afforded of services rendered to the State during the recent rebellion.

A very serious error, we regret to say, occurred in our last summary. The officer who met a sad and untimely death at the hand of the refractory convicts in Mundlairsir Gaol was not Captain W. H. Hawes, of the 63rd B. N. I., as we stated, but Captain Benjamin Hawes, of the 2nd European Fusiliers, acting for Major Keatinge. The mis-statement, we fear, must have caused poignant and unnecessary pain to the friends of the first-named gallant officer.

From China the most important intelligence refers to the arrival of Mr. Ward, the American Minister, at Peking, and his courteous reception by the Chinese authorities. It is also stated that General Mouravieff, Governor-general of Eastern Siberia, had arrived off the mouth of the Peiho with four Russian gunboats, though it was not known for what purpose. The Consular ports are said to be perfectly tranquil, and the Cooly disturbance at Shanghai had led to no further disagreeable results.

The murder of Messrs. Steele and Fox, near Sarawak, appears to have been promptly avenged; but it would not be amiss if a Sikh regiment could be persuaded to proceed thither on a tour of service.

BOMBAY TELEGRAM

The Pekin, from Bombay the 5th of September reached Aden on the 5th inst., and would leave for Suez the next day.

The Malta, with the outward September mail, arrived at Aden on the 4th, and left on the 5th inst for Australia.

The Company's steamship Jeddo arrived at Bombay on the 23rd of September, 57 days from Southampton, and would leave for Suez on the 12th inst.

BENGAL.

A HINDOO CAPUCHIN.

A case was heard in the Supreme Court on the 12th August, curiously illustrative of those recesses of Hindoo life which so seldom come before Europeans. The suit itself and the evidence offered resembled rather an ecclesiastical case in the middle ages than anything to which modern lawyers are accustomed. The possession of property turned, in fact, upon a question of personal piety, or rather of obedience to Hindoo canon law.

Seetaram Tewaree of Calcutta turned Byragee, or religious mendicant, and practised as such in Calcutta up to 1858, when he died, leaving a will. The Byragees, like some monastic orders, are in theory mendicants, and like them in practice get everything they can, under pretence of supporting the worship of the deity. This Byragee dealt, it would appear, in timber, and on his death left property large enough to be worth the expense of a suit in the Supreme Court. Rheetoo Singh accordingly put in his claim as the "approved disciple," satsishya, of the deceased saint. The Court was accordingly obliged to hunt into the most recondite customs of Hindoo mendicants, and the examination of defendant in person furnished a rich scene. By Hindoo law a true disciple is undoubtedly entitled to inherit, but the privilege is modified by the fact that, as by the same Hindoo law the Byragee can own nothing, the inheritance can scarcely be very valuable. In an ecclesiastical suit in Europe the executors would probably have contested the religious principle, and been excommunicated for their pains. Bengalees are not so stupid. The defendants admitted the whole law, and all the deductions to be drawn from the law. They only climbed one step higher on the ladder, occupied the high religious ground, and attacked Rheetoo Singh as wanting in the purity of life essential to a true disciple. He had traded, and had, though unmarried, two children. The plaintiff, questioned on those points, seems at first to have thought them unimportant, and to have had some faint intention of telling the truth. Finding, however, the facts were telling against him, he retracted every statement one after the other, and committed a dozen acts of perjury with a bonhomie possible only to an Asiatic. He declared that he had been deceased's chala (servant or child), that his duty was to serve the idol, feed the guests, gather flowers, and look after his employer's timber trade. This admixture of devotee and apprentice, religious ascetic, and master carpenter, pervaded all his evidence. He had traded, true, but who was to support a god without profits? His master traded, too, and his wealth was an accumulation of timber and religious gifts, sacred offerings, and secular returns. The shop was close to the temple, in order, naively remarked Rheetoo, that he might worship the god and sell timber at one and the same time. He was a Byragee, and not merely a tradesman, "in order to obtain advantages hereafter," an expression which contains in itself half the philosophy of Hindooism. Virtue with Hindoos is merely a loan to some deity to be restored with interest hereafter. He had, he allowed, taken service with Rajah Komulissen, and why not? Everybody took service, why not a disciple? In other words, to use an exact analogue, he was at once a Dominican, a timber dealer, a rent-collector, and a saint, a congeries of capacities which, ridiculous as it may appear to us, would have appeared to Erasmus sufficiently reasonable. As to his mistress he prevaricated, wishing to show that he had abandoned her on becoming a disciple. He had become a disciple, he said, twenty-two years ago. His children were eight years old. The blunder terminated the suit, and amidst roars of laughter the plaintiff was withdrawn.

The Chief Justice alone did not appreciate the absurdity of the incident. He seems to have thought that for a witness to lie deliberately throughout a three hours' cross examination was calculated to impede the course of justice. He consequently committed Rheetoo for contempt of court, an act for which, if the Government of India were true to its principles, the upright judge ought to be removed from the bench. It is a distinct law of the Shasters that for a Hindoo to lie for the benefit of a Bramhun is an act of virtue. Rheetoo Roy is a Bramhun. He lied for his own benefit. Consequently he lied for the benefit of a Bramhun, and to punish a Hindoo for performing acts of virtue is an act of tyranny wholly subversive of the Gospel according to the sacred policy of religious neutrality.—Friend of India.

MR. CAMPBELL ON INDIAN FINANCE.

Mr. George Campbell has recorded, in a small pamphlet of sixty pages, his conclusions on Indian finance, and we regret that we cannot republish it entire. It is the best thing he has yet done, the strongest claim he has yet put forward to a high rank among Indian publicists. As full of thought and courage as his former works, the pamphlet is free from that conceit which, though rather existing in manner than in fact, marred the effect of his ablest disquisitions. The pamphlet is the more valuable because it is the first in which an Indian official has explained the whole truth without wincing, and endeavouring to palliate the financial danger.

Mr. Campbell acknowledges that after the war expenditure has passed, and after every soldier we can spare has been sent home, we shall still have a permanent annual deficit of eight millions sterling. The permanent military expenditure, even on the scale suggested by the Commission, will exceed the old ratio by four millions. The debt is increased by two more, and at least two will be required to meet the old deficit of £900,000 and some indispensable public works. Even this estimate is infinitely below the truth, for it is based on the idea that the native army will be 190,000 men. Mr. Campbell, after a careful examination of the records published by the Commission, proves that it already exceeds 300,000 men, that we have at this moment an army, European and Native, of 432,111 men. We will, however, take the figure at only eight millions, and even that figure is sufficient to swallow up the edifice. It is impossible to meet it by loan, to add half a million every year to the immovable charges. It is impossible to throw it upon England, for England with a continental war upon her hands would yield up India to its princes rather than subject herself to taxation for its sake. The deficit must be met either by permanent reductions, or by permanent imposts, or by both. Mr. Campbell accepts the last alternative, and while admitting the necessity of a redistribution of civil allowances believes that in the military expenditure alone will real relief be found. He would reduce it on a plan to be briefly thus described. He would turn at least half the native army, and two-thirds of the military police throughout India into constabulary with military organisation, but no arms. Every man now in the army should be allowed on dismissal to volunteer into the constabulary, customs, patrols and other quasi military departments, and the numbers then gradually reduced. We should be rid thus at once of the military police, and of the native army without giving any shock to vested interests. The new constabulary will still require European officers, while the decrease in armed natives will enable us to decrease the number of royal regiments. The total saving Mr. Campbell estimates at four millions sterling. The estimate is probably under the truth, more particularly if we postpone it to the time when the Triangular Railway will be completed; but it is the only saving as yet possible. All savings from civil establishments must be spent in increasing the gross number of officers. There remains the resource of taxation, and the following shows the line our efforts in this direction ought to take:—

Reduction of the Army . . . . .	£1,000,000
Special Taxes on the wealthy . . . . .	400,000
Succession duty . . . . .	400,000
Tax on trades and professions . . . . .	400,000
Equalisation of stamps and fines . . . . .	200,000
Local taxes to pay local police . . . . .	200,000
Equalisation of the opium tax . . . . .	500,000
Madras and Bombay salt increase . . . . .	400,000
Tax on tobacco, betel, etc. . . . .	2,000,000
Saving of interest on Government Bank Notes . . . . .	1,000,000
Sea customs increase . . . . .	800,000
Total . . . . .	10,300,000

This is very nearly what has been attempted, with the exception of the issue of Government notes, and it allows a fair margin for the increase of expense which inevitably attends civilisation. That equilibrium cannot, however, be maintained without another reform, one to which most Indian thinkers are gradually drawn:—

"We shall never succeed in remodelling our taxation and expenditure to the advantage of our finances, till we have in a very large degree something of that localisation of finance which is so extraordinarily wanting in India; till, I mean, every local administration, great and small, is in some degree bound to regulate its expenditure by its receipts. In this particular subject we have obtained a false centralization, which is in fact nothing but anarchy. The Supreme Government is in a most difficult and unsatisfactory position. It checks the finances without really administering the executive administration."

"Local finance is a thing unknown. Everything collected goes to the credit of the Government of India, and everything expended is expended from the common treasury of the empire. Officials in this country are, to a remarkable extent, local in their prejudices and ambitions. Most public spirited they certainly are. But every man looks to the good of his own province and listens to those around him. Consequently we find that the better the administration the more he looks to local interests."

"No one cares to propose a new tax in his own province, for the proceeds would only go to the Government of India; and few much care to reduce an expenditure. Every man shows that this or that expenditure is desirable, and probably shows so with very good reason, but no one weighs the cost. The budget system seems to have been in some degree designed to remedy this evil, but it has been very imperfectly understood, and as yet the only result seems to be to cause additional delay in obtaining sanction for anything pressingly required. Who has yet heard of propositions for self-taxation volunteered by any local government? Madras and Bombay have been for years aggrieved about the check upon their expenditure, but has any proposition for raising the disproportionately low salt duties of those presidencies, or equalising the stamp duties, or otherwise improving their finance ever come from Madras or Bombay? Are not, on the contrary, such propositions usually strenuously resisted? and even in these days, is there not a disposition to maintain the claim of those faithful armies in which the mutiny did not occur, and to object to their reduction?"

Mr. Campbell does not apparently perceive that with the power of taxation the power of legislation must also be divided, that his plan is in its main features that of Mr. Bright. It is one which, however opposed to all the instincts of the dominant class, may yet be forced on their attention by circumstances it will be impossible wholly to disregard. Any serious collapse of the exchequer would compel the Ministry at home either to redistribute power, or abandon the outlying provinces. They are not likely to adopt the second expedient first. It is even now the vastness of our rule which checks the development of new sources of revenue. Twenty taxes could be put on in Bengal which are inapplicable to Northern India. The Madras Government, deprived of its nominal surplus for imperial expenses, and left free to carry out its own irrigation ideas, would probably soon find itself with disposable resources. Bombay a wealthy class, who might be taxed with effect, and the rulers of the Punjab would gladly shift part of the heavy burden now borne by the cultivators on to the non-agricultural class. The centralisation of power, however valuable to check expenditure, is powerless to develop new resources.—Friend of India.

THE PROPHET OF THE PUNJAB.

The Sealkote Fuqueer, Hubeeb Shah, was hanged at the Lahore District Jail on Saturday, the 24th of August. The thing went off just like any ordinary execution, and there was not the slightest stir or excitement. Inquiries have for the past six months been on foot regarding him and his antecedents, and though the inquiries are not yet complete, we can give our readers a few particulars regarding him.

He declared himself to the last to be a Sheikh by birth, and a native of Meerpoor Choumuk, near Poonch, in the territories of the Maharajah of Jummoo. But it is shown almost conclusively that he was not born there. He is believed to be of the low But-kunjur tribe, and to be a native of Jummoo itself. In this tribe, it is well known, that the men are all scamps, and the women prostitutes. Under these circumstances, it is no wonder that the man never could explain satisfactorily who his father was. Some of this Fuqueer's antecedents are equally edifying. For some time he was the menial servant of a dancing girl at Sealkote; he used to fill her hookah and light her pipe. The arrant impostor, however, soon took to religious mendicancy. He announced himself a devotee of Imam Mehndee (who in the Mahomedan belief is a prophet yet to come), and took the name of Mehndee Shah, since changed to Hubeeb Shah. One day in 1852, when petty rent-free tenures were being investigated at Sealkote, he swaggered into the Settlement-office, and said that when his prophet appeared on earth all the land would be rent-free. During 1857 he appears to have domesticated himself with the mutinous cavalry at Sealkote. In 1858, that is last summer, he appeared at Nonar, a village in the Sealkote district, and alighted at a shrine. While there he invoked the name of God with a good deal of star-gazing, and said there was to be a joint reign on earth of Hindoo and Mahomedan divinities; a Devee for the Hindoos and an Imam for the Mahomedans. He would say "to horse, to horse, the time is near." By these means he would terrify the rustics, and make them propitiate him by food and lodging. His costume at this time was elegant, we might say imposing. A conical peaked hat, a long bluish robe, a green kerchief, and loose trousers, made people think he was a saint from the far countries beyond the Indus. Not content with this, however, he did while at Nonar a stroke of business which ultimately brought him to the gallows.

He goes to a Mahomedan Moulvee who follows the mild profession of village schoolmaster, under the Educational department. This gentleman, though physically a cripple, has got a fanatical spirit. The Fuqueer then gets the schoolmaster to draft some proclamations. Some five or six are written in this way; some few more copies are made by the little boys at the school (ingenious youth). These precious documents breathe the spirit of the doctrine which the Fuqueer had been preaching orally; they appeal to both Hindoos and Mahomedans; the former are called on to arm for the Devee, the latter for the Imam. The revenue officials are invited to establish treasuries on behalf of both these "parties." Double pay is promised to everybody, and a reward is fixed for the head of every European. But the Fuqueer paid us the bad compliment of fixing the reward at a very unremunerative rate, Rs. 20 a head. Most fanatics would say that they could not do the job at so low a figure; also the Fuqueer did not kowtow to the Sikhs; neither they nor their Gooroo are mentioned in the proclamation. Each proclamation is addressed to some particular localities either in the Sealkote district or in some part of the Rechna Doab. This shows that his aspirations were not extensive. Armed with these papers, the Fuqueer has for the last twelve months been wandering about the Sealkote district. He doubtless unfolded his doctrine more or less everywhere; in some cases it is proved that he did.

It is to be presumed that he showed his proclamations to a select few, but it would be impossible to prove exactly to whom he showed them. However, in July last the talk about Imam Mehndee became more general, and the Moulvees generally (as the prisoner himself said) seemed to expect a prophet; so our Fuqueer goes to Zufferwal, near Sealkote, and gives a proclamation to the Tehseeldar, the chief native official there, and requests that it might be acted on immediately. The Tehseeldar, a Mahomedan, had the sense and loyalty to give him up to the authorities; the result has been the execution of the Fuqueer. As he was mounting the scaffold he expressed a hope that a shrine might be built over his remains! The authorities, however, committed his carcase to the flames.—Lahore Chronicle.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A RIGHT ROYAL PRESENT.—The Maharajah of Cashmere is forwarding, as a present to her Majesty, a most costly shawl tent, which will contain, moreover, a bedstead of solid gold. The value of this regal offering is said to exceed fifteen lakhs of rupees.

THE BLACK ACT is for the time abandoned. On September the 3rd the Legislative Council inserted a clause in the Code of Criminal Procedure by which a European can be committed only by a civilian or a European British subject. The community therefore is relieved from the necessity of protecting its wives and daughters from arrest. We sincerely hope that this decision, which, while confirming the authority of the magistracy relieves the Europeans of the fear which makes life in India hateful, will be accepted as final. It will do more to diminish the animosity of races than any other conceivable act. So long as the European believes that his fortunes and his honour are to be at the mercy of hostile Pagans, so long will he regard the native as his foe. The instant that dread is removed, the natural kindness of the Englishman to the weak, the feeling which in England culminates in the Aborigines Protection Society, will begin to re-assert itself. The Civil Service claim the credit of real consideration for the natives. So far as it is true the feeling springs from the certainty that they can never be oppressed by them. The measure will produce far better results for the natives than even for ourselves. There is not a European in India who would not willingly see more and wider careers open to native society. We ourselves, utterly abhorring the Black Act, have complained constantly of the insufficient salaries we leave to native officials, the inadequate scope we offer to native ambition. So long as the civilised class were to be placed under the feet of the uncivilised it was impossible to plead for native elevation. That difficulty once removed, we see no reason why the charge of whole branches of the administration in Nagpore, Chittagong, Bundelcupd, or any provinces without a European population, should not be intrusted to native managers. In finance, in particular, a native, with tangible securities, is at least as good an administrator as a European.—Friend of India.

THE NATIVE PRESS.—A journal we do not often read recalls us this week to a neglected duty. It is to protest once more against the tone our contemporaries are adopting with reference to the freedom of the native press. That tone has its origin in the Punjab, where the authorities perceive a danger which justifies them, as they believe, in maintaining a state of siege. Even there, however, we regard the censorship established with a feeling which we cannot distinguish from disgust. A Sikh is not a serf, but a free subject of Great Britain, with an absolute right to free thought, free speech, and free expression in public of both. If he talks treason, punish him for treason. But to suppress his writing, because he may write something unpleasant to ourselves, is the worst form of tyranny. If we can maintain the empire only by an Austrian policy, by opening letters, and repeating conversations, by suppressing printing and lashing our subjects into silence, better let the empire pass. Its loss will at least not brutalise our race, as its retention by such means would inevitably do. There is something to our feelings utterly base in claiming for ourselves the right of animadversion, while denying to those around us the one right Dante left to the miserable in hell, the poor privilege of complaint. We have no patience to point out the impolicy of such a course, to demonstrate that if the population hate us, it is better they should speak than act their hatred. But we may remark that it is the written newspaper prepared by the Akbar-Navees on which the people depend, and that unless Government is prepared to strip every peon, break every hollow stick, and shoot every pigeon, it can no more check the circulation of news than the twittering of the swallows. If it wants truth to circulate let it establish a native Moniteur.—Friend of India.

THE NORTH-WEST BANK.—For once the shareholders of an Indian joint stock company have displayed both common sense and nerve. The contest among the stockholders of the North-West Bank has ceased. The majority, convinced that the bank ought to be wound up, have broken through the ridiculous etiquette which places all shareholders at the feet of the governing board, dismissed their directors, and installed a dictator to carry out their own policy. At the last meeting the agent of the majority, Mr. Thompson, refused to give any reasons whatever. He was there to vote, not to chatter, and he produced proxies which enabled him to reject the directors' report, dismiss the directors, appoint Mr. J. H. Fergusson manager, to wind up, with a percentage on the moneys saved out of the wreck, and elect Mr. Gubbins and Colonel Cuthbert Davidson, or their nominees, as final referees. The directors, of course, fought hard, but for once force was unsparingly applied. The result is that a thorough investigation has commenced into the state of the bank's affairs, into the nature of the securities on which borrowers, shareholders included, have obtained money, and into all outstanding accounts. The end may yet be safety, the repayment of all or a very considerable proportion of the capital, an outturn which but for the decision of the larger shareholders would scarcely have been obtained. The directors in their advertisement obviously wish to avail themselves of the English dislike of proxies, and represent the shareholders as oppressed by paper votes. There was no oppression of the kind. Mr. Thompson's instructions were strictly laid down by shareholders as much alive as the directors, and possessing about six times the stake in the matter of the meeting opposed to them. A lesson of the kind was very much needed in Calcutta, and may possibly do some good. Everything in India of importance must be done by companies, and the pretensions of the directors are becoming intolerable. A stranger would fancy they were owners of the properties they manage instead of the paid servants of the true proprietors. A hostile vote is regarded as an offence, a proposal for dismissal as a personal insult. That may be borne in the case of the "promoter" of a company, who has some of the claim of an inventor, but is simply unbearable in the case of men many of whom look to directorships as other men look to professions. We shall be told that if directors are not masters, men of position will not serve in those capacities. The remedy for that is simple. Pay them properly, and the applicants will be as numerous as the office jauns in Calcutta. Meanwhile the decision of the shareholders in the case of the North-West Bank will benefit all shareholders in India, and all the more because some of those ousted are men against whom the community has nothing to remark.—Friend of India.

TRADE OF CALCUTTA.—From the quarterly report of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce we see the Government of Bengal have ordered returns of the whole of the produce that comes to Calcutta by water, as well as that brought by the canals, which alone has been hitherto published in the Gazette. The goods conveyed by the Ganges Steam Company during the first half of this year in seven trips of their steamers amounted to 9,343 bales and cases of merchandise; 3,263 cases of wine, beer, and other packages; and 5,448 maunds of weight goods. The steamers of the I. G. S. N. Company carried on their upward trips during the same period, 57,574 packages of all descriptions.

HIC NIGER EST.—Two native men were arrested in the native quarter of Calcutta, one dressed as a European, with his hands and face painted white, and another similarly painted, and in female clothes. They were begging from door to door. They were sentenced to a week in the house of correction.

CALCUTTA MUNICIPALITY.—At the last meeting of the Calcutta Municipal Commissioners the valuation and assessment of the house and lighting rates for the current year was given in. It showed an increase of Rs. 29,878 for the former and Rs. 6,804 for the latter. There were 4,712 cases of increase in the house rate, and 3,080 in the lighting rate against which no appeal had been made. Of 316 cases of appeal the justices had altered 41. The Board expressed their satisfaction at the result of the Assessors' exertions. The value of the whole taxable profits of the city is 12 millions sterling, the whole municipal income nearly 8 lakhs of Rupees.

CALCUTTA SUBURBAN ROADS.—During the year 1858-59 the sum of Rs. 50,584 was spent on the Calcutta suburban roads, and Rs. 2,599 on those of Howrah. The estimate of expenditure for these roads in the current year has been sanctioned at a little above a lakh of rupees, if the road and ferry funds amount to that sum.

THE BANK OF BENGALE. on the 1st September, fixed its rate of discount on Private Bills for 3 months at 7 per cent., on Promissory Notes, with one name, protected by security of Government Paper, within 60 days, at 5 per cent., on Treasury Bills, No. 2, at 4½ per cent., on Government Acceptances, within 3 months, at 4 per cent., and on Mint Certificates at 3 per cent. Its rate of interest on loans not exceeding 60 days, on deposit of Government Paper, is 6 per cent., and on the loans on deposit of goods, 7 per cent.

THE POOREE PILGRIMS.—A native correspondent of the Englishman says there is no distinction of caste observed by the pilgrims who visit the shrine of Juggernaut at Pooree. The leavings of the food of the idol are sold by the priests, who thus make large sums of money, and the purest Brahmince woman will not object to eat them with a Chandial or a low-caste man. He estimates the crowds of pilgrims during the festival at 50,000. The frequent disturbances in the temple often cause delay in presenting food to the idol, and, consequently, all Pooree and its pilgrims have the pleasure of fasting for a time on such occasions.

PRIZE ESSAY.—A native some time ago offered a prize of Rs. 700 through the Director of Public Instruction in Bombay, for an English essay on "Traits in the English character which contribute to the commercial prosperity of England, and those in the Indian which hinder that of India." No essay worthy of the prize has been sent in, and accordingly the time has been extended to 1st September, 1860. The competition is open without reserve.

THE DACCA AND ASSAM STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY, LIMITED, with a capital of Rs. 600,000, in 2,000 shares of Rs. 300 each, has issued a prospectus. With two steamers and two cargo boats they propose to keep up a regular monthly communication with Debroogurh, and all marts between that and Calcutta. The increase in the production of tea alone in Assam and Cachar will in the course of a few years be so great that one steamer will not be sufficient to bring the whole of it down to Calcutta.

NATIVE JURORS.—A second case has occurred in the Supreme Court, Calcutta, showing the value of the native element in juries. A native was charged with robbery on evidence which admitted of no doubt. Notwithstanding, the jury retired and was absent an unusually long time, but at last returned a verdict of guilty. The prisoner had set up as his defence that the prosecutor refused to pay him money which he owed, and that he was justified in stealing from him, although the sum taken was larger than what was due. A native juror thought the defence just, and would not for a time consent to a verdict of guilty. In a previous case the native was ignorant of English, in this, of Ethics.

BENGAL COVENANTERS.—We see in the Phanir the latest form which the feeling after God, if haply they may find him, of Young Bengal, has assumed. A few lads have formed themselves into "The Sacred Covenant" for the promulgation of virtue and piety. After the manner of the infant school training system, the "Covenanted Brothers" write a journal of their conduct, "wherein they take notice not only of their laudable actions but also of their shortcomings," and each reads his confession at the monthly meeting. The articles of the covenant are these:—"I do hereby most solemnly promise to try my best to abide by the following rules, which I will henceforth adopt, in all cases, for my principles of action. 1. To try my best to improve my own intellectual and moral condition, and the same of my neighbours and society at large. 2. To avoid intoxication of all kinds by the way of smoking or drinking, except tobacco—unless for the sake of medicine. 3. To avoid lying, stealing, licentiousness, and malevolence in all their varieties. 4. To avoid extreme jollity in manners—bordering upon moral evil. 5. To promulgate the cause of virtue and piety. 6. To adore God as the Creator and Preserver of the universe and the source of all our happiness. 7. Never to swear or utter oaths, or make promises unless I am quite sure."

A GRIEVANCE.—The Mofussilite calls attention to a grievance of some of the late company's officers. A short time before the mutiny an order was passed making messes compulsory in all regiments. To meet its requirements many corps involved themselves in debt, for supplies which were shortly after destroyed in the rebellion. Owing to the numerous casualties, surviving officers are now called upon to pay double the amount for which they were at first liable. One officer, Lieut.-col. Campbell, has succeeded in getting Lord Clyde to pass a claim for compensation as for losses sustained on actual service, and officers of other regiments are advised to follow his example under the usual regulation.

NOTHING LEARNED, NOTHING FORGOTTEN.—A correspondent complains of the conduct of the Rangoon authorities in allowing Mussulman and Hindoo sepooy processions to parade through the town during the mohurrum, and some late Madras festivals, instead of confining them to the limits of the cantonments. At night a special party of H.M.'s 68th had to patrol the streets. The town magistrates lent the processionists the services of a European constable for the occasion, and allowed extempore lamp-posts to be placed on each side of the principal street. Not only should all such processions be prohibited in a European town, but doubly so in a country to which Mahomedanism and Hindooism are foreign, as in Burmah. The increasing class, who are the offspring of Mussulmans and Burmese will soon claim as a right what is now so thoughtlessly allowed.

N.W. TEA COMPANY.—The Delhi Gazette announces a plan for the establishment of the "Dehra Doon and North West of India Tea Company Limited," with a capital of £500,000 in £10 shares. It is proposed to purchase the estate called the Hurbunswala Plantation, which at present yields a good profit to its proprietors. It is intended to begin at once by cultivating 1,000 acres, and a similar extent of ground yearly. With its English capital, English labour, English schools and native Christians, Dehra Doon bids fair to realise the ideal of a hill colony.

COMPULSORY EVIDENCE.—The Commissioner of the Trans-Sutlej States has raised the question whether European soldiers who are British subjects can be compelled to give evidence in the local courts. The Advocate-General is of opinion that they can. The non-regulation courts have power to fine one who refuses to the extent of Rs. 200, and in default to imprison him for a month. In the Civil Courts of the Presidency of Fort William, the fine is extended to Rs. 500, but is not commutable to imprisonment, though the witness may be confined till he shall consent to give evidence for not more than one month. This power may be exercised by a Magistrate or Justice of the Peace under the provisions of the Act for regulating the sale of liquor in Military Cantonments.

MARTIAL LAW WITHDRAWN.—The Calcutta Gazette notifies the withdrawal of the declaration of martial law throughout the Patna and Chota Nagpore Divisions, as order has now been restored throughout those districts.

A GROWL.—The Governor General leaves this by water about the 1st of October, and proceeds to Allahabad, whence he will march to Peshawar, via Agra, Delhi, and Lahore. He proposes passing the hot weather and rains at Simla, and returns to Calcutta towards the end of next year. The state of Mr. Ricketts's health is still so unsatisfactory that it is doubtful if he will be able to resume his seat in Council. Sir James Outram will, therefore, be President of the Council, and he and Mr. Harington will be left to conduct the ordinary duties of the Government. There are already grievous complaints of the great delay that takes place in all business which requires the orders of the Governor General in Council, and the evil will be seriously aggravated by his Lordship's departure. The heavy expense to which the country will be put for his lordship's travelling charges, presents to native chiefs, &c., is also at this moment a serious consideration. The extra million which is expected from the new tariff will in a great measure be absorbed by the cost of sending our discharged soldiers home, and supplying their places from England. The eight or nine lakhs which it is proposed to cut from the civilians' salaries is to be squandered, it now seems, in this tour. Taxation is not a pleasant thing under the best of circumstances, but it is especially hard to bear when we see that our money, instead of being applied to lighten the burdens of the State, is wasted on the repair of the Governor General's blunders, and on pleasure trips which cannot be indulged in without serious detriment to the public business. We can not but think that it is the duty of the Legislative Council, before passing the Bill which is requisite to enable the Governor-general to separate himself from his Council, to require a statement of the reasons which have led him to consider that his presence is required at Simla during the ensuing year, and to refuse their sanction to his departure unless these reasons are satisfactory. We do not despair of seeing the day when Bills to permit the Governor-general to pass the hot weather at Simla will be met by a motion for a return of unanswered letters, and when leave will be refused until the arrears are worked off; but this would probably be too much to expect at present from the new born independence of the Legislative Council.—Hurkaru.

THE "ORIENTAL STONE-WARE POTTERY COMPANY" has started with a capital of Rs. 50,000 to work a stratum of valuable clay near Raneeunge. Two kilns are in successful operation, and paving bricks, insulators, and ornamental figures are now manufactured. There is also a fifteen-foot stratum of sandstone which contains quicksilver, and it is suspected, platinum. A specimen of the stone has been sent to Birmingham for report. The mineral wealth of this and the whole district of Beerbhoom is incalculable. The coal, iron and copper are inexhaustible. All that is wanted to develop it is English capital.

THE MINTS.—The Calcutta Mint, during the month of June, coined Rs. 98,26,810; that of Madras, Rs. 6,81,000; and that of Bombay, Rs. 15,98,000.

SAUGOR, Sept. 1.—The different artillery, cavalry, and infantry brigades having been broken up, Major-general Sir J. C. Whitlock, K.C.B., has issued the following complimentary orders, which have been graciously received by the officers concerned, who certainly have had a most arduous, responsible, and difficult duty at times thrust on them, but have managed to win the cordial approbation of their general. As the country about Chatterpore and Purnab (two independent States), is still greatly infested with bands of rebels, under the notorious Duputt and others, rumour has it that the field force in Bundelcund must still remain there for at least another year, and the general meditates what he calls "Military pic-nic!" In publishing the above extract of G. O., which by order of the Right Honourable Lord Clyde, C.B., Commander-in-Chief, breaks up the artillery brigade, with the Saugor field division, Major-general Sir George Whitlock begs to offer to the various officers who have commanded this brigade a sincere and warm acknowledgment of their valuable services, and his best and hearty thanks for the cordial assistance he has invariably received from each when in the exercise of so important a charge. Wounds and sickness have separated these officers from the Major-general's command, and have compelled them to seek for health and strength in different climes; but, Lieut.-col. T. Lavie, Madras artillery; Major D. Mein, Madras horse artillery; Brigadier P. P. Faddy, royal artillery; and Major R. Kinhead, Madras artillery, have indeed, with their gallant force, done good service, which will never be effaced from the Major-general's memory, and right glad will he be to learn that they have returned to their duty, and that his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief will again be enabled to avail himself of the services of officers who have so well supported the honour of the noble branch of the profession to which they belong. Major-general Whitlock begs also to offer his cordial thanks to Brigadier Munsey, commanding the cavalry brigade, to Brigadiers Carpenter and Mac Duff, for their assistance and support during the period they have been under his command, and his assurance of their carrying with them his warmest and best thanks.—Ibid., Sept. 6.

THE TWO INDEPENDENT STATES.—In a review of the political relations of the Indian Government, foreign, frontier and internal, the Bombay Times describes Dholepore and Tipperah as the only really independent States in India. The Rajah of Nepal cannot employ in his service any European or American subject without our permission, and must abide by our decision in the event of any dispute with the Rajah of Sikkim. Dholepore is on the left bank of the Chumbul, immediately north of Gwalior. During the great Mahratta Confederacy the Rana linked his fortunes with us, and in the treaty of 1805 with Scindia, remained independent and absolute. The territory comprises an area of 1,626 square miles, with a population amounting to 550,000, and a revenue of seven lakhs of rupees. The Rana maintains a miniature army of forty artillerymen, 177 cavalry, and 1,600 infantry, and has a force of 150 horse also at his disposal, from the feudal tenures of his Jaghiredars. Tipperah, beyond the bounds of India Proper to the north of Chittagong, is 130 miles in length and about eighty in breadth, containing an area of 7,632 square miles.

ACCOUNTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE.—Mr. R. P. Harrison, accountant general to the Government of Bengal, has been appointed accountant general to the Government of Madras, vice Mr. Prendergast, who has been dismissed the service; Mr. F. F. Harrison, first assistant to the accountant general to the Government of India, has been promoted to the post of accountant general to the Government of Bengal on a reduced salary of Rs. 2,500 a month; Mr. W. Clarke, head uncovenanted assistant to the accountant general, succeeds Mr. F. F. Harrison; Mr. H. Hudson, first assistant durbar and revenue branches, as Mr. W. Clarke's successor; Mr. A. C. Macleod to succeed Mr. Hudson; Mr. E. W. Kelner, first assistant Oude branch, takes the place of Mr. A. C. Macleod; Mr. F. Saunders, an assistant in the military branch of the accountant general's office, succeeds Mr. E. W. Kelner, and his room will be filled by another assistant of the office.

EXPORTS (Calcutta, Sept. 9).—The produce market has not exhibited any improvement since our last; it has remained in the same inanimate and inactive state. In consequence of the falling off in the arrivals from the interior, holders have shown greater firmness in their demands. Raw Silk has attracted attention, but, in consequence of light stocks and high prices, much business has not been done. Cowhags are held on at higher prices, but buyers are acting with great caution. In Sugar a good business for Bombay has been done, but the buyers are now going out of the market, and prices are looking down. Salt-petre has been engaged very moderately, owing to the continued unfavourable advices from home. Rice is quite neglected for Great Britain, but has been in active operation for Melbourne, Mauritius, Bourbon, and other places. Linseed and Rapeseed have been in less request, Julie has been in limited operation. Hides have been largely engaged. All other articles of produce have been dealt in very sparingly.

IMPORTS (Calcutta, Sept. 9).—The market has continued depressed, and we have to report a further general decline in the value of Twist and Grey cottons; sales by first hands are still impracticable, no disposition being shown by the dealers to operate, especially for goods to arrive. Raw Silk.—The demand continues active, and a fair business has been done in it during the fortnight at full previous prices. European Filature has also been in better inquiry, and there is more doing in it at full former prices. Stocks of Native Silks are about 2 to 300 mds. Silk Piece Goods.—For Corals a somewhat active demand has prevailed during the fortnight, and a fair business has been transacted in them at a further advance of about 3 to 5 per cent in their value. In Choppas a small business has been done at previous prices. In Bandanoes and Tussers there is nothing doing, and prices remain unaltered. Stocks of Corals are estimated at about 80,000 pieces; of Tussers there is none. Oil Seeds.—Linseed has been in less request, and as most of the English shippers have gone out of the market, prices have become easier. Good Patna well cleaned is now worth Rs. 3.7 to 3.8. Bengal, ordinary cleaned, at Rs. 3.1 to Rs. 3.3, and inferior at Rs. 2.13 to 2.14. Shipments have gone forward to a fair extent. Rope.—A good business was doing in this, and prices had gradually crept up materially; but within the past week or ten days a disposition has been manifested by shippers to operate, and as most of them have gone out of the market prices are again looking down. The local crushers, however, are still in the market, and prevent a material fall in prices.

COLONEL A. COTTON has drawn up a memorandum on the port of Coconada and the management of the salt trade in Rajahmundry under the enlargement looked for when the Godavery has been opened for navigation. He expects the trade of the district, which is now three-fourths of a million sterling, will then rise to three or four millions a year. To improve and to extend the port, and to arrange for the increase of salt manufacture, and the establishment of salt depots on the banks of the river, Sir Charles Trevelyan has appointed an executive engineer.

reforms are introduced in India. It was on the 22nd of April, 1851, that Mr. Secretary Goldsmid wrote to congratulate Colonel Lang on the happy termination of his work on the Suppression of Female Infanticide in Katiawar. The concluding sentences of the letter were:—"Well and ably have you, in the opinion of Government, continued and carried out, by means of conciliation and persuasion, the good and humane work in which Mr. Willoughby so indefatigably toiled for the extirpation of the crime of infanticide from Katiawar. And the vigorous measures which that gentleman originated for effecting that object have, by the judicious proceedings of yourself, and of those who succeeded him in the province, been brought to a most successful and gratifying termination." In 1789, Mr. Jonathan Duncan, then Resident at Benares, discovered the existence of this crime among a tribe with which he had come in contact in his official circuit, of which Lord Teignmouth has thus written in the "Asiatic Researches":—"A race of Hindoos called Rajkumars reside here, and it was discovered in 1789 only that the custom of putting to death their female offspring, by causing the mothers to starve them, had long subsisted, and did actually then very generally prevail among them." The Resident at Benares, in a circuit which he made through the country where the Rajkumars dwell, had an opportunity of authenticating the existence of this custom from their own confessions. It was in 1800 that Mr. Jonathan Duncan, the Governor of Bombay, learnt from the Nawab of Surat that female infanticide prevailed among the Rajput tribes of Gujerat. It was in 1803 he wrote to Captain Seton, then on a political mission in Cutch, and found the information but too true, of the very prevalent practice among various tribes in Katiawar and Cutch. In 1807 the Home Government wrote in reference to the various papers transmitted on the subject:—"Wherein we find that the arrangements adopted by Lieutenant-colonel Walker for the prevention of this barbarous custom have been attended with success, and that the reform in the habits of the people among whom the practice obtained had completely taken root, and that natural affection and parental feelings had so far begun to take the place of prejudice and superstition as to leave no doubt of the abolition of this inhuman practice being finally effected. We cheerfully acknowledge Lieutenant-colonel Walker's merits in having so successfully exerted himself in the general interests of humanity." It was in 1802 that the British made a special alliance with the Rao of Cutch, so as to protect him from Scindian invasion, and to settle some important disputes of his with a powerful neighbouring prince. To multiply no more chronological references, the above being sufficient for the object, we might generally say that it was during Mr. Duncan's consulate of Bombay that Cutch and Katiawar became tributary and dependant on us.

It was in 1851 that the suppression of the practice of infanticide in Katiawar is reported by the Secretary of Lord Falkland's Government in language of congratulation and gratification becoming those feelings and sentiments with which the subject must be instinctively viewed by an Englishman. It was done as far as Government were able to ascertain; its complete abolition in that one province even is questionable; it is by no means a common practice at any rate; and this is well. But the question arises, How is it that two generations were allowed to pass away before this work was accomplished? The extract from Mr. Goldsmid's letter partly explains it:—"Conciliation and persuasion" were the means left at the disposal of all the succeeding governors and residents from Mr. Jonathan Duncan and Major Walker's time up to Lord Falkland and Colonel Lang's. Sir James Carnac, when Governor of Bombay, said in a Minute dated June, 1840:—"I must confess that although I am fully alive to the great difficulties which exist against the full accomplishment of our views, still, when I consider the unbounded influence and power we have for many years exercised in Cutch, the little progress that has been made in extirpating this sad blot on humanity in this province is very lamentable."

The crime might have been checked long ago, had we been a little more strict in dealing with those who were given to it. Where was our criminal code of laws? A good detective police, with a judicial commissioner with full powers, and a dozen or two capital executions for murder, would have, after the preliminary representation, gained the object at once. We should have brought the families of every tribe guilty of the crime under a strict police and judicial surveillance, and after making warning representations put our criminal code into effect. Instead of this, we have inflicted, as late as 1836, fines of Rs. 50; and in 1841, fines of Rs. 1,000, for this crime.

Latterly, however, the conduct of the Government, and of some of the officers employed by it in the work, has been beyond all praise. It was with unflagging perseverance that negotiations and overtures were made to the rajahs and heads of tribes, and not only made, but repeated and repeated.—Bombay Gazette.

THE WUJRABAI HOT SPRINGS.

Mr. A. W. Hughes, Assistant to Captain J. Francis, Superintendent Revenue Survey and Assessment, Poona and Tanna, has made the following report, dated 7th July last, on the hot springs of Wujrabai in the Bhewndy talooka:—"The district in which these hot springs are found border upon the river Tansa in the Dugand Tump of the Bhewndy talooka, and would seem to be confined to the villages of Akulolee, Gunneshporee, Gorud, and Nimbawullee, comprising a tract in extent from east to west of about two and a-half to three miles, and with an average breadth of about one mile. In the vicinity are hills, some of them lofty, as that of Kelton, having an elevation of about 2,000 feet; the prevailing rock is trap, and dykes of it crossing the Tansa at an oblique angle are sometimes met with. In this area there are about 150 springs of various temperatures, some situate in the river, and others in various parts of the villages mentioned above. Of these I have inspected between twenty and thirty. The principal are to be found close to the banks and in the bed of the River Tansa at Akulolee and adjoining the temple of that village, also at Gunneshporee. The first are known by the name of the 'Sooryakoond,' and those at Gunneshporee are called the 'Kamakoond.' The very hottest of all the springs is in the river bed at Gunneshporee, and is termed the 'Argindkoond.' The Akulolee hot springs are about eight in number. Three of these are in the Tansa, and the remainder adjoin the temple of Mahadeo. They are all enclosed in basins of masonry; a flight of stone steps led down to those in the river, but the strong forces of the Tansa during the monsoon have evidently turned the position of the steps, which are now, as a means of descent, quite useless. The temperature of these springs are shown as follows:—

Time.		Temperature.		River Springs.		Temple Springs.
8 A.M.	64°	{		No. 1..121°	{	No. 1..108
				2..113		2..106
				3..113		3..99

				4..—		4..100

From this table it will be seen that the river spring No. 1 remained constant in temperature during the whole day, the others varied slightly. The water in the river springs is very clear and pellucid. In river spring No. 1 gaseous bubbles are seen to rise to the surface every ten or twelve seconds; this is the case, also, with No. 2, but not to so great an extent. The temple springs being much cooler are largely frequented by bathers, who are to be seen splashing about in them throughout the day; their reasons for bathing being the increased appetite produced, a sign that the supply of food in that part of the talooka must be comparatively abundant. The water of these springs is in consequence generally dirty, but from the gradual draining of the surplus water, through small stone channels, a great deal of it is thus drawn away; the basins are also occasionally cleared out, the stone flooring allowing this to be done well and quietly. The Gunneshporee hot springs are similar to the Sooryakoond as regards temperature, and there, also, bathing for increased appetite is carried on with the same activity as at Akulolee. The Argindkoond is situate in the bed of the Tansa, near Gunneshporee, and is difficult of access. This spring issues from a bed of trap, and is not enclosed by masonry of any kind; the water presents a surface of about eighteen square feet, and a stick thrust into the sediment penetrated to a depth of two feet. The temperature at 5.30 p.m. was 136°, while that of the air was 80°. At the sides of this spring is a greenish-coloured sediment, but the water was, as usual, of a very clear nature, and so hot that the finger could not be borne in it for more than two or three seconds. A few shells (bivalves) were found in the bed, but these might most probably have been brought down by the river freshes during the monsoon, when the spring would be quite covered with cold water. At the time I visited it the river was nearly dry, there being only a few small scattered pools of brackish water to be seen. All the springs evidently contain a more than ordinary proportion of saline matter in solution, and this Dr. Giraud, the late chemical analyser to Government, confirms, as he tested their properties in 1855-56, but he considers that from the analysis, with the above single exception, there is nothing worthy of remark about them. Connected with these springs are the two temples of Devee and Mahadeo, the former in the Enam village of Madaolee and the latter at Akulolee. The temple at Devee has a yearly allowance from Government of about Rs. 250, that to Mahadeo of Rs. 78. They were built, it is said, by one Sunkrajee Punt, a Soobadar of the Wussae Prant, in the time of the Peishwas, about 100 years ago. He is the reputed builder also of the four basins containing the hot springs which adjoin the latter temple. A pilgrimage or jatra takes place yearly in the Hindoo month Chytra to Wujrabai, and from the information I could obtain, about 15,000 or 20,000 people from Bombay and various parts of the country attend it. Numerous shops are temporarily erected near the temple by Banyans from Bhewndy, and the village of Wadaolee for or twenty days has a very bustling appearance. On the devotees, the effect seems invariably better in the warm springs, and this would appear to be one of the most important duties connected with the Teruth (holy place). Some drink the water as well, under the impression that it is a specific for cutaneous diseases; but in the springs I visited I could not perceive the slightest smell or trace of sulphur in any one of them. The residents, however, confidently affirm that skin diseases are modified in violence if not cured by bathing in the springs, and that their efficacy is not confined to any particular season, but is the same throughout the year. To conclude, the Argindkoond, with a temperature of 136°, is evidently the hottest of all the springs in this district, and exceeds in heat the somewhat celebrated hot spring of 'Pir Mungul,' in Seinde, by 8°, but is very much below that of Belcuppee, in Upper Bengal, where the water bursting through gneiss rocks shows the astonishing temperature of 190°."

Captain Francis, in submitting the above report of Mr. Hughes to Government, remarked that "reports upon these springs have already been submitted to Government, but as the accompanying paper may perhaps contain some interesting information not embodied in previous reports, I have ventured to submit it for the information of Government. It may be of service to those desirous of visiting these springs to know that the village near which they are situated is distant about 16 miles from Bhewndy, in a northerly direction,—that town being one on the line of the main road from Bombay to Nassick. There is no made road to the spot beyond Bhowdy, but a good fair weather track passable for common carts. There is also a fine pitching ground near the springs on the banks of the ansa river."

Government having forwarded the report to Dr. Rooke, Director-general of the Medical Department, for any observations which he may wish to offer, that gentleman stated that the Collector of Tanna forwarded specimens of water from the hot springs at Wirjeerabai in February, 1855, and that the Professor of Chemistry reported on them as follows:—"This water is remarkable only for its elevated temperature. It contains some of the ingredients of ordinary spring waters in somewhat large proportion. It is neutral. It contains no trace of sulphur, as stated in the collector's report, and it is free from carbonates. The composition is stated in the accompanying table. The rock specimens are common basalt with siliceous sand and pebbles. The plant called the 'Cypress bush' in the collector's report, is the Tamarix Divica."

THE PINJRAPOLE NUISANCE.—A correspondent informs us that the number of diseased cattle accommodated in the pinjrapole has rapidly increased within the last few months, and the Banians are beginning to find out that the area of the place is too small for its purposes. Room must be got, and the Banians of course are willing to give large sums of money for the extension of this pet nursery for dying beasts and pestilence-still. Give them a large bit of ground near Ambrolie, and in a few months a new pinjrapole will spring up, interpenetrated by many paths—straight, winding, oblique, broad, narrow—leading to nice apartments expressly fitted up for mangy dogs and monkeys, that they may find rest and comfort, and not die before they have had their full share of pain and suffering. The contemplative Banian has an immense fancy for such a place, and his soul overflows in love towards the miserable animals which it shelters. Fortunately, the present pinjrapole cannot be enlarged, for it is in a crowded part of the native town, and we do not think the authorities will indulge the whims of its supporters to the extent of allowing them to pull down the neighbouring houses. The removal of this institution, therefore, to some place where it can be extended on all sides, is likely to be necessitated by its own overgrowth under the fostering care of the Banians. Even such a nuisance as the pinjrapole is subject to the providences which govern the course of events. Sanitary reformers assail it, the timid who walk the city thoroughfares appeal against it, but equally in vain. Its champions, to whom it is full of the most sacred associations, find health and a sweet savour in its filthy breezes, and a sport in the antics and grimaces of emaciated monkeys and other animals. They like the excitement of the scene; the scent of the carrion rises up like incense offered to their deity, and must be gratifying to those who in it recognise an emanation from the transmigrated bodies of their grandfathers. Cholera they defy, public opinion they scoff at, and so the monster nuisance flourishes, until it one day dies of its own over-growth. For the blessing of those who have not Banian noses, it is found out that the area of the place is too small for its purposes. If, as we are informed, all the diseased animals found within a hundred or two hundred miles of Bombay,—all the horses, donkeys, bullocks, sheep, cats, dogs, mice, which carry contagion in their bodies,—are brought here, and furnished with a "local habitation" in one building, it ought certainly to be very spacious, and if it be desirable to prevent overcrowding, we should hardly suppose that the area of the flats opposite Parell would suffice for the purpose. Whatever may be said about the pinjrapole being a religious institution, we believe that its supporters keep an eye upon something else besides the worship of sick dogs and cats. We at one time thought that the worst adulteration was limited to jellies and pickles, anchovies and preserves, but "there are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, than are dreamt of in our philosophy!" We believe it is a fact, for a party who has actually seen the pinjrapole officials drawing milk from diseased cows mentioned to us that a good deal of the milk sold in the market is supplied by the cattle sheltered in this abominable shed. There are many, therefore, who put poison into their mouths whenever they drink tea, and the detection of it is of course impossible after the dealer has got the milk at a cheap price, which he hopes to sell at the proper market rate. Somebody had better take steps to check the growth of this abomination. With respect to the pinjrapole itself, the Banians ought to see that it is cramped for want of room, and the best method of promoting its efficiency consists in its removal to some spot out of the native town, where it could be established on a grand scale.—Bombay Gazette.

SINGING FISH.—The Bombay Times has the following remarks on the subject of "Singing Fish," which Sir Henry Ward mentions as existing in Ceylon:—"A party lately crossing from the promontory in Salsette, called the Neat's Tongue, near Sewree, were about sunset struck by hearing long distinct sounds like the protracted booming of a distant bell, the dying cadence of an Æolian harp, the note of a pitchpipe or pitchfork, or any other long-drawn-out musical note. It was at first supposed to be music from Parell, floating at intervals on the breeze; then it was perceived to come from all directions almost in equal strength, and to arise from the surface of the water all around the vessel. The boatmen at once intimated that the sounds were produced by fish abounding in the muddy creeks and shoals around Bombay and Salsette: they were perfectly well known and very often heard. Accordingly, on inclining the ear towards the surface of the water—or, better still, by placing it close to the planks of the vessel,—the notes appeared loud and distinct, and followed each other in constant succession. The boatmen next day produced specimens of the fish, a creature closely resembling in size and shape the freshwater perch of the north of Europe, and spoke of them as plentiful and perfectly well known. Of the perfect accuracy with which the singular facts above related have been given no doubt will be entertained when it is mentioned that the writer was one of a party of five intelligent persons, by all of whom they were most carefully observed, and the impressions of all of whom in regard to them were uniform. It is supposed that the fish are confined to particular localities—shallows, estuaries, and muddy creeks, rarely visited by Europeans; and that this is the reason why hitherto no mention, so far as we know, has been made of the peculiarity in any work on natural history."—Bombay Times, January 7th, 1847. "In a late number of the Times I noticed some remarks respecting Musical Fish, as they have been rather aptly termed; and it may be interesting to the readers of the Times to be informed that the existence of a similar phenomenon has been long known to the residents at Vizagapatam. I have heard the musical sounds, like prolonged notes on a harp, when rowing on the back water at that station, and they were generally supposed to proceed from the fish coming in contact with the sides of the boat; to the best of my recollection the sounds were never heard at a distance from it."—Ibid, February 12th, 1847. We add to this the following extract from the voyage of H.M. ship, Samarang. The remarks were written by Dr. Adam, naturalist to the expedition in 1843. They were not published till 1848:—"On the 31st of August, 1843, while on board the brig Ariel, then lying off the mouth of the river of Borneo, I had the good fortune to hear that solemn aquatic concert of the far-famed organ-fish, or 'Drum,' a species of Pogonias. These singular fishes produce a loud, monotonous, singing sound, which rises and falls, and sometimes dies away, or assumes a very low drumming character, and the noise appears to proceed mysteriously from the bottom of the vessel. This strange submarine chorus of fishes continued to amuse us for about a quarter of an hour, when the music, if so it might be called, suddenly ceased, probably on the dispersion of the band of performers." We doubt very much the organ-fish being a species of Pogonias, or the "lucky poach" of our school-boy days. We have them here among our rocks in abundance. The noise they make is a sort of low sharp grunt, and is anything but musical.

IN MEMORIAM.—A neat and handsome mural tablet has just been erected in St. Mary's Church, Poona, opposite to the pulpit, to the memory of a brave young officer of the army of this Presidency; and as his brother officers may be glad to hear of it we give the inscription entire, viz.—

BOMBAY MERCANTILE STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.—We understand that the Bombay Mercantile Steam Navigation Company is shortly to be abolished, the proprietors having resolved to wind up its affairs, in consequence of the heavy losses met by the Company. The two steamers, the Bombay Castle and the United Service, belonging to the Company, are advertised to be sold. This Company was the result of native enterprise, having been established in November, 1856, by certain native merchants trading with China, with a view to facilitate intercourse between Bombay and China at cheaper rates than those charged by the P. and O. Company.

RESIGNATION OF DR. BUIST.—Dr. Buist, addressed the following letter, dated 1st September, to Lieut.-Colonel Crawford and Dr. Winchester, resigning his office of Municipal Commissioner:—"Having been appointed Superintendent of the Government Press at Allahabad, I have to tender my resignation as Municipal Commissioner, to take effect from the date of my leaving Bombay on the 16th September, and trust this may be communicated by you to the bench of justices. In making this intimation, I feel myself unable to refrain from expressing the gratification I have experienced at the cordiality and good feeling that has ever prevailed at our board, and though anticipating this from my knowledge of two old and most deeply valued friends, the satisfaction it has afforded me gives a pang to a parting—even where the exchange is pecuniarily so much to my advantage—deeper than it otherwise might have been. However fortunate I may hereafter be in colleagues or coadjutors, I can scarcely hope to be so fortunate as I have for the past twelve months been; that I should be more so is impossible." The Commissioners have accordingly made an intimation of Dr. Buist's resignation to the bench of justices.

THE BOMBAY STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.—A rumour has reached us, with what show of truth time will say, that Mr. W. H. Stanley Crawford has resigned the office of manager of the Bombay Steam Navigation Company, and that the directors have nominated Mr. Edwin Heycock as managing director on Rs. 700 a month. Among other changes which have recently occurred in this company, is the dispensing with the services, from August 30, of Mr. Hodgart, who has been connected with the company from its establishment, as supervisor of machinery. Some changes have been recently effected in the commands of the company's vessels: Capt. Banks has been appointed to the Pioneer, and Capt. James to the Tilly; Capt. Beyts retains the Scindian, and the command of the Bombay will, we believe, be given to Capt. Wadge, who brought the Tilly out. The vessels of the company will very shortly, we are given to understand, run regularly between Kurrachee and Bombay, unless the war in China calls their service into requisition as transports.

MR. BELLASIS, the magistrate of Kurrachee, has sent to the commissioner of Sindh a scheme of a house tax for all India, the certificate of registration with the regular payment of the tax to be conclusive evidence of the ownership in the Courts. Three scales of rating are given. By the first, and with 25 millions of houses as the standard, upwards of 18½ millions sterling would be paid, if one rupee a year be levied on ten millions of these, Rs. 50 on half a million, and proportional rates between. With 20 millions of houses the revenue, on a simple scale, would be about eleven millions sterling a year.

BOMBAY IMPORTS.—The Bombay Gazette publishes tabular statements of the imports of piece goods and twist into the island during the past two years, from which it appears there was a great increase in 1858-59, and yet the market was never overstocked. Cabul, Cashmere, and adjacent countries which obtained their supplies from Calcutta before the rebellion have since indented on Bombay, so that the demand exceeds the supply, while the prices are better than when the imports were less. In long cloths and shirtings alone there was an increase of 11,02,713 pieces over the previous year, the total import being 25,02,151 pieces. In twist (water) there was an increase of lbs. 4,47,980 and in Mule of 3,040,840.

SHORT AND SWEET.—We see that "a business-men's mid-day union prayer-meeting" is held in St. Andrew's Church, Bombay, from one to two o'clock daily. It is designed for those who are engaged in government and mercantile offices in the fort, who usually have that hour to themselves for refreshment. "The meeting is so conducted that all can go and come as their engagements allow or require, or their inclinations dictate. No one who takes part in the exercises is expected to occupy more than five minutes in prayer or remarks." The idea seems to have been suggested by the success of similar meetings in America.

SIR JAMSETJEE JEJEEBHAY'S STATUE.—The total sum raised for the statue of Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, lately placed in the Bombay Town-hall, was Rs. 47,705, of which Calcutta gave 2,935, China 2,922, London 758, and Bombay 41,090. Baron Marochetti was paid £4,000 for the work. He was guided solely by photographic likenesses of the baronet taken from different points of sight. Art connoisseurs in London speak of the statue as a masterpiece, a praise they do not award to the statue of Victory by the same artist. From the engraving we (Friend of India) have seen it resembles nothing so much as a milkmaid out of temper sitting on a rail.

RAJAH OF JUMKHUNDEE.—The Poona Observer says the Chief of Jumkhundee is again in trouble. It will be remembered that he was arrested for complicity in the rebellion, and while on his way to Jumkhundee to collect evidence in his case Mr. Munson, our Political Agent, was killed by the Rajah of Nurgood. Under the Proclamation the chief was pardoned and restored to his Jaghire. A memorial from some of the most influential men of his district, complaining of mal-administration, has been sent in to Government. He is surrounded by a set of evil councillors.

CHINA.

HONG KONG, August 24.—The London Mail of the 11th of July arrived here on the 22nd of August. From the north of China we have the important intelligence that Mr. Ward, the American minister, has been courteously received by the Chinese authorities, and has entered Peking, where he was to exchange the ratified treaties. An officer who accompanied him a portion of the way says that the Chinese authorities were very polite and condescending, and that they asserted their Government was prepared and anxious to receive all the ministers in a peaceful and courteous manner.

It is rumoured that the Chinese fought so well at the Taku forts because Senn-ko-lin-sin, the Mongol prince, enclosed the forts completely by the triple ditch which foiled our landing party, and then drawing up the bridges, gave the garrison no means of escape.

Courts-martial have been held on Commander Wodehouse and the officers and crew of her Majesty's despatch boat Cormorant; on Lieutenant W. H. Jones and the officers and crew of the Lee, and on Lieutenant A. E. Douglas, with the officers and crew of the Plover, which three vessels were entirely lost in the engagement at Taku. All of them were acquitted.

Captain Shadwell has been relieved in his duties as senior naval officer at Shanghai.

Admiral Hope's despatches, containing an account of the Taku affair, were allowed to remain at Shanghai, under the charge of this officer, till after the mail left,—though they afterwards overtook it at Singapore in a private steamer.

It is rumoured, but on no good authority, that the Russians exchanged ratifications with the Chinese more than two months ago. General Mouravieff, the Governor general of Eastern Siberia, has paid a visit to the mouth of the Peiho, and was about to be followed there by no less than four Russian gunboats. It was not known what was the object of assembling so large a force at the mouth of the Peiho, as he appeared to be on good terms with the Chinese authorities.

We mentioned in our last overland issue that there had been some rioting at Shanghai, ostensibly on account of the kidnapping of coolies, and that Mr. Lay, the head of the Chinese customs service, had been severely wounded. Mr. Lay, we are glad to hear, is in a fair way of recovery; and the riot, like many other matters in China, has been made much more of than it deserves. Even the North China Herald admits of the alleged kidnapping, that, considering the ventilation it has received, there perhaps never was a case in which the anticipation of important discoveries has been so completely disappointed, or in which charges that first were accepted as scarcely needing further demonstration, are shown to have been advanced on no evidence worth sending to a jury.

We have to note the departure of the following vessels to Great Britain with tea since the despatch of last mail:—From Shanghai—the Challenger, with 580,000 lbs., and the Egmont, with 750,500 lbs. From Fuhchau—the Corrie-mulzie, with 699,400 lbs., and the Polmaise, with 1,005,200 lbs. From Canton—the Cairngorm, with 1,054,400 lbs.; making the total export to date for 1859-60, 8,864,700 lbs.

The Fairy has sailed with 475,300 lbs. of tea from Shanghai, for the United States, and the Sea Star (part) from Fuhchau with 195,800 lbs., making the total to date for 1859-60 of 2,371,600 lbs. The Judith has sailed from Whampoa for New York, but her cargo has not yet been ascertained.

The Challenger has sailed from Shanghai with 1,455 bales of silk for Great Britain, the Egmont with 106, and the steamer Cadiz took 1,716 bales for Southampton, and 156 for Marseilles. The total export to Great Britain to date amounts to 7,231 bales, and to Marseilles 281 bales. The outgoing steamer takes about 1,300 bales for Southampton and Marseilles.—China Mail.

CEYLON.

COLOMBO, September 17.—The railway is again the all-absorbing topic, and steps have been taken which may lead to a settlement of the question, and the dissolution of the agreement with the company. The Select Committee of Council in the early part of the fortnight published the evidence taken by them. This was followed by a report which was not considered of much value, but to which were appended five resolutions, signed by the members of the committee. These state that, desirable as a railway is, it should not be continued at Mr. Doyne's estimates, as the expenditure might even exceed them;—that the present contract involving an unlimited guarantee was regarded with apprehension, and therefore that a modification of its terms should be secured, while the basis of any future agreement was to be a guarantee of interest on £1,500,000, though the limits of the expenditure were to be left to the decision of Mr. R. Stephenson. At the Legislative Council on the 14th an attempt to adopt the report without the resolution was defeated by a majority of ten to five, the Governor, Colonial Secretary, and the Surveyor-General being among the minority. Three of the resolutions, with some little alterations, were passed, and the Council adjourned on the most important, which provided for a modification of the terms of the contract. On re-assembling on the 15th, an amendment was proposed, to the effect that if the company could not complete the railway for £1,500,000, the contract should be annulled; and this was carried, once more by a majority of ten to five. The governor then read a protest he had prepared in anticipation of a defeat, which goes to the Home Government by this mail; and the proceedings terminated by the adoption of the report by a majority of one. As matters stand at present, the colony is determined not to have a railway costing more than £1,500,000, and as it has been stated in some quarters that the company is willing to set the contract aside, the present agreement with the railway company may be considered in a fair way to be annulled.

The weather has been favourable for the shipment of the remainder of the old crop of coffee, and five ships, all for England, have sailed, taking 20,213 cwt. plantation, and 6,523 cwt. native, making in all, 26,736 cwt.

Some new coffee from the low estates is finding its way down to Colombo, and during the next fortnight larger quantities may be looked for. The weather up country appears to be all that can be desired, and the fear now is that the expected large crop will ripen simultaneously, and so some be lost.

The unseemly dispute between the bishop and his warden still continues. Several members of his congregation have addressed the former, requesting him to stop the disturbances until the case is decided by the legal authorities. We understand that the bishop has replied, but in a manner which his flock consider so unsatisfactory that they have given him a sharp rejoinder.—Ceylon Overland Observer.

THE SUPPLY OF LABOUR for the coming crop is still a subject of considerable anxiety, and the arrivals continue small. The Insolent (gunboat), which was intended to work in conjunction with the Manchester in bringing over coolies, has put back to Trincomalee with her boilers burst. Several reasons are stated in accounting for the scanty supply of coolies, and among them we have heard that they are deterred by a remembrance of the high price of provisions here last year, while the timely rains in their own country give them less inducement to seek employment elsewhere.

AN INCORRIGIBLE OFFENDER.—A Singhalese tailor petitioned Sir Henry for leave to marry again, as he had not seen his wife for twenty years. He was thus made happy. "His Excellency the Governor having taken into consideration the petition of B. De Hoon, of Kandy, praying that he may be permitted to marry again, has directed the petitioner to be informed that the Governor has nothing to do with settling matrimonial quarrels, but that his Excellency thinks that a man who has not seen his wife for twenty years may fairly assume that he will not see her again, and do his best to supply her place." The English law makes desertion for seven years a ground for divorce.

A FELINE DONKEY.—According to the Colombo Examiner, the Supreme Court of Ceylon is somewhat less dreary than law courts generally. It is not long since the Bishop of Colombo afforded it most amusing scandal, in the case of a college warden, and soon after it spent nearly a whole day in settling a question respecting a dead ass. The plaintiff had lent the living animal to the defendant to frighten away the rats by its braying. Some days after it was found dead in a well in the garden, with part of the rope round its neck. The plaintiff claimed damages, but was twice non-suited, because the rope by which the animal was tied to the tree was the rope which accompanied it when it was first lent. After elaborate argument, the judges of the Supreme Court acquitted the defendant of negligence, and affirmed the nonsuit, Mr. Justice Sterling remarking, that though it was not the first time their lordships had to do with donkeys, it was certainly the first time within his experience that a donkey was known to be a good mouser.

THE STRAITS.

SARAWAK.—By the arrival of H.M.'s steam frigate Esk we (Singapore Free Press) have advices from Sarawak to the 16th of September. The expedition to the Rejang river, which left Sarawak on the 23rd of August, under Mr. Johnson, arrived at Sirikei on the 26th. The Malays of this place had previously detained all the persons suspected of being concerned in the murders of Messrs. Steele and Fox, and a man named Tani, who appeared to have been the prime mover in the whole affair, and was connected with the Kanawits, was seized on Mr. Johnson's arrival. On the 26th the principal Malays of Sirikei tried this man Tani, together with Si Deraman and six other Malays, who were proved to have been in league with the Kanawit chiefs, Si Kalai and Sawing, and the whole having been found guilty, were immediately executed. One of the actual murderers of Mr. Steele, named Si Abbi, was put to death by the Sirikei people shortly after the murder. The other person who participated in this murder, Si Talip, is reported to have fled to Muka, but it is expected that he will soon be given up. The actual assassin of Mr. Fox was killed on the spot by one of the garrison of the fort, called Sayong, who, from all accounts, was the only one of the fort men who really stood to his duty and did it thoroughly. On the 27th, the chiefs of Sirikei, in conjunction with the Datus and head Malays from Sarawak, who formed part of the expedition, tried, convicted, and executed the Malay writer and five men belonging to the fort, who had surrendered it into the hands of the Kanawits. Mr. Johnson then proceeded to Kanawit and commenced erecting a fort on the site of the old one, but this work was interrupted for a time. It seems that Si Kalai and Sawing had entrenched themselves with their followers at Amah, some distance above Kanawit. All the Dyaks of Kanawit assembled and attacked this place, but after some days fighting they could not take it and returned to Kanawit. Upon this Mr. Johnson started with his party for Amah, which he reached after a march of two hours and a half. He immediately opened fire upon the place with a 6-pounder which had been dragged up from Kanawit, and after a bombardment of some hours the stockade was evacuated by the Kanawits, who had suffered considerable loss. During the bombardment a flag of truce was hoisted, and those of the rebels who wished to surrender were allowed to do so. The losses on Mr. Johnson's side were ten killed and about thirty wounded, principally Dyaks. Si Kalai was killed in the fight, but the fate of Sawing is still uncertain. The expedition then returned to Kanawit, where the fort was completed. The best spirit prevails amongst the Malays and Dyaks in the district, who have shown themselves eager to aid in the capture and punishment of the murderers. All was quiet at Sarawak, and the visit of the Esk would no doubt be of great benefit, in giving confidence to the inhabitants generally.

CENTRAL ASIA.

Our Cabul advices extend to July 22nd:—July 17.—The son of Syed Meer Usgar killed some of the men of the Kohistanes, and arrested three murderers, and brought them before the Dost. On investigation, the Dost released one, imprisoned another, and made over the third (who had murdered the Syed's son) to Syed Meer Usgar Shah, and ordered him to revenge the death of his son. The Syed put him to death. About five o'clock in the evening a man named Khan Sheran Khan was going on his way home, when, near Shore Bazaar, he was fired at with a pistol by a Mooradkanee. The shot missed him, and his followers pursued and caught the man, who was taken before the Ameer. The Ameer ordered the prisoner to be confined in the Furash Khana. July 18.—The Ameer summoned the culprit, and inquired of him whether he intended to shoot the man on his own account, or whether some other individual had prompted him to commit the deed—on the assurance of sparing his life. The prisoner replied that he was in the service of Sirdar Mahomed Ghons Khan (son of Sirdar Syed Mahomed Khan), and that he (his master) had prompted him to commit the act. The Dost, after some consideration and investigation, ordered the hands of the prisoner to be cut off, and paraded through the city as a warning to others. July 19.—The Ameer received news from Herat to the effect that the Ruler of Teheran had granted a sum of 1,000 boodkees per mensem to Sooltan Ahmed Khan, Governor of Herat, and gave him assurances of the continuance of that amount of salary. The Governor of Herat was much pleased with the increase. The inhabitants of Huzara, (a village in Herat) who had hitherto disregarded the authority of Sooltan Ahmed Khan, on hearing that the King of Teheran was much pleased with the Governor, yielded submission to him. July 20 and 21.—Nothing of importance transpired on these days. July 22.—The Dost went to Ulliyabad in company with Sirdar Mahomed Oosman Khan and Sirdar Peer Mahomed Khan; and appointed them in the room of Golan Mahomed Khan. Late in the evening the Ameer received a letter from Kandahar—the contents of which have not yet been made known. Particulars will be given hereafter.—Lahore Chronicle.

THE BENGALI BARBER before commencing operations takes out his brass cup and fills it with water. He then sits down on the floor and opens his razor-case wrapped up in a bit of rag, which ever since it was torn from its parent web has not been submitted to the fuller's soap. The razor of his choice is next picked out, and along with it the whetstone and the primitive strop, which last is nothing more than a piece of common leather. A drop of water is poured on the whetstone, and the razor is moved backwards and forwards upon it. When the razor is ascertained to have attained a good temper, it is rubbed on the strop and allowed to rest on it. Meanwhile, the great business commences, the barber puts his left hand on the crown of the head of his unfortunate victim; dips his right hand, often smelling of the "fragrant reed," in the brass cup; and plies the razor largely upon the cranium, the forehead, the cheeks, and the chin, rubbing them over and over till the parts are well soaked. This done, the razor is taken up and a whole jungle of bushy hair is cleared off. The nails of the fingers and toes are next moistened with water and their bony appendages are neatly pared off, and the nails themselves nicely rubbed. All this is followed in some parts of the Mofussil by a regular shampooing of the legs, the hands, and the back. Nor is this all. The barber thrusts sharp-pointed utensils into the ears, and brings out of their depths any matter which may have accumulated there. And yet for all this labour the worthy craftsman receives the scanty remuneration of only one pie.—Calcutta Review, June, 1859.

THE ANTE-NUPITAL SHAVE.—On the wedding day, and a few hours before the solemn celebration, the Bengali barber takes out his best razor and shaves the forehead of the rejoicing bridegroom. Nor is the barber's wife unemployed on so interesting an occasion. She gently scratches the nails of the fingers of the gay bride, takes the superfluous brawn off the soles of her feet, rubs them with burnt brick, and points them with lac. While these operations go on, what blessings do not both the barber and his wife pour on the heads of the bride and the bridegroom? To the latter the barber eulogises the charms of the girl about to be his, expatiating with an eloquence which experienced orators might envy, on her gazelle-like eyes, her vermillion lips, her elephant-like gait, and her slender frame; while to the former the barber's wife holds out the prospect of heaps of gold, baskets full of ornaments, sons as handsome as Kirtik, the Indian god of war, and daughters beautiful as the Apsaras of Indra's heaven. The nuptial shaving over, the barber and his wife diligently busy themselves with dressing the bride and the bridegroom, and decking them with golden ornaments, and send the air with the marital exclamations of "Ooloo! Ooloo! Ooloo!" And in the eventful hour, when the solemn priest goes through the marriage service, and joins the hands of the happy pair, the barber stands at their elbow as their guardian angel. It is hardly necessary to remark that for all these delightful services the barber is handsomely rewarded.—Calcutta Review, June, 1859.

Education of Musicians at Kneller Hall.

Agreeably to instructions from the Horse Guards, officers comdg. H.M.'s regts. are perm. to send to England, with a view to their studying at Kneller Hall, two musicians per regt.—this number being inclusive of any boys or men who may happen to be already in that institution.

It must be understood that the object of the Kneller Hall Institution is the completion of the education of musicians of talent and experience, with a view to fitting them for the post of bandmaster; and in their selection of bandmen for this purpose, commanding officers must be careful to choose those, who by their talent and application have already shown themselves likely to become accomplished musicians, and capable of instructing others and leading a band.

The men thus selected will proceed to the ports of embarkation with detachments of invalids, time-expired men, &c., as opportunities may occur, under divisional arrangement;—a nominal roll being furnished to this dept.

Treasury Bills.—New Form.

Financial Dept., Fort William, Aug. 23.—Notification.—Notice is hereby given that, in substitution of the two forms of treasury bills, published in the notification of this department, No. 34, dated April 30, 1859, subscribers have the option of receiving treasury bills in triplicate in the following forms, subject to the conditions specified therein:—

TREASURY BILL.

First No.	Calcutta	1859.
(MADRAS OR BOMBAY AS THE CASE MAY BE.)

The Governor-general of India in Council, on behalf of the Secretary of State in Council of India, does hereby promise to pay the sum of _____ Company's rupees, together with any interest that may be due thereon, at the rate of two and a half pias a day for every hundred rupees to _____ executors or administrators or _____ their order, at the general treasury in Calcutta (Madrass or Bombay as the case may be), three months after sight, and presentation at the office of the Accountant General in Calcutta, (Madrass or Bombay as the case may be) of this First of Treasury Bill No. _____ (Second and Third of the same tenor and date being unpaid) for value received as a loan to the said Secretary of State in Council of India; provided that the said sum shall be liable to be paid off at the option of the Governor general in Council, at any time after the expiration of one year from this date, upon three months' notice previously given in the Calcutta Gazette, after which all further interest will cease. In case of presentment as aforesaid, the principal sum of _____ rupees will be payable at the General Treasury in Calcutta (Madrass or Bombay, as the case may be), at any time after the expiration of three months from the date of acceptance, together with interest at the rate aforesaid up to the expiration of the period of three months; but all interest shall cease from the expiration of that period.

Secretary to the Govt. of India.

Officers doing Duty with Discharged Men.

Head Quarters, Simla, August 13.—The C. in C. is pleased to announce for general information that the following arrangements regarding the officers directed to do duty with the discharged men of the Indian army proceeding to England have been sanctioned by Government:—

That the time passed on the voyage home and on the return to India, together with such reasonable time in addition as may be allowed to officers to remain at home, and which will be fixed by the Home Government, will be permitted to reckon as service in India.

The officers are to be entitled to a free passage home, and a return passage to India either with or without troops, provided they return at the expiration of such term as her Majesty's Government may permit them to remain in England in case of their not being required for any duty, for which it must be understood they will be at once liable, if needed.

The question of the rate of pay and allowances to be drawn by these officers for such period after quitting India as they may be considered on duty, will be referred for the consideration and orders of the Home Government.

In anticipation of the sanction of Government, the C. in C. is pleased to direct the following temporary organisation of the European regiments of H.M.'s Indian army on the Bengal establishment, from the 1st proximo:—

Cavalry regiments to be divided into troops of not less than fifty rank and file of the number borne on the returns, and exclusive of all men taking their discharge.

The horses to be equally distributed among the troops that will then remain.

Infantry regiments are to be divided into companies of not less than sixty rank and file of the number borne on the returns, and exclusive of all men taking their discharge.

All existing sergeants, drummers, and trumpeters, are to be divided as equally as possible amongst the troops and companies; and promotions are not to take place, until further orders, or until the number of non-commissioned officers fall below the proportion recently fixed; viz., 1 sergeant and 1 corporal to every 19 privates, exclusive of staff non-commissioned officers.

Native Soldiers bearing Arms.

Head Quarters, Simla, August 5.—It having been brought to the notice of the C. in C. that due regard has not been paid to G.O., June 10, 1858, prohibiting native soldiers serving at stations East of the Sutlej bearing arms of any kind when absent from their corps otherwise than on duty, H.E. again enjoins the strictest attention thereto.

At the same time, Lord Clyde is pleased to direct that the above order shall not for the present be considered applicable to the soldiers of the Pathan and Mooltan cavalry who are now, or may hereafter be, serving in Hindostan.

These men may be permitted to carry their private arms to their homes on the condition that the weapons so carried shall be described in a pass, under the signature of their commanding officer, whose duty it will be to explain to the men that such weapons must be brought back on their rejoining from leave, and to see that his injunctions on that head are rigidly obeyed.

The number of arms permitted to be carried under this proviso should be restricted to one, or at most two, for each sowar.

Extension of Uncovenanted Pension Rules.

Financial Department, Fort William, August 26.—The following extract (paragraph 7), from a despatch from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, addressed to the Government of India, in the financial department, No. 68 of 1859, dated July 14, is published for general information:—

Para. 7.—As there appears to be no reason for excluding officers and superior servants of the marine department from the operation of the Uncovenanted Service Pension Rules, I accede to your recommendation that they be admitted to the same benefits in that respect as other uncovenanted servants.*

Publication of the Police Gazette of the N. W. Provinces.

Judicial Department, Allahabad, August 15.—The Police Gazette of the North-Western Provinces will, after this date, be issued from the government press at Allahabad, under the direction of the superintendent.

All notices of aggravated crimes, of the names of offenders, and the rewards offered for their apprehension, and of other particulars requisite for publication in the Police Gazette, must, therefore, be communicated to the superintendent at Allahabad, and not the magistrate of Agra, as was directed in Notification No. 927, dated April 16, 1858.

Concessions to Holders of Promissory Notes.

Aug. 29.—It is hereby notified that the Right Hon. the Governor General in Council has, with the permission of the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, been pleased to extend to the Holders of Promissory Notes of the 4 per Cent.,  $\frac{4\frac{1}{2}}$  per Cent., and  $\frac{3\frac{1}{2}}$  per Cent. Loans entered in the margin,† the concession granted under the Financial Notification, No. 29, dated 20th April last, to the Holders of Promissory Notes of the 5 and  $\frac{5\frac{1}{2}}$  per Cent. the Form given in the Notification above adverted to, payable to bearer, and signed by the Accountant General to the Government of India.

By Order of H. E. the Right Hon. the Governor General of India in Council.

C. HUGH LESINGTON,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

European Subordinates.

The attention of officers in all departments, subject to the Punjab Govt., is directed to the subjoined order* of H. E. the Viceroy and Gov. gen., in the public works department.

Officers requiring European subordinates are instructed to place themselves in communication with the commanding officers of H. M.'s regiments serving in India, with the view of obtaining the services of men certified to possess the general and special qualifications proper to the department in which it is intended to employ them. The Lieut. governor believes there are many posts in which steady intelligent Europeans could be advantageously employed.

DELHI BANK.

A GENERAL MEETING of the shareholders of the Delhi Bank was held at Delhi, on the 16th of August; J. C. Murphy, Esq., in the chair. According to the manager's report, it appears that during the half year terminating on the 30th June last, surplus profits were realised to the extent of Rs. 86,098-5-2, "equivalent to a dividend of Rs. 8-9-9 per cent. per annum on the entire capital of the bank, although upwards of four lakhs of rupees still lie unproductive." It was resolved that of this sum Rs. 70,000 should be added to the dividend account, which will thus amount to two lakhs, and that the balance be applied to the purchase or erection of suitable offices at Mussoorie and Allahabad. Considerable progress is reported to have been made in the recovery of lost securities, and application is about to be made to Government for the appointment of a Commission "to examine into the equity of claims against their servants either repudiated, disputed, or unadmitted, with the view to their realisation by coercive means." It is thought probable that this extraordinary measure will be sanctioned, as the bank's claim for compensation would thereby be considerably diminished. Through the unaccountable carelessness of the late Commissioner of Delhi, not one of the schedules of losses experienced in his district in consequence of the rebellion was forwarded to the Government. His successor, however, has lost no time in laying the various applications before the Lieutenant-governor of the Punjab, who will, doubtless, act with his characteristic promptitude. The branches at Mussoorie and Allahabad have already more than covered their expenses, and are expected to prove valuable auxiliaries hereafter. The securities furnished by Mr. H. P. Healy and Mr. C. H. Rushton having been judged satisfactory, those gentlemen were confirmed in their respective appointments of Deputy and Sub-Deputy Managers. In conclusion, we may mention that the accounts were audited by Mr. George Wagentreiber and Mr. W. H. Marshall.

LOCAL EUROPEAN FORCE FOR INDIA.

Of the numerous suggestions on the subject of a local European army furnished by officers of acknowledged ability and experience, there are none more worthy of consideration than those contained in a brief pamphlet from the pen of Colonel Vincent Eyre, C.B., Bengal Artillery. Certainly no one is more competent than this highly distinguished officer to form a correct opinion as to the requirements of an Indian army, its organisation and character. His own brilliant services are too fresh in the memory of every Englishman not to insure a respectful attention to any proposition put forward in his name, even if it proved on examination faulty and impracticable. But in the present instance his views are so thoroughly practical, so simple and straightforward, that they would commend themselves to the judgment even of those who were not prepossessed in his favour. Without further preamble, then, we shall content ourselves with condensing into the fewest possible words the pith of Colonel Eyre's observations. He commences by alluding to the disappointment so generally felt with regard to the recent misconduct of the local European regiments. This untoward circumstance is attributed to the inferiority of the recruits lately enlisted to those who were formerly sent out. Drawn from the dregs of the manufacturing population, they were hastily despatched to the East without being first subjected to a proper course of military discipline. These raw lads were massed together in regiments 1,000 strong and placed under officers taken from the native army, who had previously enjoyed no experience as to the management of European troops. Lax habits of discipline and an unhealthy tone of feeling thus crept into the service, and ultimately resulted in wide-spread disaffection and even mutiny. Now, it so happens that the troubled aspect of Continental Europe has inspired thinking men with serious misgivings as to the sufficiency of our home defences to repel an invasion. Consequently, twenty-four extra battalions have been raised for the home service until troops can be spared from India. But very many years must elapse before it will be safe to maintain a smaller force than 60,000 to 80,000 Europeans in that country, and of this number at least one-third should constitute a local army. This being the case, Colonel Eyre proposes to convert the supernumerary second battalions into permanent garrison battalions, corresponding with a like number of Indian battalions for local service in the East, and that the former should act as recruiting depôts for the latter.

"The system of promotion by seniority," he continues, "should prevail in both these local services alike, and exchanges should be freely allowed between them under certain conditions—i.e., an individual attached to a home battalion might exchange with another in the corresponding Indian battalion, ceteris paribus."

"Under this system the home battalions would be at once recruiting depôts and nurseries for our Indian regiments and arks of refuge for our veteran heroes after the latter have undergone a sufficient quantum of exposure and bulleting in India. By this reciprocity of interests both countries would be gainers. India would gain a constant succession of healthy young soldiers, ready disciplined and prepared to do credit to our country and service in the East, while England would obtain for her own defence a constant supply of home-sick yet still efficient and valuable veterans, experienced in war, with medals on their breast and loyalty in their hearts, to stimulate their younger brethren and 'show how fields were won.' Each service would take a pride in and reflect a glory on the other; the successes of either would be causes of triumph to both; and thus would the army of India be indissolubly wedded to that of England by a never failing bond of mutual interests and mutual regard."

"Thus, too, would the Indian local service again attract the better classes of recruits who now hold aloof, and would at once attain a locus standi sufficiently distinguished to inspire its own members with pride and the sister services with respect."

Matters of exchange and promotion would be regulated by the Horse-guards in concert with the Commander-in-Chief in India, "but in all other respects the local Government should have full control." By this means soldiers, and not mere recruits, would be always available for service in India, while a permanent force of veterans would be obtained for the defence of this island. With certain modifications, a similar arrangement might be made with respect to local cavalry corps; while in the artillery, where the seniority system already prevails, there need be no real difficulty so far as the question of exchange is concerned.

THE ANDAMAN ISLANDS.

In a recent number of this journal we endeavoured to embody such general information on the subject of the Andaman Islands as could be derived from the selections from official papers published by order of the Indian Government. Since then some curious particulars as to the habits and internal economy of the Andamanese have been obtained from an escaped convict who has voluntarily given himself up after thirteen months' residence among those barbarous islanders. We shall give the story as nearly as possible in the words of the narrator. On the 6th April, 1858, a batch of ninety convicts effected their escape from the penal settlement on Ross Island, by means of rafts constructed of trees lashed together with tent ropes. Their idea was to take service under the "Rajah of Burmah," whose capital they imagined was only ten days distant. Soon after landing on Andaman Island they were joined by another large party, who had escaped from Phoenix Bay and Chatham Island Stations, so that their combined numbers amounted to one hundred and thirty. But freedom without food is at best a doubtful advantage. The underwood was so dense that they had great difficulty in making their way through it, and more than once they found themselves at a spot which they had left a few days before. Their cooking utensils, and even most of their drinking vessels, were lost in crossing the channel from Ross Island, and for the first eight days they had nothing whatever to eat. After that they occasionally met with trees bearing "a grateful fruit like the Indian Ber, but the supply was not plentiful, and was obtained with great difficulty." Water was almost as rare as food, and was only found "in small springs oozing through the sides of hills." Fortunately a few sepoys had contrived to save their axes, and with these they cut down the stems of a huge creeping cane, which yielded a small quantity of pure cold water. Nevertheless, they were occasionally compelled to pass whole days without a single drop to moisten their lips; so that twelve of the party soon fell behind and were left to perish. Although traces of the aborigines were frequently observed, it was the fourteenth day before the fugitives encountered them in person. The meeting was by no means a friendly one. The savages, to the number of about 100, were armed with bows and arrows, with which they instantly attacked the convicts. The latter made no resistance, but endeavoured to conciliate the natives by assuming the attitude of suppliants. Several of the sepoys having been killed or wounded, the others broke and rushed into the jungle. Doodnath Tewarry, a Brahmin sepoy of the 14th B.N.I., the narrator of this tale, having received three wounds, fled with a wounded comrade, one Shoo Dutt, a Brahmin, and reached the seashore late in the afternoon, when he was joined by another fugitive of the Koormee caste. Having passed the night without food or drink, they resumed their wanderings early next morning, and suddenly came upon a large party of natives, who were embarking in some canoes, but on seeing the convicts pursued them into the jungle and killed two of them. Doodnath himself was wounded in the left arm, and pulled out of his hiding-place by the leg. The savages then retreated a short distance, and fired another volley of arrows, hitting him on the hip and waist. On this he simulated death; but on the arrow being drawn from his hip he opened his eyes and joined his palms together in supplication. His tormentors seemed now to be suddenly touched with compassion. They assisted him to their boats, and tenderly placed him in the bottom of one of them. They then rubbed his neck and nostrils with red earth moistened with water, and plastered his wounds with wet earth of a light colour. In about two hours they arrived at a small island named Turmooglee, the largest of a group of seven or eight, about eight miles distant from the south-west coast of the Great Andaman Island. For nearly twelve months poor Doodnath dwelt with his new friends, continually on the move from island to island, and comporting himself entirely after their fashion. At first he was narrowly watched, but no labour was ever exacted from him, and to the last he was never entrusted with any weapons. Though kindly treated throughout, he evidently longed to return to his own people; and at last an opportunity presented itself of the most favourable nature. The aborigines had planned a daring attack upon the penal settlement at Port Blair, tempted by the prospect of possessing themselves of the convict tools. A party of 250 men, women, and children accordingly landed on the main island, where they were reinforced by fifteen of their own tribe and an escaped convict named Sudloo. In the afternoon of the 16th of May they encamped about two miles from the station at Aberdeen, and danced the war dance. At length, wearied alike by marching and dancing, they laid them down and slept, and in the silence of the night the two convicts escaped to the settlement and gave notice of the intended attack. The warning came none too soon. Scarcely were the preparations for defence completed when the savages rushed in upon them. The reception that awaited the assailants was, however, not encouraging, and they soon lost heart and took to flight. It is not stated what reward was bestowed upon the two sepoys, but we doubt not that a free pardon has been awarded to them.

If Doodnath's statement be correct, the population of these islands must be far greater than is usually supposed. He says that, although he could not have travelled over more than a fourth part of the Great Andaman Island, he is certain he met with at least 15,000 men, women, and children. However, it is quite possible he may have met the same individuals more than once, for the recognition of 15,000 persons in the course of a year cannot be a very easy task where all are entirely destitute of clothing, speak the same language, and have similar features, complexions, and eyes, and the same habits and customs. He adds that the population is increasing, that there are more births than deaths, that the climate is not unfavourable to health, and that infanticide is unknown. The inhabitants are mostly found along the coast and in the small islets grouped at an easy distance. At times they make expeditions into the interior to hunt pigs or to gather fruit, but always return to their huts before sunset. They usually travel in parties of from thirty to fifty, and are constantly migrating from one spot to another.

"The aborigines," continues Doodnath, "are undoubtedly an uncivilised people, but they most certainly are not cannibals in any way, for they neither devour human bodies in any form, nor do they eat uncooked animal food in any form. They are a wild people, most savagely inclined to strangers generally, but most kindly disposed in their conduct to each other. They do not seem to have any idea of a Supreme Being, go about naked, have little or no shame, and hardly know what fear is; they have very few wants, and these are easily obtained on the spot; they know nothing whatever of cultivation, subsisting by hunting and fishing, aided by wild fruits and roots, all of which are cooked in the simplest manner."

The marriage ceremony is a model of simplicity. The parties chiefly concerned are never even consulted. Some old man of the party takes it into his head that such a young man should be united to such a young woman, and accordingly sends for them to his presence and joins them in marriage:—

"I have seen five marriage ceremonies, and the ceremony has always been the same. Towards evening the bride having painted her body in stripes with her fingers smeared with red earth, moistened with turtle oil, sits on leaves spread over the ground by way of carpet or bed: the bridegroom, similarly painted, squats on his carpet of leaves at a distance of ten or twelve paces off. They thus sit in silence for about an hour, after which the individual who is to join them comes from his hut, takes the bridegroom by the hand, and leads him where the bride is, and having seated him without saying a word, presents him with five or six iron headed arrows, and returns to his hut, leaving the married couple alone, and they sit alongside of each other in perfect silence for several hours, that is until it be quite dark: next day they converse with one another as usual. I was myself united to two women without my consent being asked, and I do not think the women were asked whether they would like the arrangement. There was no ceremony whatever in my case; unexpectedly Poteeah came to me, and without saying a word led me about four paces off to where his daughter Leepa and the daughter of Heera, named Jigah, were seated, and indicating to me to seat myself between them, I complied, and he said, pointing to the two women, and addressing me, 'jiree jog,' and then immediately left the spot. I found that I was married to both Leepa and Jigah. The usual ceremony had been dispensed with, for neither of us were painted, and no arrows were presented to me. For about three hours we sat in silence, and from thenceforward I slept with them."

The offspring of these simple rites appear to be very similar in their habits to those born from the more imposing ceremonies of civilised countries, and are equally fond of making "dirt pies."

"The child on being born is immediately washed by one of the women in cold fresh water, poured upon it either from a bamboo water-vessel, or more frequently from a shell. Its wet body is dried by the hand, which is heated before the fire, and quickly and repeatedly, but very gently, applied. Any woman of the party who is suckling gives the new-born child her breast for a day or two until its mother's milk comes. Children are suckled as long as their mothers have milk to give them. As no such thing as cloth is used by the aborigines, new-born infants remain without covering unless it rains during a march, when a few leaves are sewn together with rattan as thread, and used as a covering. The leaves of which such a covering is made, and the covering itself, is in their language termed 'kapa.'"

"Andamane parents manifest the same fondness for their offspring as is manifested by parents in Hindustan, and children exhibit the usual affection and respect for their parents."

"Children amuse themselves much in the same way as they do in Hindustan. The girls are very fond of playing with the sand on the beach, raising it in a circle or square around them, calling the interior their house (bood), and imitating the manners and customs of grown-up people. Boys at about the age of three years play with little bows and arrows; and by the time they are allowed to accompany their fathers into the jungle (which is when they are about eight years old), they are capable of taking a good aim."

The remaining portion of Doodnath's statement we give in extenso:—

"The women, whether married or unmarried, rarely accompany the men on their almost daily pig-hunting excursion into the jungle, but stay in the encampment, and arrange for the supply of drinking water, firewood, fish and shell-fish, nurse the infants, and take care of the children, cook the food they may have procured to be ready for the men's return, make baskets, spin twine, and make small fishing nets. Occasionally, the women are sent in a body into the jungle to collect and carry into the encampment fruit which the men while out hunting have seen. The women have sometimes to go several miles for fresh water, which is carried in large bamboos from six to nine feet long, in which all the interior partitions, except the lowest, have been destroyed by the introduction of a smaller bamboo. A woman carries two such bamboos full of water, the weight varying from eighty to one hundred lbs. (nhi. dus puseree). The women take advantage of the ebbing tide to collect the shell-fish on the rocks, and to catch the fish, which the receding tide leaves in the pools formed by the irregularities of the rocky beach, which is on the western coast exposed to a great distance out at low water. A small hand net stretched on a hoop is used by the women to catch the fish in these pools."

"The aborigines do not allow a particle of hair to remain on their bodies, and it is the women who act as barbers to the men, women, and children, and shave them cleanly and quickly with small chips of bottle glass, of the size of a small beam, but not thicker than the blade of a pen-knife. To make suitable chips some art is required; the piece of glass is struck sharply on the very edge with a hard stone found on the beach."

"It is very little indeed of medicine and surgery that is known to the aborigines, but the little that is known is practised by the women. The application of red earth mixed with turtle oil, which seems to be their great remedy for all diseases, is applied by the women. Severe pains, bruises, and swelling are treated by local blood-letting, and it is the women who, with the same pieces of bottle-glass they use for shaving, incise the skin to make the blood flow."

"All the aborigines are tattooed, both men and women; the whole body, with the exception of the head and neck, the lower part of the abdomen, the hands and the feet, is closely pricked, or, rather, incised, with small pieces of bottle-glass; the operation is performed by the women during the months of January, February, March, and April (Magh, Phagoon, Chyrt, Bysakh) on children of the age of eight or ten years. The reason that those months are selected is, that they include the wild fruit season, when, owing to abundant supply of the jack (Kuthur in Hindustanee, Kaeta or Kuyeta in Andamane), and the Doogeta (the Andamane name of a yellow, many-stoned fruit of the size of a large plum) there is much less demand for fish, and consequently the children can be spared from the necessity of going into the sea, which would render the tattoo wounds exceedingly painful. A limb, or a portion of one, is tattooed in a month, and as the operation is performed only during the season mentioned, two and sometimes three years elapse before it is completed. As soon as the limb or portion of a limb is incised, the bleeding wounds are smeared all over with a white earth, which is either lime itself or something very like it. In two or three days after the operation, all the wounds fester more or less, and proud flesh or granulations appear from between the incisions, which heal in two or three weeks. No colouring matter is inserted into the incisions, and consequently the marks of the operation are of a paler colour than the surrounding skin, presenting the appearance that is seen on a person's skin where he has lain upon a rough matter, or upon wicker work. Owing to the incisions having healed by granulation, the cicatrices are slightly higher than the surrounding skin."

"The women, however, do not perform for the men the numerous kindly offices both in health and in sickness which the women of Hindustan perform towards their fathers, brothers, and husbands. The only attention I have seen them perform for their husbands is to rub them over with a mixture of earth and water at evening time. It makes the body feel cool, and assists in preventing the mosquitoes, which exist in great abundance, from biting the skin."

"On the march the women carry the young children usually in a sling made of the inner bark of a tree. The sling is about six inches wide: its two ends are thinned and knotted together, and it is worn suspended round the mother's neck and chest, allowing the loose part to hang half way down the back. It is in this part that the child is seated, its legs passing over the mother's loins or hips, and its hands and fore-arms passing under her arms, so as to be compressed against the mother's sides, in the armpits."

"On the march the women also carry the empty bamboos used as water-vessels, and any spare cooked or uncooked provisions they may have. On arrival at the place of encampment the women go into jungle, pluck green leaves for bedding, and then return again to cut long palm-leaves for thatching the huts or sheds they are about to construct. These are so simple that a woman can construct one in two hours, including the time spent in plucking leaves and cutting palm-brances. The latter operation is not performed with either knife or axe, but with a sharp shell, named 'ota' in their language, and which is extensively used in shaping and sharpening arrows. If the party happens to halt at a former encampment, where huts are available, they do not construct new ones, but occupy the old; and if the party cannot be entirely accommodated, a few new huts are constructed. As a party rarely occupies an encampment more than one or two days (four days is considered a very long residence), the women have a good deal of work in the building of huts to perform."

MISCELLANEOUS.

STATUE TO GENERAL NEILL.—The inauguration of the statue in honour of the late Brigadier Neill took place on Tuesday, the 10th, at Ayr, in Wellington-square. The figure is of colossal size, ten feet high, and stands upon a pedestal of Dalbeattie granite, twelve feet high. The incident depicted by the artist is that which occurred at the railway station at Hawraw: General Neill and the Fusiliers were about to proceed to quell the mutiny at Benares. A portion of the regiment not having arrived when the train was about to start, the railway official insisted on it proceeding without them, but General Neill immediately and on the spot had him arrested; the soldiers coming up shortly afterwards, the Fusiliers started for the scene of danger, and, under their great commander, speedily restored the disturbed district to tranquillity. Among the immense assemblage present were the Earl of Eglinton, Viscount Ingestre, Major Gordon, aide-de-camp to General Neill, and many other distinguished persons.

INDIA-OFFICE, Dec. 9, 1858.—The Queen has been graciously pleased to appoint Captain Christopher Palmer Rigny, of her Majesty's Indian Forces, to be her Majesty's Consul at Zanzibar.

CLAPHAM-COMMON.

TO be LET, a HOUSE, consisting of good dining and drawing-rooms, five bed-rooms, and excellent domestic offices. In substantial and ornamental repair. Apply to Mr. MACLACHLAN, House Agent, 35, St. James's-street and Clapham-common.

WARWICKSHIRE.—FAMILY MAN-

SION, with MANOR of 4,000 to 5,000 Acres. To be SOLD, or LET for a Term of Years, an important Freehold FAMILY MANSION-HOUSE in Leamington, which, from the large outlay made upon it, is one of the most complete in the kingdom, combining all the advantages of a town and country residence. It contains four spacious reception-rooms, and a suitable number of dormitories, with every convenience in the offices for a large establishment. There is also a Pleasure Garden adjoining, with three very productive Vine-houses, and most complete Stables, with large courtyard, comprising accommodation for fourteen horses, and a four-roomed Cottage for Head Groom.

With the above can be had on lease a MANOR of from 4,000 to 5,000 acres, in a ring fence, with Two Houses for Keepers, comprising 700 acres of fine woodland. It is within five miles of Leamington, and is bounded by the preserved lands of the Earl of Warwick, Lord Leigh, and Wren Hoskyn, Esq.; and the whole is abundantly stocked with pheasants, hares, birds, and rabbits. There is also in it one of the finest trout streams in Warwickshire. The modern furniture of the Mansion may, if required, be taken at a valuation, and early possession may be had.

For further particulars apply to Messrs. COOKES, SONS, and MEYERS, Midland Counties Estate and House Agency Offices, Leamington.

GENTLEMEN, if you want a Treat, try EAMES'S PATENT TROUSERS, a perfect and elegant fit, falling gracefully over the instep, with or without straps, giving that freedom and comfort so necessary in walking or riding. If you try them once, you will soon change your tailor. The texture and pattern are the best the market can produce. The price, 17s. 6d. to 25s. What a luxury to have produce in a Coat—to fit easy, and without a crease! Try EAMES'S PATENT TROUSERS, 10, VERNON-PLACE, Bloomsbury-square, W.C. You will be pleased with the fit, style, and price.

THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS.

A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF BRITISH AND FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

This Newspaper presents a comprehensive and perfect view of British and Foreign affairs, with special reference to those subjects in any way interesting to residents in India, or those at home having connections there. The Intelligence is brought down to the latest possible moment prior to the departure of the Mail. The various departments are so arranged, and the intelligence analysed, as to form a weekly register of permanent interest and value, which subscribers will be glad to preserve.

The weekly issue of "THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS" renders it as eligible a newspaper for Anglo-Indians resident at home as abroad.

Families should send it to their friends abroad.

HINDUSTANI BOOKS IN ENGLISH TYPE.

Now ready, in One Vol. post 8vo., price 6s. 6d. cloth,

BAG-O-BAHAR: the Hindustani Text of Mir Amman, edited in Roman Type, with Notes, and an Introductory Chapter on the use of the Roman Character in Oriental Languages. By MONIER WILLIAMS, M.A., Univ. Coll. Oxon.; late Professor of Sanskrit at the East India College, Haileybury.

The "Bag-o-Bahar," or the Garden and the Spring, is considered, as to style, the standard of elegant Urdu or Hindustani; and it has therefore been fixed upon as the Text-Book for Examinations in India and England. It is now published for the first time in this country in the Roman character, with English Notes and Preface. A new edition of Professor Eastwick's literal translation of the "Bag-o-Bahar," with Preface, and Notes Philological and Exegetical, is in the press.

ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, an Oriental, Botanical Preparation for Improving and Beautifying the Complexion and Skin. It is distinguished for its extremely bland, purifying, and soothing effects on the skin; while, by its action on the pores and minute secretory vessels, it promotes a healthy tone, allays every tendency to inflammation, and thus effectually dissipates all redness, tan, pimples, spots, freckles, discolorations, and other cutaneous visitations. The radiant bloom it imparts to the cheek, the softness and delicacy which it induces of the hands and arms, its capability of soothing irritation, and removing cutaneous defect, render it indispensable to every toilet.

It obviates all the effects of Climate on the Skin, whether with reference to cold and inclemency or intense solar heat. CAUTION.—The words "ROWLANDS' KALYDOR," &c., are on the wrapper of each bottle, and their signature, "A. ROWLAND and SONS," in red ink at foot. Price 4s. 6d. and 8s. 6d.

TEETH.

No. 9, LOWER GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.—Newly-invented and Patented application of chemically prepared WHITE and GUM-COLOURED INDIA-RUBBER in the construction of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, GUMS, and PALATES.

Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon-Dentist, No. 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee.

A new, original, and invaluable invention, consisting in the adaptation, with the most absolute perfection and success, of chemically prepared White and Gum-coloured India-rubber, as a lining to the ordinary gold or bone frame. The extraordinary results of this application may be briefly noted in a few of their most prominent features.

All sharp edges are avoided; no springs, wires, or fastenings, are required; a greatly increased freedom of suction is supplied, a natural elasticity, hitherto wholly unattainable; and a fit, perfected with the most unerring accuracy, is secured; while, from the softness and flexibility of the agents employed, the greatest support is given to the adjoining teeth when loose, or rendered tender by the absorption of the gums.

The acids of the mouth exert no agency on the chemically prepared India-rubber, and, as it is a non-conductor, fluids of any temperature may with thorough comfort be imbibed and retained in the mouth, all unpleasantness of smell and taste being, at the same time, wholly provided against by the peculiar nature of its preparation.

To be obtained only at 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, London; 14, Gay-street, Bath; and 10, Eldon-square, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

By BARNES, MORGAN, and Co.

(the Originators of this method of preserving). Upper Thames-street, London, E.C. This mode of Preserving is now acknowledged to be far superior to any yet invented. The contents will keep good for any number of years without the Tin imparting any metallic taste to the Preserve, and never candy or ferment. To Regimental Messes they are peculiarly adapted, being more portable than jars, and not liable to breakage. B. M. and Co. would also recommend their Pickles, Sauces, Tart Fruits, &c., and their large stock of York and Cumberland Hams, Cheese, and Bacon.

IMPORTANT SALE of first-class new and second-hand FURNITURE.—J. DENT and Co. beg to announce to the public that they have purchased the entire Furniture of several large houses, which, added to their already the largest Stock in London, they are offering at half its real value; comprising suites of dining, drawing, and bedroom appendages, in oak, mahogany, walnut, and other woods; mahogany dining-room chairs at 15s.; walnut drawing-room ditto, in silk, at 18s. 6d.; telescope dining-tables, at 80s.; iron bedsteads, at 8s. 6d.; every other article proportionately cheap, at the Great Western Furniture Bazaar, 30, 31, 32, and 99, Crawford-street, Baker-street. Established Thirty Years. Shippers to hot climates will find the above Stock unequalled in London.

OUTFITS TO INDIA.—Families requiring PLATE, CUTLERY, &c., will find SLACK'S ELECTRO-PLATE the most durable. It is generally used by the principal Officers in H.M.S., also by his Excellency Lord CLYDE, Commander-in-Chief.

SLACK'S NICKEL ELECTRO-PLATE,

Manufactured solely by RICHARD and JOHN SLACK.

It has stood twenty years' test, and still retains its superiority over all others for durability and silverlike appearance. Cruet Frames, from 18s.; Corner Dishes, £8. 6s. per set, forming eight dishes; Tea and Coffee Sets, £3. 0s.; and every article as in Silver.

THE MELTON RIDING BELT.—Important to those who are suffering from Weakness in the Back and General Debility. The following is printed by permission:—

"Sir,—You ask for my opinion of your Melton Riding Belt; I give it. Having resided for a long time in India, my constitution is very much debilitated, and for a long time I was suffering from a weakness in the back and the lower part of the body, which no internal remedy could reach, and the slightest exertion completely overpowered me. I was ordered by my medical man to wear a support, and seeing your advertisement I obtained one of your Melton Riding Belts, which I have worn for the last five months. It gives me great support. I can take riding or other exercise without feeling that extreme lassitude and weariness afterwards. My general health is much improved. You have my best thanks. You will secure my best support.—Yours truly,

"Torquay, July 30, 1859. "J. PRATT MATHEWSON.

"To Wm. Elstah, 12, Avery-row, Bond-street."

The Melton Belt is sold by A. WHITEBURN, Chemist, 174, Regent-street; of J. G. SHIPLEY, 179 and 181, Regent-street, London, price 21s.

Circulars and every information sent on receipt of address, and the Belt sent free on the size of the waist and hips being sent to Wm. ELSTAH, the Sole Maker and Inventor, 12, Avery-row, Brook-street, Bond-street.

Gentlemen waited on if preferred.

Post-office Orders payable to WILLIAM ELSTAH, at Cavendish-street.

TEETH WITHOUT SPRINGS.—By Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent.

Improper mastication and the evils attendant thereon may be avoided by wearing Artificial Teeth properly constructed and of pure Materials.

Messrs. GABRIEL, the Old-Established Dentists' Treatise on the Loss and best means of Restoring the Teeth, explains their System of supplying Artificial Masticators with Vulcanised Gum-coloured India Rubber as a base; no metal whatsoever is used—springs and wires are entirely dispensed with, while a greatly-increased amount of suction is obtained, together with the best materials and first-class workmanship, at less than half the ordinary cost.

"Gabriel's Treatise is of importance to all requiring the dentist's aid, and emanating from such a source, it may be confidently relied on."—United Service Gazette.

"Thousands requiring artificial teeth are deterred from consulting a dentist fearing the anticipated cost, or dread of failure—to all such we say peruse 'Gabriel's Treatise.'—Civil Service Gazette.

Published by Messrs. GABRIEL (gratis on application, or sent on receipt of three postage stamps), at their Establishments—33, Ludgate-hill, and 110, Regent-street, London (observe name and numbers particularly); and 134, Duke-street, Liverpool.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS

is allowed, by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen, to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of HERNIA. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-

MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body, two inches below the hips, being sent to the Manufacturer,

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.

—COUGHS, ASTHMA.—The foggy and damp evening air now constantly induce the troublesome cough, which, being neglected, is followed by inflammation of the chest. On a cough first appearing the throat, back, and breast of the sufferer should be well rubbed twice a day with Holloway's

Ointment, his Pills should be freely taken, flannel should be worn next the skin, exposure to cold should be avoided, and the wearied invalid will find every untoward symptom speedily and permanently disappear and all ill consequences happily averted. A few days' pursuance of these means will check all perspiration and permit a comfortable night's rest; the ex-pectoration will decline, the emaciation cease, the shortness of breath vanish, and health return.

DR. JAMES'S POWDER for FEVERS,

INFLUENZA, MEASLES, RHEUMATISM, and all

Inflammatory Disorders. No Medicine Chest is complete without it. So simple and certain, so mild and peculiar, is its action, that it is fitted alike for domestic or professional use. The genuine has "F. NEWBERRY, No. 45, ST. PAUL'S

CHURCHYARD, London, engraved on the Government

Stamp. Packets, 2s. 9d. each; Bottles, 11s. Be careful to ask for "NEWBERRY'S," the Original Preparation. Estab-

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.:—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

The Mails for China are despatched at the same rate of postage as those to India; but must be pre-paid.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE intelligence brought from India by the Mail of the 26th September presents but few points to be noticed. On the whole it is decidedly satisfactory, and all the more so for being common-place. At the same time it is hard upon a summarist to have nothing to summarise.

It is stated that Mr. Bruce has applied to the Indian Government for 15,000 troops to be sent to China, but the report is probably not more authentic than that which assigns to Lord Clyde the command of the expeditionary force—subject to the approval of the Home Authorities. In the present state of his health, if there were no other objection, his Excellency is not very likely to proceed to China for change of air. Her Majesty's 67th and 99th Regiments are, however, under orders for the eastward, and the latter has been reinforced by numerous volunteers from the lately disbanded militia levies. Some of the Punjabee regiments, it is expected, will also be despatched to seek new laurels in the form of Chinese pig-tails.

Though it cannot strictly be said that tranquillity is restored throughout Central India, it is evident that the rebels are now reduced to the condition of bands of undisciplined marauders. The only chief of note still at large is Prince Feroze Shah, who has again commenced a career of flight and plunder.

The Nana remains in the Nepaulese territories, on the frontiers of Oude, with a considerable following. Strong in his position, which is inaccessible to cavalry, and in the sympathy of the native population, he is little disturbed by the rumours of new expeditions being sent out against him.

A mixed force of European and native infantry has been organized to act against the refractory Waghers, but it is also stated that an amicable adjustment of differences is in a fair way of being made without having recourse to arms. The troops under orders to join the Okamundul Field Force are her Majesty's 28th regiment, the 6th Bombay N.I., and No. 7 Field Battery, R.A., under the command of Colonel Donovan, H.M.'s 33rd.

Three hundred of the convicts who escaped from the Mundlairs Jail have been recaptured, and treasure recovered to the value of 30,000 rupees. There are still one hundred and fifty of the miscreants at large, who are supposed to have not less than 50,000 rupees in their hands. The 19th N.I. lost about twenty men in the attack on the jail and in the subsequent pursuit of the fugitives.

In the Nizam's dominions the Rohillas appear to be giving some trouble; and at Arcot there have been serious disturbances between the European soldiers and the natives—the latter being the aggressors.

Lord Canning was expected to leave Calcutta on the 1st or 2nd of the present month, proceeding to Allahabad by dakh. The Legislative Council had already broken up; Sir Barnes Peacock repairing to Simla, and Messrs. Forbes and Le Geyt returning to their respective presidencies. Lord Elphinstone and Sir Henry Somerset continue at Poona, but were shortly expected at Bombay, en route to Mahabeshwur. The local papers give out that Sir William Mansfield's staff will consist of Colonels Crenlock and Metcalfe, and Captains Flood and Crenlock. The total fall of rain at Bombay, up to the evening of the 25th of September, was 77 inches 87 cents.

Elsewhere we insert the prospectus of the Elphinstone Dock Company, for the purpose of constructing wet-docks, piers, wharves, graving-docks, gun-batteries, and a coal depot, between the Apollo and Arthur bunders, on the foreshore, and in Back Bay, on ground to be reclaimed from within the limits of the highest spring tides. The realisation of the scheme, we are assured, will not be difficult if sufficient capital be obtainable, and it certainly appears to be worthy of the support of the commercial world.

It is scarcely necessary, perhaps, to direct the attention of our readers to the important Minute by the Indian Government on the Bengal Native army, giving due praise to the faithful few, and disarming or disbanding those that proved false to their military oath.

THE NEWSPAPER PRESS OF THE NORTH-WEST PROVINCES.

Thirty-five years ago there was not a printing office in Upper India, and nothing like newspaper printing was attempted till some years afterwards. We learn from a magazine now extinct that a small insignificant quarto sheet, called the Omnibus, led the van. It was published from the Cawnpore press, which was the first printing office on this side of Calcutta. The publication was unable to contend with its older and better conducted brethren of Calcutta, and soon fell to the ground. At this very time there existed among a literary band of military officers stationed at Meerut a manuscript paper bearing the title of the Meerut Observer, and this was carried on very perseveringly for four years, edited by Captain H. Tuckett, of the 11th Light Dragoons, assisted by Captain N. Campbell, of the Horse Artillery, who wrote nearly all the articles on military affairs. When a branch of the Cawnpore press was established at that station, the Observer put on a printed dress. This was too spirited a journal to last long; it opposed too keenly the measures of Lord Bentinck, the then Governor-general, and the strong arm of military authority was wielded to gag its voice. Subsequently the Observer was edited by Lieutenant Hutchins, Mr. Whiffen, and others. It afterwards fell into the hands of Mr. H. Cope, who also purchased the press.

The next publication that was issued from the same press was the Meerut Universal Magazine, more familiarly termed the MUM, a monthly magazine of some pretensions, and carried on with great talent. Mr. Lang afterwards endeavoured to resuscitate this magazine, but after two attempts abandoned the undertaking.

On its demise the Observer Press passed into the hands of the Messrs. Saunders, who transferred it to Delhi, and in 1833 the Delhi Gazette first saw the dawn of existence. This journal was for several years in a fluctuating condition, edited alternately by Colonel Pew, Mr. Hollings, Colonel R. Wilson (then of the palace guards), and others; when the Afghanistan campaign gave it an impetus as rapid as it was profitable, and by the commencement of the year 1846 the paper had attained a circulation of 1,892, a number never before attained by any Indian publication. Hence may be dated the commencement of a new era in the newspaper press of Upper India. Vituperative attacks on members of Government or commanding officers now gave place to that which should ever be the first object of a newspaper, the desire for obtaining news from foreign States. To what an eminence has that press risen during the short period of thirty-two years, from the carrying out of this desire we are well aware. Its intelligence is quoted as authority to be depended upon by the whole London and Continental press. From this press many years afterwards issued a magazine called Saunders' Magazine, which continued for about two years. In May, 1857, the Delhi Gazette press was entirely destroyed by the mutineers, the editor, Mr. Heatley, being killed in the general massacre.

Contemporaneously with the Delhi Gazette was the Agra Ukhbar, a newspaper started at Agra, one of the projectors of which was the celebrated Col. Pew, and its editor the no less celebrated Henry Tandy. The talent and wit of the latter gentleman soon gave the paper a place among the leading journals, which it held till 1842, when Mr. Tandy died. Messrs. A. and P. Saunders succeeded him in the editorial chair, but both soon followed him to the grave. Neither of them possessed a tithe of the talent of Mr. Tandy. The press was then sold to Mr. Grisenthwaite. Blunders, actions for libel, and other tokens of a sinking journal, at last wrecked the Ukhbar, and the entire establishment fell into the possession of the Agra Bank; to which the proprietors were under pecuniary obligations. Captain Macgregor, the secretary, who would not allow the press to remain unprofitable, brought out the Agra Chronicle, which he kept alive till the press was purchased by the Delhi Gazette. The Agra Messenger, since started by the proprietors of the Gazette, was but an indifferent substitute for the well-conducted Ukhbar. During the mutiny, when the Delhi press was destroyed, the Messenger was enabled to keep together the subscribers of the Gazette, and formed the nucleus on which that paper again revived.

The Mofussilite was established by Mr. Lang at Meerut, in 1846. It commenced its existence at a very critical time—Afghanistan, Persia, Scinde, and the Punjab, were all in a ferment. The avidity for Mofussil news was at its highest pitch—the circulation of the Delhi had run up to nearly 1,900, and this eagerness for intelligence from the seat of strife, in combination with the ability and vivacity of its proprietor and editor, enabled the Moff at once to gain a footing. In 1855 the press and journal were removed to Agra, which was then the seat of Government. This paper has been subjected to many changes of editors since Mr. Lang's departure for Europe. During the mutiny a portion of its press material was saved, and the journal was enabled to continue its publication during the whole of those troublous times.

Ledie's Miscellany was published at this press in 1855; it was a well got up and popular magazine, but short-lived. About the same time a religious newspaper, under the title of North-West Messenger, was published at the same press. The mutiny abruptly closed its career.

The Hills used to boast of three presses, one was established by Mr. Mackinnon at Mussoorie, who published a paper called The Hills. At Simla Dr. McGregor had a press, from which issued a weekly paper called the Mountain Monitor. That gentleman also tried a medical and literary periodical. All these were short-lived. The Simla press was, in 1850, sold to the Lawrence Asylum at Sonawur, and is now employed to teach the lads of the institution the rudiments of printing. From this press now issues a small monthly, called the Soldier's Friend. Another press was started at Simla, under the direction of Mr. Charde, in 1851, at which the Simla Advertiser was published. The press is now the property of Mr. Wallance, who also publishes an Advertiser.

At Benares about 1847 or 8 a press was established by Colonel Pew and others, and a paper issued under the name of the Recorder; this continued till the latter part of 1849.

If we travel further north we come to Lahore, where the Chronicle now flourishes. This journal was started by Mr. Cope, formerly of the Delhi, in 1850, immediately after the annexation of the country. The paper has gone on steadily, and is well conducted. Just before the outbreak, a small weekly publication, called the Punjabee, issued from Lahore; it was most ably conducted by Mr. Kerr, and was discontinued in the beginning of the present year, in consequence of Mr. Kerr taking the management of the Chronicle. The New Punjabee has since been started by the same proprietors.

At Allahabad there are no less than three newspapers. The New Times came into existence in January of the present year. The Advertiser commenced its career in May, and the Commercial Gazette in the following month.

At Cawnpore, about the year 1854 or 1855, Mr. Brandon brought out a newspaper called the Central Star, which was afterwards transferred to Lucknow, and continued till the mutineers destroyed it, and the press, where it was published. Since the mutiny in February last, another press and the Lucknow Herald have been established; and in a few days the Oude Gazette will also see the light.

The mutiny gave birth to several ephemeral publications; the principal was the Roorkee Garrison Gazette, which disseminated information during the most troublous times. It was discontinued when quiet was restored.—Commercial Gazette.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EMANCIPATION OF THE PRESS.—The 15th of this month (September) was the twenty-fourth anniversary of the freedom of the press by Sir Charles Metcalfe, and was kept in Calcutta as usual by feasting and other symptoms of rejoicing. Sir Charles Metcalfe succeeded to a seat in the Supreme Council of India in 1827, having won for himself the entire confidence of Lord William Bentinck. Under the Charter Act of 1833 he was appointed Governor-general of India, and retained that appointment through the administration of Sir Robert Peel. One of the first reforms which he carried out was the repeal of the laws with which Mr. John Adams, the successor of Lord Hastings, had fettered the press. This measure was consequent on a discussion with Mr. Silk Buckingham, the proprietor and editor of the Calcutta Journal, in which Mr. Adams found out that he could not measure lances with his opponent. Lord William Bentinck, during the early part of his administration, was in favour of a free press, but circumstances induced him afterwards to change his policy. In 1830 certain allowances, long enjoyed by military officers, were discontinued or curtailed. The press strongly opposed the reduction or withdrawal of the allowances, and bitter sarcasms and invectives were levelled against all concerned in the affair in the columns of the local newspapers. Lord William Bentinck drew the attention of the Court of Directors to the state of public feeling on the subject; but they enforced their former orders, and the opportunity was seized for restraining the violence of the press. It was then that Sir Charles Metcalfe took up the cudgels in support of the press, and in a minute, evincing deep political wisdom, stated his objection to the measure proposed, considering it preferable, on every account, to leave to the press the uninterrupted enjoyment of its freedom. He was a statesman in the largest sense of the word, and has left to after times traces of his influence in the amelioration of our laws and institutions.—Bombay Gazette.

SAUGOR (August 31).—Colonel Nott, with his party of H.M.'s 43rd Regiment and the 10th Madras, surprised the rebels under Feroze Shah in a dense jungle near Maltone, killed several of them, took their camp equipage and some horses and camels, without loss on our side. The insurgents appear to have seized the fort, and it is rumoured that they got possession of some lakhs of rupees from the treasury. The discharged horse artillerymen (to the credit of the A troop very few) leave for the coast with the first gleam of sunshine. The 500! of the 3rd Madras Europeans are probably already on their way homewards. Typhus has been raging to a melancholy extent in the bazaar, but Captain Ouseley, the cantonment magistrate, has been prompt in remedial measures. Several deaths have also occurred in the European hospital, not from that epidemic, but other diseases, more particularly hepatitis.

DEATH OF GENERAL VINCENT.—It is with deep regret we have to announce the death of General Vincent, colonel 6th European regiment, which melancholy event took place at Mussoorie, on the 28th August. The general had been ailing for some days. His sickness was not considered dangerous; but he gradually sank from sheer exhaustion. He leaves a widow and several children to lament his loss. The deceased was well known for his affability and kindness throughout the Bengal army, and had served uninterruptedly, fifty-seven years, without going home. He was present at the Java campaign in September, 1811, with the volunteer battalion, and in command of the 25th native infantry throughout the Ava campaign of 1824 to 1825, and as brigadier, commanded at Bareilly. This casualty gives the line step to the 21st native infantry at Peshawur, Major Milne, Captain Chambers, Lieutenant G. A. Brown, and Ensign Reid, each gaining a rise.

LORD CANNING'S TOUR THROUGH THE NORTH-WEST PROVINCES.—The body-guard was to have left Calcutta on Tuesday, the 6th Sept., and Lord Canning will follow by land—not by water, as previously mentioned by the Hurkaru—on the 1st or 2nd of October. The camp of the Governor-General's escort is to be formed at Cawnpore on the 15th. We are informed that Lord Canning will only remain a couple of days at Allahabad, and will then push on to Lucknow via Cawnpore, and after spending a week in that city, his lordship will proceed to Agra, and from thence to Gwalior, with a view of honouring our faithful ally, Scindiah, with a visit of state. It has been mentioned to us by a Government functionary of the highest rank, a gentleman well acquainted with the Maharajah's sentiments, that nothing would afford his highness more gratification than receiving from the hands of her Majesty's Viceroy the Grand Cross of the Order of Bath. More than twelve months ago Scindiah's desire to obtain the honourable decoration was well known to the Government of the North-West Provinces, and most assuredly he deserves it infinitely more than did our lukewarm friend the Knight of Nepal, both by reason of his personal bravery, as well as the unswerving fidelity with which he stood by our side at considerable risk to his own fortunes, at a time when his friendship was essential to our safety, and his hostility might have been fatal to it.—Mefussilite.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.—We (Delhi Gazette) have much pleasure in inserting the following communication:—"It is expected that a number of time-expired soldiers may shortly be expected to claim their discharge from the service, and his Excellency the Commander in Chief has pointed out that many of them are men of fair education and abilities, and that, though leaving the service, a moiety of them would doubtless remain in India, if they could find suitable employment; and that vacancies might thus be filled up in the subordinate establishments of the various departments under Government without taking, as is now the case, soldiers from the ranks. The Public Works Department have taken advantage of this opportunity, and requested ex-engineers to endeavour to obtain the services of men of good character who may be about to take their discharge. His Excellency the Governor-general has also authorised these men to be entertained as probationary assistant overseers, although they may not be possessed of the full qualifications required by the rules, on condition that they pass an examination six months after date of joining the department, and provided their superiors are satisfied that with ordinary diligence they are likely to be able to do so. The Lieut.-governor of the Punjab strongly supports the scheme, and believes there are many posts in which steady intelligent Europeans could be advantageously employed."

JHELUM, August 26.—It has at last become a fixed fact that this is not to be an European station; the six months' experiment is, therefore, about to close with the removal of the 7th royal fusiliers, some say, to Attock and Nowshera, and others, to Peshawur. Orders have been received to discontinue all works on buildings for the use of troops, and the repairs which are absolutely necessary for their comfort are to be executed with the least possible outlay. Sir Sydney Cotton's visit, early this month, no doubt clenched the matter, and we are to remain with two companies of the 21st native infantry, lately come from Rawul Pindee, to relieve Captain Elwyn's "Jhelum levy," which has just gone off to Goordaspore. The sepoy party, however, is likely to be increased to a full wing. A slight disturbance among the "royal fusiliers," which some very busy people came very near magnifying into another Berhampore affair, has resulted in the trial of about a dozen men, one of whom only got off "scot free." This disagreeable affair arose out of an attempt to discover the perpetrators of some petty annoyance to a lance corporal. A visitation of the commanding officer's displeasure upon a large number in the wing, several of whom are good old soldiers, irritated the men into a bit of barrack-room demonstration, which has been looked upon in too serious a light, and which it would be still worse to punish too severely. Officers in command of corps should recollect that the next best thing to punishing crime, is to ensure its prevention by a judicious exercise of their authority, and a careful study of the characters of the men entrusted to their charge. The regiment is naturally enough in something of an uproar, and many old soldiers are sacrificing the advantages of long service and pension, and applying for their discharge. As troubles always "come by battalions," the preceding fracas was soon followed by another of an equally lamentable description. The theatrical amateurs having played to full houses of late, thought proper to hold a jollification the other day, and had a dinner, in the midst of which they were interrupted by the sergeant-major, who put all the non-commissioned officers present under arrest, the result of which was that a pay-sergeant and the barrack-sergeant of the station were tried and reduced, and an order was given for the removal of the properties from the bungalow, and the discontinuance of all performances. The men, through some blunder in the transmission of the order, understood that the properties were to be destroyed forthwith, but represented that a portion of them was owned by the officers of the regiment; still, they claim, the order to make away with the whole was repeated, and they burnt the lot! An inquiry was instituted immediately after; the men were charged with having maliciously involved the officers' property in the destruction of their own, and two of the principal actors were condemned to cells in consequence. Every one laments the loss of the scenery, than which, I am told, there was none better in the country; but many are of opinion that the men did not wantonly destroy the "properties," as they hesitated in complying with the order, such as they understood it to be. This is "row No. 2." "Row No. 3" is a little different, as it occurred between the officer commanding the station (who likewise commands the 7th), and a civilian in the public works department, who was suspended for using a little plain English in his correspondence with the "higher authority." But I believe the affair has taken a Pickwickian turn, for I notice the suspension is no longer in force, and the public works department officer again at the bellows. Fortunately for all parties concerned, the weather is getting cooler, and I trust people's tempers may likewise fall a little in temperature.—Delhi Gazette.

CANPORE MEMORIAL.—A plan for erecting monuments over the graves of those who were massacred at Cawnpore has been so often discussed and set aside, that one would think the execution of it was beset with many difficulties. A proposal has also been made more than once for the erection of a memorial church at Cawnpore; and we now hear that it is likely to be carried out, for at a public meeting held at Cawnpore, and presided over by Sir John Inglis, the following resolution was passed:—"Whereas a proposal to erect a memorial church, which was under consideration a year ago, was afterwards abandoned in consequence of its being understood that Cawnpore would cease to be a large European station, and whereas Government have recently determined to enlarge the present temporary chapel known as St. John's, thereby showing that a necessity for increased church accommodation exists in the station, the meeting cannot but consider that the reasons which led to the abandonment of the original proposal are no longer in force; and that this is a fitting opportunity for carrying into effect the design of a memorial church. It is therefore proposed to appeal to the public to aid in the erection of a church of suitable ecclesiastical character, in which the relatives and friends of those who fell might be able to erect tablets or painted windows, and in a portion of which, the names, as far as they can be ascertained, of all who lost their lives, might be recorded." It is but following out a custom, old as history, to honour the dead by the erection of churches and monuments. Their memory is thus preserved, and in the case of the great and the good, however neglected in life, it has ever been a national duty to pay that homage to the ashes which may have been denied to the spirit. If the brow has not been crowned, the tomb has at any rate been garlanded. It is mentioned that subscriptions for the memorial church will be received by the treasurers of the fund, the Oriental Banking Corporation, Calcutta, which has branch agencies in various parts of India and the colonies. The Bishop and the Lieutenant-governor of the North-West Provinces will be asked to become the trustees of the church.

NYNEE TAL, August 24.—Yesterday a large party of officers and other gentlemen assembled at the Nynee Tal iron works for the purpose of witnessing the tapping of the first furnace from which iron was to be manufactured at these works, a most interesting sight, as many of us had never seen anything of the kind before. From inquiry, I found that the machinery, consisting of two large blast-cylinders, worked by a water-wheel, had been entirely constructed by Mr. Rees Davis and his sons; all the cast-iron work, of which there are many tons, was made out of iron manufactured from a furnace he had himself erected at the foot of the hills; the wooden frame of the engine is constructed of solid oak. Two furnaces are already built, and space cleared for two more, they are constructed of a fine description of sand-stone, and have the appearance of being extremely substantial. When we arrived the men were hard at work, the heat near the furnace intense. Mr. Davis did not expect a good run of metal as the machinery had only been put in working order twenty-four hours before our arrival, consequently the furnace had only been blown into that time. Nevertheless, sooner than disappoint so large a party, he ordered the tapping to take place at 4 p.m. At the appointed time all assembled near the furnace, and amidst showers of sparks and the hurrahs of the party, we had the pleasure of witnessing the liquid metal flowing from the furnace. The whole party then entertained Mr. Davis and his men at a sumptuous tiffin, after which his health was proposed, and reference was made to the scientific researches of Col. Drummond, as without his invaluable discoveries the ores of these hills, probably, would have been unknown; but to Mr. Davis was given the credit of being the first man in the upper or lower provinces that had manufactured iron from the ores found in these parts of India, that the works, erected at a cost of a few thousand rupees, did him and his assistants great credit, as everything connected with the whole undertaking had been made on their own premises. At the conclusion of this speech, all present drank his health right heartily, and the oft-expressed wish by the whole party that they hoped some day to see him enjoying the wealth he deserved to reap, showed plainly how all sympathised in this spirited undertaking, and, indeed, who can say what effect this beginning may not have on the whole of the railway system, so much required throughout India?

REGIMENTS FOR CHINA.—The Hurkaru states that a telegraphic message received from Simla confirms the report that there is a probability of H. M.'s 67th and 99th regiments proceeding on active service to China, and that H. M.'s 53rd is also likely to be destined for the same country.

THE ROHILCUND AUXILIARY LEVY was broken up at Shahjehanpore on the 10th Sept. The infantry were sent to Bareilly, and the cavalry are on their way to Cawnpore, where they will be joined to Robart's horse, and put under command of that officer. The levy thus disposed of was raised by DeKantzow, at Muttra, in 1857, and has served in Rohilcund since the 1st May last year.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.—On the 1st of September a further section of the East Indian Railway in Bengal was opened to the banks of the River More, at Cynthea. The distance from Howrah now laid is one hundred and eighteen miles, and the whole extent opened in Bengal one hundred and sixty-five.

THE NANA.—It has been ascertained and reported that the Nana, with his family, is beyond Deokar in the Nepaul hills, with twelve hundred mutineers. The miscreant is never in one place, but is constantly moving about. General Jowar Sing, with five hundred rebels, is gone towards Bootwal, near Goruckpore, and Mummoo Khan, the Oude Begum's paramour, west with one hundred and fifty followers. In all there are altogether eleven thousand rebels in the Nepaul hills.

AN INDISCREET CHAPLAIN.—The Commercial Gazette states that the Chaplain of Simla has brought himself into trouble, in consequence of his having on Thanksgiving day condemned the conduct of the Government for the management of its affairs for the past two years. The commander-in-chief, an ex-officio member of council, and Lord William Hay, the civil representative of the Governor-general, were present on the occasion.

BUNDELCUND.—The country between Saugor and Jhansi continues as disturbed as ever, being the haunt of several freebooters. Jeswant Sing, the Dungee freebooter, who has been plundering and burning villages, and not stopping short even of bloodshed, had a narrow escape about a fortnight ago. He is now reduced to great straits for want of funds; and from information given by a once-favourite Delilah, was hunted at the place of his concealment by a tehsildar with a few armed men, but escaped by jumping with a few followers into a stream; and swimming across to the opposite bank, disappeared into a dense jungle. It is thought that these rebels, with their leaders, will not be weeded out of Bundelcund, until some comprehensive plan be adopted and carried out. Some ten thousand or more Bengal mutineers still lurk unarmed (but not unarming) in the jungles of Central India, from which they must be dislodged.

CAPTURE OF A REBEL LEADER.—It will be gratifying to many of our readers to learn that Rao Rambuksh, of Doondia Kheera, one of the most treacherous scoundrels who rose to commit murder and rapine during the mutiny, has been captured by the magistrate of Benares. This arch villain was concealed in the outskirts of the Benares district, and had two men constantly on the look-out for the police. The latter, however, managed to place themselves in a position to intercept Rambuksh on his return from early devotions, and had him safely lodged for trial.

ALLAHABAD, Sept. 1.—Some heavy showers of rain have fallen within the last three days, with bright sunshine between them. The 5th Fusiliers have improved in health since their removal to the Papamow Barracks. I learn that a week ago a European in the employ of the Railway Company, at the Burwarree station, made a terrific onslaught on some natives. Four or five men were wounded; but the civil surgeon, who examined them, pronounces the wounds to be scarcely more than superficial. It is presumed on this ground, as well as other evidence, that the perpetrator of the offence had something in him which made his hand nerveless and unsteady. The Lieutenant-Governor will proceed on his cold weather tour as soon as the rainy season is over, which will probably be early in October. The rains in these parts have been most favourable, and full collections of revenue are expected. Rumour has it that Mr. F. B. Outram goes to the Board of Revenue shortly, as Officiating Secretary, and Mr. Monteath to the Government Secretariat as Assistant secretary. Statistical returns on every imaginable subject have been and are being called for by Government, to the utter distraction of local officers, and greatly to the detriment of their ordinary current duties. It is to be hoped that some good may come of them at last. But those most experienced in such matters will tell you, that when obtained half of them are consigned to oblivion, while the other half, in consequence of errors in preparation, form the groundwork of hasty generalisations, and unwise legislation. Will the rulers of the country never learn that the discontent which certainly fed, if it did not light, the flame of revolt, was in a great measure attributable to the annoyances of over-government, and officious interference in small matters, giving rise to suspicions fraught with danger, however unfounded, or else exciting hopes destined never to be realised?—Delhi Gazette.

CHOLERA.—The Delhi Gazette has received a communication from Allahabad, which states that much sickness has prevailed among the discharged men of the 10th Light Cavalry and Artillery from Bareilly. They lost three men between Lucknow and Cawnpore. The total loss from cholera up to the date of the correspondent's communication has been twenty-five since leaving Lucknow. Our contemporary has received another letter from the same station which says, "The detachments of the 6th Cavalry lost ten men in thirty-six hours at Cawnpore from cholera, and the men are so affected by it that no offer of bounty will induce them to remain in the country. It appears from this communication that a £3 bounty was offered, and that several had accepted it. Also that the 4th Europeans are proceeding to China."

BERHAMPORE, Sept. 10.—A few days ago a man belonging to the Europeans at Berhampore fired deliberately at one of the men of H.M.'s 99th regiment, who was on the barrack guard. The shot happily was not effective, and the perpetrator of the deed has escaped, owing to the fact that all the men of the mutinous corps are crammed, without any non-commissioned officer, into one barrack. Upon another night terrific screams were heard, and the men of the 99th detachment stood to their arms, expecting an attack. The courts martial are not over, and corporal punishment is frequently awarded and carried into execution; but it appears that the ringleader Marshal, the mock major, and a few other men have not been tried on a charge of mutiny. A general protest should be made against the proceedings of courts martial, which make a mockery of crime in charging men who throw stones and brickbats and threaten to shoot their officers on the simple charge of making use of insubordinate language.

THE DISCHARGED EUROPEANS.—According to the Hurkaru the troops proceeding to England by the Maggie Miller and Queen of the Seas were put on board from flats and boats which conveyed them from Chinsurah. A police paunsway with a European inspector were sent along side each vessel to remain with them until they weighed anchor. This precaution was observed to keep strange boats from approaching the vessels, as well as to prevent the dummies from going ashore. The Englishman, in writing on the same subject, observes that the Maggie Miller, with 400 discharged soldiers and invalids, in tow of the Coromandel, went on shore at the entrance to Akra Reach. The Coromandel, after making several ineffectual efforts to extricate her from her dangerous position, returned to her moorings in the evening. The Maggie Miller has not heeled over, but lies in the mud. The soldiers were transferred to the Inkerman, which has since proceeded to sea.

THE LOYAL REGIMENT.—The only regular Bengal infantry regiment which has loyally stuck to its colours in the midst of temptation, and faithfully rejected opportunities within its reach, is the "Thirty-first" or Broomka-Pultun. This honourable corps arrived at Shahjehanpore on the 26th August, under command of Major Hampton, when the strange event, now-a-days, was seen of Europeans welcoming pandies, the band of H.M.'s 82nd foot having "played in" the 31st regiment of sepoy.

VERY LIKE A WHALE.—The New Times hears, on good authority, that a European regiment is now being organised at Calcutta, and will wear as an experiment the uniform of the Zouaves of the French army.

CURE FOR INSANITY.—An extraordinary swimming feat has been lately performed at Allahabad by a boy reported to be mad. Having got upon a boat about sundown at the Jumna Ghat, he said "a voice was calling him," and forthwith leaped into the river. The current rapidly bore him down; but being a good swimmer he kept above the water, and passed out of sight just where the rivers meet. He appears to have steadily maintained his downward course as far as Sirsa, about 20 miles down the river, where he got on shore, and went to the nearest thanah. But, meeting with a very unkind reception there, he again committed himself to the water, and finally reached Mirzapore next morning, in a state of utter exhaustion. From thence he has been handed down by the police to the Allahabad district. He is much reduced in flesh, and it is said that the fright and exertion have restored him to sanity.

BOLD BURGLARS OR SLEEPY SEPOYS.—The Rangoon Times mentions a daring robbery that was committed in the cantonments of that port. A large hole, enough to admit a chest of drawers, was cut into the roof of the house occupied by Captain Ardagh, and the chest cleverly drawn up, and money to the tune of one thousand rupees extracted therefrom. Strange to say, although there was a sepoy guard near the spot, they knew nothing of the circumstance till the next morning.

THE PUNJAB SYSTEM OF ADMINISTRATION.—The other day we (Delhi Gazette) recommended the general adoption of the Punjab system of administration. We are glad to learn that that system is spreading, though still confined to the Non-Regulation Provinces. The Government of India has, it appears, decided that the Saugor and Jhansi divisions shall immediately come under its operation, thus giving all the civil officers power to act in the judicial, revenue, and criminal departments. We hope the Government will take courage, and carry the improvement into effect throughout the divisions under the authority of our Lieutenant governor.

ATTORNEYS' LICENCES.—Amongst the various objections which lie against the Bill for the Licensing of Trades and Professions, the Hurkaru starts one which has not yet been brought to the notice of the Legislative Council. The words of the 2nd and 20th sections include all advocates and attorneys at law of the Supreme Court, and are tantamount to a declaration that no advocate or attorney at law shall carry on his profession, after the passing of the Act, without a licence. But the Legislative Council cannot alter or annul the provisions of the charter, by virtue of which the Supreme Courts are established; and by the 11th section of that charter the Supreme Court is invested with the power of approving, admitting, and enrolling advocates and attorneys at law. This power is given to it exclusively; and an advocate or attorney can be, on reasonable cause, removed by the Supreme Court alone, and unless so removed, he is by Royal Charter authorised to plead and act for suitors of the court. The question involved is a most important one; as the Legislative Council cannot make a declaration to include all advocates and attorneys at law of the Supreme Court within the provisions of the Act, or carry such declaration into execution, without exceeding the powers with which it is endowed.

INLAND NAVIGATION.—The Railway Company have launched the first of their boats, the Queen of the Ganges, for inland navigation. This is the pioneer of eleven boats they will shortly have afloat to bring up their rails and other material from Calcutta to Allahabad. These boats will not be available to the public in their upward voyages, as they are likely to have full cargoes on account of the rail for some time to come. It is anticipated that the cargo they will obtain from the public in the upper provinces for transmission to Calcutta will be sufficient to cover the entire cost of these steam vessels. It will naturally be asked, if there is so large an amount of cargo obtainable at Allahabad, how is it that many of the General Steam Navigation Company's vessels go away only partially laden? This is not owing to want of cargo, for hundreds of maunds are constantly refused by the commanders of the steamers, under the idea that their vessels will be detained at the numerous sandbanks if they go away with them even half laden—a fallacy which is proved by the steamers of the India General Steam Navigation Company, which have not such fastidious commanders. One good, which will be a great boon to the community, arising out of the increasing number of steamers on the river, will be the rapid downfall in the present monopoly prices of both passage and cargo.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER.—It is rumoured that the Government of India intends to set at liberty the Sikh state prisoners, and to permit them to settle in the Oude territories, where small jagheers will be given to them.

HIS HIGHNESS THE MAHARAJAH OF PUTTIALA, and his suite, have, by order of the Hon. the Lieutenant-governor of the Punjab, been exempted from the payment of tolls on the Hindostan and Thibet road. His Highness has large possessions in the hills, which he frequently visits, and has been much annoyed at the exaction of the toll in question, more particularly as the toll bars are in his own territory, and the land has been freely given by him wherever required for the road. His Honour the Lieut.-governor has also directed the refund of all sums already collected from the Maharajah, and that Mr. Wallace, of Simla, who has leased the tolls from Government, shall receive a certain sum as compensation in lieu of the toll hitherto levied.

REVIVAL OF THE MIDDLE AGES.—The correspondent of the Athenæum speaks of a large village called Locopully, the seat of a Zemindaree, and distant about 120 miles from Hyderabad:—It is ruled by a Zemindaree, the Zemindar having died several years ago. This woman, though a Brahmin and of the sacerdotal tribe, may be classed from her character and acts among the Amazons of antiquity. She had a body of men composed of Arabs, Rohillas, &c., employed under her, for the express purpose of going on excursions of plunder, and wheresoever they went they pillaged the wealthy, as well as the defenceless hamlets of the poor, and committed other outrages, shocking to humanity to describe. After they returned, this nefarious woman would share the spoils with them. She continued this detestable trade for years with impunity, and though several attempts were made to restrain her, this wily woman, with her wonted skill, contrived to buy up the persons sent by the authorities. At length the Eagle fluttering over the Pendant was sent to Locopully, and when he appeared before her gates, its very foundation shook to the centre, and this eagle is no less a personage than the illustrious Rajah of Wumpurthy, and the brigadier commanding H.H.N.F. force. On hearing of the brigadier's onward movements, the Amazon effected her escape, fled to the city of Hyderabad, and put herself under the protection of Abdoolah bin Ally, the chief of all the Arabs in the Hyderabad country, than whom a more arrant knave never breathed the Deccan air. Agreeably to the instructions received from the Military Board of Control, the huge gates of Locopully were blown up and burned to cinders, the six bastions or bulwarks on the ramparts were demolished, and large breaches were made in the walls so as never to be restored to its former condition. Thus this wretched Locopully, once the seat of rapine, plunder, injustice and outrage, is reduced to a ruinous heap, the habitation of bats and owls!

ARCOT, September 9.—The quiet inhabitants of Raneepett were thrown into a state of great alarm yesterday afternoon, at three o'clock, by a serious emute in the big bazaar, between natives, mostly Mussulmans, and a few European discharged soldiers, in which three Mussulmans were killed, and a few wounded. It appears that a few men of the detachment of fusiliers went to the bazaar to make some purchases, when one or two had an altercation with fanatical Mussulmans, who struck the men, and soon afterwards about three or four hundred natives turned out with "jatees," hooting and shouting, and commenced pelting the soldiers with stones and brickbats; the soldiers had to run, followed by the natives as far as the lower European barrack, which is unoccupied; several men jumped over the walls, and took shelter in that building, and three or four took to the plain. By this time the station staff officer, the adjutant of the Veterans, and the doctor, hearing the uproar, came up to the Station Office, which is quite close to the road which separates the native town and bazaar. A great mob was on this road, armed with sticks, &c. The cutwal came up and told one of the above gentlemen that some soldiers were committing a breach of the peace. He was told to disperse them immediately. He then made a signal to the mob by raising both his hands and waving them above his head, upon which the mob returned to the bazaar. A few minutes after this, about thirty Europeans armed with sticks and other missiles, who appeared to be under great excitement, went into the main street of the bazaar, where they forthwith commenced a contest with the people. One Mussulman was killed on the spot, and three severely wounded, two of whom subsequently died in the hospital, to which they had been conveyed soon after the occurrence. Since the two detachments of Europeans arrived here the native population has been kept in a state of alarm and irritation by the most egregious and unfounded reports, insidiously circulated by designing natives, that the Europeans of the detachments could do anything they liked with impunity, and that they intended to plunder Raneepett. I was told that certain lower classes of natives were in the habit of supplying European soldiers, clandestinely, of course, with country liquor adulterated with ganja and other deleterious drugs, which invariably made the partakers of the mixture act like madmen; and some again led them for the sake of a few rupees to the houses of respectable natives, telling them that they were of bad fame and ran away, leaving the Europeans to get out of the scrape the best way they could, with the loss of a few rupees, and probably with broken heads. A detachment from the 18th Regiment N. I. arrived this morning from Vellore, and a guard has been put in the bazaar, assisted by a few soldiers from the European infantry depot. During the whole of this unfortunate affair Major Raikes, commanding the above depot, exerted himself personally to the utmost to restore peace and tranquillity; and it must be confessed that, but for that gallant officer, there might, in all probability, have been more casualties, and that the affair might have terminated far more seriously than it has done.—Athenæum.

CAPTAIN JACKSON.—A letter from Hyderabad, in the Englishman, mentions that "Captain Jackson, a pensioned officer of the British Government, who had resided for some years past in a suburb of that city, was ordered some days ago by the Nizam's Government to leave the territories for some political escapades. He sent a telegram to the Government of India to the effect that Mookhtarool Moolk, the Minister, gave asylum to a rebel Prince of Delhi. An inquiry was instituted, and it would be absurd to call the grounds upon which Captain Jackson had proceeded to make this charge slight, for there were no grounds at all for it. His friends expected the Nizam would have favoured him, and Captain Jackson demurred for some days as to yielding obedience to the order, but the Nizam did not do so, and he left Hyderabad."

MR. READE, C.S.—We learn from the Madras journals that the commission of inquiry into the conduct of Mr. Reade, the Governor's agent at Vizagapatam, assembled on the 3rd Sept., and that the case for the prosecution closed on the same day. There are four charges against Mr. Reade; they are as follow:—"With denying to Government that he had used the Rajah's property except as a temporary accommodation, or in ordinary interchange of civilities, whereas he had on loan for long periods of time, horses, elephants, &c., belonging to the Rajah. With having induced the Rajah to write a letter to him, Mr. Reade, and having forwarded that letter to the Government, stating that he had no property of the Rajah's on loan, which he knew to be false. With having sent the Rajah three cheques on or about the 11th June last, bearing the dates of October, 1857, June, 1858, and September, 1858, thereby attempting to establish sales of certain property, which sales never took place. With having had pecuniary dealings with the Rajah."

A NARROW ESCAPE.—A severe thunderstorm visited Madras on September 11; and rain continued to pour down for three or four hours, accompanied by lightning and fearful thunder explosions. The south-west corner of Sir A. Bittlestone's house was struck by the lightning, and a large mass of masonry scattered far and wide. A large teak beam was also torn to shreds, and the tops of two pillars supporting it dispersed in all directions. Luckily no one was injured, though the adjoining room was occupied by the judge's children, who slumbered unconsciously through the noise and danger. There were probably other accidents, not yet ascertained, for the thunder crashes are said to have been terrible.

THE MADRAS ARMY.—Matters are looking serious in some of the native regiments on the Madras establishment, the 6th light cavalry being again among the foremost in evincing an insubordinate spirit. This is the third time within fourteen or fifteen years in which this regiment has shown a bad feeling, and some sixteen or twenty of them were transported to the Tenasserim provinces on the first occasion; the regiment was let off on the refusal to proceed to Bengal, after volunteering to do so in June, 1857. —Commercial Gazette.

GOVERNMENT CENTRAL MUSEUMS.—51,571 persons, on an average, exclusive of Sundays of 1,900 daily, are said to have visited the Government Central Museum during the month of August. Of these 27,422 were men and boys, and the remainder women and girls. Only 7,523 of the visitors were able to sign their names, the remaining 44,048 had not advanced so far in their education, and of them a correct tally was kept.

THE ROHILLAS.—By a letter received from the Deccan (says the Telegraph), we learn that the Rohillas have collected in large bodies in the districts adjoining Nuldroog, and have taken to plundering Englishmen: a new feature in their raids. Unless some measures are adopted to protect the poor villages from this periodical plunder, and a fine upon these predatory Rohillas be levied, the districts will soon become desolate. Colonel Davidson, the resident, it is said, has been appealed to by many Europeans who have been plundered while travelling.

"ALL INDIA."—An illustrated bi-monthly miscellany, styled "All India," is shortly to be published at Madras. It will be the size of the "Saturday Review." It will contain editorials on Indian topics, an original nouvelle, a poet's corner, the latest fashions, and literary, artistic and scientific gossip. The fashions are to be decreed by a lady.

THE ELPHINSTONE DOCK COMPANY.

A Dock Company, entitled the Elphinstone Dock Company, is about to be started in Bombay. The promoters of the scheme propose to construct wet docks, piers, wharves, graving docks, gun-batteries, and a coal depot, between the Apollo and Arthur Bunders on the foreshore, and in Back Bay on ground to be reclaimed from within the limits of the highest spring tides.

It is evident, the projectors state, that the present limits of the island cannot meet the growing wants of the inhabitants, far less the increasing space required by the different railway companies, when their plants are consummated.

It is proposed, therefore, according to the plans which have been received, to devote that portion of reclaimed land lying between the export and import docks in Back Bay, and the Elphinstone and canal docks, between the Arthur and Apollo Bunder, on the foreshore, which comprehends upwards of eighty-eight imperial acres, for the purposes of a general railway terminus, and the erection of a custom house, sailors' home, and a club house.

The wharfage and shed accommodation provided by the import and export docks in Back Bay is 13,666 lineal yards, and the water area is equal to three hundred and seventy-nine acres, one rood, and twenty-three poles, imperial, which will give berthage space for 157 ships, that is to say, supposing that only one ship lies alongside of the dock wall at one time, and that each ship or vessel occupies 260 feet in length.

The wharfage space surrounding and between these docks respectively is 250 feet in width, which will give 125 to each dock internal, and 250 feet external accommodation, and permit a double line of rails to be laid down.

The length of wharfage and shed accommodation provided by the Elphinstone and canal docks will be 2,843 lineal yards and 50 yards in width, with berthage space for thirty-two ships.

A. R. P.
The water area of the Elphinstone and canal docks contains ... 36 2 31
And the tidal basin ... 13 2 14

Total ... 50 1 5

The length of wharfage and shed accommodation of the tidal basin is 600 lineal yards, with berthage space for seven ships or vessels.

The Elphinstone north pier will be carried out from a point on the present Apollo Bunder, 900 lineal yards into 20 feet low water, to enable the mail and coasting steamers of all classes, and at all states of the tide, to come alongside to take up and land mails and passengers.

Between the Elphinstone dock and pier, two graving docks, 900 feet in length, will be constructed, in accordance with the principles of Mr. Clerk's patent.

On the south pier-head a coal depot will be erected, 200 yards in length, and 66 yards in width, to enable coal ships to discharge, and the Government steamers to lie alongside and coal without the aid or inconvenience of cargo boats.

This will be an obvious saving to the Government of time and money.

From the south side of the coal depot, to the end of Arthur Bunder, a gun-battery will be erected 1,400 feet in length, and 150 feet in width, commanding the entrance of the harbour.

The tidal basin, the Elphinstone dock, the canal dock, the import and export docks, comprise a total water area of 439a. 2r. 28p., which will be excavated to a depth of not less than 20 feet below low-water spring tides.

The dock gates will be formed of such a width as will permit merchant ships or ships of war ingress and egress, drawing from 20 to 24 feet of water.

The originator of the scheme is Mr. R. Fairbairn, civil engineer, a gentleman of great experience and ability. The plans, estimates, and prospectus, are, we believe, now before Government, and we shall be glad to learn that a real practical beginning has at length been made. We have had so many paper schemes, that the organisation of a company is a pleasing and hopeful shadow of the future. The realisation of the scheme does not seem difficult; and if capitalists can only be induced to invest in such a desirable undertaking, in a few years more we may hope to see the face of the island changed. Whether Government will sanction the project or not remains to be seen; but in the mean time Mr. Fairbairn is deserving of the best thanks of the community for the energetic steps he has taken to carry out a design which has been so often taken up, and so frequently abandoned. —Telegraph and Courier.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE DOCKYARD.—We are informed that the following appointments are shortly to be made in the dockyard under the Commissioner of Customs:—Captain Barker, I.N., to be 1st assistant; Mr. Corke, formerly an overseer of the dockyard, to be 3rd assistant. The salaries attached to these appointments are respectively 1,400, 800, and 300 rupees per mensem. The promotion in the case of Captain Barker, an old and valued officer, will be regarded as a step in the right direction; for, considering the experience he has acquired during the many years that he has been actively engaged in the performance of his duties, a more judicious selection could not have been made for the appointment of superintendent of the harbour. In respect of Mr. Pryce, we believe that in giving him the situation of the first assistant the claims of many who are his seniors in the service have been overlooked. There are very few who will deny that the appointment should have been conferred on some old officer of the Indian navy who has served well and deserves to be remunerated.

MAJOR ALFRED THOMAS, of the 8th regiment N. I., is permitted to retire from the service on the pension of a lieutenant-colonel, from the 30th September.

THE WAGHERS.—We are glad to announce that the disturbance in Kattiawad, caused by the Waghers of Oakamundul is likely to subside. The Gaikwad has transferred the disturbed district to the British Government under certain conditions. Colonel Trevelyan has been entrusted with the management of affairs, and he has proceeded to settle amicably. One Mudden Liladhar, a Bhatia has been sent to the Waghers to persuade them to submit. They have some claims against the Gaikwad, and it is expected from the judicious character of our political agent in Cutch that coercive measures will only be resorted to on compulsion.

THE STOLEN MINUTE.—We (Bombay Gazette) are informed that the inquiry held in the Secretariate to find out the clerks who supplied the press with the confidential minute of Lord Elphinstone on the action of the Inam Commission is likely to result in the dismissal of Cassinath Dhackjee, a clerk in the General Department. A strong suspicion exists as to his share in the matter, and of course if the Bombay Times is indebted to him for the minute, Cassinath is guilty of having made an unauthorised use of the paper. We do not think, however, that the circumstances which have led to the suspicion against Cassinath are sufficiently clear and pointed in their tendency. It seems a short time ago a gentleman at Poona received, he did not know from whom, a copy of an important document, which was intended to enlighten him on a subject regarding which, for want of facts, he had but imperfect ideas. The party who did him this service remained unknown to him, and on hearing of the present inquiry in the Secretariate to get a clue to a similar mystery, he forwarded the anonymous letter to Mr. Ellis; and the handwriting bearing a strong resemblance to that of Cassinath, he is in a fair way of being discharged from the service of Government, whether he did or did not steal the minute of Lord Elphinstone. It is absurd to ask the editor how he came by it. In his natural eagerness to avail himself of evidence that confirms so exactly and importantly his own notions, he perhaps never concerned himself as to the means by which he was supplied with it.

BAPTISM.—Six persons were baptised at Surat, August 28th, by the Rev. Dr. Glasgow, of the Irish Presbyterian Mission. Five were Hindoos, one was a Parsee. The latter was brought to the knowledge of the truth by the reading of the Scriptures. A gentleman of Bombay gave to his clerks on the first of January, copies of the Scriptures. A copy received in this way was transferred to a Parsee, a graduate of the Elphinstone College, we believe, who read it diligently, and became convinced of the truth of Christianity and of his obligation to embrace it. He entered into communication with missionaries here; but his parents becoming alarmed, removed him to Surat. There he took an opportunity of introducing himself to the missionaries, and he has now been enabled to confess Christ before his fellow-men.

CRIMINAL SESSIONS.—The calendar of prisoners committed for trial before the third criminal sessions of the present year, which commence this day, under the presidency of Sir Matthew Sausse, chief justice, is comparatively a light one, there being fourteen cases and twenty-two prisoners up to the present time; one of wilful murder, two of breach of trust, one of burglary and larceny, and ten of larceny. Of the twenty-two prisoners two are Portuguese, one Parsee, three Mahomedans, and sixteen Hindoos. Ten of the cases were committed by Mr. Oliver and four by Mr. Leeke. Two or three cases are at present under investigation before Mr. Crawford. Mr. Crawford had very little time at his disposal during this interval of the sessions to devote to the bench, in consequence of his having been daily engaged for several weeks in presiding at the commission appointed by Government to investigate the charges preferred against the Cazeer of Bombay by a section of the Mahomedan community.

ELECTION OF A MUNICIPAL COMMISSIONER.—A special general meeting of her Majesty's Justices of the Peace was held on the 16th September, in the Durbar-room of the Town-hall, for the election of a municipal commissioner, in the room of Dr. G. Buist, resigned. Letters of application were read from four candidates, of whom Mr. James Young, Mr. J. F. Hutchinson (late clerk to the commissioners), and Mr. R. U. Coxen were for full time commissionership; and Mr. Narayan Dinanathjee as half time commissioner. Mr. Hutchinson was proposed by Mr. E. Heycock, and seconded by Mr. Sorabjee Jamsetjee. Mr. Narayan Dinanathjee was proposed by Mr. Munguldass Nathoooboy, and seconded by Mr. Venayekrao Juggonathjee. No one came forward to propose Mr. J. Young or Mr. R. U. Coxen. At the conclusion of the voting it was found that Mr. Hutchinson had in his favour twenty-seven votes, and Mr. Narayan, nine. Mr. Hutchinson was therefore declared duly elected as a municipal commissioner, in the room of Dr. Buist, resigned. Mr. H. G. Briggs, late assistant secretary to G. I. P. Railway Company, has been appointed clerk to the municipal commissioners, in the room of Mr. J. F. Hutchinson, appointed municipal commissioner.

COMMANDER FREDERICK ERSKINE MANNERS having retired from the service the following promotions will take place in the Indian navy:—Lieutenant Thomas S. Hilton Twynam will be promoted to Commander, and Senior Mate Mr. Henry Maughan Liardet will obtain his Lieutenantancy.

THE REV. M. J. T. BOYS was sworn Archdeacon of Bombay on the 17th Sept., and will take up his duties at Kirkoe in the third week in October. The Rev. Mr. Allen will officiate at the Colaba church until the arrival from England of the Rev. J. Bagnall, who has just been appointed to this presidency.

TESTIMONIAL TO DR. BUIST.—We have been given to understand, on credible authority, that Mr. Cowasjee Jehangeer presented, on his sole account and behalf, a farewell address, accompanied with a purse of the value of Rs. 500, to Dr. Buist, two or three days before his departure from Bombay, in testimony of his high sense of the obligations conferred on him and his countrymen by the learned Doctor.—Rast Goffar.

CAPTAIN W. H. VISCONT DANGAN, Coldstream Guards, military secretary to Lord Elphinstone, has been promoted to the rank of major in the army. Viscount Dangan is the eldest son and heir of Earl Cowley, British ambassador at the Court of Paris. He was born in 1834, and was appointed lieutenant and captain of the Coldstream Guards in 1854. His lordship arrived at Bombay in the early part of last year, as an aide-de-camp on the personal staff of the Governor, and was nominated military secretary in succession to Colonel Bates, who was appointed private secretary in the place of Mr. W. P. Adam. Previous to this, Viscount Dangan served on the staff of Lord Clyde in Oude, and was engaged in the final operations for the reduction of that province, being favourably mentioned in the despatches, which caused his recent promotion by brevet.

THE SOLDIERS' FETE.—The Committee nominated for carrying out the Soldiers' Fete met on the 13th Sept., for the purpose of auditing the accounts submitted by Captain Calusac, the honorary secretary. The accounts have all passed as satisfactory, and there being a balance of Rs. 737-8-11 in hand, the amount was distributed in the following proportions to the charitable institutions named:—Indoo-British School, Rs. 369-8-11; Sailors' Home, Rs. 184; Widows' and Pensioners' Fund, Rs. 184; total, Rs. 737-8-11.

EXPORTS (Bombay, Sept. 26).—The export market is somewhat quiet, being scantily supplied with stocks, which state of things will continue until the opening of communications at the close of the monsoon season. Cotton.—The rates have fallen, in some instances, from three to four rupees per candy, and the extent of the business transacted has been limited. Goods to arrive in December are, however, readily taken. We quote Dharwar Sawmaged at Rs. 150-51; Broach and Surat, Rs. 145-46; Compta, 131-35; Omeravuttee, Rs. 138-39; Mangalore, Rs. 133-34; and Kutchee, Rs. 138-39. Oil Seeds.—The rates for Linseed have advanced during the fortnight; Rapeseed is very scarce, and other descriptions are bare of stocks, and prices are nominal. 500 cwt. Rapeseed, Guzerat, at Rs. 5-4 per cwt. 3,000 cwt. of Linseed, at Rs. 4-14 per cwt.

IMPORTS (Bombay, Sept. 26).—The active tone of the import market has somewhat abated. Owing to the unsettled state of the weather, which still prevents a regular trade with the coast and interior, and there being a large stock in second hands at market, buyers do not evince much anxiety to purchase. Former prices, however, are sustained, and a moderate amount of business has been transacted during the fortnight. It is feared that a fall of prices will take place before our next report. Cotton Manufactures.—There has not been any material change in the Piece Goods market. Grey Goods are steady at former prices. Bleached Goods have experienced some improvement. Glasgow Goods are in moderate demand, and maintain previous rates. In Turkey Red Goods a fair amount of business has been effected at reduced prices.

THE AGRA AND UNITED SERVICE BANK has declared a dividend for the half year ending 20th June at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, or Rs. 25 per share.

The Bengal Native Army.

BY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

Military Dept., Fort William, Sept. 8.—No. 1,277 of 1859.—The old Native Army of Bengal, although by far the large portion of its regts. have mutinied against the Govt., and have ceased to exist, yet contained, as is well known, several corps whose loyalty was proof against temptation, fanaticism, and threats, and who have throughout the late disturbances continued at their respective posts; some employed in their ordinary military duties, and others actively engaged in conflict with the mutineers and rebels.

2. The corps and portions of corps, which have remained loyal and have retained their arms are the following:—

The 5th Troop 1st Brigade Horse Artillery.
The 1st Company 7th Battalion.
A few men of the 2nd comp. 8th batt., and of the 6th comp. 9th batt., foot art.

The Local Company of Artillery in Assam.
A portion of the Corps of Sappers and Miners.

A small portion of the 3rd Light Cavalry.
The 21st Native Infantry.

The 31st Native Light Infantry.
The 66th Goorkha Regiment.

The 73rd Native Infantry.
Portions of the 13th, 48th, and 71st regts. of N.I., now formed into the Lucknow regt.,—of the 42nd L.I.; a few men of the 1st, 7th, 8th, 11th, 12th, 15th, 29th, 30th, 39th, 40th, 46th, 50th, 52nd, and 67th regts. of N.I.

The Kelat-i-Ghilzie Regiment.
The Regiment of Ferozepore.

The Sirmoor Rifle Regiment.
The Kemaon Battalion.

The Nusseree Battalion.
The Bhaugulpore Hill Rangers.

The 1st and 2nd Assam Light Infantry Battalions.
The Mhairwarrah Battalion.

The Sylhet Light Infantry Battalion.
The Arracan Battalion.

The Shekawatee Battalion.
The Pegu Light Infantry Battalion.

The Malwah Bheel Corps.
The Meywar Bheel Corps.

The Sebundy Sappers and Miners.
The 1st, 2nd, 4th, 6th, 7th, 16th, 17th, and 18th

Regiments of Irregular Cavalry.
Portions of the 3rd, 8th, 9th, 12th, and 13th Regiments of Irregular Cavalry.

The Ramghur Irregular Cavalry.
The Corps of Guides.

The Punjab Irregular Force, consisting of 3 Horse Field Batteries.

The Hazara and the Peshawur Mountain Train Batteries.

5 Regiments of Irregular Cavalry; and 6 Regiments of Irregular Infantry.

The 4 Regiments of Sikh Infantry.

3. His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General in Council, in enumerating these faithful Regiments, desires to award to them all the praise which their excellent conduct has earned, and to notice briefly the services of those which have most distinguished themselves.

4. The 5th Troop 1st Brigade of Horse Artillery, from the commencement of the Mutiny at Hoshayarpore, took up a decided position on the side of order and loyalty; it maintained that position in the midst of mutinous troops at Jullundur, and its good conduct at the siege of Delhi, and on the day of the capture of that City was very conspicuous.

5. A portion of the Sappers and Miners did good service at Delhi throughout the siege, and these men subsequently served in the operations in Rohilcund and Oude.

6. The 31st Native Infantry pre-eminently distinguished itself by its loyalty under severe trials; and the larger portions of the 42nd Light Infantry and 3rd Irregular Cavalry, which served in the same District, have, by their devotion and gallantry, well earned the thanks of Government.

7. Of the men of the 13th, 48th, and 71st Regiments, it is sufficient to say that they formed part of the heroic Garrison which defended Lucknow under Sir J. Inglis.

8. Parties of the 1st, 12th, 15th, 30th, and 50th Regiments of Native Infantry escorted their Officers to places of safety; and those of the 8th Irregular Cavalry sacrificed their own interests, and hazarded the lives of their families and their property, in protecting their Officers and other Europeans. By the exertions of a Detachment of the 12th Irregular Cavalry, the Goruckpore district was kept free from disturbance for some time at an early and critical period.

9. The regiment of Ferozepore, after the very important service which it performed at Allahabad when the mutiny broke out, took part in the triumphant march of Sir Henry Havelock from Allahabad to Cawnpore, and into Oude, and eventually to the relief of Lucknow; it was subsequently employed under Sir J. Outram, his Excellency the Commander in Chief commanding, in the final subjugation of Oude, and on the frontier under Sir Hope Grant.

10. The Sirmoor rifle regiment has achieved a lasting reputation by its noble services at Delhi.

11. The Sylhet Light Infantry Regiment distinguished itself by actively and effectually opposing the mutinous regular troops which rebelled in that district.

12. The Shekawatee battalion has performed essential service in quelling disturbance in the Sumbulpore district and in Chota Nagpore.

13. To the 1st Irregular Cavalry the Government is indebted for the very valuable service which it rendered on the occasion of disarming the mutinous regiments at Mooltan.

14. The services of the corps of Guides, from the time it was first raised, are recorded in the archives of Government. The extraordinary march of this fine regiment in May and June, 1857, the hottest season of the year, from the Peshawur Frontier to Delhi, a distance of 580 miles, in twenty-two days, is a feat not surpassed; and this corps took its full share in the siege of Delhi.

15. Of the Punjab Irregular Force, the following regiments have served with great distinction in the North-Western Provinces and in Oude:—

Detachments of the 1st, 2nd and 5th cavalry at the siege of Delhi; afterwards with Colonel Greathead's column; and subsequently in Rohilcund and Oude.

The 1st, 2nd and 4th infantry at the siege of Delhi.

The 5th in Oude, and on the Nepaul Frontier, where it is still employed.

The 1st, 2nd and 3rd regiments of Sikh Infantry in Rohilcund, Oude, and Goruckpore.

The 4th Sikh Regiment at the siege of Delhi.

16. Of the good services of many of the Native regiments which were raised in the Punjab and in the North-West Provinces for the suppression of the mutinies, no mention is made on this occasion, because this General Order has reference solely to the old Native army of Bengal, and to the disposal of the regiments of which it was composed.

17. Among the corps which remained loyal and have retained their arms, the 5th trp. 1st brigade horse art. has been mentioned, together with some comps. of foot art.

18. Had it been possible to make an exception in favour of any men of the native art., it would have been made in behalf of that trp. whose well-proved fidelity has been above described. But it has been resolved that henceforward, in the Bengal army, with such very few exceptions as may be rendered necessary by local considerations, there shall be no native art. Accordingly the men of the art. who have deserved well of the Govt., including besides those mentioned above, the following companies which have been disarmed, viz. the 4th comp. 7th batt.; the 4th and 5th comps. 8th batt.; and the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th comps. 9th batt., have been allowed the option of enlisting into irreg. regts. of cav. and inf., and into the police, or of taking their discharge with gratuity.

19. During the first few months of the mutiny of 1857, in which the greater part of the Bengal native army rose in arms against the Government, it became necessary to deprive of their arms such of the native regiments as, without overtly committing themselves, evinced an unquiet temper; and such also as, from the circumstances of their position, were a source of uneasiness to the public, so long as they possessed the means of doing violence.

In the North-Western Provinces, and in the Punjab, the following regiments were disarmed:—The 4th, 5th, and 8th L.C.; the 4th, 16th, 24th, 27th, 33rd, 35th, 39th, 44th, 47th, 49th, 58th, 59th, 64th, 65th, 67th regiments N.I.; and besides these, the 4th troop 3rd brigade horse artillery, the 10th L.C.; the 5th, 26th, 45th, 51st, 57th, 62nd, 69th regiments of N.I., having been in the first instance disarmed, subsequently mutinied.

20. On like considerations the disarming of the Native Infantry regiments at Calcutta and Barrackpore * took place.

21. It was effected without difficulty. The Calcutta Native militia gave up their arms cheerfully, and the regiments of the line delivered up theirs without any sign of resistance.

22. The 32nd Native Infantry, after the mutiny of two detached companies of this regiment, who murdered one of their officers, willingly gave up their arms at the order of their commanding officer, and in that condition joined the brigade at Barrackpore.

23. At Berhampore the 63rd N.I. and the 11th Irreg.

* The Calcutta Native Militia; the 2nd N.I. (grens.); the 34th, 43rd, and 70th N.I.

Cav. were likewise disarmed; and at Benares, the left wing of the 25th N.I.

24. From that time to the present these regiments have continued to perform such duties as have been required of them. One of them, the 70th N.I., having, towards the close of the year 1857, volunteered for service in China, was re-armed and despatched thither. Its conduct in that country has been without fault. Another corps of the Barrackpore brigade has ceased to exist, the remnants of this regiment, the 34th N.I., after considerable diminution by discharge and casualty, having been incorporated last year with the 2nd gren.

25. So long as the disturbances continued to prevail in Bengal and in the Upper Provinces, it was impracticable to take any measures with regard to the disarmed regiments in the Presidency division and elsewhere. But as the Provinces quieted down, and as opportunity served, regiment after regiment, of the few remaining embodied and unarmed, has been finally dealt with as each appeared to deserve; some have received back their arms, others have been disbanded and have dispersed quietly to their homes.

26. Of the former class are the 4th N.I. (right wing); the 83rd, 88th, and 59th regiments; the 47th and 65th N.I., which were re-armed and sent on service to China; the Loyal Poorbeeah regiment, composed of the faithful remnants of the 3rd, 36th, and 61st regiments; the corps of the same description, in which are united the loyal men of the 17th, 37th, and 50th regiments; and the few remaining men of several corps, above enumerated, who did not join in the mutiny of their misguided comrades, and are now about to be gathered together and re-armed.

27. Finally, the attention of the Government has been engaged with the case of the regiments at Barrackpore and Berhampore, and of the 25th N.I. at Benares; and the determination of the government with regard to these corps is now announced for general information.

28. The 2nd N.I. (grenadiers).—This regiment is one of the oldest in the Bengal army. It was raised in 1762, and during nearly a century it has occupied an honourable position in the line. In October, 1764, within two years of its formation, it took part in the battle of Buxar; it was employed in the campaigns in Guzerat from 1778 to 1784; it was greatly distinguished in the successful defence of Candahar in 1842, and at the capture of Ghuznee and of Cabool in the same year; it won for itself an honorary colour, on which the word "Ghuznee" is inscribed, and the distinction of being made a grenadier regiment; it was engaged in the battle of Maharajpore in 1843, and in the actions at Moodkee and Ferozeshuhur in 1845. It bears all these honourable names on its colours.

29. But the high reputation of this regiment has been tarnished, and its name disgraced by the taint of disloyalty.

30. From the very commencement of the mutinies, in the early part of 1857, the 2nd grenadiers have been mixed up with the combination of the army against the State. There is no overt act of disloyalty which can be proved against the regiment; but its conduct has from the first been the subject of well-grounded suspicion.

31. It was to the 2nd grenadiers that the treasonable letters were addressed by the mutineers at Delhi, the bearers of which paid for their undertaking with their lives.

32. To restore its arms to a regiment so circumstanced is, notwithstanding all its former distinguished services, impossible; and the Governor-general in Council directs that the 2nd grenadiers shall be disbanded, and its name erased from the line.

33. The disbandment of this regiment will be carried into effect in the following manner:—

34. Returns having been obtained of the character and services of every Native officer and man in the regiment, those who are of bad or indifferent character, eighty-four in number of all ranks, will be dismissed from the service and sent away from Barrackpore at the rate of about forty men a week, with donation of subsistence allowance, calculated according to the distance of their respective homes.

35. The remainder of the regiment, consisting, after numerous discharges, of 411 of all ranks, men of good character, and against whom individually no fault is chargeable, has been divided into three classes:—

1st.—Men who have served upwards of twenty years.

2nd.—Men who have served upwards of eight, but less than twenty years; and 3rd.—Men who have served less than eight years.

These will all be discharged, and sent away in convenient numbers, in the same manner as the men who took their discharge last year from the Barrackpore brigade.

36. The whole will be granted subsistence allowance for their journey, according to the distance of their homes; and on arriving at stations near their home where there may be treasuries, they will receive a certain amount of pay, without batta.

Those of the first class six months' pay; those of the second class, four months' pay; and those of the third class, two months' pay.

37. Incorporated with the 2nd Grenadiers since last year are the remains of the late 34th Native Infantry—in all seventy-four men of all ranks. These have had no concern with the conduct of the 2nd Grenadiers, they are men who remained loyal when their comrades of the 34th joined in the mutiny. The Governor-general in Council has determined that they shall be re-armed and remain in the service.

38. The 25th regiment Native Infantry.—This corps was raised in 1795, as a marine regiment, and has done much good service beyond sea. It served with distinction at Java in 1811, and took part in the actions at Chillianwalla and Goojerat, in the campaign of the Punjab, in 1849.

39. The temper of this regiment during the mutinies has not been such as to deserve the confidence of the Government; and His Excellency in Council considers that the disbandment of the 25th Native Infantry is necessary.

40. The regiment will be dispersed in the same manner as the 2nd Grenadiers. The men of bad and indifferent character, 199 of all ranks, will first be dismissed in convenient numbers at a time, with subsistence allowance for their journey homewards; and the remainder, who are men of good character in number 382 of all ranks, having been divided into classes according to length of service, will be discharged with subsistence allowance, and will eventually receive a donation of six, four, and two months' pay respectively.

41. Besides the men of good character, whose number is given above, there are in this regiment one subadar and six havildars, who were promoted for eminent service to Govt. during the mutinies. These men will be re-armed, and retained in the serv., in consideration of their loyalty. They will be attached to regts. under the orders of the Right Hon. the C. in C.

42. The 2nd Regt. N.I.—This corps, now considerably below its complement, consists of men who kept aloof from the mutiny and murder of which two comps. of the regt. were guilty in 1857;—who gave up their arms with alacrity, at the bidding of their comdg. officer;—and who, from that time to the present, have conducted themselves with soldier-like propriety.

43. To this regt. the Gov. gen. in Council will restore its arms, as a mark of his confidence in their fidelity. At the same time worn-out men belonging to it will be invalided or otherwise favourably dealt with; and the men of bad or doubtful character will be discharged with subsistence allowance.

44. The corps will be removed from Barrackpore as soon as it can be relieved, under arrangements now in progress for that purpose.

45. The 43rd L.I.—This regiment was disarmed in 1857, not because the Government had any reason to suspect it of disloyalty, but as a precaution. The regiment bore this measure in a soldier-like manner, and has throughout exhibited an orderly and quiet temper.

46. This corps served in Afghanistan in 1842, at Candahar, at Ghuznee, and at Cabul; and won for itself the honour of being made a light infantry regiment. It served also with distinction at Maharajpore, in 1843, and at the decisive action at Subraon in 1846.

47. The Governor-general in Council, in reliance on the loyalty of the 43rd, has resolved that it shall be re-armed; at the same time its worn-out men will be dealt with under the pension regulations, and the few in it who are men of bad or doubtful character will be discharged with subsistence allowance.

48. The corps will be removed to another station as soon as the measures now being adopted for relieving it shall have been carried out.

49. The men formerly of the 34th N.I., above-mentioned as incorporated with the 2nd Grenadiers, will be transferred to the 32nd and 43rd regiments, in equal proportions.

50. The 63rd N.I.—This regiment, which in 1857 was disarmed as a precautionary measure, and has behaved in an exemplary manner under that privation, will have its arms restored to it. The Gov. gen. in Council has reason to believe that the 63rd, which was known for many years as a steady regiment, will justify by its future conduct the confidence now placed in it.

51. The regiment will be relieved shortly, under the arrangements for that purpose already in progress.

52. Before this corps receives back its arms, those who are worn out, in number 25 of all ranks, will be dealt with under the pension regulations; and those of bad or doubtful character, amounting in all to 121 men, will be discharged with subsistence allowance for their journey home.

53. The Calcutta Native Militia.—This regiment was raised in 1795, and has always borne an excellent character. Heretofore it has been a local corps. It remained untainted during the mutinies, and has continued steadily to perform the duties required of it, both before it was disarmed and since that period. It was disarmed solely as a precaution, and it delivered up its arms, as has before been mentioned, cheerfully.

54. Governor-general in Council has determined that this regiment shall be again entrusted with its arms, after having its worn-out men separated from it under the pension rules, and its men of bad or doubtful character discharged with subsistence allowance; and his Excellency in Council has further resolved that, in respect of pay and pension, the Calcutta native militia shall be placed on the footing of a corps of the line.

55. The designation of the regiment will henceforward be "The Alipore Regiment." The proffer of general service made by this corps is accepted by the government.

56. The 11th Regiment Irregular Cavalry.—This regiment was disarmed at Berhampore at the same time with 63rd N.I., although not without a show of disposition on the part of some of the men to resist that measure. But it contains in its ranks many excellent men, who have rendered good service to the State, and its subsequent conduct has been soldier-like and creditable.

57. The corps was raised in 1846, and served with distinction at Mooltan and at Goojerat in 1849, in the campaign of the Punjab.

58. All men of bad or doubtful character in the regiment will be discharged, with subsistence allowance, to their homes. The worn-out men will be invalided, or otherwise favourably considered.

59. The remainder, amounting to 263 men of all ranks, the Governor-general in Council considers may be retained with advantage in the service of the State. But the regiment will not continue embodied; and such of these men as shall desire to remain in the service will be required to enter other corps of irregular cavalry of their own selection, and will proceed to join those corps under orders which will be issued by the Commander in chief.

60. The Governor-general in Council requests that his lordship the Commander in chief will have the goodness to carry out the measures which this General Order announces, and which have already received his lordship's concurrence, in such manner as he may deem expedient.

After the arrangements announced in this order shall have been carried out, the corps which will have ceased to exist in the Bengal army will be the following:—

4th troop 2nd brigade horse artillery.

4th troop 3rd brigade horse artillery.

7th, 8th, and 9th battalions field artillery.

Ten regiments of light cavalry.

1st N.I.; 2nd grenadiers; 3rd, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th grenadiers; 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 22nd, 23rd, 24th, 25th, 26th, 27th, 28th, 29th, 30th, 34th, and 35th L.I.; 36th, 37th, 38th, 39th, 40th, 41st, 44th, 45th, 46th, 48th, 49th, 50th, 51st, 52nd, 53rd, 54th, 55th, 56th, 57th, 60th, 61st, 62nd, 64th, 67th, 68th, 69th, 71st 72nd, and 74th regts. N.I.

Ranghur L.I. battalion.

Hurremah L.I. battalion.

5th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th regiments irregular cavalry.

Oude irregular force, composed of three horse field batteries, three regiments irregular cavalry, and ten regiments of irregular infantry.

Joudpore legion, United Malwa contingent, Bhopal contingent, Kotah contingent.

R. J. H. BIRCH, Major general,
Sec. to Govt. of India.

Inferior Courts Martial.

BY THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF.

"The C. in C. has lately had before him a return of the trials by inferior courts martial that have been held in the Bengal presidency during the past year, and his lordship is concerned to find from this return that no less than 7 per cent. of the trials by district courts, and about 10 per cent. of those by regimental or detachment courts, have been set aside altogether, or the sentences quashed for illegality. In a great majority of these cases the illegalities might have been avoided had the convening officers, or the members of the court martial, given more care and attention to the performance of the respective duties assigned to them. Such a state of things is not creditable to the officers of the army, and Lord Clyde earnestly calls upon them to exert themselves to prevent a recurrence of such serious irregularities as those now brought to notice."

Four Per Cent. Promissory Notes.

Sept. 9.—With reference to the notification No. 69, dated Dec. 18, 1858, which was published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 22nd idem, for the discharge, at par, at the General Treasury at Fort St. George, of the Four per Cent. Promissory Notes of the Government of Fort St. George, issued on account of the Tanjore debt, the right hon. the Governor-general in Council is pleased to resolve that, from the date of the issue of this notification, subscriptions to the open Five and a half per Cent. Loan will be received from the holders of Tanjore bonds, half in cash and half in the said promissory notes.

Memorials to the Queen.

Sept. 9.—The following despatch from the Rt. hon. the Secy. of State for India, No. 83, dated July 28 last, is published for general information:—

All memorials and other communications addressed to her Majesty are to be presented in the first instance to the local government of the presidency, or to the local administration of the province, to which such memorials or communications may relate. They will be forwarded by the local government or administration to the government of India, accompanied if in any native language by a full translation in English, and by the government of India to H.M.'s Secretary of State.

No memorials or other communications addressed to her Majesty if sent or presented otherwise than according to this rule can be attended to.

(By order) Cecil Beadon,
Sec. to the Govt. of India.

(Copy.)

POLITICAL. INDIA OFFICE,
No. 33. London, July 28, 1859.
TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE RIGHT HON. THE GOV.
GENERAL OF INDIA IN COUNCIL.

MY LORD.—For some years past a large number of letters, some in English, and others in different native languages, have been forwarded through the Post-office to the address of Her Majesty, and since the assumption of the direct Govt. of India by the Crown, the number of these communications has increased, and may still further increase. It is desirable, therefore, that you should adopt measures to make it more generally known that all memorials or other communications, addressed to Her Majesty, should be forwarded through the local govts. of India. These communications you will transmit to me in the several departments to which the subject treated of belongs; and when they are written in the native languages, translations into English should be attached to them.—I have the honour to be, &c., (Signed) C. Wood.

Travelling Allowance.

Financial Dept., Aug. 26.—The Hon. the Lieut. gov. has been pleased to direct the adoption, in the provinces subject to this government, of the following rules (which are in force in Bengal), regulating the amount of travelling allowance to be drawn by officers proceeding by railway on the public service.

Whenever an officer of any department travelling on duty is entitled to draw travelling allowance, reckoned by mileage, and he travels the whole distance, or any portion of the distance, by railroad, he shall charge for such distance at the rate of three annas per mile only, if he is an officer entitled to charge ordinarily at the rate of eight annas or upwards per mile, and at the rate of one and a half anna per mile only if he is an officer entitled to charge ordinarily at a rate below eight annas.

BY THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF.*THE GAGER CORPS.

Head Quarters, Poona, Sept. 12, 1859.

1. Under instructions from his lordship the Right Hon. the Gov. in Council, the C. in C. is pleased to notify that the German volunteer battalion, or "Gager Corps," is incorporated with the army of this presidency from 5th inst.

Volunteers to the extent of 250 non commissioned rank and file will be taken for the horse and foot artillery, the proportion of non-commissioned officers not to exceed one sergeant and one corporal to twenty-five privates.

11d. Qrs., Poona, Sept. 12.—Ens. H. Martin, 25th N.I., attached to head quarters 1st battn. art., is directed to join his regiment at Poona.

The undermentioned officers of the regiments of artillery, having completed their course of instruction at the Ahmednuggur depot are attached to the horse brigade at Poona:—

Lieut. C. C. Pemberton.

Lieut. J. G. Edwards.

Lieut. S. C. Crawford.

Lieut. M. A. Chaldecott.

Lieut. C. E. Hanbury.

Regt. of Art.—Lieut. col. E. S. Blake has priv. leave from Aug. 29 to Oct. 27.

Such men as may not desire to serve in India will be sent back to the Cape of Good Hope. In order to make quite clear the position of the soldiers of the Gager corps who elect to return to the Cape of Good Hope, it is notified that such men as may not desire to serve in India will be sent back there with such officers of the Gager corps the services of whom may not be required by the Indian Government, for the purpose of being at the disposal of the Government of the Cape of Good Hope as military settlers, or as soldiers who were enlisted and swore, in the month of September, 1859, to serve H.M. the Queen or the E.I. Company for a period of ten years, in India or in any part of H.M.'s dominions.

The remainder of the non-commissioned officers and men, with officers as his Excellency may be pleased to retain, will join the 3rd Eur. regt.

The further arrangements connected with this incorporation will be communicated to the maj. gen. commanding the Poona div. by the adjt. gen. of the army.

POUCHES.

2. The C. in C. is pleased to direct that G.O. No. 4, dated April 27, 1858, be cancelled, as arrangements will be made for the future supply of the ingredients for pouches alluded to from the several arsenals to the corps in each division.

3. The C. in C. takes this opportunity of impressing upon commanding officers that great care is required in the preparation and application of the varnish, and unless the inside of the flap of the pouch is previously well softened with grease, the leather becomes hardened and deteriorated.

Adj. Gen.'s Office, Bombay, Sept. 12.—The leave of abs. granted, of 15th ult., to 2nd Lieut. A. W. B. Caldecott, 1st Eur. regt. (fus.), is cancelled.

The undermentioned cadets, recently arrived from England, are attached to do duty for 6 mo. with the corps stated opposite their respective names, and directed to join.

Cadet G. R. Peart, H.M.'s 31st regt.

Cadet G. C. Girardot, ditto.

Cadet W. Marshall, H.M.'s 57th foot.

Sept. 16.—Lieut. Jopp, 31st N.I., at present attached to 6th N.I., is directed to join his corps.

Ens. Poole and Nutt, attached to H.M.'s 31st regt., will proceed under Lieut. Jopp's charge to join 14th and 31st N.I., to which they respectively stand posted.

Ens. Way, attached to H.M.'s 31st regt., is directed to proceed to Mhow, and to do duty there with the 3rd Eur. regt., until a favourable opportunity offers of his joining the 24th N.I., to which he is posted.

Sept. 17.—2nd capt. C. S. D. N. Lucas is transf. from 4th to 3rd battn. of art., to join the mountain train at Ahmedabad forthwith.

Leave of absence:—

Staff lieut. J. Gordon, fort adj., Asseerghur, from Aug. 22 to Sept. 30, to Bombay, on m.c., prep. to final cert. to Europe.

Sept. 20.—The following officers are appointed to do du. with the details of discharged soldiers proceeding to England per ship Scorsby under instructions which they will receive from the qr. mr. gen. of the army:—

Brev. maj. Hatch, regt. of art.; Lieut. Berthon, regt. of art.; Jones, 18th N.I.; Ross, 3rd Euro. regt.; Macnaghten, 2nd cav.; Chaldecott, art.; Ens. Sandwith, 3rd Euro. regt.; 2nd Captain de Vitre, and Lieut. Heskins, of the art., will proceed with details by another ship to be hereafter named.

The following postings and transfers in the regt. of art. are ordered:—

Col. W. M. Coghill, from new prom. to 3rd batt.

Lieut. col. M. F. Willoughby, fr. 1st to 4th batt.

Lieut. col. J. Pottinger, from new prom. to 1st batt.

Lieut. col. Pottinger will exercise comm. of 1st batt. in add. to his other duties during such time as there may be no field officer of the corps at Ahmednagar.

Leave of absence:—

12th N.I.—Capt. H. Y. Beale, from Oct. 1 to 31, in ext., to remain at Poona on private affairs.

Poona irreg. horse.—Brev. col. T. Tapp, for 60 days, fr. date of dep. fr. Scroor on privilege leave.

Sept. 22.—Lieut. J. H. Drummond, 22nd N.I., is confirmed in the appointment of qr. mr. and interp. to that corps.

Adj. Gen.'s Office, Sept. 22.—Leave of absence:—

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

LITTLE BY LITTLE.

A BIRD of the air has whispered a secret into our ear. It refers, not to the secularisation of the Papal power, nor to the sacred rights of effete Archdukes; nor even to the capture of the Nana, or the recall of Lord Canining. Nevertheless, it is a secret of some importance, and one not without interest for the majority of our readers. But, not to keep them longer in suspense, it is briefly this:—The dignity of the Horse Guards is to be promoted by placing the Royal Military College at Addiscombe under the control of H.R.H. the Commander-in-Chief, assisted by the Military Council for Education. Thus falls to pieces the gallant old barque, the glory of the middle classes of Great Britain. One day the masts go by the board, and the rigging is cut away; on another the captain and crew are changed, and the rudder unshipped; and now the very bolts are being drawn out, preparatory to letting her sink at her moorings. Haileybury has passed away, and now Addiscombe is doomed. Great will be the rejoicing in Whitehall at this new inroad on a long-coveted domain. The patronage of the British army was all too small for the mighty minds that watch over the military resources of the country. Like the daughters of the horse-leech, they cry, "Give! give!" and at last their prayers are heard, and their petitions vouchsafed. And yet some heretics may doubt if Sandhurst has turned out, in proportion to its numbers, as many distinguished officers as the old Company's Military College, near Croydon. The glories of Indian warfare are the glories of Addiscombe. It was there the heroes matriculated who won our Eastern Empire; it was there they laid the foundation of their own fame and of their country's renown. All that is now forgotten; but let us trust that our fatherland may not hereafter have reason to repent of her ingratitude.

"OUT-HERODING HEROD."

CYNICAL bachelors occasionally amuse themselves by horrifying their female acquaintances with the proposition that a subscription should be got up to erect a statue to King Herod. Others suggest that men should walk on one side of the street and women on the other, while children are compelled to walk in the middle of the road. This sort of pleasantry, if sufficiently silly, is at least harmless—certainly far more so than the peculiar phase of philanthropy to which we are about to invite the attention of our readers. Suddenly moved by uxorious and parental feelings of tenderness,

"the powers that be" were brought to heaven a sigh and shed a sympathetic tear over the sad solitude of the brave soldiers whose disciplined valour had saved the British empire in the East. How lonely must those gallant fellows feel, when not employed in cutting down or bayonetting a mutinous sepoy or a bud-mash! How slowly to them must pass the winged hours far away from the wife of their bosom, and the pledges of their mutual affection! Thinking on these things the "authorities" wept, and vowed by Mahound that such a scandal should no longer disgrace a Christian land as that married men should be separated from the faithful and much-enduring partners of their lot. It may be that here and there a hero inwardly rejoiced that he was out of hearing of that shrill tongue which greeted him of yore as he reeled homeward from the joyous canteen. It may be that here and there an honest hard-working woman grieved not inconsolably that she was free for a time from the coarse and brutal vagaries of a drunken husband, with "an eye like Mars, to threaten and command." What matter! The principle is everything. Husbands should not be parted from their wives, nor parents from their darling little ones. If, then, the valiant soldier warring in a distant land cannot conveniently return each evening to his happy home, his placens uxor, and his prattling babes, there is no alternative but to ship the latter off to him as per Bill of Lading. Possibly a doubt may arise in censorious minds as to the advisability of sending out women to India before barracks are built for their reception. Others may even imagine that under any circumstances a swarm of European women about an Indian station will not prove an unmixed advantage. And there are even some who insist that they will die off like rotten sheep, and fill the churchyard with new-made graves. But no attention need be paid to these croakers, for are they not the same who question the veracity of a Hindoo swearing by the sacred waters of the Ganges, and assert the inferiority of natives to Englishmen in honour and truthfulness? Besides, it is manifestly unjust to suppose that the benevolence of the authorities will be content with bringing about happy meetings between husbands and wives. No doubt they will carry out their philanthropical intentions to a logical conclusion, and locate the mothers of the future colonists at healthy stations on the Hills, where they will be such a comfort to their spouses broiling beneath a vertical sun at a distance of three or four hundred miles. If we say nothing with regard to the children who are going out, the reason must be obvious. Boys and girls up to the age of twelve are now being shipped off to the Indian shambles, with the full knowledge that they must pine away and die. If European children born in India cannot thrive, or even live, unless they are sent to their fatherland—no matter what care is taken of them—how is it to be expected that European children can be transplanted with impunity to that deadly clime? They will constitute, we are glibly told, the pioneers of that band of Anglo-Saxon colonists whose indomitable perseverance is to introduce Christianity and civilisation, calico shirts and the use of the globe, into the heart of the Himalayas. Of course, ample preparations have been made for the reception of this hopeful progeny. Farms have been stocked, tea-plantations marked out, churches, schools, and cottages erected, chaplains and medical men provided, and, in short, every preliminary step has been taken by a wise, thoughtful, and paternal Government to supply homes and employment for the boys and girls who have been embarked to people the Indian peninsula with white faces. But, in truth, it is no matter for jesting. Five thousand women and seven thousand children are being despatched to the graveyards of India, in obedience to a silly impulse and in the inconsiderate pursuit of popularity. Herod may have killed his tens, but those who are answerable for this insane proceeding are deliberately killing their thousands, and taking credit for their philanthropy. It may be too late to counter-order the embarkation of these hapless and unconscious victims of official stupidity and thoughtlessness, but it is not yet too late to instruct the authorities in India to take care that the land be not polluted with the blood of the innocent and the fierce anguish of bereaved husbands and fathers.

FINANCIAL MEASURES OF THE INDIAN GOVERNMENT.

WHEN the general mutiny of the Bengal army called for exertions and for a display of military power more than doubling the usual charges of the Indian budget under this head, the Supreme Government at Calcutta first exhausted their available balances, then strained their credit to the utmost, giving increased rates of interest and other advantages, till that resource, too, failed to yield the required supplies. The resources of England were then drawn upon to the extent of twelve millions sterling; and Parliamentary sanctions have been given to the raising of this amount upon the credit of the Indian revenue without any other Parliamentary guarantee. Every rupee that has been so raised has gone into the gulf of Indian expenditure; and now, in the middle of the third year from the commencement of these troubles, with peace declared to be everywhere restored, we are yet as badly off as ever in the matter of finance. Eighty regiments of the Royal army of England are still retained in India in place of twenty-five or thirty, and the number of native soldiers in pay under one denomination or another is larger than it was before. We have thus still a double military charge to face for the coming year, besides the interest, at a higher rate than before, payable upon the loans raised in both countries upon Indian credit. The necessity of devising new resources has long been apparent; and the Home Government, when answering the call to meet these deficits from England no doubt impressed this upon the Local Government as a condition of their furnishing what was so asked. The Indian Government has not been slow in its endeavour to make the required demands upon the available resources of that country. The Pass duty on Malwa opium has been increased; Customs duties have been nearly doubled; the Salt duties have been augmented in the provinces and presidencies where this could safely be effected. Stamp duties have been raised everywhere, and equalised as far as possible; and it is proposed to levy Probate and Succession sion duties in this form. These new imposts are estimated to add upwards of two millions in the aggregate to the net revenue of India. This will cover the interest of the new debt incurred for the suppression of the mutiny. But the extra military charge arising from the necessity of maintaining so many more European troops than heretofore has yet to be provided for. Whether it is to be permanent, and what is to be its amount, were questions referred by her Majesty to a Royal Military Commission, but, so far as we can see, are not brought at all nearer to a satisfactory settlement by the report of that Commission. Still the charge continues, and the Government of India is at its wits' end to devise the means of meeting it. Such are the circumstances under which the Bill for licensing trades and professions was laid before the Legislative Council as a further necessary expedient for providing ways and means to meet increased expenditure.

The character of this Bill, and the proceedings that have been held upon it, open several very important questions. So long as it was only the improvement of existing resources that was proposed, and though the imposts were increased in rate—so long as the Council dealt only with indirect taxation—there was no demur or difficulty in passing the required Bills. But a trading licence, to be paid for at arbitrary rates assessed by a collector, was a new tax as applied to many classes, and especially to the European community. In principle it was opposed to all recognised European notions of good and appropriate taxation; and the fact that something similar had heretofore been levied, under the name of motuhurpha, was no justification in the eyes of those who had never paid. The Legislative Council appear to have viewed the Bill with repugnance from the first. In the shape in which it was presented, it was a very incomplete scheme for so important a measure. There was no principle laid down for the assessment of rate upon the licence, no machinery indicated for determining the persons liable, and for obtaining proper returns of their means. But the independent members of the Council were not satisfied to raise objections of detail of this description. The broad question was mooted, whether a new tax of this kind ought to be legalised, unless the Council were satisfied of its necessity by the exhibition of a budget showing it to be required for necessary and beneficial purposes. The Council have said, Prove this, and we will join heartily with you in seeking the means required: wanting this proof, how can we be called upon to pass laws to legalise odious imposts? The ground thus taken up is a popular one, in which they will naturally expect to be supported by the press and by public opinion in England. Of course, also, any opposition to a new tax will be highly popular in India, where already the one thought is, how to resist and make nugatory the attempt to levy it. But, apart from any such considerations, it is of the highest importance to determine whether or no the Legislative Council were entitled to ask for a budget before granting a new tax. The Executive Council have refused to submit any statement showing what the tax is required to supply, and they have done so on the broad ground that to yield the point would make the Legislative Council the judges of the expediency of every disbursement, of the extent of military establishments, of the propriety of outlays for public works, and, in fact, of every executive measure whatsoever. Everybody must see that this would be the result of yielding to the demand for a budget; on the other hand, if the Legislative Council have no other function but to lay on taxes when asked for by the Governor-general, without being satisfied of their necessity, their position will be very subordinate, and their credit and prestige will be lost for ever, as well in England as in India. The members of that Council who mooted this question were not prepared to insist on the demand for a budget, and the Bill to impose the tax has passed to a second reading. But the discussion led to extensive modifications being made in the original scheme. The executive councillor who had the Bill in charge was driven to the declaration that it was intended to assess the rate of licence on an estimate of three per cent. on the income derived from the trade or profession licensed. Thereupon the judges and others protested against any exemption of public servants, pensioners, and fundholders; and public servants, both civil and military, were, accordingly, especially subjected to the three per cent. rate, and so the Bill stands. It has not yet passed the third reading, but its crudities and imperfections have been so exposed, and so strong a feeling has been expressed against its provisions, that we should not wonder if it were withdrawn for the present.

The Home authorities having resolved on supplying Mr. Peacock's place in the Executive Council by the nomination of an experienced financier, the obvious course of expediency will be to let a measure of this novel and momentous character remain over to be considered, both in its principles and in its details, by the functionary who enjoys especial confidence in the department. As the Bill stands, it would not become law before the 1st of January next, and Mr. Wilson has taken his passage, and will arrive in the course of December, which will allow of his joining in the final deliberations upon it.

The people of Calcutta are petitioning for an Income-tax in preference to a Trade Licensing Act—an income-tax from which neither public officers, nor pensioners, nor fundholders, nor zemindars shall be exempted. But where is the machinery for levying such a tax in every town and village of India? To confine it to the Presidency towns, or even to the principal cities, would be unjust and absurd. However strong an advocate on principle Mr. Wilson may be for direct taxation, we doubt if he will like to stake his reputation as a financier on the success of an attempt to introduce into India such a tax as this. Here in England it has been submitted to very reluctantly, and has been accepted hitherto only as a temporary expedient of finance.

One thing seems quite certain, and that is, that if any tax of the kind be imposed there can be no exemptions, and the European community will have to bear more than their fair share of the burthen; for they will be more prepared to submit, and will be easily reached, so as to be made to pay in full; whereas the native community will meet the tax everywhere with a passive resistance which it will be most difficult to overcome. There is no access to information of the classes of persons liable, and their various sources of income, so that the levy from the mass of the population will, for a very long time at least, be quite disproportionate. But will the European community be satisfied to pay a direct tax of this kind without any means of knowing in the country for what the money is wanted? If convinced of the necessity of keeping upwards of one hundred thousand European troops in India for their protection, and well assured that the money is required for that, they will not refuse to pay, nor much grumble while this necessity lasts; but will they yield with the same readiness if it be merely for speculative works of alleged improvement that the money is asked? They have been clamorous against the Government for shortcomings in expenditure upon such objects, but will they be prepared for the alternative of an income-tax to provide the money wanted for the purpose? This is a matter well deserving their serious consideration.

OUDE RAILWAY.

The directors state in their report that the Secretary of State for India in Council had passed the accounts of the company, and allowed the past expenditure to form part of the capital to be guaranteed, as well as the future expenditure necessarily to be incurred in the survey of the country, under the direction of the Governor-general of India. A staff of engineers had, therefore, been despatched to India, to survey the several lines of communication in Oude. The engineers would reach their destination in time to commence their surveys by the 1st November. The result of those surveys, with the plans and sections, would, it was expected, be received in England about May next, when the views of the Government of India would also be ascertained as to the construction of the lines. The proposed amalgamation with the Central Oude Railway Company could not be carried out. The directors were, however, informed that the holders of a considerable number of shares in the Central Oude Company had evinced a desire to become shareholders in the company, and the directors deemed it desirable for the interests of the undertaking to recommend to the shareholders the adoption of the following arrangements:—1st. That the holders of shares in the Central Oude Railway Company should, as far as practicable, be admitted as shareholders in the Oude Railway Company, on payment of a deposit of 5s. per share. 2. That the election as directors of General Sim, Mr. G. Norton, and Captain Johnston, who have been provisionally appointed by the board, in the room of Mr. J. Stewart, Mr. A. Henderson, and Sir J. Login, be confirmed; and, 3. That Mr. Stewart, Mr. Henderson, and Sir J. Login be elected auditors of the company. The capital account showed that £11,358 had been received, and £5,044 expended, leaving a balance of £6,314.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TELEGRAPHIC COMMUNICATION WITH INDIA.—Messrs. R. S. Newall and Co.'s steamer Imperator left Liverpool on the 3rd instant, and the Imperatoriz on the 8th, with about 2,000 miles of cable, to connect Aden and Kurrachee, and thus complete our telegraphic communication between Alexandria and India. The cable was tested previous to embarkation, and pronounced to be very satisfactory. Judging from previous performances, the steamers should reach Aden on December 10, and Kurrachee about December 20; where, we understand, it is intended to commence laying that section of the cable, and by about the 10th of January next London will in all probability be in direct communication with India. Mr. R. S. Newall, who is at present engaged in completing the cable to connect Alexandria with Constanti-noble, will, with Mr. Lionel Gisborne, the company's engineer, proceed early in November to Aden, and thence embark on board the Imperator to superintend the arrangements. Captain Pullen, of her Majesty's ship Cyclops, will also give his assistance.

THE GIFT TO BURNS'S NIECES.—The secretary to this fund has received a second contribution from Calcutta, to the amount of £64. 7s. 9d. (the first amounted to £150). The total sum now subscribed amounts to £1,089. 13s. 3d.

BOOKS.

East and West, and Other Poems. By L. J. T. London: James Blackwood.

In the Propria Que Maribus of our school-boy days we are struck for the first time with the juxta-position of the three heroic deities, "Mars, Bacchus, Apollo." Two of these have now united in the person of a young officer of the 2nd Bengal Fusiliers to produce a pleasant little volume of "sweet and bitter fancies." We regret, indeed, the absence of the jolly god, for his presence might have enlivened the strains of a Bard evidently prone to a gentle sadness. "Your true melancholy," says "Rare Ben Jonson," "breeds your perfect fine wit, sir; I am melancholy myself divers times, sir, and then do I no more but take a pen and paper presently, and overflow you half a score or a dozen of sonnets at a sitting." But a married man and a father, who is clearly still in love with his wife and absurdly fond of his "hostages to fortune," has no right to pay such marked attention to the "pensive nun, devout and pure." Only once does he venture to touch a lighter chord, moved by the dreary horrors of a rainy day at Maulmain. But grave and serious as is their tone, these poems indicate a refined taste, a cultivated intellect, and a kind, affectionate disposition. As a first effort they are decidedly creditable, and hold out a promise of better things hereafter.

STRANGE, IF TRUE.—A curious circumstance is related by a correspondent of the Commercial Gazette, which recently occurred at Allyghur. A tailor going out after sunset observed a snake, a cobra de capello, on the road. The reptile encircled the man's leg, but he by a jerk contrived to shake it off. He then threw a stone at it, which inflicted a slight wound on the tail. The cobra, unperceived by the tailor, followed him home, and concealed itself in an old petarah. As it approached the entrance the reptile was observed by the tailor, but although he made a strict search in the house, he could not discover it. In the morning the tailor on taking out some clothes from the petarah was bit in the finger by the cobra, and died almost instantaneously.

By Order of the Secretary of State for India in Council.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That a number (to be hereafter determined) of JUNIOR APPOINTMENTS in the Engineer Establishment, and of Junior Appointments in the Upper Subordinate Establishment of the Department of Public Works in India, will next year be open to PUBLIC COMPETITION.

Candidates for Appointment to the Engineer Establishment must be not more than twenty-three years of age; and must have passed either not less than three years as Articled Pupils of a Civil or Mechanical Engineer, or not less than two years as Students in an Engineering School or College approved by the Secretary of State in Council, and, in addition, not less than one year in practice under a Civil or Mechanical Engineer.

On these points they must be provided with satisfactory certificates, and must also produce testimonials of good moral character and conduct from the Engineer or Professor under whom they have served or by whom they have been instructed, as well as certificates from the Examining Physician to the India Office of their being in a fit state of health for service in India. On applying with these documents at the Department of Public Works in this Office, in the course of the month of May of next year (during which month only will applications be received), the names of the Candidates will be registered, and they will be authorised to present themselves for examination, on an appointed day, at the Royal Indian Military College, at Addiscombe.

The Subjects of Examination, and the maximum number of marks to be awarded for proficiency in each, will be the following:—

Writing English correctly and legibly from dictation to be indispensable.

Algebra: Elementary Principles; Simple and Quadratic Equations; Surds; Ratios and Proportion; Arithmetical and Geometrical Progression	80
Euclid: 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 6th, and first 21 Propositions of the 11th Book	80
Statics: Composition and Resolution of Forces, the Centre of Gravity, the Mechanical Powers; Roofs, Arches, and Bridges; Strength of Materials	260
Dynamics: Collision of Bodies; Uniformly Accelerated Motion; Circular Motion and Centrifugal Force
Hydrostatics and Hydraulics: Pressure of Fluids; Specific Gravity, and Equilibrium of Floating Bodies; Elastic Fluids and Atmospheric Pressure; Hydrostatic Machines
Making Working Drawings of Machinery, and Plans, Elevations, and Sections of Buildings	120
Framing of Estimates and Specifications from given plans and data	80
Projects for Bridges, Locks, Dams, Roads, and other Engineering works	140
Trigonometrical Surveying, comprising Plane Trigonometry, and traversing with the theodolite	120
Land-Surveying with Compass and Chain, and Plotting from a Field-Book	60
Levelling and Use of the Instruments employed	60
	1,000

No Candidate will be passed who shall not obtain 600 marks, of which at least 140 must be awarded for Mathematics; but the Candidates who may obtain the prescribed number of marks will be ranked by the Examiners in the order of the numbers they may severally obtain, and as many of them as may be required at the time for the public service will be appointed "Probationers of the First Class," the appointments being given to those who stand highest in the Examiners' list.

Each Probationer must, within a month of his nomination, sign a covenant, describing the terms and conditions of his appointment, and must embark for India when required to do so by the Secretary of State in Council, who will provide for the expenses of his passage. Any Nominee not embarking when required will forfeit his appointment. He will be allowed pay, at the rate of 170 rupees (which is about the equivalent of £17 in English money) a-month, from the date of his embarkation.

On arriving in India he will be placed in a Civil Engineering College, or in such other educational institution as the Local Government may appoint, in order to acquire a colloquial knowledge of one of the Native languages, and to receive further instruction in his profession. While thus studying he will be allowed free quarters, in addition to his monthly pay.

When pronounced sufficiently qualified by the President of the College or Institution, he will be transferred to the effective establishment of the Public Works Department, with the rank to which his attainments may entitle him, and with all the rights and privileges appertaining to that rank in respect of pay, promotion, furlough, retiring pension, &c.; particulars of which will be furnished from this Office on application.

Candidates for Appointment to the Upper Subordinate Establishment must produce certificates of having passed not less than three years under Civil or Mechanical Engineers, or in some trade connected with Engineering, together with certificates of being not more than twenty-three years of age, and of moral character and conduct, and of constitutional fitness for service in India, corresponding with those required from Candidates for the Engineer Establishment. On applying with these documents at the Department of Public Works in this House, during the month of May of next year, their names will be registered, and they will be authorised to appear, on an appointed day, before the Board of Examiners.

The Subjects of Examination, and the maximum number of marks assigned to each, will be the following:—

Writing English correctly and legibly from dictation	25
Arithmetic	50
Mensuration of Plains and Solids	90
Framing of Estimates, on given data, from Plans and Sections of Buildings of simple form	80
Drawing Plans, and Elevations of Buildings of simple construction, and Diagrams of ordinary Mechanical Appliances	90
Levelling with the Y level	75
Land-Surveying with Compass and Chain, and Plotting	50
	500

No Candidate will be passed who shall not obtain 300 marks; but those who may obtain that number will be ranked by the Examiners in the order of their proficiency; and of these, as many as may be required for the service will be appointed "Probationers of the Second Class," the appointments being given to those who stand highest on the Examiners' list.

Probationers of this class, likewise, must execute covenants within a month of their nomination, and embark for India, when required to do so by the Secretary of State in Council, who will provide for the expense of their passage; and, in default of embarking when required, will forfeit their appointments. They will be granted pay at the rate of 85 rupees (which is about the equivalent of £8 10s in English money) a-month from the date of their embarkation. On arriving in India they will be placed in a Civil Engineering College, or other educational institution, in order to receive further instruction, and will be allowed free quarters while remaining at College. When reported qualified for active employment, they will be posted to the effective establishment with the rank to which their attainments may entitle them, and with all the rights and privileges appertaining to that rank, particulars of which will be furnished from this Office on application.

WARWICKSHIRE.—FAMILY MAN-

SION, with MANOR of 4,000 to 5,000 Acres. To be SOLD, or LET for a Term of Years, an important Freehold FAMILY MANSION-HOUSE in Leamington, which, from the large outlay made upon it, is one of the most complete in the kingdom, combining all the advantages of a town and country residence. It contains four spacious reception-rooms, and a suitable number of dormitories, with every convenience in the offices for a large establishment. There is also a Pleasure Garden adjoining, with three very productive Vine-houses, and most complete Stables, with large courtyard, comprising accommodation for fourteen horses, and a four-roomed Cottage for Head Groom.

With the above can be had on lease a MANOR of from 4,000 to 5,000 acres, in a ring fence, with Two Houses for Keepers, comprising 700 acres of fine woodland. It is within five miles of Leamington, and is bounded by the preserved lands of the Earl of Warwick, Lord Leigh, and Wren Hoskyn, Esq.; and the whole is abundantly stocked with pheasants, hares, birds, and rabbits. There is also in it one of the finest trout streams in Warwickshire. The modern furniture of the Mansion may, if required, be taken at a valuation, and early possession may be had.

For further particulars apply to Messrs. COOKES, SONS, and MEES, Midland Counties Estate and House Agency Offices, Leamington.

GENTLEMEN, if you want a Treat, try JAMES'S PATENT TROUSERS, a perfect and elegant fit, falling gracefully over the instep, with or without straps, giving that freedom and comfort so necessary in walking or riding. If you try them once, you will soon change your tailor. The texture and pattern are the best the market can produce. The price, 17s. 6d. to 25s. What a luxury to have perfection in a Coat—its fit easy, and without a crease! Try JAMES'S, Practical Tailor, 10, VERNON-PLACE, Bloomsbury-square, W.C. You will be pleased with the fit, style, and price.

THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS.

A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF BRITISH AND FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

This Newspaper presents a comprehensive and perfect view of British and Foreign affairs, with special reference to those subjects in any way interesting to residents in India, or those at home having connections there. The Intelligence is brought down to the latest possible moment prior to the departure of the Mail. The various departments are so arranged, and the intelligence analysed, as to form a weekly register of permanent interest and value, which subscribers will be glad to preserve.

The weekly issue of "THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS" renders it as eligible a newspaper for Anglo-Indians resident at home as abroad.

Families should send it to their friends abroad. Parties proceeding to India or China should not fail to order a year's subscription.

TEETH.

No. 9, LOWER GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.—Newly-invented and Patented application of chemically prepared WHITE and GUM-COLOURED INDIA-RUBBER in the construction of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, GUMS, and PALATES.

Mr. EPHRAIM MOSLEY, Surgeon-Dentist, No. 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee.

A new, original, and invaluable invention, consisting in the adaptation, with the most absolute perfection and success, of chemically prepared White and Gum-coloured India-rubber, as a lining to the ordinary gold or bone frame. The extraordinary results of this application may be briefly noted in a few of their most prominent features.

All sharp edges are avoided; no springs, wires, or fastenings, are required; a greatly increased freedom of suction is supplied, a natural elasticity, hitherto wholly unattainable; and a fit, perfected with the most unerring accuracy, is secured; while, from the softness and flexibility of the agents employed, the greatest support is given to the adjoining teeth when loose, or rendered tender by the absorption of the gums.

The acids of the mouth exert no agency on the chemically prepared India-rubber, and, as it is a non-conductor, fluids of any temperature may with thorough comfort be imbibed and retained in the mouth, all unpleasantness of smell and taste being, at the same time, wholly provided against by the peculiar nature of its preparation.

To be obtained only at 9, Lower Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, London; 14, Gay-street, Bath; and 10, Eldon-square, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

By BARNES, MORGAN, and Co.

(the Originators of this method of preserving), Upper Thames-street, London, E.C. This mode of Preserving is now acknowledged to be far superior to any yet invented. The contents will keep good for any number of years without the Tin imparting any metallic taste to the Preserve, and never candy or ferment. To Regimental Messes they are peculiarly adapted, being more portable than jars, and not liable to breakage. B. M. and Co. would also recommend their Pickles, Sauces, Tart Fruits, &c., and their large stock of York and Cumberland Hams, Cheese, and Bacon.

IMPORTANT SALE of first-class new and second-hand FURNITURE.—J. DENT and Co. beg to announce to the public that they have purchased the entire Furniture of several large houses, which, added to their already the largest Stock in London, they are offering at half its real value; comprising suites of dining, drawing, and bedroom appendages, in oak, mahogany, walnut, and other woods; mahogany dining-room chairs at 15s.; walnut drawing-room ditto, in silk, at 18s. 6d.; telescope dining-tables, at 80s.; iron bedsteads, at 8s. 6d.; every other article proportionately cheap, at the Great Western Furniture Bazaar, 30, 31, 32, and 99, Crawford-street, Baker-street. Established Thirty Years. Shippers to hot climates will find the above Stock unequalled in London.

OUTFITS TO INDIA.—Families requiring PLATE, CUTLERY, &c., will find SLACK'S ELECTRO-PLATE the most durable. It is generally used by the principal Officers in H.M.S., also by his Excellency Lord CROMBIE, Commander-in-Chief.

SLACK'S NICKEL ELECTRO-PLATE,

Manufactured solely by RICHARD and JOHN SLACK.

It has stood twenty years' test, and still retains its superiority over all others for durability and silvery appearance. Cruet Frames, from 18s.; Corner Dishes, £8. 8s. per set, forming eight dishes; Tea and Coffee Sets, £8. 0s.; and every article as in Silver.

THE MELTON RIDING BELT.—Important to those who are suffering from Weakness in the Back and General Debility. The following is printed by permission:—

"Sir,—You ask for my opinion of your Melton Riding Belt; I give it. Having resided for a long time in India, my constitution is very much debilitated, and for a long time I was suffering from a weakness in the back and the lower part of the body, which no internal remedy could reach, and the slightest exertion completely overpowered me. I was ordered by my medical man to wear a support, and seeing your advertisement I obtained one of your Melton Riding Belts, which I have worn for the last five months. It gives me great support. I can take riding or other exercise without feeling that extreme lassitude and weariness afterwards. My general health is much improved. You have my best thanks. You will secure my best support.—Yours truly,

"Torquay, July 30, 1859. J. PRATT MATHEWSON.

"To Wm. Elstah, 12, Avery-row, Bond-street."

The Melton Belt is sold by A. WHITBURN, Chemist, 174, Regent-street; of J. G. SHIPLEY, 179 and 181, Regent-street, London, price 21s.

Circulars and every information sent on receipt of address, and the Belt sent free on the size of the waist and hips being sent to WM. ELSTAH, the Sole Maker and Inventor, 12, Avery-row, Brook-street, Bond-street.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.

—In these two preparations are found reliable remedies for all complaints caused by climate, irregularity, over-exertion, or accident. Internal or external disorders are subjugated by these incomparable medicines, which never fail to relieve, if cure is impossible. They act physically, by removing impurities, and establishing regularity of functions, extracting all impurities from the blood, stimulating every secretion, and causing each organ to act healthfully. No disease in the body can long resist the combined action of these remedies, which invariably harmonize every corporeal function, and, on the brain, reflect a happy state of mind, removing low spirits, lassitude, and hypochondriacism, for which they substitute cheerfulness and contentment, and render pure our physical and moral being.
